Leave "Lost" Notices At S.A.C. Office

Several times recently "Lost" and "Found" notices have been left in the news office of "The Varsity" or at the Press. Students desiring to insert such notices are reminded that they must be inserted as advertising matter at the usual rate of 25c, and must be submitted to Mr. A. G. Burns, in the S.A.C. MENTALLY DEFECTIVE USED BY INDUSTRY

"Society Obligated to Care for Feeble Minded," Says
Miss J. Parker

INTELLIGENCE NECESSARY

"Industry could not do without the mentally defective," stated Miss Janet Parker, speaking on Mental Deficiency on Wednesday to the Household Science S.C.M. Eugenics group. "Only the feeble-minded can or will stand the monotony of some kinds of factory work."

In the course of her talk, Miss Parker explained how mental defectives were distinguished and their relation to problems of crime and social service. She told of the fine work of various institutions in training low intelligence adults and children in manual trades. Although 26 per cent of the criminals are feeble-minded "with good home training a child need never become delinquent," she said.

"Mental deficiency cannot be weeded out entirely," was her opinion, "because it may lie dormant for generations. Those with a fair amount of intelligence might have got on all right in less complex times, but to-day they simply cannot look after themselves. The only answer to the question is to create a simple environment by supervision for them and to train them to use their mental powers to the fullest extent. The hopeless must be segregated. It is curious," she observed, "that in a way our philanthropy has intensified the problem."

"Varsity" Staff Party Is Postponed

"The Varsity" staff Fall Party which was to take place at Newman Hall to-morrow night, has been postponed until after Christmas owing to the fact that the small number signing up for it has made it a financial impossibility.

"VARSITY" REPORTER DINES AT EATON'S NEW STORE

Cafeteria Offers Possibilities to Ardent Gate-
Crashers

"The Varsity" crashed the gate of the "Employees Only" cafeteria on the seventh floor of Eaton's new housefurnishings building, yesterday at noon. It was very easy to pass the door-keeper unnoticed and follow the employees in the counter line.

The main dining room food is served at half price, but this is not the only attractive feature of the cafeteria. The modernistically decorated walls and the black furniture make the room almost as attractive as the main restaurant where there is always a long waiting line.

Varsity students who want to get a cheap lunch will find this service as profitable as the free buses if they succeed in looking like employees.

St. Mike's Have Hard Time to Tie Jr. School in Mulock Cup Final

Prof. J. Satterly Cites
Some Innocent Humour

Commenting scathingly on the character of the alleged humour which appears in the columns of "The Varsity", Professor John Satterly took time in his lecture to the first year Honour Science, to express his complete disagreement with those students who had maintained that "The Varsity" was not a "dirty rag". He was in complete concordance with the sentiment expressed by Ernest W. Macquarrie in his letter to the Editor appearing in Wednesday's "Varsity".

Giving an example of a good, clean, innocent joke, the professor cited the statement carried in the T.T.C. cars that delays due to mechanical defects had been reduced 300 per cent since 1921. Loud laughter and applause greeted the explanation of this joke of the street car company which was not at first quite apparent to the unenlightened first year. Professor Satterly supplemented this humorous statement with the witty comment that the statistician of the T.T.C. should join his first year class in the "Theory of Measurements". The lecture then returned to normal.

FIRE TRUCKS SUMMONED TO PARLIAMENT BUILDINGS

A short circuit in the electric wiring caused a parade of fire-trucks up to the Parliament Buildings yesterday morning. The break was in construction work being done on an elevator in the west wing, but the alarm proved to be false.

At a few minutes before ten a screeching fire-truck speeding up Queen's Park Drive, electrified employees in the Parliament Buildings and students in nearby university buildings. Several more trucks and the fire chief's and emergency cars immediately followed, fully equipped and manned by fire-fighters donning uniforms en route.

OLD SPIRIT SHOWN AT TRINITY BANQUET

Various Professors Praise College for Its Versatile Qualities

SPEECHES, SONGS, YELLS

The old traditional Trinity spirit was shown on Tuesday night at the annual athletic banquet. Old songs and yells were given from the opening of the doors of the dining hall until the end of the proceedings.

Professor A. T. DeLury, remarking on this, said it was a good thing and that he was pleased to see the older things conserved in Trinity and that in his own undergraduate days he remembered Professor Young as a hearty singer of songs.

Professor Young, reminiscing, said that he always remembered Trinity as having lots of noisiness which he associated with life, spirit and go. He also laid emphasis on the fact that Trinity always was devoted to the cultural side of education. The artistic being best nurtured through letters and philosophy, though science has of late had an increasing value in this line.

Provost Cosgrave, having spoken on St. Hilda's, found it difficult to descend to Trinity. However, he discoursed on what he called the "excellent palatability" of Professor DeLury. He then proceeded to give a homily on humility, giving as his text "The ways of God's spirit are not those of a university man."

School Springs Surprise in Line Strength to Offset Rivals' Backfield

FINAL GAME NEXT WEEK

Ten Minutes Overtime Climaxes Battle Hard-Fought by Both Teams

Fighting an uphill battle, St. Michael's College held Junior S.P.S. to a 2-2 draw in the sudden death game for the Mulock Cup and the intercollegiate rugby championship, yesterday afternoon at the Stadium. Although St. Mike's were favoured by many to win, School showed a surprising strength on the line which offset any advantage the Irish may have had on the backfield. Ten minutes overtime was played, five minutes each way, but without result. This tie game necessitates another meeting between the two teams, which will probably take place next week.

S.P.S. kicked off and "Speaker" Burns ran the ball back to centre field. Both teams played the old standard game, two plunges and a kick, with no advantage either way. On a fumble on the line, St. Mike's lost the ball and Lichy immediately kicked to St. Mike's 15 yard line. The ball changed hands several times but neither team made any headway and the period ended. Jr. S.P.S. 0, S.M.C. 0.

The second period started with the School in possession on St. Mike's 45 yard line. After two plunges Lichy kicked to Cerre, who was downed behind the line for the initial score of the game. Junior School 1, St. Michael's 0.

The Irish plungers were unable to do anything against the heavy School line and were forced to kick. Lichy kicked a high one to Sheehy, who was brought down heavily. St. Mike's were penalized and went back to their 5 yard line. Sheehy kicked again to Hallett on St. Mike's 45 yard line. Lichy lofted another high one and Sheehy was brought down for another point for School.

Fighting hard, St. Mike's recovered some of their punch and carried the play to centrefield. After two nice runs by Burns, Sheehy kicked to Hewitt on School's 15 yard line. Lichy returned the ball to Cerre and on the next play Burns again made yards on an end run. Sheehy kicked to Hewitt, who was downed for St. Mike's first score.

In the third quarter, St. Mike's had the edge on the play but were unable to capitalize on their opportunities. The Schoolmen were hemmed in their own end of the field for most of the period and had no chance to score.

The final quarter started with the ball still in School territory. St. Mike's made yards twice and carried the ball to School's 20 yard line. Sheehy kicked to the deadline for the tying point. Jr. S.P.S. 2, S.M.C. 2.

For the remainder of the period Hewitt relieved Lichy of the kicking and Schmidt took the kicking assignment for the Irish. School forced the play to centrefield but made no headway from there and the full time whistle blew with the score still deadlocked. Overtime was played but neither team was able to score and the game remained a draw.

ENEMIES OF PROGRESS

A statement appeared in a Toronto newspaper yesterday from a prominent woman who spoke deprecatingly against the graduate dietitians of the University of Toronto, characterizing them as lacking in "Community Spirit". While the dietitians do not figure very prominently in University affairs, there is no reason why such a stigma should be laid specifically upon these students. It is true that all who undertake public life in any of its varied forms should endeavour to cultivate a mind which will see the advantage of co-operation, in the development of an esprit de corps. But quite apart from dietitians there is not a faculty in this university which does not suffer to some degree from the presence of narrow-minded bigots who fail to realize the opportunities that lie before them. With some it may be the desire to attitudinize, but in most cases it is mere stupidity. They are usually the type of people raised in small communities who see nothing beyond the confines of their early environment, like a child in its cradle imagining the whole world to be before its view. Such people can never appreciate anything that they have not actually seen, but contemptibly class men who have seen these things as branchos, yankies, or froggies, according to their nationalities.

So little do they realize their own limitations that people from other parts who speak of characteristics of their own nations and countries, antagonize them by their comparisons. They have no desire to travel themselves, for if they did they feel in some vague way that their ideas would be changed and a new outlook on life would be necessitated, and that would cause such a lot of mental labour.

But, what is still worse, when some opportunity is afforded to broaden their outlook by attending lectures on international subjects or other such cultural opportunities, they feel themselves above such things, and never get there except by accident, and then are annoyed and swear never to make such a mistake again.

All this is so unlooked for at a university where everyone is supposed to have ideals and ambitions for the betterment of the world. But if a class like this grows up with each generation of students there is a danger that at some passing crisis the thinking of the world will be the temporary victim of its misdirection. Everyone talks very glibly about progress and the great things to be accomplished, but they are usually the very people who insist on keeping their antiquated outlook on life. As students of a great university we should by this time be able to see the other fellow's point of view, and to discern our own weaknesses. Certain things by their verisimilitude require no elaboration to be readily grasped by the average man whose outlook is broad, but if it is narrow you might argue till Doomsday and he would never see any possibility of truth in it.

There are hundreds of men in small affiliated colleges of this university who would not dream of going outside their own small faculty to mingle with men who think differently, because they are so afraid of having mental problems to face. They have their own societies and engage in sports in their own college, or perhaps in a group, but as to joining a club or society outside of their particular college—why, they would regard that as rank heresy.

Not that this is confined to the university, but at a university these childish prejudices should have been left behind, and a manly attitude cultivated, that would compare more favourably with that of international figures whom we wish we could emulate.

So let our young men dream dreams, and see visions and let us cast out this petty localism from our midst and enter the world as men and not as adults with the mentality of children.

Dear Sir:

U.C. Players' Guild

As a social satire of possible people doing impossible things, Sham, the play by Frank C. Thompkins, presented by the U.C. Players' Guild yesterday afternoon at the Women's Union, was distinctly amusing.

Thousands of little human impossibilities crowded before one's appreciation, but with a definite subtleness the author hid them so cleverly that the audience was entirely unaware. He showed undoubted satire and a mock of conventions, with a rare sense of humour that removed any unwanted bitterness; yet, in spite of its cleverness and finish, there seemed to be something lacking, a staleness.

There was not plot, just the unexpected entertainment of a gentleman burglar, who frankly criticized his hosts—moral and other things. The actors, who were directed by Victor Lange, moved freely upon the stage, and effectively played up to one another, but the action, on the whole, dragged, especially at the beginning.

The cast itself was good, as should be expected from an all-star choice. Andrew Allan did excellently as the supercilious thief, the only one, in fact, who seemed perfectly at ease. Miss Patricia Godfrey and Mr. J. J. Knights, though acting their parts characteristically, were slow, and failed to put the full spirit into the play. Dennis Chitty, as the reporter, gave his lines, but did not act them.

The work was a tribute to the actors, who spent such short time in preparation, but we advise them, that if they intend to hold the reputation they claim, the employment of a little more time and effort upon their productions would make more tolerant and favourable audiences.

With the Theatres

For the benefit of our readers, pictures are graded as follows in this column: Average (0), below average (-1) or (-2), above average (1) or (2).

Uptown.

Rain or Shine. (1). Joe Cook is funny, but has no connected drama in which to do his stuff. It is a pity that Hollywood should be able to find great actors and master technicians, but seldom succeeds in unearthing a fine dramatist of the screen. Picture after picture is ruined by weak construction and silly editing. Rain or Shine is another example of this common disease. Lots of humour, fine acting, and quite fair photography, but it is all ruined by lack of a vehicle in which to get anywhere.

The Princess.

The Tavern. See this play beginning to-night if you have to sell your last shirt. "George M. Cohan is bringing the rip-roaringest, maddest, most gorgeous, burlesque melodrama ever conceived." That is the opinion of a former dramatic editor of "The Varsity" with whom we often disagree, but who is at least half correct this time. Here for three days beginning to-night.

ST. MIKE'S & JR. SCHOOL PLAY TO DRAW; JUNIORS WIN IN S.P.A.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

Junior School caused quite an upset in the Mulock Cup finals yesterday when they held St. Michael's College to a 2-2 score. Up till the final quarter, School were in the lead by a single point. St. Mike's encountered little opposition in winning their group, with the result that they have suffered through condition. Then there is to be reckoned that indomitable School spirit which is ever prominent in S.P.S. battles. The deciding game will be played next week.

Varsity juniors made a promising showing in their opening game of the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association junior hockey series at the Arena Gardens last evening. Coach Frank Sullivan has some splendid material this year, and with Cunningham, Hendry and Shipp of last year's championship team, Varsity will be represented by a worthy team in the Big Four group. By reason of their win, the juniors enter the semi-finals of the S.P.A.

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

St. Hilda's were lucky to complete their season without being defeated. On two occasions they won games by the rather unsatisfactory margin of two points. In last night's struggle against U.C. Freshies, they were at one time down 11 points. In the first half the freshies were by far the better team, and it was due to the work of the Saints' forwards right at the end of the game that St. Hilda's were able to pull the game out of the fire.

The basketball club is having a meeting to-day to decide when the sudden-death games to break the ties existing in two of the three groups will be held. It was understood that these would be played next Monday, but this date is merely tentative. It is probable that they will be played in the early part of next week, however.

Applications for manager of the intercollegiate and intermediate basketball teams will also be considered at this meeting. There is plenty of work attached to the job of manager of any team, but there is also a good deal of satisfaction for any enthusiasts who are perhaps not able to make the teams themselves, but are sufficiently interested in the game not to mind the work. Applications may be handed in at Room 82, University College any time up to the time of the meeting to-day at 4.30.

University College took charge of the parking at last Saturday's game between Argos and Tigers, and took in more than $75. This method of raising money for intercollegiate expenses seems to be very effective, as more than $350 has been realized to date, with two more games to go.

KNOX DEFEATS U.C. BY SCORE OF 3-2

University College Has Edge on Knox College in First Period

KNOX RALLIES IN SECOND

Knox College soccer team was victorious over University College by a score of 3 to 2 in the first game of the Arts Faculty finals. The game was very closely contested right through, the game being tied twice before Knox came out in the lead.

U.C. scored the first goal after five minutes of play. Bill Jack kicked a high one which went back over his head toward the goal. Irving rushed out to clear the ball but Jack backed into him, throwing him off his feet. The ball rolled down his back and into the net. MacDonald was responsible for the goal.

After fifteen minutes of playing Knox scored their first goal to tie the score. Bill Jack passed the ball forward to Orans, who tried to score from about 25 yards in front of the goal. Sobel, the U.C. goalie, met the ball at the goal post, Bush kicked in the rebound.

BLUE JUNIOR TEAM BEAT DANFORTH A.C. AT ARENA GARDENS

Donovan, White, Lynch Starred in Playing Stellar Hockey

BOTH ON OFFENSIVE

Though Varsity Lacked Two Men in Last Minutes no Score

Varsity juniors scored a well-merited win last evening against the Danforth A.C. at the Arena Gardens in the S. P. A. junior hockey series by the score of 3-1. The game, while being much of the pre-season variety, became interesting at times, particularly in the final period when Danforths took the offensive with a four man attack, they trailing the Blues by two goals. Varsity appeared to have a slight edge in the opening period even though the East enders secured their lone counter. Varsity displayed a much better brand of hockey in the second stanza and stepped into the lead with three goals.

Coach Frank Sullivan had fourteen men in uniform and every one was given an opportunity to display his ability in the game. Haddad was in the nets for the first and third periods while Frank Shipp donned the pads in the middle session. Both gave good exhibitions. Des Donovan stood out on the Varsity defence with White and Lynch giving a good account of themselves. Lynch's work was rewarded with a goal which came on a solo rush. Cunningham and Hendry, of last year's team, flashed brilliantly with Hendry's work on the Blue forward line standing out. McPherson teamed up well on left wing, while May, Doddington and Minett composed a smart second forward line.

Varsity took the offensive at the start of the game and carried the play into the Danforth territory. Timson, in goal, however, was unbeatable. Doran caught the Blue defence napping and stepped around the left side to score the East enders only goal. Varsity's front line came into action and Hendry, Cunningham and McPherson bored in on Timson. Malpass split the Blue defence wide open but Haddad saved. Varsity's superiority was shown in the second period when the team combined with combination to keep Timson making sensational saves. May gave a nice performance at centre and it was his pass out to Hendry that accounted for Varsity's first goal. Varsity stepped into the lead a few minutes later when the defence, Donovan and White, combined in a passing attack to completely foil the Danforth team, with White scoring on his teammate's pass. Varsity were showing much better at this stage of the game. Danforths recovered but the work of Shipp in the nets, with the checking of the whole team, could not be beaten. Lynch scored a pretty goal when he skated through the opposition to beat Timson on a high corner shot from close in. Danghey and Malpass combined to beat the Blue defence, but Shipp made a brilliant save. Doran came through, but his shot hit the top of the net.

FOR SIXTH TIME SAINTS WIN BASKETBALL GAME

St. Hilda's chalked up their sixth win of the season when they defeated U.C. Freshies last night at U.T.S. by the very close score of 24 to 22. The Freshies were out to win and they undoubtedly had the upper hand all through the first half. The Saints were not up to form and at half time were on the short end of a 15 to 13 count. The second half was extremely exciting as the Saints soon evened the score and after that the teams scored basket for basket. Just at the end the Saints went into the lead by a single basket and managed to hold their slim lead until the final whistle. Mary Stewart played a very fast game as forward, and Nookie Daly was also very effective. For the Saints, Bea Symons and Sally Ballard were outstanding on the forward line.

St. Hilda's—Bea Symons, 17; Sally Ballard, 7; Ruth Harrison, forwards; Fran Crooks, Isabel Wright, Gwen Murrell-Wright, defence; subs, Margaret Thompson.

U.C.—Mary Stewart, 10; Nookie Daly, 7; Frances Weisberg, 5, forwards; Eleanor Wallace, Grace Gristwood, Hilda Layman, defence.

CORRESPONDENCE

De Gruchy and Ike Sutton, why should rugby of a higher standard be left to the ordinary run of Mulock Cup referees, inexperienced amateurs, all very well for an ordinary game, but not of the calibre to handle important contests. In the Mulock Cup finals, and semi-finals this fall, there have been cases of gross incompetence, on the part of officials, one of whom admitted it afterwards.

Moreover, in a School-St. Michael's final, why should the referee be an undergraduate from School? Be he ever so conscientious, and to-day's referee was not overly so, it makes for ill-feeling and charges of partiality to have a partisan referee. In the Victoria-St. Michael's semi-final, to-day's referee was in one of the lesser positions of umpire or head linesman. Yet when the officials from the above mentioned game were placed in charge of to-day's, they were juggled about so that the School man became the head official. This despite the fact that the writer that to-day's referee had not expected to officiate, had not wanted to officiate, and that School would welcome and support a request for a non-partisan referee. There seems to be a coloured brother in the cord-

KNOX DEFEATS U.C.

U.C. had the advantage in the first half of the game. Although most of the play was in Knox territory U.C. failed to make good a penalty kick by Bridge from 25 yards in front of the Knox goal in the last minute of play. Throughout the whole period the U.C. forward line had a slight edge on Knox, particularly MacDonald and McPherson. First half ended 1 to 1.

In the second half play started on U.C. territory. U.C. came right back and rallied round until Vallet kicked on the Knox goal and Shearer registered the rebound. After a few minutes of play, Davidson and Wier carried the ball through the U.C. team, Davidson scoring on a pass from Wier. On another rush by Knox, Davidson carried the ball through the whole U.C. team and passed to Bush right in front of the goal. Bush then scored his second goal in the game, breaking the tie and making the final count 3 to 2 in favour of Knox.

The game featured many corner kicks, but at no time did they add to the score. Due to the slippery field the kicking was not as good as usual. D. Davidson, Bush, Rowland and W. Irving, in goal, made frequent saves.

For U.C. the forward line and particularly Gray, Goldenberg, MacPherson and MacDonald, played a very fine game.

Knox—Irvine, W. Jack, H. Davidson, West, Rowland, D. Jack, Bush, Orans, D. Davidson, Morrison, Wier.

U.C.—Sobel, Lefter, MacKenzie, Goldenberg, Rutgin, Gray, Vallat, Shearer, MacPherson, Bridge, MacDonald.

Final figures show that 2,555 students are registered at McGill University.

Tush!

All Quaint on the Tushituron Front

By P. H. Gardner

RACY RHYMES

The following, reprinted from the "Enareo Monthly", we consider the perfect old-fashioned admonition: John, keep away from Widow Jones—She's too tartation fly! When she sits out on her front porch She allus rocks so high!

Believe it or not, this cynical rhyme is a translation from the Egyptian of Amenhotep the Seventh (that royal rouse who, in his later years became known as "the Egyptian Charles the Second"). "Where are you going, my pretty maid?" "I'm going a-necking, sir," she said. "Is your face your fortune, my pretty maid?" "Well, not entirely, sir," she said.

ROGUISH QUIPS AND CONUNDRUMS

Q. Why is a keyhole eight feet from the ground like Lake Geneva?

A. Because it is above sea-level.

Q. Why is a "castle in Spain" like the early childhood of a family?

A. Because it is only there in fancy (their infancy).

Waffle I do? The iron has entered into my soul! Syrup (cheer up), for butter times are coming!

We hear that a certain distinguished actor devotes as much time to gardening as to his profession. Minding his peas and cucs, eh?

Q. Why don't you go in for sea-bathing?

A. I haven't a notion (an ocean).

Q. How does one who never touches soup resemble a finished artist?

A. Both achieve the consummation (consomme shun).

Here's an old old favourite: How does the Tsar of Russia differ from a beggar? Because the one issues manifestos, while the other manifests toes without his shoes.

An unintentional Old English joke: We were looking over an old family Bible when we came upon a verse which apparently read: "Solomon was wifer than David." How apt!

Don't know how these crept in. Have you heard the S.P.S. ballad—"I'm dancing with beer in my mug", and the camping song—"Little black flies?"

And Gaspard's swell crack about the Plovers' Form Corsets reminds us of an old unpublished one of our own: The Hunting Song from "The New Moon"—"Plover, Come Flap to Me!"

SCOTSMAN WINS IN GRUELING RACE

Tush! wishes to announce that the venerable tale which ends "My God! I am shot!" is definitely on the retired list, after decades of active service. Please show some respect for age, and refrain.

We understand, incidentally, that this joke has just recently got round to S.P.S. Well, that's their hard luck. We must make a note to warn Victoria in 1936.

We conclude, daringly as usual, with the earliest salacious joke of our memory. At the early age of seven and four months we came across this risqué riddle hidden away in the depths of a most respectable conundrum-book. From the reading of it our downward career commenced. Here it is, and may Heaven forgive us! It made us what we are to-day—we hope it's satisfactory. "Why did the lobster blush?" "Because he saw the salad dressing!"

JUNIORS BEAT DANFORTH

Danforth took the offensive at the start of the third period. Malpass, Fellion and McKay worked tirelessly, but the Blues' rearguard was unbeatable. Varsity attacked, but it was not as strong as that which they displayed in the middle stanza. Danforth's defence was air-tight. With five minutes to go, the East enders placed four men up on the offensive and although Varsity were two men shy in the final minute and a half of play, no score resulted. Ten minor penalties, six to Danforth and four to Varsity, were handed out by referee Norman Albert. The teams:

Danforth A.C.—Goal, Timson; defence, Grant, Foster; centre, H. Doran; wings, White, Danghey; subs, Fellion, Malpass, McKay, Ellis, Downing, Price, F. Doran, Eley.

Anyway, they have time before the next game to arrange for outside officials, for it is too much, considering School spirit, to ask a School man to referee a game in which his fellows are playing and do it impartially.

"If St. Michael's have a complaint to make it should have been sent to the Athletic Directorate rather than start a discussion through the columns of 'The Varsity,'" said M. A. Mackenzie, president of the Athletic Directorate in an interview with "The Varsity" concerning the letter which appeared on Thursday criticizing the handling of the officials of the St. Mike's-Jr. School final game in the Mulock Cup series held at the Varsity Stadium last Wednesday afternoon.

Professor Mackenzie went on to say that since the Varsity senior intercollegiate team is willing to accept Percy Bowles, a paid official of Queen's University as an official in the Queen's Varsity games and since when Ridley and Upper Canada College play, their officials are chosen from the visiting team, one would think that by the time young men get to the University of Toronto they have developed to the point where the sense of justice and fair play predominates. The most natural inference would be that the official from S.P.S. would rather tend to favour St. Mike's than School.

T. A. Reid, secretary of the Athletic Directorate, stated that "It was the representatives of the contesting teams who appointed the officials and that accordingly the whole matter remained in the hands of the students themselves. The fact that there has been very few protests in the last ten years to the Directorate itself and

Social Conduct of Our

PATRONESSES A BOTHER

Saskatoon, Sask.—"The Sheaf", undergraduate paper of the University of Saskatchewan says editorially today:

A long time ago we glanced through a book of etiquette. It was battered and dog-eared, and at the front was a picture of a lady in a long dress, with a fan in her hand. She was conversing with a young gentleman, and if her sentiments were at all akin to ours she was wondering why he favoured high stiff collars and cutaway coats. She might not, however, have been restraining her mirth, for this was an old-fashioned book.

In spite of this we used to think that a few of the book's precepts were generally accepted. It was only after coming to the University that we learned how old-fashioned and trivial these rules really were; and, although we referred to their conduct just a short time ago and consequently might be expected to consider other subjects for a while, we cannot refrain from giving the credit for this disillusionment to those who attend our dances.

The word patroness reminds us of an illustration in the book. It showed the arrival of several patronesses at a dance, and strangely enough they

Varsity Man Awarded Psychology Fellowship

The University of Toronto, in conjunction with McGill University, last year offered for the first time a fellowship of approximately five hundred dollars, open to the graduating years of all Canadian universities. This fellowship, awarded by the National Committee of Mental Hygiene, is given to a man doing work in industrial psychology.

It requires a background in Economics and Psychology, as well as some practical experience in business. This year the award was made to A. J. G. Wilson, who graduated from University College in the General Course.

PROFESSOR JACKSON DISAPPROVES PLAN

Stabilization of Price of Wheat at Present not Certain

NO BENEFIT TO CANADA

"Canada obviously cannot control the world price of wheat for she produces only ten per cent of the world supply," said Professor Gilbert E. Jackson, when interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday.

Continuing, he stated, "No one in Canada knows at what level world wheat prices will find stability in the next two or three years. Therefore if anyone were to attempt to stabilize the price of wheat in Canada by the use of public funds at any given figure, they would be taking on a financial commitment which it would be impossible to measure in advance."

The wheat market has in the past few days sunk to the lowest level in years and proposals have been made by prominent men throughout the country that the Federal Government at Ottawa set aside a sum of money large enough to stabilize the price of wheat whenever a crisis of this sort occurs. This would be done in practically the same manner as it is being done in the United States under the Federal Farm Board.

GIGGLING GIRLS SHIRK RESPONSIBILITY OFTEN

Leadership Training Group Is Sponsored by S.C.M. at Wymilwood

"Our new outline of study starts with the psychology of girlhood and the girl herself, because she is the material that we have in our hands," said Miss Evelyn Crow, national secretary of the United Church, when addressing one of the groups on leadership training sponsored by the S.C.M. and held in Wymilwood yesterday.

Miss Jessie MacPherson, Girls' Work Secretary, for Ontario, carried out the same idea, observing that her group was to be a "seminar in discovering what an adolescent girl is like" and that "we must not forget that one learns a great deal of life from oneself." In her discussion, Miss Crow stressed the tendency in teenagers to giggle, to become wildly enthusiastic, and to shirk responsibility. The senior girl, she said, "is waking up to all of life, to other personalities, and to her need for something more than human help."

Miss MacPherson spoke chiefly about girls from twelve to fourteen, and would have surprised our younger sisters by some of her remarks. Girls are apt to be self-conscious and sensitive; they are obsessed by "crushes"; and passionately worship movie stars and royalty; they are great organizers of clubs which usually peter out before long.

Clarence Darrow Tells Life Story at Fraternity Luncheon

CAREER PREDESTINED

The story of an American boy who did rise from poverty to great fame was told by the hero of the tale himself at a luncheon given in his honour by the members of the Sigma Tau fraternity yesterday. The man was Clarence Darrow and he used the story of his career to illustrate one of his pet theories, that man has nothing whatever to do with his destiny.

The great American criminal counsel, who can boast that none of his clients has ever lost his life to the state, told over 100 Toronto law students that they had just as much, or just as little, chance to succeed as he.

Darrow was born in a little Ohio town, the fifth of a large family. At the age of 16 he went to work with a farmer for $15.00 a month. After a day and a half he decided he was made for better things and that he'd never do another day's work in his life. He claims that he hasn't.

Then he decided to be a lawyer, not because he wanted to benefit humanity, but because he considered it the easiest way to get along. He realized that the farmers always listened to members of the legal profession.

FRAUD CHARGES LAID AGAINST FAKE AGENTS

Charges which have been laid by members of the office staff of the Swift Canadian Company against the person who has been selling subscriptions to a fake publication known as the "Varsity Goblin", came up in police court this morning.

The person in question is alleged to have obtained subscription blanks belonging to an accredited representative of "The New Goblin" of Montreal, and to have forged that representative's name in the signing of receipts.

Checks given in payment for subscriptions were endorsed over a rubber stamp reading "The Varsity Goblin", by S. C. Wilson and S. Olanow.

An attempt was made yesterday to refund the money to employees of the Swift Canadian and have the charges withdrawn, but Mr. James Beckett of that company is pressing the charges in police court today.

Viscount Willingdon Visits Victoria Classes Cancelled For The Occasion

After being received at Victoria College at four o'clock Lord and Lady Willingdon will go to Burwash Hall where the student body as a whole will be gathered. Lord Willingdon has promised to speak and it is hoped that Lady Willingdon will also make a speech.

LARGE CROWD AT DEBATE

Nothing Lost at Death, Is the Atheist

By J. L. Stewart

"Two of the ablest and most distinguished ornaments to their respective professions in America," to quote Mr. Justice Riddell, met in debate in Massey Hall last night in the persons of Clarence Darrow, eminent American criminal lawyer, and Rabbi B. R. Brickner of Cleveland. Before a capacity crowd which they held spell-bound for more than two hours, they discussed the pros and cons of the question, "Is Man a Machine?"

"Man is simply the latest product of evolution and has come to be the super-animal of the earth," claimed the great jurist. Reminding the audience that millions of years ago the heat on the earth was so intense as to make any form of life impossible, he continued that nothing new could have entered the world since that time. For that reason, there was nothing in man which might distinguish him from the plants and other animals to which he was kin and from which he had slowly evolved. There was no justification for belief in such a thing as a "soul" or a God. Man was simply a mechanism and a very imperfect one at that.

Rabbi Brickner, however, refused to consider man as anything approaching a machine; rather he was a "self-conscious creative personality". He was quite willing to admit the influence of heredity and environment in shaping man's life, but held that there remained to man "ample area for the exercise of judgment, will, intelligence,

ITALIAN PHILOSOPHERS HAVE PARTICULAR ZONE

Have Given Liberty and Life

"Philosophers have played a large part in the political life of Italy," stated Professor Tagliacozza before the Philosophical Society last night. The professor thinks that, due to the great decline in Philosophy in Italy from the 17th century to the 19th century, Italian philosophers have not been studied as they deserve to be. He expressed the wish that some of the young men of this country would study the philosophers of his land, especially Gioberti, and make them better known to America.

Professor Brett introduced the speaker. The following officers of the Philosophical Society were elected by acclamation: President, A. G. Reynolds; vice-president, D. Owens; secretary-treasurer, D. C. Smith.

The executive for the current year was elected and certain plans suggested for the conduct of the coming meetings of the club. Several members of the executive-elect spoke optimistically of the interest of these future meetings. It is understood that prominent Liberals from both the Federal and Provincial arenas will be asked to speak to the members of the club. All undergraduates interested in the activities of the Liberal party in Canada and in this province are urged to watch the columns of "The Varsity" for notices of future meetings.

The executive for 1930-31 is as follows: President: T. A. Jamieson, Vice IV; secretary-treasurer: S. H. Seal, Lord Willingdon to attend Charter Day Exercises at Victoria College, but owing to previous engagements his visit was postponed until next Tuesday.

MUST FIT MEN TO THE MACHINE

Feeble-Mindedness Said to be a Hindrance in This Mechanical Age

MORGAN STATES OPINION

"If it is true, it is a reflection on industry," answered Professor L. T. Morgan of the Department of Economics, when asked by "The Varsity" for an expression of opinion on the article in Thursday's "Varsity" which quoted Miss Janet Parker as saying that only the feeble-minded can or will stand the monotony of some kinds of factory work.

"It is sometimes a case of fitting the man to the machine, and not the machine to the man," was Professor Morgan's comment on modern industry. "I hope that the implication of the article is not therefore that the presence of feeble-minded in a community is to be welcomed. If so, it is a sad reflection on our present civilization." Professor Morgan could offer no remedy for a condition of industry such as was described by Miss Parker—a condition which, in his opinion, does exist.

"While I have made no special study of this, so far as I know, what Miss Parker says is perfectly true," said Professor G. E. Jackson, Supervisor of Studies for the course in Commerce and Finance, when interviewed on the same subject at Baldwin House yesterday. Disclaiming any knowledge of a cure for this state of affairs, Professor Jackson made a few remarks on the problems mental defectives present to the economist.

"These people are employed during prosperity, though they are the last to be taken on," he observed. "When prosperity ends they are naturally the first to be laid off. They are the great sufferers during trade depressions. This class exists in every country and is not a large one here."

ACTION IS BEGUN TO ALLOW ALGIE BACK IN S. P. S.

Engineering Society Petitions
Faculty Council to Re-instate Him

RECONSIDERATION REFUSED

Editor of Toike Oike Will Not be Given Chance to Continue

Definite action to allow W. E. Algie, former editor of Toike Oike, to continue his undergraduate career, has been taken on his behalf by the Engineering Society of the School of Practical Science. A recommendation passed by the Engineering Society has been forwarded to the Faculty Council of S.P.S. to the effect that Algie be reinstated as a student. The Faculty Council have refused to reconsider their action in this regard, it was learned.

It will be recalled that Mr. Algie was suspended from the university for one year following the refusal of the Engineering Society to accept his resignation, when he was advised to retire from the position of editor of Toike Oike by the Dean of the Faculty, Brig-Gen. C. H. Mitchell.

In spite of the fact that the Engineering Society, the official student body of S.P.S., supported Mr. Algie, the Faculty Council took the drastic step, unprecedented in recent years, of suspending him from the university. His name does not appear in the current directory of staff and students that is ready for distribution.

What further action will be taken by the Engineering Society has not been indicated. Although a student code exists in the university, having jurisdiction over undergraduate affairs, Mr. Algie did not have the opportunity of appearing before this body, but was directly disciplined by the Faculty Council. Student opinion regarding the action indicates that this is considered a direct affront against student government, as administered by the Engineering Society.

HARD TO CREATE GOOD RUGBY TEAM

Dr. McCollum States that the Present Coaching System Is Inadequate

COACH NOT PROFESSIONAL

Dr. J. A. McCollum, member of the Advisory Board of the Athletic Directorate, when interviewed by "The Varsity", insinuated that under the coaching system now in use at the U. of T. a championship rugby team could not easily be created. A certain continuity of instruction is absolutely necessary in order to obtain a first-class team, he stated. No coach can be expected to build up a team in one season.

Asked if the present Varsity coach were not in reality a professional coach, Dr. McCollum stated that since the coach did not depend on his salary in this capacity for a livelihood he could not be classed as a professional. Without giving the matter more consideration, Dr. McCollum refused to state definitely whether or not he was in favour of hiring a professional coach.

Professor M. A. Mackenzie, M.A., president of the Athletic Directorate, refused to voice any opinion on these matters, as did J. D. Sinclair, undergraduate member of the Directorate.

INSOLENCE OF OFFICE

We have hesitated to make any remarks upon the Algie episode at S.P.S., but in view of the Faculty Council's recent—and evidently final—decision not to reinstate the Editor of Toi ke Oike as a member of fourth year Applied Science, we feel that one or two sentences might be timely, even although we quite realize that they are bound to be misconstrued.

The insoleness of the Faculty Council in deliberately ignoring the recent petition of the Engineering Society has only been equalled in the current year's annals of this University by the same Council's initial refusal to acknowledge the forenamed Society's right to assume the official stigma of the actions of one of the latter's members.

Quite aside from any questions of taste—or lack of it—which may have been raised with regard to the publication in question, we feel that the Faculty Council of S.P.S. has undertaken to administer to the organized undergraduates in Applied Science a deliberate blow in the face which is as arrogant as it is childish.

When the question was raised as to the tone of Toi ke Oike, Mr. Algie tendered his resignation. The Engineering Society refused it. The Council immediately, instead of censuring the body which had assumed the onus, suspended Mr. Algie. The Engineering Society protested, appealed the circumstances, and urged Mr. Algie's reinstatement. And now the Council refuses to consider the Society's requests.

This is the mailed fist, with a vengeance.

The Coaching System

Editor, "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:

Regarding the discussion in your columns about the weak-kneed performances of Varsity teams during the past decade, the howl has arisen that a paid coach would introduce the evils of American college football into this University. Why should it? The University has never in the past made the move to place athletic ability above scholarship, so why should the situation be altered by paying a coach $5,000.00, say, to devote his full time to coaching, instead of paying him a so-called honorarium for giving a few hours a day during part of the year to the job?

At the University of Toronto football represents an investment of several hundred thousand dollars, and

Hart House Theatre

On Monday night Hart House Theatre will be one hundred plays old. To celebrate its birthday, there will be a feature production of Peer Gynt, the greatest drama of Henrik Ibsen, and one of the most powerful plays ever written.

In the fall of 1919 a small group of players under the directorship of Mr. Roy Mitchell, produced a triple bill to open the first season and the first production. Now in 1930 under the directorship of Mr. Edgar Stone, one of the great dramas of the world will be presented for the hundredth production.

In Henrik Ibsen's story, which Mr. Stone has adapted for the Hart House stage, are all the elements to test the skill and imagination of the actors and the technical staff. The musical direction has been undertaken by Dr. Ernest MacMillan, the dancing by Mrs. Terence Sheard (Miss Lorna McLean), who will also play the part of Anitra, and the settings designed and executed by Fred Coates.

A pleasing feature is that many old associate players of the Theatre have expressed a keen desire to take part in this Centennial Production.

The cast for Peer Gynt numbers about 35 or 40. Some of them are: Jack Nash, Lorna McLean, Hasel Mitchell, Ivor Lewis, Dixon Wagner, R. Keith Hicks, Marjorie Hicks, Harold Hunter, Leslie Lloyd, Alice Strong, Margaret Wilson, Elaine Wodson, Percy Schutte, F. J. Mallett, Eleanor Barton, Kenneth Conn, Horatio Purdy, Murray Bonnycastle, Margaret Robertson, Dorothy Livesay, etc., etc.

Jack Nash is Peer, Hasel Mitchell is Asse, Lorna McLean is Anitra and is also directing the dances, Alice Strong is Solveig, Ivor Lewis is the Troll-King.

Sketch Room

For the fourth of this year's series in the Hart House Sketch Room, the committee has arranged an exhibition of water colours by two Toronto artists, A. J. Casson and Frank Carmichael. There is a considerable measure of similarity between the works of these two men, as can be seen from these examples. Both have a technique in water colour which is reminiscent of oil painting, and suggests that the artists are more at home in that medium. Casson uses a freer sweep of the brush and a broader use of colour. His paintings of rocky headlands are very fine. Carmichael has a more delicate touch; his cloud effects and his representations of trees in swamps are remarkably realistic. Probably the best pictures in the exhibition are those in which Carmichael, using the method of "washing out", gives a glorious impression of stray sunlight stealing through banks of clouds. It is an exhibit well worth seeing.

Mr. A. J. Hazeland and Mr. D. Reed are doing very fine work with their exhibitions in the little Sketch Room. This week's exhibit is highly recommended. It is a series of reproductions of the work of such masters as Rubens, Velasquez, Claude, Cuyt, Ruysdael, and Hobbema.

BLUE JUNIOR RUGBYISTS FACE M.A.A.A. AT MONTREAL TOMORROW

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

Almost for the first time in the history of baseball at the university: a St. Michael's team won a game when the Double Blue defeated Vic last night by a score of 3 to 2. The game was well played at every stage and there were very few errors. This is a surprising record for girls' baseball and especially St. Michael's teams, since in other years errors of omission and commission have been the rule rather than the exception.

The work of the opposing pitchers was particularly outstanding. Norma Beecroft, in the box for the Scarlet and Gold, was very effective, and was unlucky to lose. Vic had a great many more left on the bases than St. Mike's, who will have to improve their batting averages considerably. Marion Shaidle, in the box for the winners, is one of the best hurlers seen at college for a long time.

Decisions concerning the intercollegiate basketball playoffs were made at a meeting of the executive of the basketball club held last night. As originally planned, the group ties will be played off Monday night, with St. Michael's and Junior U.C. meeting at six o'clock and Junior Vic and Senior U.C. at eight, at U.T.S.

The winner of the St. Mike's-Junior U.C. tilt will have to play St. Hilda's in the first game of the semi-finals on Thursday, November 27, with the second game scheduled for the following Tuesday.

JUNIOR TEAM PLAYS QUEBEC CHAMPIONS IN C.R.U. PLAYOFFS

Intercollegiate Championship Squad Are Confident of Victory To-morrow

M.A.A.A. HAS STRONG TEAM

Winners of Semi-Final Game Will Play Juniors From St. Thomas

Carrying with them the hopes and good wishes of the entire university, Varsity's junior rugby team left at 8.45 this morning for Montreal, where they will meet Montreal A.A.A. juniors to-morrow in a semi-final C.R.U. playoff. Behind them they leave a trail of beaten teams, for in eight games, including exhibitions, they have yet to be defeated. Led by Captain Bill Leachman, one of the fleetest halves in junior football, they have battered their Intercollegiate opposition into submission, and are continuing in the quest for the Dominion championship.

Much of the credit for their success must be given to their coach, Harry Bales, former Intercollegiate player, whose careful drilling has been more apparent every game they have played. Charlie Vaughan has managed the team, and the harmony which prevails among the players is a tribute to these two men.

On the half line, the freshman squad has its greatest strength. Leachman and Harold Arnup have been running back the kicks, and this fast-breaking pair have been the despair of opposing tacklers. The latter does the booting and some of his lengthy punts are reminiscent of Sinclair. McGinnis relieves the halves, and his running has been spectacular. Patterson and Webster, the flying wings, have been running and plunging sensations. George Watson, is the biggest line-man on the team and the former Humberstone boy has the makings of a great plunger. Keith at snap and Henderson at outside are others whose work has drawn favourable comment. The substitutes form a second team which would give many junior teams a battle, with Woolnough being a standout against Queen's.

Montreal A.A.A. have had a team in the playoffs for several years, and the club is determined to wrest the Dominion title from St. Thomas.

ing Tuesday. This arrangement gives the winners of the Junior Vic-Senior U.C. struggle a bye.

The recommendation that Miss Marion Forward, for two years coach of winning intercollegiate teams, be again appointed coach will be made to the Athletic Directorate which has the final say in the matter. Also, it was recommended that Miss Edith Blackwell, coach of the intermediate team last year, be asked to officiate again in this position. Both these mentors were very successful in former years, and the decision to accept these recommendations will be very welcome by everyone concerned.

Apparently there are not many girls anxious to manage either of these teams. However, a selection for the intercollegiate will be made from Ruth Harrison and Gwen Murrell-Wright, both of St. Hilda's, while the application of Pat Palmer, of Victoria, was made for the intermediates.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The football treat of the season will be served up to Toronto fans to-morrow when Mike Rodden's battle-scarred Tigers tackle the up and coming men of Batstone in the Eastern Canada semi-finals at the Stadium. The Athletic Control Board of Queen's certainly did us all a big favour when they elected to play the game here instead of at the Richardson Stadium. It seems that the Tricolour feel that they can play much better rugby on our field than they can in their own backyard. There's something in that, too. Of course, the difference in the size of the gate has nothing to do with staging the contest here. In any case it will be a real struggle. Reports from the Limestone City state that Queen's are in first-class shape in contrast to the Bengals, who have half their men on the injured list. However, the Tricolour may not feel so healthy after the Tiger "cripples" have worked out on them in the first quarter.

Since the intermediates, Orphans, and seniors are now through for the season without winning a title, it remains for the juniors to uphold the prestige of the university on the rugby field. The squad coached by Harry Bales won the intercollegiate title by defeating Queen's here last week, and now play Montreal A.A.A., Quebec champions, in Montreal to-morrow. The winner of this game then plays the O.R.F.U. juniors the following week in the Eastern Canada semi-finals. The juniors are deserving of the highest praise for going this far and it is only hoped that they can come out on top with the Canadian honours.

University of Toronto will have an excellent chance to take the senior intercollegiate basketball title from Queen's this year if pre-season dope means anything. Several new stars have joined the team and are showing rare form in workouts under coach McCutcheon.

The newcomers include McCallum, who starred with the Niagara Falls Echoes, intermediate champions of Canada last year, and this year he has moved up to senior company. The Echoes themselves have entered senior ranks, but the presence of McCallum will be badly missed on the rearguard as he is a wonderful play-maker as well as a scoring threat at all times. Hynes of Rochester is also out with the squad and it is expected that he will strengthen the team considerably.

George O'Leary will jump centre and should turn in as good performances as he did last year. "Wiff" Newman, star player last year is not back at Varsity. Hal Collins, who was captain of last year's intermediates, will appear on the senior line-up. Collins, who is a spectacular and accurate shot should considerably bolster the forward line.

The defence will be composed of Gord Cock and Ben Sakler and this pair should be able to break up many an attack of the opposing team. Earl Davis, and Harold Sniderman, make up the selection so far, but it is probable that one or two more men may be added to the squad before the season gets under way.

should be handled in a business-like manner. In considering a coach's salary, U. of T. should be able to outbid any other organization in Canada. If Breen, or any other coach, was considered capable of handling the situation it is not very flattering to the intelligence of those responsible if the monetary consideration is the only reason he is not here now.

Apart from the paid coach idea there are numerous other features that are rankling the minds of those interested in the University's good name. We have heard the feeling expressed frequently, by graduate and undergraduate alike, that too much of the personal element enters into the choice of the players on the first team. This feeling is so universal, in the writer's experience, that if it is not true there should be some evidence to refute it. Is the real reason why a man of Rodden's type is not engaged because interested parties know that, with such a man at the helm, players would be chosen for their playing ability rather than their fraternity affiliations or their relation to, or friendship with, some one connected with the team?

We agree with Cochran that it is too much to expect any man in business to devote the large amount of time necessary for the proper coaching of a team that draws crowds of 20,000 people. Surely the Athletic Directorate does not think that such a spineless exhibition as the last three games offered can continue to attract such support. In this connection we suggest that it will be impossible to obtain an impartial consideration of this matter as long as four of the five elected student members of the Directorate are players on the team offering such an exhibition.

One of the disgusting features of the situation is that members of the team, judging by their recent performances, seem to feel they are conferring a favour on their Alma Mater by playing for her. We admit that it is no soft assignment playing a season with the team, but we submit that, in spite of this, there can be recruited from this University teams that will show a little of the fighting spirit usually characteristic of intercollegiate teams, and so well exemplified by Western's entry this year. Any team that can win its first three starts can win at least some of the last three, if they are properly endowed with determination and grit.

In concluding, may we state that this has been written, not from a cynical point of view, just to criticize, but with the hope that those responsible for the situation will realize that there are at least a few of the first University team, and perhaps others will take up the cause, forcing the University to take initiative in providing football teams worthy of the University they represent.

sion and that lawyers usually had better clothes than anyone else. Across the road from his home lived a tin-smith, who was also a J.P., and Darrow often went across and listened to the "pettifoggers" of the village.

Finally, he was admitted to the bar. The first practical advice he got was from an old lawyer who said to him, "If anybody asks you your opinion on the law, give it whether you know it or not." He claims to have been doing that ever since.

He later moved to Chicago, because he couldn't get a house he wanted in the village. He existed in Chicago for a year without trying a case. Then he attracted attention through a speech he made in favour of the single-tax idea. Six months later he became a special assessment counsel for the city, although he didn't even know the mayor who offered him the job. Then the assistant corporation counsel was fired and Darrow got his position. The corporation counsel died and Darrow stepped in there.

Up to this time he had never tried a criminal case, but now one of his friends insisted that he defend him on a wife-beating charge. Darrow did. He has been a criminal lawyer ever since and thinks that criminal law is the most fascinating of all the branches of law.

We may agree with Mr. Darrow when he says that his birth, his going to Chicago, his making that speech and his getting that position with the city, were all purely accidental, but we feel sure that there must have been a lot of ability tucked in somewhere.

seemed to have not the least difficulty in entering the ball room. There seemed to be no one else around. There again time and experience has worked a change. At Saskatchewan we realize that some attempt should be made to amuse the patronesses. So we carefully crowd up around the door to the dance floor, preventing any possible entrance. Then the officers of the Social Directorate form a flying wedge and rush forward, permitting the patronesses to follow. This adds to the general merriment and ensures a pleasant beginning to the evening for the patronesses. Thus by merely disregarding minor customs we succeed in fulfilling the spirit of them.

thought and aesthetic qualities."

He admitted the possibility of tracing human evolution back to a single cell, but demanded that his opponent show where that cell came from and how dead matter became live. He held that there was a Creator and that it was impossible to deny that in each man there exists something of the spontaneous, of the mysterious, and the incalculable which makes up his soul.

Mr. Darrow, in his second speech, disclaimed all knowledge of the origin of things. He did know that given force and matter and the right degree of heat or cold, a new form might be produced from two given forms.

He wondered what this "soul" was of which his opponent talked so fully. He himself believed that on his death none of the force or matter within him would be lost, but he scoffed at the idea of immortality and the old-fashioned conception that the soul lives on after the body. There was nothing in man which was not in the brute—nothing except in degree. Each of them simply consisted of matter and a force to move that matter.

Against this point of view, Rabbi Brickner again asserted that man was possessed of a soul "with creative potentialities". He believed completely in a "directive intelligence". "Belief in a God," he stated, "makes one immortal and elicits the best and highest from my being."

In a keenly contested game Vic defeated Junior U.C. in a water polo game last night by 3-2. Garton starred for the Scarlet and Gold.

If You Are Not Mad Over Puns Do Not Read One Word of This

By Horatius B.A.

Dear Children:

It all began when the editor observed that fifty million historians can't be Wrong. Of course he was Allan (I dare not say ailing), but that does not excuse him saying with his next breath that fifty million statesmen can't be Kings. This was too much so the ass. man. ed. drove him off with the double barrelled crack that if fifty million poets can't be Guests, fifty million martyrs can't be More. But the ass. man. ed. got his when the society reporter noted that neither can fifty million artists be Held, nor fifty million rowers all be Wright. No girl could be allowed to retire unchallenged, so the exchange ed. mildly recalled that fifty million flyers can't be Byrds. At this point I still believe that fifty million nuts can't be loose, but lose my faith when a mere cub declares that fifty million presidents can't be Kenny. And now a canny Scotchman arose with wild-eyed glee to announce that fifty million economists can't be Fay. No one said that fifty million Scotchmen should be kilted; but it was fast proved that fifty million Lions can't be Elks as long as fifty million scientists can't be Best. All by myself I ascertained that fifty million Tories can't be Meighan, but the editor returned to reveal that fifty million Hebrews can't be Dizzy. Once more the ass. man. ed. revived and confessed that neither fifty million bridges could be Work's, nor fifty million soldiers all be 'aigs.

At this point the lights all went out.

Yours very, very truly,

Horatius B.A.

P.S.—Fifty million premiers can't be Baldwins (Bald ones—old apples, you know).

P.P.S.—Sentenced to be half shot at sun-rise.

CANADA TO PROGRESS IN SPITE OF FRENCH OPINION OF TRINITY

State Some Lumberjacks Had Belief War Was On Again

TOOK TO TALLER TIMBERS

Habitants Deucedly Clever at Speaking English, Sometimes

"Resolved that this House views with favour the French-Canadian influence in our national life," was the subject debated by the Trinity College Literary Institute at Trinity House on Friday night. After hours of speeches the speaker called for a vote and the decision was awarded the affirmative. N. Bilbrough was the principal speaker for the winning side and C. C. M. Douglas spoke on the paper for the negative.

In speaking of the life of the French-Canadians, the speakers contradicted each other on many points, which each one stated had been learned from personal contact with the "habitant."

"The French-Canadian can rarely speak English," stated C. L. M. Douglas, "and they are very ignorant of world-wide affairs." He told a story of one group of lumbermen in Quebec who had been told that the war had started again and in all seriousness, were debating whether to hide themselves in the woods or to remain and risk conscription. "Canada," he continued, "will advance in spite of, and not because of, the French-Canadian. They live isolated and individualistic lives."

The next speaker, the leader of the present Trinity College government, contradicted the last statement. "The French habitants are very eager to learn to speak English and they can speak it fluently in a great many cases," he said. He cited the case of Louis Joseph Papineau and his fight for responsible government as one French-Canadian who had purely Canadian interests at heart.

A Hundred Points on the Perfect Male Looks and Health Help Tell the Tale

Come on girls! Find your boy friends' batting averages. Recently the women at Carnegie Tech in Pittsburgh decided to write out 100 things which they demand of the perfect male. "The Varsity" is going to publish twenty of them every day this week in the form of questions, so that you can mark the boys from 0 to 10 on each one. The perfect man will get 1,000 points, but don't be alarmed, because it's not likely that anyone will even approach that mark. The questions are under the ten main heads: Looks, Health, Charm, Disposition, Sportmanship, Efficiency, Common Sense, Domesticity, Money Matters, and Background, and the first two of these appear to-day.

LOOKS:

1. How well does he understand that cleanliness is the first requisite of godliness and good grooming?
2. Will he be bald and toothless at 45—or does he take proper care to preserve these natural beauties?
3. Are his ties sympathetic with the vibrations of his shirts, or are they a babel of discord?
4. How particular is he in achieving that well-groomed appearance by keeping his clothes pressed, shoes straightened, and holes in his socks at least out of sight?
5. Does he know when, where, and how to wear a tux?

Urge Changed System Of Football Coaching

The coaches of Varsity's senior football teams in recent years, namely, Ronnie McPherson and Les Blackwell, have urged a change in the system of coaching at the University of Toronto. McPherson, who coached Varsity to its last football championship in 1926 is quoted in the Daily Star as having stated that he preferred, above any other method, to have a professional coach on a contract of a few years to give him a chance to develop material.

"I have wanted that for the past three or four years. Many of my friends want it. I really feel that the present system is inadequate," he said.

Last year "Les" Blackwell, writing in the Stadium Magazine, put forward his arguments for an athletic director who would be a permanent official that would direct the activities of the coaches and who would look after all sports, not football alone.

This week Hart House Theatre presents its 100th production. It should be recognized that this is the 100th production of a playing group under the direction of the Syndics of Hart House Theatre and does not include the number of plays produced by university and affiliated groups.

Hart House was presented to the university in 1919 and the Theatre has had the longest life in the production of drama in Toronto. The Theatre was established under the close personal supervision of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Massey as an experimental theatre for the use of the university and the wider community which it

I satisfied two ambitions Friday morning. One of them was the desire of every cub reporter to interview one of the really great. The other was the ambition that every law student has to talk to one of the acknowledged leaders of his profession. They were both realized when I had breakfast with Clarence Darrow and his charming wife at the Royal York.

Mr. Darrow, as everyone knows, is an atheist and an agnostic. He is also a great criminal lawyer and a great humanitarian. Across the breakfast-table, however, he showed himself to be a genial, witty and extremely interesting man, somewhat worn-out from his exertions of the night before, but highly pleased with the reception Toronto had given him in Massey Hall. "Machine," Darrow, as Rabbi Brickner called him, hasn't any more sympathy with our educational system than with religion. He told me that he thought that our schools should be made over entirely, from the lowest to the highest.

"Formerly," he said, "the authorities taught nothing of any value in the schools. Latin and Greek prevent

DEBATERS RAKE OVER MARRIAGE PROBLEMS

INDISSOLVABLE—DOWNER

"Resolved that in the opinion of this house marriage relationship should be considered permanent," was the subject for the debate held at Wycliffe Friday evening. The debate was between members of the Third and the Fourth Divisions. Members of the Third Division, P. W. Downer and A. J. Forte, comprised the affirmative, with Rev. J. J. Hurley and H. R. Perkins of the Fourth, forming the negative.

P. W. Downer based his arguments on ethical and general grounds not relating to the individual. "Marriage is historically indissoluble," was his opening statement. He pointed out the evils of promiscuity and that it was an absolute necessity for man to insist upon chastity since this was the foundation of real marriage based on spiritual love. Continuing, he showed that the decadence of the Roman Empire was due to promiscuity and resulted in race suicide. He concluded with the fact that the virility of the Jewish race was consequent on their monogamy.

The first speaker on the negative, the Rev. J. J. Hurley, opened his argument by stating his disapproval at the attempt to introduce a motion against personal freedom so flippantly. He traced the evolution of marriage through the stages of concubinage, polyandry, polygamy and monogamy. "The Church," he said, "took the existing form of marriage and attempted to establish it as fundamentally an ecclesiastical form." He deplored the attitude of the Church of England for stating that marriage was a remedy for sin. He stated that marriage ex-

Montreal, Que., Nov. 22.—In one of the bitterest struggles ever seen at the M.A.A.A. stadium, Varsity juniors, undefeated intercollegiate champions, succumbed to a last period attack by Montreal A.A.A. juniors, undefeated Q.R.U. title-holders, and were defeated by a score 12 to 10. Fighting against the double odds of playing on the home grounds of a heavier team, the plucky Varsity squad put up one of the courageous displays which made the Orphans of '28 famous, and until the final canto were leading the Eastern champions.

Montreal fielded what is probably the heaviest line in junior rugby, and a half-line averaging 186 pounds. Sheer weight and size enabled them to gain yards far oftener than the Toronto team, and their irresistible line smashes all but broke the Blue team's heart. Varsity's inability to stop Jotkus, 190 pound Lithuanian halfback, was one of the deciding factors of the game, and this husky star ripped through for many big gains, including one touchdown.

The Red and Black drew first blood when Cloghey kicked for a single, but when the same player fumbled Arnu's punt, Varsity recovered and Warren plunged over for a touch. Arnu made it 6-1 when he kicked another point. Kicking with the wind, Jotkus hoisted one 50 yards for a

Nocturnal Life of Queen's Park Displayed at Noctem Cuckoo

By R. E. Noles

Friday evening found us upon the threshold of that hospitable haunt of the Zoups and Prunes, Hart House, where I was relieved of my Noctem Cuckoo ticket by a trusty henchman of the House, who directed us hench into the building, after returning our Rain Checks.

Passing a group of dress shirts in the hall and moving down the stone-lined alleyways, we found ourselves in the midst of Dental students' skits. First year pounded away with a very lively orchestra, and the second year gave us a throbbing mellerdrummer of mortgaging the farm. The lad who played the part of the Mortgage, we thought, was excellent.

The third year presented an insight into the Night Life of Queen's Park, complete with Petties, Boozie Hounds, Bums, and versatile Arms of the Law. Fourth year's skit was a travelling side show, featured by a bumptious barker, a magician, and a pocket Hercules who busted spikes with his strong feet, and many others.

The fifth year musical comedy won the Gaston Brule Cup for the best offering of the evening. It had a very artistic stage setting done in Varsity colours arranged in Modernistic designs, with the players in blue blazers and flannels to match their background. The audience tolerated the musical numbers very well and was much amused when the Stasiak-esque aerobats occasionally dropped each other on the hardwood floor. Faculty Council Refuse To Reopen Algie Case

The Council of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering have refused to re-open the case of W. E. Algie, suspended editor of Toike Oike, Brig-Gen. C. H. Mitchell, Dean of the Faculty told "The Varsity" in the course of an interview on Friday morning.

"The Faculty Council discussed the case for nearly two hours, and did not alter their decision that Mr. Algie be suspended from the University for one year," Dean Mitchell said.

The Engineering Society, it was learned, petitioned the council of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering for further reconsideration of the case. While not condoning the offence, the Society petitioned on the grounds that they had taken all responsibility from Mr. Algie in refusing to accept his resignation.

TREAT RECOMMENDATIONS

Board of Governors Do Not

They Admit

Assurance that no immediate steps would be taken toward cutting off the compulsory fee for "The Varsity" was given by Sir Robert Falconer at a meeting in Sincove Hall Friday afternoon between the Joint Executive of the S.A.C. and the Board of Governors' committee to decide the future status of the undergraduate newspaper.

With Sir Robert in the chair, in the absence of T. A. Russell, chairman of the committee, the meeting discussed the recent recommendations of the Executive's committee. The recommendations were characterized as "a great forward step" and were regarded by the representatives of the Board as sufficient indication that the Joint Executive was taking decisive measures to warrant the continued confidence of the Governors. That the present tone of "The Varsity" offered room for improvement, was the opinion of one of the Governors.

On being pressed by the editor of "The Varsity" for a specific cause of this dissatisfaction, the President of the University replied that he did not believe that the undergraduate newspaper was read by the members of the Board of Governors. He himself, he pointed out, rarely read "The Varsity". Another member of the Board announced that he had not read any newspaper whatever for several years.

Interesting Case of Co-ed

PSYCHOLOGY OF SOAP

"Many students fail in the early years of their course to realize that psychology is describing people," stated Professor McPhee in his address to the Psychology Club Friday evening. "Psychology is concerned with insanity and is interested in how to prevent and cure it. The study of mental hygiene started from a challenge to an obnoxious type of institution—the asylum. It was antiquated, immoral and debasing."

Prof. McPhee told of the ease of a co-ed with whom he had to remonstrate on the subject of her poor marks. She could not be made to talk and he concluded she certainly must be abnormal. This girl was finally taken to the mental hospital.

"Psychology is very interesting as a basis for industrial problems. For instance, a Palm-olive soap ad-writer is a psychologist. He doesn't say his soap is a cleanser, but is an excellent aid to 'Love and Loveliness'. No one cares about cleanliness, but everyone is interested in 'Love and Loveliness'. The discovery of the real want constitutes fifty per cent of the sale."

THE UNIVERSITY ORGAN RECITALS

According to an announcement in the daily press on Saturday, the organ recitals regularly held in Convocation Hall every two weeks, are to be cancelled because of the indisposition of the organist, Dr. F. A. Mouré.

The popularity of these organ recitals, cannot be gainsaid, and we feel that with organists of such international reputation as Dr. MacMillan, the Principal of the Conservatory of music, and others who are seldom, if ever, heard in the University, it is rather tragic that the University organ should be closed because of the illness of Dr. Mouré.

It is surely a favourable opportunity to introduce some of these leading organists of Toronto to student audiences, at a time when but for them we should be forced to await Dr. Mouré's return, but the authorities evidently feel that the students are not sufficiently interested to invite men of this calibre to give a recital. To our recollection there has not been a recital in Convocation Hall in the past decade by any other organist than the official organist for the university, despite the fact that we have such outstanding musicians so close to hand.

The Conservatory of Music is affiliated with the University, and if the authorities do not wish to go outside, they might feel quite safe in selecting the leading organists on the staff of the Conservatory.

Every year we have wonderful opportunities to hear lectures on all kinds of topics by internationally renowned doctors and professors; we even have well known string quartets in addition to that from Hart House, but lovers of the organ are forced to travel all over the city to hear any organist other than Dr. Mouré, when other musical treats are presented within the University.

Surely the present circumstances might warrant a departure from this rather rigid policy, and the recitals be continued until Dr. Mouré's return?

Deplores Lapses

Editor, "The Varsity".
Dear Sir:

I feel an irresistible urge to express disagreement with Mr. MacQuarrie's letter of condemnation of "The Varsity". "The Varsity" deserves credit and appreciation as a paper representative of undergraduate opinion and permeated with the atmosphere of university life. Its news articles and editorials are often interesting and sometimes good. The sports page and bulletin board fulfil faithfully an important duty. For over four years I have not only read almost every issue of "The Varsity", but have considered it of sufficient interest and value to pass along to certain friends interested in undergraduate activities.

While most students enjoy much of the humour (especially our ancient Cat), there is little doubt that many deplore such lapses as Mr. Gardner's in last Thursday's issue. Such contributions would be quite acceptable in "Life", but appear undignified and offensive in a publication representative of student opinion. Human nature is "funny that way". We often welcome profanity (even obscenity) as a very considerable consolation in the time of adversity, yet find that same profanity repulsive (and ineffectual), in print. It arouses an antagonistic sensation comparable to that induced on hearing people eat in the talkies. The fine touches of profanity find an entirely unnatural element in print. I hope that such a creditable organ will refrain in future from such distasteful lapses. They destroy our pride and enjoyment in "The Varsity". Thanking you for the space and assuring you of sincerity and appreciation.

Yours hopefully,
Trinity 370.

Down With Victorianism

Editor, "The Varsity".
Dear Sir:

In the current furore over a naughty "Varsity" I should like to point out that perhaps the greatest contribution our generation is going to make is in divesting itself of the blight of Puritanism which has descended on us from Anglo-Saxon parents.

Social life, like all other living phenomena, fluctuates between extremes. Cromwell's Puritanism was a reaction to Elizabethan England. Victorianism was a reaction to Walpole's England, and both Elizabethan and Walpolian England were much nicer places in which to live. Our parents, through no fault of their own, were confined in stodgy parlours where self-expression was insolence and where the natural life was immoral.

For various reasons our generation is swinging back and happily so to a healthier point of view. We see the fallacy of Victorian standards of conduct and believe we can be just as fine personalities in a life temperate, individualistic, and frank. After all, anyone who is mentally honest recognizes that much of what so-called "good" people consider morality is

Friday Afternoon Recital

Mr. C. McCormack was the guest artist at the Friday afternoon recital in Hart House. This writer has heard few pianists so youthful and yet possessing such an admirable technique and such a depth of feeling as Mr. McCormack has.

In Beethoven's "Moonlight Sonata", the intense personal emotion expressed in the movements, especially in the second, well served as verification of the legend about the composition. Mr. McCormack placed sufficient emphasis on the thematic material in the organic transitions to allow no perceptible break in the thought. Each movement, though worked up to a definite climax, was made to overlap and coalesce with the other. The buoyant Chopin Scherzo served as a fine medium for the pianist to display his technique. The infinite shadings between piano and forte were duly appreciated in Mr. McCormack's rendition.

The two Intermezzi by Brahms lost none of the composer's individuality by the pianist's interpretation. Rather, the second, which was based on a Scottish folk song, was a most delightful and colourful piece of melodic beauty and rich harmony.

Of the four Fantasies of Schumann, the last one in C sharp, showed more of the bravura style and episodic expression than the others.

The Music Committee will make no mistake in having Mr. McCormack as the guest artist again soon.

merely convention. The typical youth of to-day is not interested in convention.

I am confident that the average modern youth is cleaner mentally than his Victorian ancestors. Sex is a fundamental element in people of every generation and any form of satisfaction of it save in grosser forms was considered so horrible that it cannot but have been an obsession with enormous numbers. We, free in our relationship with the opposite sex, are open in our conversation, find in it neither the glamour of a forbidden subject nor is its satisfaction so heinous as to involve little more than a question of discretion.

Profanity or whatever these expletives are called is a concomitant of the same liberalizing evolution, and if rather tiresome, does no one any harm. The best initiation into any normal intellectual life in this age is some free relationship with the opposite sex, and a fair smattering of a forceful masculine vocabulary. Not only is it a most efficacious humanizing influence, but it does a very great deal in casting off the deadening influence of Victorianism and in opening one's mind to the great intellects we are here to study and who, it must be remembered, have all been radicals in their day.

point, and M.A.A.A. crashed their way right down the field for a touchdown, with Jotkus carrying the ball on the final plunge. Varsity got the lead back when they recovered another fumble and Arnpur booted for a single to make it 8-7 at half-time.

The third quarter saw Varsity attempting to stop Jotkus, but Leachman's smart running enabled the Blue to add two more points. In the final canto the Montreal team unleashed a terrific attack, tore in the lighter Blue line, and finally blocked a kick to secure on the 15 yard line. On the second down Dixon went over to make it 12-10 for Montreal. Varsity fought themselves into utter exhaustion in an attempt to even the score, but the winners held them off.

The chief features of the game were the plunging gains of the Red and Black, and the amazing fighting spirit of the Blue. The Montreal crowd cheered as Varsity walked off the field, and an M.A.A.A. official said he had never seen a pluckier display. Oille, Calvert and Keith were almost insensible from exhaustion. The entire Varsity team gave a splendid display and deserve great credit for their showing.

The Montreal team had a slight but distinct margin throughout the game.

Jotkus was the best man on the field, and is hailed as another Conacher. On this display Montreal should win the C.R.U. playdowns, and they will likely meet Argo juniors next Saturday.

KNOX WIN INTERFACULTY SOCCER TITLE; BEAT U.C.

Knox won the Arts Faculty Cup for the third year in succession by holding U.C. to a 2-2 tie Friday afternoon on the front campus, after winning the first game 3-2.

U.C. were in the lead twice during the game, but could not hold it. U.C. scored the first goal when a shot by MacKenzie went in off H. Davidson.

WHEN WILL THE DIRECTORATE SPEAK?

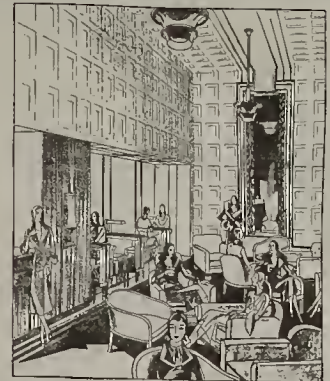

By A. C. Cochrane, Sports Editor, "The Varsity"

A special meeting of the Athletic Directorate and the Advisory Board has been called for to-morrow. Is it possible that it concerns only the arrangements for the Athletic At-Home on December 5? Or will their attitude on the question of coaching at the University of Toronto be crystallized in a public statement?

A change in the existing system of coaching at Varsity has been advocated by "The Varsity" and the main thesis of our articles has been a paid coach with a five-year contract. Too much emphasis cannot be laid upon the necessity of a change. We have made a constructive suggestion and pointed out a deplorable state of affairs. It has aroused a storm of favourable comment and revealed a sincere desire for a change, as witness press comments, interviews with graduates formerly active in University athletic circles, letters to "The Varsity" and general discussion of the problem on and off the campus. When men like Ronnie McPherson and Les Blackwell favour a different system, it is time that the Directorate was cognizant of the attitude of those who are interested in football at the U. of T.

In the face of this, will not the Athletic Directorate make some pronouncement of what they have been doing, or what they are doing, or what they intend to do? The Directorate has been singularly secretive about their actions regarding the matter and it is time that they came out into the open.

As yet we have received no derogatory criticism of the suggestion of a professional coach from any other source than from individual members of the Athletic Directorate, and then only unofficially. We understand that there is a fear of professionalism creeping into sport at the University. Allow us to point out for the benefit of those who labour under such anxieties that Canada has a professional coach for the Olympic team; that Walter Knox is paid to instruct our high school athletes; that the University of Toronto has salaried men to teach boxing, wrestling, swimming and basketball. Has the sacred amateurism of these sports been desecrated by these professional instructors? And the two major sports at the University of Toronto, namely, football and hockey, are supplied with coaches with insignificant honoraria and who are supposed to be graduates of this University, whereas the instructors of the lesser sports are not. Apparently, inconsistency, thou art a jewel to the Directorate!

QUEEN'S OUTPLAY CHAMPS

By John N. Chorlton

After out-playing, out-fighting and out-kicking the Mighty Hamilton Tiger machine for three full periods, Queen's University, intercollegiate champions for 1930, let down on the first play in the last quarter long enough to allow Sprague to gallop forty yards to the touch-line for the only major score of the game, and put the result on ice for the crippled Hamilton team.

Up until that one play was pulled off it looked for all the world as though the Canadian champions were in for a beating by the students, for they had looked anything like a championship squad up to that time, but when an opening as big as a barn door was made by the interference, nothing could stop Sprague from going over the line to break up the ball game. Queen's missed their chance to win the game in the first few minutes when Gilmore missed four tries at a field goal and instead of being content with four points, he tried for twelve and got only one.

Although Sprague proved to be the hero of the game for Tigers, Bowdway easily stood out as Hamilton's best man. On several occasions Bowdway was given the ball on the last down with a yard or so to go and he generally succeeded in pushing the ball over for the necessary yards. Sprague, who was the most consistent gainer for Hamilton in the game against Argos, did not get going all day and except for the one long run which netted a touch, did not prove at all effective in breaking through the line. Neither Wright nor Leadley could compare with Carter of Queen's in the matter of booting the oval and on half a dozen occasions Queen's men broke their way through what was supposed to be an impregnable defence to block the Tiger kicks. The first kick that Wright tried in the game was blocked and Queen's got possession on Tiger's twenty-five yard line. Gilmore then tried for a field goal but the kick was blocked and Tigers got the ball.

Hamilton—Flying wing, Bowdway; halves, Leadley, F. Wright, Langway; quarter, Sutton; snap, Gibb; insides, Denman, Clark; middles, Sprague, Small; outsides, Fear, Wilson; subs, Cox, Simpson, J. Wright, Inksetter, Walker, Chapple.

Queen's—Flying wing, McKelvey; halves, Gilmore, Carter, Caldwell; quarter, Mungovan; snap, Hastings; insides, Basserman, Nihol; middles, Hamlin, Stuart; outsides, Gourley, DeDiana; subs, Ralph, Schmidt, Davis, Morris, Reist, Buell, Stanyar.

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

To-night the championships of two of the basketball groups will be decided. At 6 o'clock St. Michael's will meet Junior U.C. and at 8 o'clock U.C. and Junior Vic will clash in their group final. Both these games will be real struggles. All of these teams have lost games only to each other, and rivalry between them is keen.

St. Michael's started off well by defeating Junior U.C. by 26 to 18, but in the second game the Red and White came out on top by the small margin of two points, the score being 14 to 12. Both teams have been practicing hard since their last encounter, and both are at full strength.

The result depends mostly on the steadiness or otherwise of the respective forwards. St. Michael's are especially inclined to shoot too quickly, and it was this fault which enabled U.C. to take the tying game. The defence on both teams is very strong, and are good at intercepting passes.

The other game between Junior Vic and Senior U.C. should be especially exciting. U.C. took the leadership in their group by defeating the Scarlet and Gold on their own floor by 22 to 17, but when they met again this time at U.T.S., the Vic forward line showed their class in defeating the Red and White by a ten-point margin.

U.C. have three intercollegiate players on their team, and if these three turn in their usual game the result should be a win for the Red and White. However, the Vic forward line is very fast and accurate, and with Bea Longley, the sensational little freshman from North Toronto Collegiate, leading their attack, they will give a good account of themselves before the group winner is declared.

Sometime this week, we suggest that you come in and ask for the Saturday Evening Post. This is a good issue.

ST. MIKE'S MEET SCHOOL TO DECIDE CHAMPIONSHIP

St. Michael's College and Junior School will renew their battle for the interfaculty rugby championship tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. at the Stadium. Encouraged by their splendid showing last Wednesday when they held the much fancied Irish to a tie, School will enter the game filled with much of their well known fighting spirit. Their success will depend a great deal on the ability of Lichty to boot the ball, and also on the tackling of the wings. "Speaker" Burns, flashy St. Mike's quarter, got away on some (Continued on Page 4) fore the group winner is declared.

One of the encouraging things about interfaculty basketball is the never-say-die spirit which has characterized most of the games this season. No matter how far ahead one team might be, all the players were right in there trying hard all the way. This was well exemplified at the game between Senior Vic and Therapy on Friday night.

In spite of the fact that both teams are definitely out of the contention, the game was particularly hard-fought, with both teams giving all they had. Senior Vic came out on top by a 34 to 18 count, but not before a spirited battle.

CANADA TO PROGRESS IN SPITE OF FRENCH

J. Cluff, in opposing the motion, stated that "the French in French-Canada, at the present time, while they owe their political influence to Ottawa, owe their cultural influence to France."

A member of the opposition showed his contempt for the government by blowing several perfect smoke-rings.

"The French Academy has crowned French-Canadian literature ten times. As this is the highest honour France can give, it cannot be denied that the French-Canadians have brought honour to Canada," stated the next speaker for the opposition.

After many opinions had been voiced by both sides of the House, the vote was called for and the government was defeated on the motion.

NEW WRITERS' CLUB HOLD THIRD MEETING

The Writers' Club held its third meeting last Friday at the Women's Union. Very little time was spent on official affairs, and the meeting opened with a short story by Betty Gourette entitled "Not to the Strongest", a fantasy of the desert. In criticizing this, Mr. Ken Erwin, the president, said that the expression "bones bleaching" was extremely hackneyed, and some amusing suggestions were offered as substitutes.

Mr. B. Borsook read a poem entitled "Hunger", a realistic picture of the present day conditions of the unemployed as a result of the Wall Street crash last year. After criticism and discussion, everyone agreed that Mr. Borsook had penned a very apt and touching portrait of a man without work.

Refreshments were followed by Mr. Ronald T. Woolard's paper "On Birds", in which the author described with light and convincing touch, the appearance and habits of various Canadian birds.

The meeting closed with a discussion of the comparative merits of foreign and English literature, and some attractive plans have been made for the future.

The Writers' Club was organized to enable undergraduates of the university to meet for frank constructive criticisms of original work and some interesting stories and poems have been read to date.

Milton Sills, who last work before his death was "Sea Wolf", was a graduate of the University of Chicago with a B.A. degree in philosophy.

isted before the Church and yet the Church tries to insist on its being fundamentally a religious ceremony.

A. J. Forte, second speaker on the affirmative side, in his characteristic and emphatic manner, stated that he had been carried away by the oratory of the negative side, but that they had produced no real substitute for marriage. He stated that the cause for the social unrest of to-day was due to the abuse of liberty and undue rise of individualism. The only way in which this can be remedied is by social education in the church, home, and school, not by a law reconstructing marriage relationship.

H. R. Perkins, second speaker for the negative, asked why, if two people make a voluntary contract, society should forbid them to break it if they so desired. The children of a couple who cannot get a divorce are living in far worse conditions than those who have been divorced, due to the constant bickering and dissatisfaction in the family. Divorce is the only remedy.

In summing up, the leader of the affirmative showed the prevalence of immorality in countries where divorce is easily obtained. If divorce is granted on any other grounds than infidelity, rather than make small sacrifices, homes would then be broken up at the least sign of incompatibility. The debate was then thrown open to the house, after which a popular vote was taken, which favoured the affirmative.

The judges, however, rendered their decision in favour of the negative side.

out of the university has so greatly increased that legitimate demands have taken up more and more time for the use of the stage and of Mr. Stone, who has tried to assist it at all possible.

The 100th production itself, Ibsen's "Peer Gyn" is probably the most ambitious undertaken by the Theatre in its history. Mr. Stone has made use of several translations and the production as it will be presented in Hart House Theatre contains five acts and nine scenes. Mr. Stone pointed out that the story from boyhood to advanced years would not be distorted by the necessary simplification.

RUMOURED ULTERIOR MOTIVES ARE DENIED BY U.C. PROFESSORS

No Conspiracy to Pluck Some Students, Declare Examiners

"INCREDIBLE," COCHRANE

Markers Cannot Identify Exam Writers, Says Taylor

Professors at University College expressed surprise yesterday when asked if there exists a conspiracy to pluck a certain percentage of the undergraduate body, and emphatically denied that ulterior motives sometimes influence the marking of examination papers. Rumours to this effect are frequently whispered on the campus by suspicious students who are dissatisfied with the fruits of their labors.

W. R. Taylor, head of the department of Orientals, stated that the charges could have no foundation since it is utterly impossible for an examiner to identify the author of an examination paper. "We have a sheet containing the list of pseudonyms beside us, and when the paper is marked an entry is made beside the pseudonym. The list is later sent to Simcoe Hall, after which there is no chance of changing the mark, except through a petition. People who know their work and deserve promotion are never hand-dipped."

Dean C. N. Cochrane was reluctant to make any comment whatever. "Where did you hear this?" he asked. "The idea seems incredible. Students are, in a way, like lawyers. They prepare their cases during the year and when the trial is held either win or lose. Some become too flustered at the crucial moment and fail. As for handwriting and good English, it is regarded as part of one's education, and a paper that is lucidly and intelligently done is certainly deserving of consideration."

"Don't misquote me," he warned.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS TO DECIDE RECITALS

Dr. MacMillan Unable to Give an Opinion on Tuesday Organ Recitals

DR. MOURE INOISPOSEO

"It is entirely up to the Board of Governors," declared Dr. MacMillan, the Principal of the Conservatory of Music, when interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday, as to the probability of a Conservatory organist continuing the Tuesday recitals at Convocation Hall.

In view of the fact that Dr. Moure, the official organist for the university, has been indisposed, it was announced in the Saturday daily papers that the recitals, regularly held every two weeks in Convocation Hall, are to be cancelled. Dr. MacMillan expressed regret that this should happen but said that he had not been previously approached in regard to a Conservatory organist supplying during the absence of Dr. Moure. He suggested that his illness might not prove serious enough to necessitate a prolonged suspension of the recitals.

"It is beyond my jurisdiction, however," he declared, and absolutely refused to express an opinion upon the question unless approached by the Board of Governors of the university.

FORMER VARSITY GRIDIRON STARS CONDEMN SYSTEM OF DIRECTORATE

My opinion is they'd do a whole lot better if they got a paid coach," replied Bill Stollery, stellar line plunger on the Intercollegiate team before his graduation several years ago, when interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday regarding the advisability of hiring a full-time coach for University of Toronto rugby teams.

"I'm heartily in favour of Mike Rodden if they can get him. He's the only man in Toronto who could handle it," he continued. "He offered to coach them free if they didn't win a championship. There couldn't be anything fairer than that."

Speaking of the Athletic Directorate, Mr. Stollery remarked: "Too many of them want to have a finger in the pie when it comes to coaching the team." Continuing, he said, "I'm not in favour of hiring a coach for five years on a salary without the option of firing. They mightn't be any better off than they are now."

"Personally, I'm all for it," stated Dr. Warren Snyder, formerly outstanding half-back and captain of the University of Toronto seniors, when asked for his opinion on the same question yesterday. "It's a full time job for a man. The coach should have a three-year contract to give him a chance."

Regarding the stand of the Athletic Directorate, Dr. Snyder said, "They're a bunch of hard-boiled old amateurs who played the game away back when. The game is different and times are different, but it's pretty hard to convince them. But if public opinion is aroused sufficiently they'll have to go the way of everyone else."

Howard Stollery, whose work on the line featured intercollegiate games a few years ago, agreed with what his brother had said to "The Varsity" when the interview was read to him. "I'd be in favour of getting a paid coach, but the coach must have the necessary ability in the first place," he commented. "The only capable one available in Toronto in my opinion is Mike Rodden. In the last few years he has worked wonders with U.T.S. and Hamilton Tigers. Such a coach would not be dictated to in matters of policy by any Board of Directors. All the attention should not be devoted to the first team. Varsity football could be worked into a system whereby men could be moved up from one team to another in case of injuries."

"In fairness to the amateur coaches of the past few years, I don't think they have had a free hand," he observed.

"McGill and Queen's have had pro coaches in the past and they have certainly played very clean football. There could be no danger of professionalism at an institution like the University of Toronto where thousands of new students enrol every year," Mr. Stollery concluded.

DR. FRICKER ADVISES OUTSIDE ORGANISTS

Change in Convocation Hall Recitals Will Add to Enthusiasm

AGREES WITH EDITORIAL

"It seems a pity that the university organ should be idle during the much lamented illness of Dr. Moure," said H. A. Fricker, M.A., Leeds, Mus.Doc., in an interview with "The Varsity" yesterday afternoon, when asked his opinion on the editorial about the university organ which appeared in Monday's issue.

"There appears no reason to me," Dr. Fricker continued, "why the students who are interested in these recitals should be forced to go afield. I would seem that the introduction of outside organists for a recital would tend to increase enthusiasm. No matter how clever a musician one man may be there is always much to be gained by a change. New ideas, increased enthusiasm and often times a better appreciation of the return of the regular musician. I am entirely in accord with the idea brought out in the editorial."

D. W. Crawford, student organist of Wycliffe College, was one of the opinion "that it would be a very good thing to have these Sunday evening recitals continued, and as Dr. Moure is not well, the only thing left to do is to call in some of the well known organists of the city and especially of the Conservatory of Music, for if the authorities do not wish to go outside

NOT AWARE CLASSICS PEOPLE DIDN'T THINK SAYS SMITH OF U.C.

Classics Department Agrees in Refutation of Darrow

NOT ENTIRELY UNFAIR

Classical Study a Voyage of Discovery, Claims DeWitt

The statement of Mr. Darrow that students cannot be curious, think normally, and at the same time study classics, was generally refuted by members of the classics department to-day.

Professor Smith of University College, would give no opinion, except to express himself in complete disagreement with Mr. Darrow. "I wasn't aware that the classics people didn't think," he said.

"I don't see why Latin and Greek should prevent thought instead of fostering curiosity," Professor Woodcock of Trinity told "The Varsity". "Personally I think it does make you curious. Anything does that you can't understand. If you are the slightest bit interested you can't help being curious and thinking at the same time."

"Take sight translation for instance. You have to figure out which is subject, which is, object, which is main verb. No, I don't agree with Mr. Darrow at all."

That the statement was not entirely unfair was granted by Professor DeWitt of Victoria. The classics, he thought, if regarded as sheer learning, naturally suffered. To be really appreciated, classical study should be regarded as a voyage of discovery.

"Learning," he said, "is often a drudgery, but discovery is a joy. Of course it depends on the teaching. You can make researches even in the classics, and if you do that your curiosity is aroused instead of deadened."

"If you turn from classics to moderns, you have a weapon that will pry open the secrets of modern languages and satisfy your curiosity. You must be furnished with tools. These may be of natural science or classical antiquity, but you arrive at the same conclusion in the long run, namely, that there is no short-cut to knowledge in any direction."

The contest will open on Monday, December 8, and close on Saturday, December 13.

AMERICANS' SALARIES GREATER THAN OURS

Vocational Bureau Head Says U.S. Women Graduates Better Paid

PH.D. NO BETTER THAN B.A.

A short time ago, an article on salaries of women graduates of United States universities appeared in the New York Times. The report, based on a recent survey made by the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Michigan, claimed that the average earnings of a woman holding a B.A. degree were approximately $1750, an M.A. $2350 and a Ph.D. $3150. Miss True Davidson, head of the Vocational Bureau which functions under the University Women's Club, had some valuable information on the subject.

"Inexperienced graduates have been placed by the Vocational Bureau at a salary as low as fifteen dollars a week and as high as thirty dollars a week, excluding teachers," said Miss Davidson.

She made the statement that except in academic work, there does not seem to be any difference in the salary commanded by a B.A. or by a Ph.D. because of the degrees themselves.

SAYS MANY MENTAL CASES PREVENTABLE

Still Much to be Learned of Mental Disturbances, Says Martin

ONLY ON THRESHOLD

"If you told your family doctor that your boy had been dismissed from school, or that your youngest child was bad-tempered and cruel, it would not produce any result. There are mental kinks happening in early life of which the general practitioner is woefully ignorant," stated C. F. Martin, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine in McGill University and President of the Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene, in addressing the Mental Hygiene Council in Convocation Hall recently.

He stressed the fact that we are only on the threshold of understanding mental disturbances—many of which are preventable if taken in time and curable even in advanced stages—but what work has been done in that field should be more widely known.

Student Government Executive Reviews Attempts to Save Editor

NO ACTION ON PETITION

Council Will Not Reconsider Suspension of Toike Oike Head

The following letter, dealing with the suspension of W. E. Algie, former editor of Toike Oike, has been prepared by the executive of the Engineering Society for publication in "The Varsity". It states in part that the Engineering Society severely censured Mr. Algie directly the obnoxious issue appeared, but refused his resignation, appointing a board of censors for future issues; that Algie apologized to the Society and to Dean Mitchell, and that the Dean expressed himself as satisfied with the manner in which the case had been handled.

The letter goes on to say that the Faculty Council, a month after the issue had appeared, and after an entirely satisfactory issue had been published, suspended Algie as a result of objections to the first issue. The Engineering Society petitioned the Council to reconsider its action, declaring itself willing to accept responsibility for the issue, but the Council refused to act upon the petition of the student governing body of S.P.S.

The letter follows in detail: Nov. 24, 1930.

Editor, "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:

At a meeting of the Engineering Society Executive held on Saturday, November 22, a resolution was passed, unanimously. In effect it stated that a letter be sent to "The Varsity" by a committee already acting in the affair, stating the history of the Algie case. This letter is not to state any opinion. Therefore we submit the following:

October 1st, the Freshman edition of "Toike Oike", under the editorship of W. E. Algie, was published. Between October 3rd, and October 6th, Mr. Algie was summoned to appear before the Dean of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, and later in the same day he submitted formal apologies both to the Dean and the Council of the Faculty. On October 7th, at a meeting of the Executive of the Engineering Society, Mr. Algie's resignation from the office of Director of Publications and Publicity was received and considered. On this occasion, the following resolution was passed, with no dissenting votes:

"That Mr. Algie be severely censured for the indiscreet nature of the last publication of 'Toike Oike' of which he was in charge. That Mr. Algie's resignation from the office of Director of Publications and Publicity be not accepted in view of the fact that this has been his first offence. That the Chairman of the Debating Club and the President of the Third Year be appointed a committee of two to read and approve all subsequent issues. That a committee, composed of the President, Vice-president, Chairman of the Debating Club and the President of the Fourth Year call upon the Dean of the Faculty to explain the action of the Executive."

October 8th. The above mentioned committee met the Dean of the Faculty, and explained the action which had been taken on the matter by the Executive of the Engineering Society. The Dean expressed satisfaction with the prompt and able manner with which the Executive had handled the case. He regretted that the resignation had not been accepted.

"A CHIEL AMANG YOU"

Every day we are surrounded by thousands of earnest young people taking notes. They are justifying their existence.

They will go home at Christmas. Friends and acquaintances will stop them in the street, to ask tolerantly: "And what are you going through for?" If he, or she, can answer proudly, "I am going through for medicine"—or dentistry, or bridge-building, or the ministry, or dietetics, or basket-weaving,—the situation maintains its orthodox complexion. But if there is any hesitation; if the answer is, "I am taking a general arts course"; or if it is, "I don't know—yet," . . . the universe reels.

The wise student learns that it is safest to regard the path of an honour arts course as leading to a definite profession. The paths of classics and of English and history are presumed to lead to teaching. The path of an economics course leads to law or banking.

The path of a general arts course, however, leads but to the grave. This is a young country, we are to remember. We are carving our destiny out of the solid rock, digging it out of the soil, or wringing it out of the stock market. It behooves the Canadian university student—divinely elected from among his fellows to prepare for a great destiny—to attend lectures faithfully, listen intently to professors, and take notes like mad. Even if he is only, blushing, "taking a general arts course", he may some day be able to justify himself with a set of beautiful leather-bound notes neatly and carefully re-written in a small, round hand. And, to be even more pragmatic, a few nights' close companionship with these notes in May will enable him to pass his examinations, face the watching world unabashed, and eventually in the second week of some June take his place on the platform with the Olympians.

Not for a moment would we suggest that there is anything wrong with our system of higher education. But we do say that there is something very decidedly wrong with our attitude toward it. Our iconoclastic editorial soul even permits us to go so far as to suspect the prevailing professional attitude. The dons may not be entirely free from blame for the popular attitude which regards as a gift from the gods the professor who speaks slowly, tabulates, and repeats whole clauses so that no perspiring penman may miss them . . . the same attitude which eyes askance the enthusiastic lecturer who rushes heedlessly on, or the professor who finds the ceaseless scratch of the arduous pens both annoying and idiotic.

What would happen if for a whole week every arts student in this university decided to sit back in his seat and listen to the lectures? He might discover, for one thing, that the material of some of the professors is pretty thin. What he would be more likely to discover is the complete lack of ideas existing in his own mind—that, as a matter of fact, his mind has been constitutionally incapacitated by disuse and abuse for any independent analytical thinking.

But, it will be asked, is the classroom the place for independent thinking? The answer to that is that the attitude of mind inculcated in the classroom is the attitude of mind carried into every other department of undergraduate life. Students do not enter a classroom to-day to think—nor even to be stimulated. And when they enter the library or the study, they do not do so for thought or stimulation, either. They do it to take notes from a book.

The discussion group is cited as the place of places for individual expression. No one more than the leaders of these groups realizes the appalling aridity which exists in the mind of the average undergraduate. Give your student a chance to read a carefully prepared essay, and he is in his element. He will marshal his authorities in ranks and pit one against the other; he will cite his examples and quote from a hundred sources. But get him into an open discussion on the same subject and he cuts a pathetic figure.

A certain philosophy don in this university recently complained that his classes had become too sophisticated for him, that he couldn't get his students to commit themselves. Consciously or unconsciously, he paid his students a compliment we suspect they did not deserve. The chances are that not one of them was possessed of an idea, and that even the best of them were merely torn between conflicting commentators.

Let any professor interrupt his lecture long enough to ask the class a question presupposing independent thought, and he will be greeted with a great silence. His auditors, waiting for the discourse to resume, will be leaning mute and panting on their notes.

Art, Music and Drama

Peer Gynt

Peer Gynt, presented last night as the one hundredth production of Hart House Theatre, was a success because of the unexpected maturity of Everard Nash in the title role, the adroit handling of large crowds in the first three acts, the brilliance of two short scenes in the fourth act, and the incidental music from the Edward Greig Peer Gynt Suite, under the direction of Dr. MacMillan and E. Mazzoleni.

The play, by Henrik Ibsen, is an epic drama that belongs in the same class as Hernani, Faust, Wilhelm Tell, Cyrano de Bergerac, Hamlet, and He Who Gets Slapped. It is cast from a giant mould and requires a giant imagination from those who would understand it.

Peer Gynt, for his sins, is captured as a young man by the Troll devils and sentenced to their eternal damnation. Suddenly he seems to escape from their clutch; his dreams seem for one glad moment, fulfilled. But the doom of the underworld finally drives him from home.

After a pilgrimage through many lands and years, he returns to realize the hell of an utterly wasted life. But he finds that the love of one woman who has gloried in his memory, may yet redeem his soul.

Everard Nash dominates the play except in the fourth act when he is overshadowed first by Lorna McLean and then by Dixon Wagner. Especially is he good as he conducts Ase to Heaven in his imaginative sled, and as he accomplishes the gradual transformation in age in the last two acts.

The best individual work in the play is done by Lorna McLean as a remarkable oriental gold digger; and by Dixon Wagner as the keeper of the mad house Alice Strong as Solweig, is good especially in the last act. Her two songs fit in admirably. Heasel Mitchell as Ase lacks the peasant vigour and strength necessary to be convincing in the first act, but her death scene is very fine because of its simplicity. Ruth Tanton would have been better as the Troll king's daughter if her interpretation of the role had been more even. The rest of the cast were satisfactory, but inclined to give uneven performances. The extras were unusually satisfactory.

The play lasted two hours and fifty-five minutes, but of this time over one hour was taken up in scene changes in spite of the strong stage crew. The reason is that once more Hart House has gone in for elaborate naturalistic sets that do not convey any sense of reality. Except for the Cairo Mad House—which is superbly conceived—the settings are unfortunate, though in the mountain and desert scenes there are attempts at experimental staging that go over fairly well.

Scenery cannot look like nature and like painted cardboard at the same time. Hart House has not a stage on which spectacular sets can be handled. Someday a director will realize that fact and do a little real experimenting in order to surmount the difficulty.

Peer Gynt is full of flaws, but approaches the standard expected of Hart House Theatre better than any production since Twelfth Night of the 1927-28 season. —Nemo.

This is a serious Cat.

And also a Cat that is full of dirty truths.

During the past two weeks eight men have been sentenced, in Ontario courts to 123 years in gaol (not counting concurrent sentences), and 185 lashes; all for stealing a total of $32,000, and a few rings.

During the same period eight other men have been sentenced in Ontario courts to 25 years in gaol (not counting concurrent sentences), and no lashes; all for stealing an estimated total of $20,000,000,000.

The difference, of course, is that the first group used guns even though no one was actually hurt by their weapons; while the second group merely broke up business firms, foreclosed mortgages, and brought before several hundred thousand men and women the spectre of unemployment and poverty. Their weapons were short selling, demands for increased marginal payments, and clever manipulation of valueless stocks.

This is called British Justice.

There is not, and so far as we know, never has been, a Jewish professor on the staff of the University of Toronto.

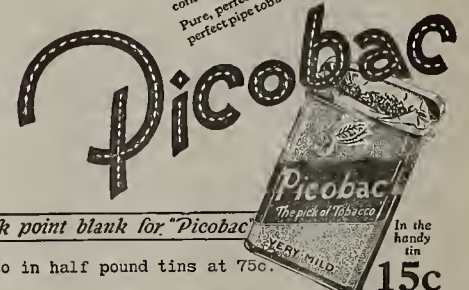

This is called British Tolerance.

It is possible to hire girls in Toronto for five dollars a week plus their board. A dozen restaurants in town do so. Their owners are good business men who belong to the respectable Churches, Lodges and Political Associations. If the girls leave such jobs to take up less honourable pursuits they are damn fools and unworthy to touch the hem of a good man's robe.

This is called British Fair Play.

Truly the world is full of contradictions.

But what of it? Nothing matters so long as the comfortable man is given a joke to amuse him.

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

St. Michael's and Senior U.C. took the group titles in two of the closest games played this year. In the first St. Mike's defeated Junior U.C. 23 to 14, and Junior Vic lost to Senior U.C. 23 to 20. St. Michael's will now meet St. Hilda's in the semi-finals, the first of which will be played on Thursday.

The complete reversal of form displayed by the Double Blue team was the most surprising thing seen in inter-faculty basketball games this year. At half-time they were to all intents and purposes a beaten team, and only their most rabid supporters conceded them a chance to take the game and title.

The work of Olive Macklin was especially noteworthy. She scored 15 of her team's points, and besides this, played an extremely effective game. The Double Blue defence turned in a very strong game, and intercepted passes in great fashion.

The U.C. team played excellent basketball in the first period, and tried hard all the way through, but were outclassed in the second period. Betty Thomas and Lorraine Harvey on the Red and White defence, were very effective and Bessie Lowry was good on the forward line.

Senior U.C. deserved their win over Junior Vic. They did not play up to form, however, and Vic staged a strong rally in the dying moments of the game. Wilma Hazlett and Louise Crouch led the Red and White attack, and Jean Allen turned in one of the best games of her career on defence.

Ben Longley, who has starred for Vic all season, did not play his usual strong game offensively, but stood out on the defence. Margaret Waugh played an excellent game for the Scarlet and Gold, and Pat Palmer was good on defence.

VICTORIA JUNIORS LOSE TO SR. U.C.

U.C. Seniors defeated Junior Vic by the score of 23 to 20 in U.T.S. gym last night. The play was very fast and numerous penalties were handed out to both teams. Excellent floor work was displayed on both sides. The combination of the U.C. forward line was at intervals extremely effective, with Wilma Hazlett scoring 13 points. Jean Allen was outstanding on the defence. Vic rallied in the last minutes of the game, but were unable to overcome U.C.'s lead. Margaret Waugh was the chief threat on the Vic forward line, accounting for 13 points. Pat Palmer on the Scarlet and Gold defence turned in a good game.

U.C. Seniors—Wilma Hazlett 13, Louise Crouch 7, Madge Newman 4, forwards; Jean Allen, Toots Moritz, Dot Starr, Adele Statten, defence.

Junior Vic—Margaret Waugh 14, Bea Longley 4, Beth Jenking 2, Jean Cameron, forwards; Pat Palmer, Bessie Mountain, Grace Becker, Joe Harley, defence.

JR. SCHOOL OPPOSE ST. MIKE'S IN FINAL

Interfaculty Championship to be Decided To-day at Stadium

REPLAY OF DRAW GAME

St. Mike's and Junior S.P.S. took horns again at the stadium to-day to decide the winner of the historic Mulock Cup for the year 1930, and indications point to as hard a battle as the teams put up last week when the game ended in a 2-2 tie after ten minutes overtime had been played.

St. Mike's were lucky indeed to secure a tie in the last game as Junior School held the upper hand during the first three periods of play, leading by 2-1 going into the final quarter. The last game developed into a kicking duel between Lichty for S.P.S. and Sheehy for the Irish, each back scoring all of his team's points and today's game will in all probability be a repetition of the first one as far as kicking is concerned.

The School men have Hewitt, Hallett and Mitchell to back up their claims to the championship while the Irish will rely on Burns, their star quarter, as well as Nolan, Sheehy, Cerre, and Schmidt, in an endeavour to halt the attack of the fighting school men.

St. Mike's were strong favourites to win the first game, but since S.P.S. put up such a good battle they will go into the second game slight favourites to defeat their more experienced opponents. The Irish have been concentrating on winning the Mulock Cup for this season and School will have to be at their best if they hope to win the cup, emblematic of the interfaculty championship. The line-ups of the two squads will be the same as last week and the game gets under way at two-thirty.

VIC POLO SEPTETTE DEFEAT SENIOR MEDS

Superior Stamina Wins Tilt for Scarlet and Gold

TIE AT HALF TIME

Victoria College defeated Senior Meds in a fast and exciting water polo game last night. The score was 3-1. Meds started fast and held Victoria to a tie score at half time. Victoria showed superior stamina in the second half and scored two goals to Meds' none.

The game started fast with both teams having several shots on goal. Sutherland opened the scoring for Meds when the Vic goalie went out after the ball. Vic fought hard and countered on a beautiful shot by Bradshaw. Both teams were playing nice combination.

Edmison scored for Vic at the opening of the second half. Meds were tiring noticeably and Vic had most of the play. Pattison scored on a long shot to salt away the game. Vic was in position to score when the final whistle blew.

Victoria—Garton, Smith, O'Neal, Pattison, Edmison, Gould, Bradshaw, Clark, Seal.

Senior Meds—Irving, Sutherland, Bremnon, Kinneer, Jackson, Thompson.

Washington State College is steadily climbing scholastically, according to the registrar, who reported that last semester set the highest State college scholastic average on record.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By T. A. F.

The season now being open for the annual selection of all-star teams, we submit the following one, which we have chosen from the senior inter-collegiate squads of 1930: Flying wing, Kennedy (Western); halves, Jack Sinclair (U. of T.), Gilmore (Queen's), Bell (U. of T.); quarter, Don Young (McGill); snap, Keith (U. of T.); insides, Stull (Western), Basserman (Queen's); middles, McTeer (McGill); substitutes, "Gib" McKelvey (Queen's), Hammond (McGill), Gungino (Western), DeDiana (Queen's), Mungovan (Queen's), Dewar (U. of T.), Hamlin (Queen's), C. Valenote (Western), Coach, Harry Batstone (Queen's). We realize, of course, that there is always a big difference of opinion as to the relative merits of various players, but the above list is the way they look to the writer of this column. We have omitted several names after much consideration, the difference in ability being so slight as to make a choice exceedingly difficult. The regular line-up contains two from Western, three from McGill, four from Queen's and three from Varsity, working out surprisingly to a fairly even distribution among the four. This is another indication of how evenly matched the teams were in the season just past.

Varsity has every reason to be proud of its junior football team, inter-collegiate champions! Saturday they were eliminated by M.A.A.A. in an Eastern Canada playoff after putting up a most courageous battle against a team which outweighed them by nearly 20 pounds, man for man. In defeat they were great. Their plucky performance has brought honour to the University of Toronto.

In the last three minutes of play after having a touchdown chalked up against them, the Blues drove the M.A.A.A. twelve back to the shadow of their own goal. They were playing simply on their nerve. One player passed out from sheer exhaustion while the Varsity dressing room after the game found a team utterly worn out from their exertions. M.A.A.A. officials were loud in their praises of the Varsity team, in fact, one of them said: "I saw the Orphans of two years ago play, but you boys put up an even gamer display. That Arnpup is the best booter we've played against since Hugh Stirling of St. Thomas."

At that it is unfair to single out a star. They were all stars. Much credit goes to Coach Harry Bales and just talk to him if you want to hear about "a great little team."

Knox College have now won the interfaculty soccer title for three consecutive years. They marched through the recent schedule without a loss and one tied game. U.C. offered the most stubborn resistance in the finals.

the resolution of October 7th, and stating that it was the "Unanimous opinion of the Executive that some parts of the issue were disgraceful, especially in an official university publication." This letter also requested the Dean to express to the Council of the Faculty the regrets of the Executive of the Engineering Society that such indiscreet items appeared in the "Toke Oike".

October 17th. Meeting of the Council of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering held on this date.

November 3rd. Matter regarding the initial publication of "Toke Oike" by Mr. Algie, on October 1st, was laid before a meeting of the Council of the Faculty.

November 12th. The following letter was received by the President and Executive of the Engineering Society from the Secretary of the Faculty:

"I am instructed to inform you that the Council of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering, at a special meeting held on Tuesday afternoon, November 11th, 1930, passed the following resolution with regard to Mr. Algie, a student in the Fourth Year, and Director of Publications for the Engineering Society: "That this Council, having considered the matter of the relation of W. E. Algie to the publication of the Freshman Edition of "Toke Oike", and deeming that his presence is prejudicial to the interests of the university, hereby suspend him for the remainder of the academic year."—Signed, W. S. Wilson, Secretary.

A similar letter, embodying the above resolution of suspension was received by Mr. Algie on this date.

November 14th. At a meeting of the Executive of the Engineering Society, the following resolution was passed unanimously:

"That the President of the Engineering Society, the Chairman of the Debating Club and the President of the Fourth Year submit to the Faculty Council the attached petition and that this Executive invest the said committee with power to deal with the matter of the expulsion of the Director of Publications and Publicity, with the Council as they see fit."

November 15th. A letter embodying this resolution was sent to the Secretary of the Faculty.

November 18th. The following petition of the Executive of the Engineering Society was submitted to a special meeting of the Council of the Faculty: To the Council, Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering
The Petition of the Executive of the Engineering Society humbly sheweth, that:—

Although we in no way attempt to condone the actions of Mr. Algie in the publication of "Toke Oike" on October 1st, yet we do earnestly submit that the punishment meted out to him by the Faculty Council is, under the circumstances, out of proportion to the offence, for the following reasons:

(1) That in view of the fact that Mr. Algie's resignation from the office of Director of Publications and Publicity, tendered by him immediately, was, by a unanimous vote of the Engineering Society Executive, not accepted, and that the action of said executive was submitted by a delegation of four members waiting on the Dean of the Faculty, this Society feels that, in not accepting said resignation, they have themselves been partially responsible for the drastic action taken by the Council, and maintain that Mr. Algie should not bear the brunt of an action over which he had no control.

(2) That at the same meeting of the Executive of the Engineering Society a vote of censure on Mr. Algie was unanimously passed and a board of censors was appointed to supervise all future publications of any sort whatsoever.

(3) That the character of the two subsequent issues of the said paper plainly show the influence of the actions previously taken against Mr. Algie by this Society.

(4) That the board of censors appointed by the Executive of the Engineering Society to approve subsequent issues, considered Mr. Algie's suggestion of a formal published apology in the second issue, but in view of the advanced calibre of said issue, deemed the change in policy sufficient on the basis that "action is better than words".

(5) That Mr. Algie, while acting in his official capacity as a member of the Executive of the Engineering Society, incurred a punishment which has materially affected his capacity as a student, and that while a punishment is undoubtedly warranted, some

St. Mike's Strong Defensively
Though Trinity Superior in Ball Handling

JR. U.C. HAVE WON GROUP

By a 4-3 victory St. Michael's College interfaculty water polo team forced the Trinity College team into the cellar position of their group yesterday. Though Jr. U.C. have already won this group title, this game was very bitterly contested and was one of the closest games played in the group.

Trinity showed superior ball handling and in the last period they lost several good chances to score due to the splendid work of Miron, in goal for the Irish, and Flannigan on their defence.

Muleahy opened the scoring in the first half minute of play with a long shot from centre which beat the Trinity goalie. Cuttall and Hunt then scored on combination plays to put Trinity in the lead, but Carson tied it up by scoring for the Irish on a free shot.

In the second half Muleahy again opened the scoring for the Double Blue and Carson added another on a nice combination play. Trinity pressed hard, but were unable to equalize after Cuttall scored on a free shot.

Kelly of St. Mike's and MacDonald of Trinity, both turned in stellar performances.

St. Mike's—Miron, Kelly, Henry, Muleahy, Carson, Doherty, Thompson, Shelly, Flannigan.

Trinity—Cuttall, Hunt, Lemon, Davies, Scott, Hamilton, Winyard, MacDonald, Mervynne.

DOUBLE BLUE TURNS DEFEAT INTO VICTORY

Surprising Comeback in Second Half Gives St. Michael's Group Title

DEFEAT JR. U.C. 23-14

After a remarkable comeback in the second half of the game, St. Michael's won their group title from Junior U.C. by a score of 23 to 14, at U.T.S. last night. At half-time the Double Blue were on the short end of an 8 to 2 count, and judging from the play U.C. were by far the better team. Long passes from the centre of the floor which were intercepted by the Red and White combined with some wild shooting, kept St. Mike's off the score sheet in the first half.

After the interval they showed a complete reversal of form, soon wiped out the six-point deficit, and took a commanding lead. On the other hand U.C.'s teamwork went to pieces and they were unable to stem the Double Blue attack. Bessie Lowry for U.C. scored most of their points and tried hard all the way. The work of Olive Macklin for St. Mike's was particularly outstanding, and she ran in 15 of her team's points. The Double Blue defence played a very strong game, after a weak exhibition in the first half.

St. Michael's—Olive Macklin 15, Victoria Quinlan 7, Helen Darte 2, forwards; Loreto McGarry, Marion Darte, Eileen Harrison, defence; subs, Pauline Bondy, Evelyn Scully.

U.C. Juniors—Anne Cornfield 2, Muriel Atkin 2, Bessie Lowry 10, forwards; Betty Thomas, Lorraine Harvey, Marjorie Wright, defence; subs, Jean Bell, Kay Stewart, Anne Ramm.

Commence Combing Operations In Search of Errant Interne

By C. L. Coburn

No perturbation is expressed by W. J. Dewdrop and his Simcoe Hall subordinates over the unprecedented disappearance of the staff letter-writer for "The Varsity". According to Mr. Dewdrop, the unfortunate student was last seen at the Hart House Masquerade costumed as an interne. It is Mr. Gumdrops' belief that he is still interned somewhere.

We understand from Mr. Dummkopf that Hart House and the Women's Union will be combed from cellar to basement. It is even possible that the grass on the campus may also be combed.

On being interviewed by "The Varsity" at a late hour yesterday morning the missing undergraduate could not be reached, and had nothing to say. "I am completely at a loss," he said, "and shall say nothing till I find myself."

In his absence we present the following playette, with apologies to Andre and the undergraduate body as a whole. It is understood that the Players' Guild may playette at a recent date.

PLAYETTE IN FIVE (5) ACTS

Scene: A dark hall in any women's residence at midnight. The room is faintly illumined by a red lantern outside the front door. The Dean is present in a dressing-down, listening to the radio.

Radio Announcer: Notre Dame is now leading the Navy by seventeen points.

Dean: Lord help the sailors on a night like this!

Enter three dentists, armed to the teeth. The clock strikes one. The other two help him to his feet.

Dean: What are you doing here?

First Dentist: Hush!

Second Dentist: Hush!

Third Dentist: Hush! Hush! Read

all about the big scandal in Rosedale!

Dean makes a pass at first dentist.

First dentist makes a pass at second dentist.

Second dentist makes a pass at third dentist.

Third Dentist: Well, if we all pass, let's deal a new hand.

As the curtain falls the clock strikes four.

With the Theatres

For the benefit of our readers, pictures are graded as follows in this column: Average (0), below average (-1) or (-2), above average (1) or (2).

A very, very, very, average week. No tremendous fault to find except the damning mediocrity of almost every show.

The best acting is in Laughter; the best direction in The Big Trail, and the best humour in Feet First.

Loew's.

Laughter. (1-1)—Nancy Carroll, in the role of a gay chorine who loves the gift of laughter after marriage to a millionaire husband, has a chance to do some real acting and gets away with it. Frederic March as the man she ought to have married is quite priceless. He should be reserved for comedy of this kind. The rest are not so good. The first Public stage show to appear in Toronto is a lavish production. The whole vaudeville takes a step up.

Imperial.

Good News. (0)—A musical comedy and college farce that is much too collegiate. Amusing to look at, but not worth very serious contemplation. The original play has been lost in transposition to the screen. Stanley Smith, who may make an actor yet, is the football hero, and Bessie Love is the gay and moronic sorority sister. As for the music, the song hits are good, but the choruses impossible.

Shea's.

Danger Lights. (0) — Two strong men fight for the love of a girl, but one of them is unselfish and surrenders before the assault of true youthful love. Louis Wolheim is almost as hard boiled and kindly as in All Quiet, but rather flabby at times. Robert Montgomery is not a very convincing engineer, nor is Jean Arthur a typical r.r. town belle. The show is about trains, and there is one very funny comedian.

Tivoli.

The Big Trail. (0)—If we did not seem to recognize throughout this film countless shots from cribbed earlier pictures and news reels, it would rank very high. But somehow the prairie schooners looked like The Covered Wagon, and the buffalo seemed to step out of a news-reel from Wainwright Park, and the Mississippi looked like it always does in pictures. So it would seem that here was one more average show excellently edited. Some of the scenes are remarkable, no matter where they came from.

Uptown.

Feet First. (0) — The depressed stock broker will find the regulation number of laughs per minute in this film, but the comedy is really built up on gags used by Lloyd in silent pictures. The whole piece is distinctly reminiscent of Safety Last, in spite of the added attraction of sound effects. The speaking humour is supplied by the supporting cast, which is good. If means not affecting him as a student could be devised.

(6) That while the sentence was passed as a suspension yet, considered under the existing conditions, the Executive of the Engineering Society views the sentence as a technical exclusion which will undoubtedly have a derogatory effect on Mr. Algie's future to a degree unwarranted by the misdemeanour under consideration.

Your Petitioner therefore prays that the Faculty Council give this matter a reconsideration in an endeavour to see its way clear to mitigating to some extent this punishment.

Your Petitioner as in duty bound will forever pray.

After this special meeting, the following letter was received by the special committee of the Executive of the Engineering Society.

"At a special meeting of the Council of the Faculty held this afternoon, your petition of to-day's date with reference to Mr. Algie was received. I am instructed by the Council to inform you that Professors Angus, Young, Haultain and Rosebrugh, have been named by the Council as a committee to make the Council's view of Mr. Algie's conduct quite clear to you."

Signed, W. G. Wilson,
(Secretary of the Faculty)
November 19th. The Executive of the Engineering Society met the above mentioned committee of the Council. The stand taken by the Council was embodied in the following letter handed to the Executive of the Engineering Society by the Chairman of the special committee of the Faculty Council:

Dear Sirs:
I am instructed to inform you that, after full consideration of the petition of the Engineering Society, the Council sees no reason for reopening the case of Mr. Algie. Professors Young, Angus, Haultain and Rosebrugh were named by the Council to communicate the decision to your petitioners, and to make the Council's view of Mr. Algie's conduct quite clear to them.

Signed,
By the Secretary of the Faculty,
W. G. Wilson.

At this meeting, it was admitted by two members of the special committee of the Council of the Faculty that they had heard nothing whatever of the question, at least prior to November 1st.

The above is respectfully submitted as our honest statement of facts regarding this case.

Signed,
A. E. Tyson.
G. E. Beament.
J. N. Franklin.

Harold's ingenuity in getting into and getting out of delicate situations were coupled with equal ingenuity in dialogue, he would produce a real picture.

To Command New Canadian Pacific Giant

Captain R. G. Latta, more familiarly known to trans-Atlantic passengers as "Joek" Latta, has been selected to command the new 42,500-ton Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Britain. The promotion comes to Captain Latta after 26 years' service with the Canadian Pacific Steamships, which he joined in 1904 with the rank of 4th officer. In the next six years Captain Latta sailed with several ships and eventually became chief officer of the Montezuma in 1910. The expiration of seven years as chief officer saw his promotion to commander of the Monmouth. Six years later, in 1923, he anticipated promotion to the crack ship of the fleet by his appointment to her namesake, the Empress of Britain, which was later renamed the Montroyal. After a short interlude on the Empress of Scotland, the Scottish shipmaster went to the Empress of Australia, command of which he relinquished after conveying Premier R. B. Bennett to the Imperial Conference, in order to "stand by" the new Empress of Britain during the last stages of her construction.

During his many years as commander of Canadian Pacific liners on the St. Lawrence seaway, Captain Latta has conveyed many famous people across the Atlantic, numbering amongst his more distinguished friends H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, who launched his new command; Prince George, the Duke of Gloucester, Lord and Lady Willingdon, Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Rt. Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery, Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, Baron Byng of Vimy, former Governor-General of Canada and commander of the Canadian Corps in France; Prime Minister Ferguson, of Ontario, Lord Dawson of Penn, physician-in-ordinary to H.M. the King, and many others distinguished in the fields of finance, politics and art.

The Empress of Britain, which will make her maiden voyage to Quebec next June, is here shown in an artistic presentation of what she will look like when theaters service next June. Captain Latta is inset.

NOTE TAKERS SCORED DESIRE TO GET SHORT CUT TO EXAMINATION

GROUPS DEMAND THOUGHT
Average Student Passes — Brilliant and Poor

"Higher education is the process of engulfing notes, and at given moments disgorging them," is the reflection of Betty Doran, II C. and F. "Arts students religiously take notes, because tradition has it that that is the only sure-fire way to pass an examination." "The kind of professor that makes his lectures a godsend to the note-taker is usually the kind that uses material savourless from long use. Students seem to be divided into those who are indignant because their lecturers race along at too fast a clip to take notes from, and those who imply that nothing is worth noting anyway." Such was the opinion of Marjorie McKee, graduate of 1929.

Betty Gouge, occasional student from France, believes that Canadian students consider examinations as the be-all and the end-all and that notes are used rather as a short-cut to cramming than as a guide to extensive study.

According to a member of the English department, whose name is withheld by request, professors who prepare their lectures do so with the intention of providing headings for notes, and classes should put down at least the ideas that interest them. Some find that frantic word-for-word scribbling is deadening so far as thinking is concerned; others find it a stimulus to concentration. In discussion groups, he observed, a sense of irre-

M'GILL PROF. THINKS STUDENTS ARE TIMID

Fear of Consequences Prevents Protests Against Some Courses

HARVARD SETS EXAMPLE

Montreal, Que.—The following editorial appeared in a recent issue of the McGill Daily:

Students are afraid to assert themselves, declared one of our professors in a lecture the other day. They are much too timid to criticize the professors, and their abilities. "A few years back," he said, "if they disapproved, students used to raise the devil, and make it quite uncomfortable for some of us."

This same professor thinks that students are just as capable of choosing the right professors, as is the governing body. The thing is that students have never tried. In his opinion students would make no worse blunders from a list of references and recommendations than do "the powers that be" at the present time.

With which we agree. So often we are dissatisfied with courses, with the method of lecturing, or with the ability of certain professors, but are much too afraid to complain to official circles, because of possible consequences. Perhaps the lack of success with individual criticism in recent years has helped to give us this timidity.

Harvard has set the noble example of a good remedy by printing a list

Hart House Debate
Arouses Universal Interest

Everything is set for the Hart House debate, Brigadier-General MacBrien arrived in town yesterday and expects that national defence will receive the sanction of the university to-night. The other guest speaker is the popular headmaster of Pickering College, J. McCulley, who is also Honorary President of the U.C. Lit. He will speak in favour of the pacifist side of the question.

The subject is, as everybody knows, "Resolved that this house considers all expenditure on national defence by the Dominion of Canada unjustifiable."

The undergraduate speakers on the paper, L. Tarshis, U.C., and E. Lautenslager, Vic, for the affirmative, and G. E. Beament, S.P.S., and J. G. Gibson, Vic, for the negative, all expressed complete confidence in the outcome yesterday. The debate has created an extraordinary amount of interest around the university and the debates room is sure to be crowded at 8.00 p.m. to-night.

ENGLISH AND HISTORY CLUB HOLD MEETING

Event

EXECUTIVE CHOSEN

An English and History Club which has been recently formed, held its first meeting last night at the Women's Union. The club was formed in imitation of other societies which are directly connected with courses at the university. The people in English and History have had no club of this nature and it was felt that its formation would fill a definite need.

Whether to accent the intellectual or the social was the question which drew spirited discussion from the members of the English and History Club. There seemed to be a general feeling that the intellectual gymnastics of the lectures were sufficient.

"How much intellect is required to counterbalance a dance?" asked one Vic man, when someone suggested that each meeting be one of intellectual discussion followed by dancing.

"That's the same idea as refreshments at a debate, which I think is all wet!" was a U.C. man's contribution to the question.

The social side of the meeting was successfully begun by a search for autographs and affinities. The strains of the orchestra soon drew the crowd upstairs, where Gord Richardson's trio supplied syncope till well on in the evening. Those who were not attracted by the dancing formed tables of bridge in the common room.

Finally it was decided that the intellectual and social aspects be left to the discretion of the Executive.

It was decided that Philosophy English and History be admitted to the club, that the professors be honorary members of the Executive and that the club have four meetings a year.

Great excitement was created at the end when members were given four minutes to elect the officers and vacate the building.

Mr. Winch was elected president, Mr. Holmes, vice-president; Miss McAlpine, secretary; and Mr. Craig as treasurer. The representatives for the colleges were: U.C., Miss Inkster; Trinity, Miss Morris; Victoria, Harold Day; St. Michael's, Miss Smith.

"I would advise every young man to marry as soon as possible, thus not only to secure the co-operation of an intelligent help-mate, but to diminish the competition in his profession," said His Excellency, Viscount Willingdon, in addressing the students of Victoria and Emmanuel Colleges in Burwash Hall yesterday afternoon.

His Excellency and Lady Willingdon were welcomed to Victoria College by the Chancellor, Professor E. W. Wallace. In a short speech of welcome, Professor Wallace spoke of the great honour conferred on Victoria and Emmanuel Colleges, by Lord Willingdon, in accepting their invitation. He traced briefly the history of Victoria College since it was chartered by the Crown nearly a century ago. The Chancellor stated that nowhere was there a body more loyal to the Crown than the students of Victoria College. "We are proud of our history and proud of our name," he said, "and are not ashamed to call ourselves Victorians."

Lord Willingdon, on the request of Chancellor Wallace, presented the Governor General's Silver Medal, for proficiency in English and Philosophy, to Charles W. Leslie, of Victoria College, and accompanied the presentation with a few words of congratulation.

Rising to speak to the students who filled the hall to its capacity, Lord Willingdon complimented Victoria on its splendid record. "When I was an undergraduate," he said, "I learned that to the student auditor, brevity in a speaker is the soul of wit. I cannot be witty," he continued, "but I can at least be brief."

"During my four years in Canada," His Excellency stated, "I have come to the conclusion that Canada is bound to hold a position of increasing importance in international affairs."

"Fit yourselves for future citizenship," he advised his audience. "I speak as an old college man to young college men and women; I speak as one who has done a certain amount

NEW CONSTITUTION WILL BE DRAWN UP FOR STUDENT BODY

Joint Executive Will Draft

State that "The Varsity" is not Following the Recommendations

A motion recommending that the Joint Executive draft a new constitution for the S.A.C. within the next two weeks if possible, in order that it may be submitted to the Caput, was passed at a meeting of the Men's Council in the Debates Room, Hart House, yesterday.

A motion that a representative of Victoria College and a representative of S.P.S. confer and present their stories of what happened at the S.P.S.-Burwash Hall midnight fracas of some weeks ago, was passed.

After some discussion a motion "that the Joint Executive be reminded that the editor of 'The Varsity' is not adhering to the rules and recommendations regarding the editorial policy of 'The Varsity'" was passed. R. F. Yates of Trinity College claimed that "The Varsity" was doing its level best to rebuke the Joint Executive. "It was hardly fair to call everyone who voted against the resolutions 'spineless'," he said.

"I resent very much the way that 'The Varsity' has treated the S.A.C. meetings, and that the S.A.C. meetings are discussed in the editorial columns," said Mr. Plewis, giving it as his opinion that the S.A.C. and its doings should only be discussed in the correspondence columns.

Former Premier Visits Hart House

Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, former Canadian premier, was seen by a member of the "Varsity" in the halls of Hart House at noon yesterday. He refused to give a formal interview, saying that it was a relief to be free from them for a time.

His only message was: "It is interesting to return to Varsity and note the tremendous growth and development which has taken place here."

A Hundred Points on the Perfect Male Count Them and See If He Doesn't Fail

This is the third batch of questions about the perfect male. We've been receiving plenty of requests for similar points about the girls and hope to be able to run them soon. Meanwhile, you can see how the boys rate on Sportsmanship and Efficiency. We've caught a lot of men cutting these questions out lately and saving them for future study. It will be pretty hard to get a high mark on the questions below:

SPORTSMANSHIP:

1. How sincerely can he congratulate the winner, if he is the loser?
2. Does his moral standard permit cheating—if he were sure nobody would know?
3. Can he be trusted to keep a secret or a promise?
4. Does he make much of an effort to interest himself in sports that are your hobbies?
5. Is he sensible and level-headed, or does he take unnecessary chances?
6. How free is he from bearing long grudges?
7. Does he willingly wait for evidence before passing judgment against anyone?

8. How willing is he to be told, and to try new ways of doing things?
9. Does he regard an evening spent in a balcony seat at a movie sufficient reason for demanding "dividends"?
10. Does he begrudge taxi-fare and expect you to travel the trolley?

EFFICIENCY:

1. How does he spend his spare time, in self-improvement, or in pleasant loitering?
2. How ambitious is he to "get ahead"?
3. How seldom does he put off tasks until some other day?
4. How independent is he, and how much can he accomplish by himself?
5. How calmly can he meet sudden emergencies?
6. Can he concentrate?
7. Has he the gift of stick-to-it-iveness?
8. Does he take pride in doing his job well?
9. How well does he plan his time so as to include hobbies and recreation?
10. How capable is he of assuming heavy responsibility?

SPIRITED PLUNGING OF ST. MIKE'S DEFEATS SCHOOL IN MULOCK FINAL

Rumours About Rodden

There is a persistent rumour to the effect that M. J. "Mike" Rodden, coach of the Hamilton Tigers, will coach the University of Toronto twelve next year. T. A. Reed, secretary-treasurer of the Athletic Directorate, when asked by "The Varsity" late last night to deny or confirm the rumour, stated that "there is nothing in it and no appointment has been made."

PRESENT GENERATION CRAVES MORE SPEED

Speaker Deplores Entrance

Life

UPHOLDS VICTORIAN IDEAL

"I sincerely hope that 'The Varsity' will not fall into the evil ways of cheap American journalism," said K. Dell in speaking at the weekly meeting of the St. Michael's College Oratorical Club last night on the subject of "Sensationalism." "Freedom of the Press," he emphasized, "is one of the most debatable subjects of modern interest, and should receive the sincere consideration of everyone who truly holds the interest of society at heart."

In speaking on the subject "Nihilism or Nothing in Particular," Charles Henry admitted that, like all other university students, he was "greatly lacking in intelligence," although he wished to be numbered among the intellectually critical. Taking instances at random from recent newspaper articles, Mr. Henry attempted to show a few of the many humorously absurd statements of some of those in the public eye.

W. Hannah, another of the speakers, maintained that in his opinion one of the most tragic facts of modern society is the tendency of women to leave the home in search of opportunities in public life. "This is only one of the inevitable sequences," he said, "to the continuous craving on the part of the present generation for 'Speed, speed, and more speed.'" The Victorian ideals were also upheld by J. Dore, who spoke on "Sex." He showed that although Victorian society was certainly far from perfect, yet to-day drunkenness and vice in general are events of daily occasion, whereas in Victorian times self-restraint and wholesomeness were in more general evidence.

After a motion of congratulation on the success of the St. Michael's Mullock Cup team, the meeting was adjourned. The Oratorical Club holds its meetings each Tuesday evening, the work of the club being limited to practical exercise in public speaking.

BERLIN STUDENT DINNER
GUEST AT WOMEN'S UNION

Mr. Victor Lange, who is studying at Varsity as an exchange student from the University of Berlin, was the guest of Miss Kilpatrick at dinner at the Women's Union last night. German was spoken at the head table, and at the conclusion of dinner, Mr. Lange made a short speech in his native tongue, in which he deplored the fact that there were no Women's Unions nor Hart Houses in Germany. He made the observation that to German students university life meant "work, work, work," but to Canadians it meant an opportunity for culture on a broad basis.

HEWITT STARS FOR SCHOOL

School Kicking Superior, But Line Did Not Hold to St. Mike's

St. Michael's College were proclaimed undefeated intercollegiate football champions yesterday afternoon at Varsity Stadium when they downed the School of Practical Science Juniors 11 to 5 to win the Mullock Cup for the first time. The Irish fighters came from behind suddenly in the third quarter with two touchdowns and a point after a very poor start. It was a tough game for School to lose after last week's game and a four point lead at half time, which made it look as though they were going to win. Throughout the game and especially in the first half, the School kicking was far superior to that of St. Mike's, but in the second half the plunging by the Irish more than gained in the line what they lost in the air, moving the yard sticks six times to School's twice. After Burns' removal from the field in the first quarter with a sprained ankle, Hewitt in the School backfield was the outstanding player of the game, with three points to his credit on kicks and several sensational runs. West was the most consistent tackler for S.P.S. and saved his team from losing yards on kicks on several occasions. Schmidt was the best for the winners in the backfield, while Warren and White both deserve much praise for their touchdowns which undoubtedly turned the tide for the winners in the third quarter. Although a strong north west wind hampered them, both kickers exchanged the ball continually, but usually to the advantage of School.

S.P.S. kicked off to the north with a slight disadvantage from the wind, gradually working the ball to within striking distance, but Cerre took Lichy's kick on his own yard line for St. Mike's. Sheehy returned it after two plunges to centre field and St. Mike's were out of danger. School once more advanced into St. Mike's territory where the ball remained during the whole of the first quarter. Burns ran back an S.P.S. kick from Hewitt 20 yards, but was injured as he was tackled. The next play was an end run with Burns again carrying the ball. Again he was brought down after slipping and his bad ankle necessitated his being removed from the

EQUALITY FOR ALL

"Although we cannot discount the pain and suffering, the wrongs and injustice done to her, the Indian woman has succeeded in mastering her fate, resulting in a fine thing, a character which has patience, endurance and devotion," Miss Dorothy Kilpatrick, Dean of Women, stated in an interview with "The Varsity".

She thoroughly believes in the emancipation of Indian women, although not as a sudden step which may prove false.

"If you believe in the purest and highest ideals for womanhood," she added, "you cannot deny that the same thing should apply to all."

RETROSPECT

Two weeks ago to-day, the Director of Publications for the Engineering Society was suspended for one year from the University of Toronto.

Six weeks before that he had been responsible for the publication of matter objectionable to the Faculty of Applied Science, in the official Engineering Society publication.

When the objectionable issue of Toike Oike appeared, the efficient Dean of the Faculty advised Mr. Algie to resign. The advice was acted upon. The Engineering Society passed a vote of censure upon the offender, and did everything within their means to placate the powers, although refusing to accept the resignation. The Dean expressed his satisfaction with the prompt and able manner with which the matter had been handled. The affair was considered closed.

Weeks later, the dissatisfied Faculty Council took their drastic and belated action, although two issues of Toike Oike had appeared with which they had no complaint.

We cannot condone the actions of Mr. Algie. And yet, when an offender is arraigned before his Dean, makes his apologies, and follows the path toward redemption pointed out to him, it would appear pre-eminently unfair to hark back upon the past. If Brig-Gen. Mitchell believed that the offence demanded the immediate expulsion of Mr. Algie, why did he not do so when the matter came to his attention weeks ago? The refusal by the Engineering Society of the resignation of their Director of Publications makes no difference to Mr. Algie's case. The fact remains that the Faculty Council, whose opinion would seem to be at direct variance with that of the Dean, the head of the body, by their action have meted out a gross injustice.

EDITORIAL NOTES

One of the members of the S.A.C. objects to being called "spineless". Naturally. Who wouldn't? Even the placid jellyfish, we imagine, has prejudices on the subject.

The Joint Executive is reminded by the Men's Council that the editor of "The Varsity" is not living up to the recent recommendations. We herewith inform all and sundry that, contrary to the consensus of the combined wisdom of nine members of the Men's Council, the editor is doing his level best to live up to these recommendations. He was not aware, however, that their purpose was to place the doings of the S.A.C. in a unique category where it would be the only institution on the campus not open to editorial comment.

It would take a legal genius to provide a blanket interpretation to cover the various and self-annulling clauses of the report in question. But if the Joint Executive decides that in the future the Voice of the S.A.C. is the Voice of God, then we shall be only too glad to consider the matter settled.

We shall then be able to sit back in the cool shade of the official smile while a dozen people are off in a corner interpreting the students' constitution to suit the sweet will of a dozen people, just as has been done in the matter of the president of the S.A.C. for the past decade.

COLLEGES OFFER FALSE GLAMOUR TO AVERAGE MAN

What percentage of the people who attend colleges would really be better off on a bookkeeper's stool or with a trowel in hand is the problem which Prof. G. T. Howard of Northwestern University attempts to answer in one of a series of articles appearing in "The Nation".

Prof. Howard takes the part of the unwilling students whose families insist on presenting them with a university education, when he says "in the continuing rush to the colleges it has been proven that students who go to college only because they are sent, whatever their ability, are apt to do poor work." Ability, interest and opportunity should be the greatest factors in determining whether or not one is eligible for college entrance.

"Anybody ought to go to college who really wishes to," continues Prof. Howard. But going hand in hand with this statement he finds that colleges should be "stripped of that false glamour—the social prestige that attracts them to-day and brings to their gates tens of thousands whose real interest is not in intellectual things."

Art, Music and Drama

A.C. Players' Guild

The series of plays from foreign countries continues this week with "The Intruder", by Masterlinck. Shrouded as it is in an almost mystic atmosphere of brooding unearthliness, and yet with language of the simplest realism, the play aptly illustrates the symbolism of the Belgian dramatist.

The rather remarkable use of reiteration is part of the author's general appreciation and effective use of the principle of parallelism in art; it is perhaps less noticeable in this play than in one of his other short pieces, "The Blind", or in the retroactive duo-dialogues of Tyltyl and Mytyl in "The Blue Bird".

The cast is composed of Mr. Selwyn Dewdney, as the blind, super-sensitive grandfather, Mr. Henry Noyes, Mr. Jack Morley, Miss Eugenia Watts, Miss Isabel Wells, Miss Ann Farwell. The production is under the direction of Miss Ruth Haldenby.

St. Hilda's Literary Society

St. Hilda's Literary Society experienced one of its best play productions in years on Monday evening, when 373 presented a well varied program: "The Artist", a curtain-raiser by A. A. Milne; "The Dark Lady of the Sonnets", by Shaw; and "X=O", by John Drinkwater.

"The Dark Lady" was very well done, costumes and atmosphere being good and the lines well delivered. Margot Clarkson as Queen Elizabeth was particularly convincing, although Rachel Buehan, June Warren and Letitia Wilson gave her excellent support.

The triumph of the evening was certainly the Drinkwater play, a poetic drama at the time of the Trojan war. An excellent all-round cast let no opportunities slip in the way of costumes and atmosphere. The two settings, one in the Greek camp of tents, the other under the shadow of a Trojan wall at night, were excellently handled, and the theme of the play, a strange sort of wonder that the war should continue, was well brought out.

The cast included Betty Carter, Margot Thompson, Dorothy Riley and Kitty Sale. Mary Denn was responsible for the costumes.

SONG OF THE SHIRT

(A Silly Sonnet)

(Written on the Lid of an Eaton's Box)

O virgin, pure, unblemished new white shirt!
The sight of you fills me with anguished woe,
To think that your sweet freshness, pure as snow,
Will very soon be stained with horrid dirt!

Oh, do thou not with grime or filth e'er flirt!
Immaculate I'd see thee ever show
Thy shining face to mortals here below,
And thus shame hell, and all the devils burt.

A shining lamp amid the darkness dense,
A blessed little garment missionary,
Thou peace and balm to many a heathen bean
Will bring, and high ideals, and common sense.

From error's chains free many a savage hairy
By showing them the joy of being clean!

I never have been curious
Of details optometrical;
I've learned it is injurious
To flirt with things electrical Interest is only spurious
That's centred in the obstetrical;
But oh! it makes me furious
To have forgotten that perfectly good fourth rhyme I've been at such points to think up!

"THE GONDOLIERS" CHOSEN FOR VIC PRESENTATION

Victoria College Music Club Reports Progress This Year

The Gilbert and Sullivan operetta, "The Gondoliers", is the choice of the Victoria College Music Club for their 1931 presentation. The solo parts were announced at a practice held yesterday.

Miss Blanche Hiltz, vice-president of the society, when questioned by "The Varsity", said that the executive were extremely well pleased with the progress made so far. "The members of the society have given whole-hearted co-operation and everything points to a very successful production next February," she stated.

"We are better pleased with the choice this year than the 'Pirates'," Miss Hiltz said. "The choruses and songs are not as catchy, but there is more solo work and greater scope for musical technique."

ST. MICHAEL'S DOWN JR. S.P.S. 11-5 TO CAPTURE MULOCK CUP

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

There is a lot of uncertainty among basketball fans and even among the players themselves, about just how the system of disqualification for personal or technical fouls works. A player is supposed to be put out of the game for four personals, six technicals, or five combined fouls.

The score-keepers are supposed to keep an accurate record of these fouls and to warn the referee when anyone has one less than the number for which she may be disqualified. It is the duty of the referee to see that the score-keeper keeps this record, and it is also her duty to make it clear which girl the foul is upon, and whether it is personal or technical.

There was only one referee during the whole interfaculty season who did her share to see that these rules were carried out. Now that they are to be strictly enforced during the finals and semi-finals, there are liable to be misunderstandings and hard feelings should anyone be put out of the game, in spite of the fact that almost no attention has been paid to this during the season.

The trouble is that the people who are keeping score are usually pressed into service at the last minute, from one of the two or three ardent supporters who turn out to cheer their team along. While these girls are willing enough, they sometimes are not well enough versed in the mysteries of keeping score to be able to keep an accurate record.

Badminton seems to be coming into its own at the different colleges these days. The club at University College is a flourishing organization with a membership which is increasing all the time. Strenuous efforts are being made at St. Michael's to get a club

VARSVITY POLOISTS FACE KEEN STRUGGLE

Initial Game To-night, With Varsity Opposing Broadview STRONGER TEAM THIS YEAR

The senior water polo season opens to-night with Captain George Spence's Varsity septette facing Broadview Y.M.C.A. in the first game of the City League at Hart House pool. The games in this league never fail to produce keen struggles and to-night's contest should prove no exception. West End "Y" captured the title last year and the Blues are out to remove their laurels from them this season. They expect to start out with a victory over the East-enders, but the latter are reported to be stronger than last year and the locals may receive a surprise.

Coach Leo Latchford has rounded out a strong team this year and the fans will have a chance to look them over in action to-night. Five members of the intercollegiate champions of 1929-30 are back in the persons of George Spence, captain and star rover, Bill Ayers, stellar goalkeeper, Bob Armstrong, who holds down the centre position and is the leading goal-getter, Eddie Sinclair, and George Glass. Harvey Graham, who starred in all of last year's games, is eligible this year, but will confine his playing to the intercollegiate matches. With this nucleus to work on and with several promising graduates from the interfaculty series, Latchford has had no trouble in turning out a powerful team. The starting line-up will be as follows: goal, Ayers; defence, Hayhoe and Sinclair; centre, Armstrong; forwards, Glass and Culner; rover, Spence.

The game will start at 8.15 and there will be no admission charge. Water polo fans are advised not to miss this contest and those who have never seen the aquatic sport played will have a good opportunity to come out and be initiated into one of the fastest of all pastimes.

CO-EOS MUST TELL DEAN MAKE OF DAO'S CAR

Columbus, Ohio.—Every co-ed at Ohio State University must tell the dean of women what make and model of auto her father drives, how many dates she has in a year and how many dances she attends.

The reason for the questionnaire is that the dean wants to know the women better. The age of the family flyver is a good indication of determining a person's social standing, according to the dean.

She also wants to know how much money her charges spend on clothes, the amount of spare time they have, what magazines they read and a lot of other extremely personal things.

formed and there are a large number of enthusiasts signed up for the meeting which will be held some time this week.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By T. A. F.

For the first time in the history of the Mulock Cup series St. Michael's College are holders of the trophy. The Irish seldom fail to enter a strong team in the race and have several times got as far as the playoffs, but until they downed the junior engineers yesterday they had never succeeded in carrying off the cup. This year's team is one of the strongest ever to represent the Double Blue and they were picked to win the title from the beginning of the season. However, the Schoolmen did not succumb before putting up a mighty struggle and at half time it looked as though they were going to come through. However, the S.M.C. line was just a little too strong for them.

The handful of spectators in the stands were treated to an exhibition of wide open football in the last quarter which is seldom seen in present-day rugby. For once the onside kick came into its own as a scoring threat. The way the S.P.S. team worked this play St. Mike's were in danger even with a six-point lead. This is the kind of football we like to see when it is properly carried out.

St. Mike's got their first touchdown which gave them the lead and proved the deciding point of the game, in an unusual way. Cerre played onside on one of Schmidt's kicks and while Hallat and Hewitt on the School backfield let the ball roll around he raced up and fell on it a yard out. The rest was easy for Warren, the star Irish line-plunger. This safety-first practice on a bounding ball does not always pay.

Some of the St. Michael's players would look at home on one of the University senior teams. "Speaker" Burns, whose work at quarter has featured the Irish efforts all season, is good enough for any company. All he needs is a broken field and a ball under his arm and he is away. Unfortunately he was injured at the start of the game yesterday and was forced to retire for the balance of the struggle. This defection weakened the S.M.C. attack about forty per cent. Another stand-out player of senior calibre is Jack Warren, who specializes in tearing opposing lines to shreds. We lost track of the number of yards this player made yesterday after we had counted up to forty, but it was plenty. It was along the wing-line that S.P.S. went down to defeat and they are far from being any lightweights. Even a big advantage in the kicking and superior half-line work failed to offset the work of the S.M.C. battering rams.

NATIONALISM FIRST SAYS CULTURAL CLUB SPEAKER

Luncheons to be Held Monthly at Which University Members Will Speak

"Before arriving at internationalism as a factor in Jewish life, we must first strive at nationalism among ourselves," was one of the main points stressed by Mr. Rhinewine, speaking at the first of a series of luncheons, to be held by the Yiddish Cultural Society, at the "Sign of the Lantern" tea rooms at noon yesterday. The speaker compared his meaning to a symphony, in which all movements worked together towards a harmonious whole.

"I do not mean that we should break away entirely from our environment," continued Mr. Rhinewine. "In such a case, it would be difficult to arrive at the desired internationalism."

Mr. Rhinewine maintained that Jewish students should learn Yiddish, as it was a necessary factor for contact with the Jewish masses.

The Yiddish Cultural Society, lately formed from the members of the Jewish Students' Organization, plans to hold similar luncheons monthly, on the third Tuesday of each month, with prominent members of the University of Toronto as speakers. It is expected that Miss Hamilton, of the Social Service department, will be the speaker at the next luncheon.

Mr. Rhinewine, who is editor of the "Toronto Hebrew Journal," took as his text, "What is Yiddish Culture?" The arrangements for the luncheon were carried out by Mr. Libman, Mr. Katzenelbogen, and Miss Rhinewine.

Not until a recent burglary at Kansas did women have keys to their dormitory rooms.

ST. MIKE'S DEFEAT SCHOOL TO WIN MULOCK CUP

game. St. Mike's were weakened and School made gains to within striking distance, but the quarter ended on St. Mike's 20 yard line with no score.

After big gains by Nolan and Sheehy, St. Mike's were penalized 15 yards for no yards. Both kickers exchanged kicks several times but Lichty was the only one to take advantage when he ran it up 15 yards to the 35 yard line and kicked a point for S.P.S. on the next down. Then Hewitt exchanged kicks with Sheehy for big gains, and got it in close three times in the second quarter for three more points, putting S.P.S. well ahead at half time with the score S.P.S. 4, S.M.C. 0.

In the second half Warren's plunging stood out when he went over for a touch after Cerre, who was onside, had recovered Schmidt's kick for St. Mike's on School's one yard line. This put St. Mike's one up with the score 5 to 4. But shortly after, the ball went into touch off Warren and Lichty kicked the tying point from the 30 yard line. Then Schmidt got into action and kicked another point for S.M.C.

Shortly afterwards, White broke through the S.P.S. defence and blocked Lichty's kick which he caught on the bounce and ran 20 yards for a touch, making it 11 to 5 for St. Mike's. Whalen tried to convert, but failed just as the quarter ended.

In the last quarter Hewitt tried hard to pull School out of the hole with a steady exchange of kicks, but fumbles and the S.M.C. plungers counteracted his gains. Onside kicks and a marvellous 55 yard run by Whalen stood out in the last quarter to make it one of the most brilliant periods of open play seen this year at the Stadium. However, the tide had definitely turned in favour of the Irish and the plodding School team were unable to overcome it before the game ended with the score standing St. Michael's 11, S.P.S. 5.

of courses at the beginning of the term, with short crisp comments. If a course is good, it is recommended; if one is poor, the report says so. At once the question arises: But is the student a competent judge? Yes, most emphatically, we answer, for he is not the one who is taking the courses? It may be argued again that the student does not know what is good for him, but after all it must be admitted that what he finds worthwhile, he will benefit from; what he finds unprofitable and unpleasant is worth next to nothing.

The sour grapes attitude about certain courses after college days are over will do nothing to improve the situation; neither will uncomplimentary remarks behind a professor's back be of any use. Talking will not better conditions, unless the persons concerned are addressed. The best way to help cure some of the defects is, in our opinion, to follow Harvard's example, and turn out a candid book of information.

Such a method of correcting evils, however drastic for a conservative university like McGill, would make our professors more alert, and would direct our criticism in channels which would have some valuable effect.

greatly the industry depends upon the university. This building is intended to equip the University of Toronto to serve the industries in Ontario, even better than it has ever been able to in the past," he concluded.

CLAIMS RIGHT OF HOME IN PALESTINE FOR JEWS

Maurice Samuel Describes the Recent Settlements of Palestine

"The principles of the rights of the Jewish people to a homeland in Palestine has been admitted, not by Britain alone, but has become an international principle," stated Maurice Samuel, noted Jewish author, in his address in Hart House Music Room recently.

"One hundred thousand men have been poured into the country inside of ten years and over three hundred million dollars sent in to develop the country," he said. "In 1919 the leader of the Arabs speaking in Paris, welcomed the Jews to Palestine and now only a few Arab chiefs are objecting, but the mass of the Arabs do not resent the Jews opening up the land since it benefits themselves just as much."

Five hundred students of the University of Seville went on a strike lately, protesting against a new plan of government.

VISCOUNT WILLINGDON VISITS VICTORIA

of public work, to you who are preparing to go out into the world and engage in public service; take full advantage of your opportunities for education here, so that you may become efficient in your chosen vocations, and thus make good citizens.

"Educational efficiency has increased to such an extent in these past few years," stated His Excellency, "that the competition in all branches of life is becoming greater." Addressing himself more particularly to the men present, Lord Willingdon stated that not long ago it was considered indelicate for a young woman to enter the business or professional world, but that now there is scarcely a branch of human endeavour of which women are not efficient members. "The danger of female competition is great," he said, "thereby getting co-operation and diminishing competition."

His lordship struck a more serious note when he mentioned the sacred duties of young Canadians as citizens in a country which had so recently come through the ordeal of the Great War. "It is sad to think of the World War," he said, "but we must not forget, but must always remember, that 60,000 Canadians died in Flanders. You have got to take their places and show the world that the sacrifice of those 60,000 were not in vain. Fit yourselves by your education, to make yourselves efficient, honourable, upright Christian Canadian men and women."

Lord Willingdon mentioned three of the most important traits in the character of a good citizen. "Ambition," he stated, "is one of these, not the ambition of the individual for himself, but an ambition to do good in the world. Modesty is another of these traits," he said, "not the modesty of the man who has no initiative, but the modesty of a man of accomplishments who can show off these accomplishments in an unassuming way. The last of these characteristics is 'Good Manners.' No man should do anything in such a manner that it would not be satisfying to his conscience."

In concluding, Lord Willingdon wished all those present the greatest happiness and success in their careers and asked them to take, as a last bit of advice a quotation which he stated had helped and guided him throughout his life. "To thine own self be true, and it shall follow as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man."

At the conclusion of the reception Lady Willingdon was presented with a bouquet of flowers. The Vice-Regal party then walked through a lane of cheering students to Wymilwood, where tea was served.

NOTE TAKERS SCORED

possibility in both professor and group is absolutely essential to provoke discussion.

Jocelyn Moore, IV U.C., expressed herself as being absolutely against the prevailing mania for notes. "This is a pool, and the upper scum (the quite bright ones) take no notes and they usually fail in examinations. The mud at the bottom (the quite dumb ones), also take no notes; and they also fail; the depths in between write yards of verbatim pearls of wisdom, copy and borrow, and are only occasionally surprised with a thought. They usually pass. They are the ones that greet with great silences the audacious questioner and lean mute and panting on their notes."

FORMER VARSITY GRADUATE STRESSES TICCU GATHERING

"The most important question in the world is 'What think ye of Christ?'" said Dr. E. Ralph Hooper, addressing the Ticcu in U.C. yesterday afternoon. He was of the opinion that by his answer to this, a man could be judged. He stressed the deity of Christ, whom he spoke of as "the Creator."

"We don't read the Bible enough these days," he said. "We are too apt to make our own pictures of Christ and they are rather dim and hazy."

Dr. Hooper is an old Varsity man. He held the "T" in football, tennis and track. In '96 he was track champion.

OFFER TO AVOID NOTE SCRIBBLING IS DISREGARDED

Prof. Harkness Volunteers to Follow Suggestion of Student Daily

STUDENTS ARE APATHETIC

Agrees that Discussion is to be Preferred to Dictation

"Should this class so desire I would be quite willing to dispense with the dictation of lecture notes," said Prof. W. J. K. Harkness, in addressing the second year class in pass biology yesterday afternoon. "I quite agree with the opinion expressed in to-day's issue of 'The Varsity', that note-taking is not in the best interests of the student," continued Prof. Harkness.

He went on to suggest that should the student taking the course in biology confine his study to reference books and come to the lecture prepared to discuss things and think for himself that he would gain more from the course.

Prof. Harkness said that the reason that the present system of note-taking is in vogue is because of the fact that the student must study five courses, sometimes quite extensive and not related to each other, which does not give him an opportunity to do the reading required to pass in a subject without notes.

The lecturer in biology deplored this fact and made the suggestion that notes in that class be done away with if the students were in favour of the plan. None of them seemed to take his suggestion seriously, however, and they straggled silently from the class room.

Order Revised; Flask's Contents Impotent, But Not Canadian Navy

By V. G.

The debate yesterday evening was a race for rhetoric and the Speaker won by a pose.

Mr. Coburn was born reckless. The highlight of the evening occurred when he produced a flask and nonchalantly proceeded to gulp what appeared to be gin. Imagine our surprise when the gin turned out to be ginger! One of these days he will surpass himself and bring a lunch.

Mr. Tarshis had the honour to "move the motion".

That great enigma of modern history, the Canadian Navy, was sunk, resurrected and sunk again to the keen delight of everyone present. It took the Member from the Army, Major-General J. H. MacBrien to vindicate the fleet. "In peace time our nautical forces assist the customs and immigration authorities, patrol the coast, and do life-saving work," he pleaded. They also have a monopoly over all pretty women. The general had the misfortune to mix his notes, with the result that he presented some excellent arguments for the resolution.

Mr. Beament compared preparation for war to preparation for unforeseen epidemics, unintentionally making it clear that war is a disease.

He also stressed the necessity of military forces in the event of a rising among the unemployed. Ah! Russia again! Apparently he has no use for Chief Draper's argonauts.

BRITISH PROFESSOR DISCUSSES NEW FIND

Sinanthropus May Change All Previous Ideas on Evolution

The illustrated lecture on the Sinanthropus (the Peking man), is to be delivered by Dr. G. Elliot Smith, Professor of Anatomy, University of London, in Convocation Hall, on Wednesday, December 3rd, at 5 p.m.

The skull of the Peking man was found on December 2, 1929, by Mr. W. C. Pei. It was investigated by Dr. Davidson Black, a graduate of this university. Professor G. Elliot Smith made a trip to China for the purpose of examining this skull which, he says, provides "A new basis for the study of human evolution."

"People will not make use of the cloak room," Mr. J. B. Bickersteth, Warden of Hart House, told "The Varsity" yesterday. "We have tried everything, even to removing the coat-racks, but they just left their coats and hats on the floor."

"It was the same with the bookshelves we used to have downstairs. Just look at them all along the wall," said he, pointing to various piles of books on the floor.

McCulley Thinks All Students Are Pacifists in Reality

MacBRIEN OFFENSIVE MILITIA
Lautenslager Calls on Canada to Set Example for World

By a vote of 98 to 64, the affirmative carried the House last evening, at the Hart House debate on the motion, "That this House considers all expenditures on national defence by the Dominion of Canada unjustifiable."

The defenders of the motion brought forward the fact that Canada's military defences would be useless in case of war and therefore Canada should lead the way for a renunciation of all the armaments of nations. In reply, the negative pointed out that we needed a militia to aid in settling any civil strife and that we were duty bound to the Empire and the League of Nations to support a national defence or else we would be considered a parasite.

"Modern war is enormously destructive and I believe that every man in the house is a pacifist in that they do want peace," stated Mr. J. McCulley, principal of Pickering College, one of (Continued on Page 4)

COLLEGE FASHION SAYS CORDUROY

Men Students at Ohio State Have Purchased 267 Pairs

CO-EDS ONLY OBJECTORS

Columbus, Ohio.—Men students on the campus have suddenly become addicts of the yellow corduroy fad. A survey of stores which sell the trousers shows that 267 pairs have been retailed to university men students.

Economy is said to be the chief reason for the popularity of the trousers for everyday wear. Cleaning bills are no financial worries to wearers of the "cords". The dirtier the trousers the better they wear.

Chief objectors to the new style of dress are the co-eds. They assert that the corduroys are most becoming to ice men and manual laborers.

The fad originated in Eastern colleges and has steadily spread through the Middle Western universities.

OHIO PROFESSOR GETS COLD FEET

LOCKED IN REFRIGERATOR

Columbus, Ohio.—Locked in a dark refrigerator with the temperature at 34 degrees and practically no hope of escape for hours. That was the situation Professor Wendell Paddock of the department of horticulture and forestry of Ohio State University faced this morning.

Dr. Paddock was experimenting with cider in the refrigerator when the door to the cooler slammed shut. Since the door can only be opened from the outside, the situation looked pretty dark for the cider experimenter.

SCHOOLMAN TERMS ALGIE EXPULSION GROSS INJUSTICE

N. B. Jones, II S.P.S., Can Recall Many Equally Lurid Issues

AGREE WITH VARSITY

Student Daily "Just As Bad", Say Two Forestry Students

"Algie should certainly have been reinstated," said N. B. Jones, II S.P.S., when interviewed by "The Varsity". "I agree with 'The Varsity' on the stand it has taken with regard to the expulsion of Mr. Algie," he continued.

When asked by "The Varsity" reporter if the issues of Toike Oike, because of which the editor, W. E. Algie, had been expelled, had been unusually lurid, Mr. Jones replied: "I have read all the issues of Toike Oike since I have been in S.P.S. and do not consider the issues in question to have been any worse than the many preceding issues."

"Yes," said Mr. Jones to another question, "I do think Mr. Algie's expulsion might be termed a 'gross injustice', particularly since he apologized by handing in his resignation."

Several other S.P.S. men expressed the opinion that expulsion was too severe a penalty for the mere publication of a few jokes, at which no sensible person should take offense. They thought that Mr. Algie had been discriminated against, since former editors had printed contributions equally bad without being penalized with the loss of their year.

These gentlemen refused to give their names for fear of "getting in bad". "Too drastic," was the consensus of their opinions.

DECORUM LACKING IN MODERN TIMES

Harvard Professor Discusses Motives of Wordsworth's Writings

UPHOLDS CHESTERFIELD

That "decorum" represented in literature by the letters of Lord Chesterfield is something that the twentieth century lacks and the lack is a fault, Irving Babbitt, professor of Comparative Literature at Harvard University and leader of contemporary American thought told a meeting in Convocation Hall yesterday afternoon.

A survey of the influences that went to make William Wordsworth the poet that he was comprised the main part of the lecture. Tracing the harking-back to nature movement, most fully expressed in Jean Jacques Rousseau, from the beginning of the eighteenth century, when stoical apathy was so popular that a bishop's grave was marked with an epitaph to the effect that whatever other faults he may have had he had been no enthusiast, until the time of the poet, Professor Babbitt said that it was a reaction of the "Theological nightmare" of the time when the extreme views of Jansen and Calvin on the total depravity of man, held sway.

The nature movement found itself since it held that man was perfect in his natural state and that the highest form of literature was the expression of emotion in opposition to both the Christian and the classical traditions.

That Toronto students are not timid, but merely cautious, was the result of "The Varsity's" enquiry regarding a new system of choosing or rejecting professors.

DEBATERS TO URGE ECONOMIC POLICY

Women Will Discuss Policies of British Peer with McGill

SAME SUBJECT AT QUEEN'S

Women orators will be in vogue next Monday night at the intercollegiate debate, "Resolved that this house approves of the economic empire policy of Lord Beaverbrook."

Miss Ruth Spurling of Victoria and Miss Isabel Jordan of University College are upholding the honour of Varsity against McGill, by supporting the affirmative.

Both Miss Spurling and Miss Jordan are employing all their energy to presenting an insight and knowledge of present day affairs. A subject of this nature is a new venture in women's debating.

Besides the debate at Toronto, Miss Bernice Vennin and Miss Agnes Odea, both from St. Michael's College, are representing the University of Toronto in a debate on the same subject at Queen's University.

A Hundred Points on the Perfect Male Common Sense May Tell The Tale

To-morrow, when the final instalment of this series is run, we are publishing full details of a contest in which we are going to try to find the perfect male of the University of Toronto. These questions have created all kinds of interest on the campus, so watch for the announcement to-morrow. To-day, the questions concern Common Sense and Domesticity: COMMON SENSE:

1. Does he paint his shiver in a collegiate comma with wise-cracking formulas?
 2. How likely would he be to buy toothpaste instead of cigarettes, if the choice were necessary?
 3. Does he patronize "Sta-Comb" extensively?
 4. How likely would he be to jump into a swimming pool, fully dressed, to win a dare?
 5. If funds are low, would he borrow money so that he could take you to a nice place, or would he head for an inexpensive restaurant?
 6. How frequently does he give reasons for what he does? (Or does he do them "just because"?)
 7. Is he willing to consult the doctor for physical ailments?
 8. How free is he from the things that annoy you most?
 9. How much of the time does he act naturally? Or does he try to impress strangers?
 10. Would he be likely to diet and exercise if the girl of his waistline were portly in middle age?
- DOMESTICITY:
1. How fond is he of children?
 2. How skillful is he at repairing and doing odd jobs?
 3. Would he be willing to help dry the dishes?
 4. How much does he know about cooking?
 5. How orderly is he?
 6. How much hospitality would he show to guests?
 7. How much practical knowledge has he of heating, ventilating, electricity, etc.?
 8. Is he a settle-down-at-home type, or would he rather gad about?
 9. Would he be apt to criticize your ways of managing the home?
 10. Would he have good taste in interior decorating?

DUTY BOUND

"A small expenditure to maintain national defence does not mean a defence of militarism, and we are duty bound to protect right."

This is the sort of statement which can be made at an open debate in Canada's largest university, twelve years after the close of the most concentrated and most futile period of slaughter in the history of the world.

We can only hope that the speaker was moved by the necessities of debate and not by the promptings of his own intelligence.

One of this country's leading soldiers, speaking at the same function, declared that war was an economic inevitability, and that, as Canada advanced in the world of commerce, the need for armed defence would become increasingly necessary. This is facing the issue a bit more honestly. In a world where open competition is the practical religion, there is no doubt that the time is coming—possibly within the next fifteen years—when the gods that sit in the high places will summon Canada's youth to present their bodies a bloody sacrifice on the altar of the nation's right to a place in the economic sun.

We are duty bound to protect the right of our manufacturers of potted meat and tin trays to unrestricted competition in the markets of the world.

U.C. FOLLIES OFFERS NIGHT CLUB FEATURE DENIES BENEFITS OF WORLD UNITY

Couples Will Be Escorted to the Door in Regal State by Pages

WATER POLD IN PODL

An extensive survey of the world's night life will feature the University College annual Frolic which takes place in Hart House on Friday night.

Provided with a room and an orchestra, each year will portray a certain type of club. This first year will seek to take off a New York night club; second year will give an imitation of a wild west "Last Chance Night Club"; third year will portray a "First Nighters' Night Club"; and fourth year will put on "The Oshawa Millionaires' Night Club".

The four clubs will alternately be given over to skits or "acts" and dancing. They will be "open" until 10.30 and then general dancing in the Big Gym will follow. Joe De Courcy and his nine-piece orchestra will dispense the music. There will be a water polo game in the pool from 10.30 until 11. Cars driving up to the front door of Hart House will be stopped about fifty feet away and the university police will only allow one couple to approach the door at a time. At the door a uniformed doorman will open the doors of the cars and conduct the couples to the entrance. A couple of pages will distribute the programs.

The checking arrangements follow: Men will check their coats and hats at the door of the Sketch Room; women will check their wraps at the Hart House check room and in the Billiard Room.

Parking and traffic arrangements will be announced by the Social Committee of the University College Literary and Athletic Association later.

Dr. R. Roberts Hopes World Is Never to be Homogeneous

NATION NOT RACIAL FACT

"I hope the world will never be entirely homogeneous," said Dr. Richard Roberts in his address on "Christianity and Nationalism" yesterday in the music room. "And even if an attempt were made to make the world one nation, the love of variety would beat us."

In his speech Dr. Roberts gave many interesting examples to illustrate his points. He defined a nation as not necessarily having a common racial origin, nor a common language, nor even a common religion, but rather it must be a group of people living together in the same territory and thus acquiring a tradition and common characteristics, manners and customs. "A nation is not a racial fact," he said, "but rather a psychological fact." "Jesus did not want his people to achieve political independence, but to become God's herald to the world," stated the speaker, comparing biblical times to our own modern world. He also said that Christianity is not concerned with the workings of a nation except that it be free. When a nation is free a man can be allowed to think clearly and without fear. "The church should be super-national," the doctor declared.

He said that nations cannot become too big and that history proved this statement.

He concluded his address with the statement that, "When two nations are hostile to each other they tend to become like one another, and that to have national variation we must have a world of co-operation."

DEFENDS ALGIE

Editor, "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:
I have followed with interest and growing indignation the events in the case of the suspension of Mr. W. E. Algie of S.P.S. The utterly unfair manner in which the Faculty Council behaved is only exceeded by the smugness with which they refuse to reopen the case in contempt for and infraction of the principle of justice.

The action of the Faculty Council in suspending Mr. Algie five weeks after the appearance of the obnoxious issue of "Toike Oike", when the dean of the faculty had expressed satisfaction with the handling and settlement of the case certainly bears the earmarks of unwarrantable busybodying. Technically, the action of the Engineering Society in refusing to accept Mr. Algie's resignation placed them in a position of responsibility and sponsorship and any punishment for Mr. Algie's indiscretion should therefore fall on the Society. The Society itself took active disciplinary measures in its capacity as sponsor.

In the conduct of any trial, it is desirable that the judge should be acquainted with the general state of affairs regarding any questions such as the moral tones of publications. It is unjust that men who are admittedly not ardent readers of student humour as set forth in "The Varsity", "Toike Oike", and even "College Humour", should be suddenly confronted with an issue which was admittedly rather highly coloured and asked to pronounce on the fate of its editor. In a nutshell, why pick on Mr. Algie?

If the desire was to make an example of one, in order to warn the rest, I submit that the punishment is too severe. Suspension in one's fourth year is a rather large handicap under which to interview prospective employers. Not only that, but the interruption of any university course in the last year can only be regarded as a calamity. If the Faculty Council wishes to make a gesture of purification, let the punishment fit the crime. A suspension in a man's fourth year is too severe a measure in a case of this type. The rather vague powers of student government apparently are of no avail in a case like this, but strong student opinion and agitation should be worth trying. May I suggest that I can see no better test case for the determination of the extent of faculty dictatorship than this.

In conclusion I wish it to be noted that I am not personally acquainted with Mr. Algie.

SECOND MEETING U.C. FRENCH CLUB

French Christmas Is Compared to Our Canadian Christmas

FRENCH COMEDY ENJOYED

The University College French Club held its second regular meeting last night in the Women's Union, with a fairly large attendance. After the usual preliminaries, Miss Nellie King, who has just spent her third year abroad in France and Germany, told of a French Christmas.

Miss King pointed out that the main difference lies in the fact that theirs is more religiously observed. In other respects our celebrations are very similar.

The next feature on the program was the production of a short comedy called "L'homme qui épouse une femme muette", to which the audience responded with roars of genuine mirth. Downstairs in the common room, Miss Betty Burton, a U.C. junior, entertained the club with several piano selections, after which followed refreshments and the usual half hour of conversation.

CHAMPUS CAT

Christmas is coming, hurray, hurray!

C—C

We were accosted yesterday at the north-west corner of the latest tentacle of our great capitalist octopus (cf. Hush) by an indignant female of no uncertain age. Brandishing an umbrella of petticoat vintage (she probably wore the petticoat also and possibly was even developing a Line of Beauty (adv. (we like these brackets (they look so pretty))) she demanded to be told the whereabouts of Bay Street.

C—C

We: The trail twisting east and west is College St., closely connected with University Ave. Running north and south with a wide free stride is the Elusive Bay. Like S.A.C. meetings, it begins, no one knows where, and ends in a brick wall. No, madame, I am not a Boy Scout, and I always need the money.

C—C

She: Well, it's disgraceful in a big city like this if they don't have the names on the streets and a stranger has to stop a pedestrian . . .

C—C

We: Be of good cheer, Pollyanna, you might have stopped a motor car.

C—C

R. E. Noles started to write a story last night about this Babbitt person, but we kicked him out. It's all right to say a man looks like a squat little white headed gnome ("Does she (g)nome?" "Alaska!") in a mustard-coloured suit (hot-dog?), but to say he resembles a country store keeper and should have been provided with a floor-vase is too much.

C—C

With the assistance of the Professor we present two new characters to grace this clmn.

C—C

Meet Mr. Kaspar Milktoast and Oh'my the South Sea Islander.

C—C

We are not sure yet of Bro. Milktoast's exact status, (when we look funny, people stare), but Oh'my is undoubtedly the Hon. Mem. from Tahiti (this rhymes with n'ghtie) and claims to be first cousin to Lo the poor Indian.

C—C

We heard a lot at the debate last night about Mobilization Bill. Could he be the Hon. Mem. from Ottawa, or the representative from the School of the C.O.T.C.? (Wonder what Becament?)

C—C

The Sixth Earl of Lautenslager was more restrained than usual. Perhaps he pulled a Dizzy act (it looked like it) and wore corsets.

C—C

And we promised we wouldn't say that naughty word!

C—C

He certainly didn't have a line of beauty.

C—C

Nuffed.

—Chaz.

"I wouldn't call it gross injustice," said one, "because I think the Faculty Council of S.P.S. wouldn't be consciously unjust, but I do think it was too severe a penalty. The issues were not, in my opinion, as bad as they have been painted," he continued. "The Varsity prints stuff just as bad, and gets away with it."

BLUE BASKETEERS LOSE TO CENTRAL 'Y'; WATER POLOISTS WIN

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

Sport fans at St. Michael's are going to have a hard time deciding which of two real attractions they are going to attend. Both the basketball and the baseball teams representing the Double Blue are playing at 6 o'clock to-night. Both these games promise to be thrillers.

The basketballers meet St. Hilda's in the first game of the semi-finals at U.T.S. Although the Saints have practically the same team which won the interfaculty championship last year, the Double Blue are confident of giving them a hard battle. St. Michael's have shown surprising strength in winning their group title, and for the first time in years have a team which is proving a real threat.

The Saints are especially strong on the forward line, with Bea Symons and Sally Ballard leading their attack. Fran Crooks at jumping centre, has not been playing up to her usual form, but is strong on the offense.

On the other hand, the Double Blue have a well-rounded team, with practically no individual stars. They have an unfortunate habit of playing a defensive game, especially at the first of the game, which almost resulted disastrously for them on more than one occasion. If they snap out of this attitude, they should be able to hold their own with St. Hilda's.

At Vic gym, the St. Michael's outfit will face Vic in the second game of the series. When these teams clashed before, St. Mike's came out on top, by a score of 3 to 2, but they had the advantage of playing on their home floor. Both teams are above the average, and both batteries are excellent. St. Mike's are rather weak with the bat, and need to improve considerably.

Vic have a scrappy well-rounded team with practically no weaknesses, while the great strength of the Double Blue team is in the box. If both teams play up to the form which they displayed last week, the result will be another exciting struggle.

Water Polo Team Piles Up Lead in First Half of Game

CULNER SCORES TWICE

Flashing the speed and combination which made them champions two years ago, the Varsity senior water polo team opened the city league by an impressive 9-1 victory over Broadview Y.M.C.A. at Hart House pool last night. Taking the offensive from the opening whistle, the Blue team were always in command, and on the night's showing should regain the Daily Star Trophy now held by West End "Y". The Broadview squad fought back hard in the second half but were outclassed.

The teams started out playing only six men each, owing to the tardiness of a Broadview player, but resumed full strength after 4 minutes of play. Varsity secured on the centre and immediately forced the play. Spence sent in a hard shot, and a moment later Culner scored on a pass from Sinclair. It was a nice effort by the southpaw swimmer. Armstrong, at centre, secured and passed to Glass, who registered a second tally.

Culner sent home his second goal which he heaved in a beautiful long shot, and Captain Spence made it 4-0 when he picked the corner from left wing. Just for good measure he drove another one into the other corner to make the half time score 5-0 for the Blue team.

The second half opened with a furious scramble, and Armstrong's backhand shot hit the post. Eddie Sinclair had his first shot blocked, but dented the twine with the second. Bob Armstrong came into the limelight by heaving in two counters from his own goal line, a brace of long, hard shots. Broadview finally broke into the scoring column when Vale sent in a bullet-like shot from the wing to make the score 8-1. Culner intercepted a pass and heaved it home just before full time was called with the score 9-1.

Coach Leo Latchford has a well-drilled, speedy and experienced team, and in "Lefty" Culner, the newcomer from Meds, he appears to have the "find" of the year. The southpaw has a wicked shot, and is a persistent checker. Bob Armstrong, Spence, and the other men of last year's team, showed that they are better than ever, and their plays were working perfectly.

SHUGAR AND ROOKE SCORE

Varsity juniors were nosed out in the last few minutes by Central Y.M.C.A. juniors in their first basketball league game of the season last night on the Big Gym. After maintaining a small lead throughout the game a slack defensive system of play and their failure to score but two of fourteen foul shots lost the game for the Blue and White quintette.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

University of Toronto's junior hockey team will face stiff opposition at the Arena Gardens to-morrow evening when they encounter Aurora in the second game of a scheduled doubleheader. Aurora eliminated Pickering College quite easily in the first round while Varsity emerged victorious over the Danforth A.C.

Considering the fact that it was their first game and with but two of last year's champion Big Four team on the line-up, Varsity made a very promising showing. The squad is well-balanced, possessing an abundance of good prospects in the new material. The S.P.A. series affords Coach Frank Sullivan the opportunity of seeing his many players in action before he begins the weeding out process for the team to represent the Blue and White in the Junior O.H.A. Big Four Group.

In Cunningham, of last year's team, and May, from Upper Canada, Coach Sullivan is well-fortified in the pivot position. May was outstanding with U.C.C. last year and in the practices this week he has been flashing a smart brand of hockey. George Hendry, also of the champion team, has shown great improvement this year and was quite impressive on the right flank in the first game. Boddington and McPherson have played consistent hockey the past week in practices in the fight for the left wing berth.

On the rearguard the juniors have two strong defencemen in Donovan and Lynch. Donovan starred at U.T.S. last winter and has been using his body to great effect this week in the workouts. Lynch possesses an abundance of speed and his rushes have been very effective. In Haddad and Shipp, the two candidates for goal, there is very little to choose between them, both being of good calibre.

Varsity's water polo team had little trouble last evening in defeating Broadview Y in their first game of the City League. Coach Leo Latchford has produced a well-drilled and experienced team which should restore the Daily Star cup, lost last year to West End Y. Central and West End compose the other two teams in the league.

Featuring the Varsity play and the game was the work of Culner on the forward line. This is Culner's first year on the team, he formerly playing with Meds in the interfaculty games.

Varsity's junior basketball team was nosed out by a single point in the opening league game against Central Y in the big gym last night. While the play was for the greater part in favour of the Blue and White, yet they failed to make use of their scoring chances, poor shooting being the chief reason. Shugar, formerly of the Elizabeths, and Rooke, of U.T.S., were best for Varsity.

Varsity seniors also lost to Central Y in basketball, the score being 39-25. This game was but an exhibition, with Varsity showing a lack of condition and combination. Horton, with 8 points, was Varsity's high scorer.

times in rapid succession with Shugar rippling the twine close in on short passes. Central retaliated with two baskets, one of which Westaway made after dribbling the length of the floor. Varsity's shooting throughout the first period failed to register many more points, although they had the better of the play and by far the most shots. Rooke went on for Douglas and scored two baskets on smart combination with Shugar. Central Y were unable to break away from the man to man defence maintained by the Blues. The score stood 16 to 11 at half time for Varsity.

When the second stanza opened Varsity tried hard to enlarge their lead and scored two on rebound shots, but the Y team picked up loose balls and scored to keep them within winning distance. With three minutes of the game to go and Varsity holding a four point lead, Wagman romped through to catch a long pass from Westaway and ripped the twine on what looked an impossible shot from the corner. Shugar, who comes from the Elizabeths, and Rooke from U.T.S., turned in the best performances for Varsity, while Westaway, was the high scorer and Wagman stood out on the winning quintette.

U. of T.—Forwards, Shugar 9, Carroll 5; centre, Douglas 3; guards, Himel, Black; subs, Rooke 8, Huhn 1, Magwood, Jaimet, Dennis 3, Cahoon.

Central Y — Forwards, White 2, Wagman 8; centre, Westaway 11; guards, Ward 1, Greer 1; subs, Jenkins 4, Allen 3, Kimball, Cronk, Nixon, Sharpe.

POOR CONDITION DEFEATS VARSITY

Central Y Wins Ragged Game in Senior Exhibition Tilt

GUARDS CHECK STEADILY

Central Y defeated Varsity seniors 39 to 25 in a ragged game of basketball on the Big Gym at Hart House last night. Although it was an exhibition tilt and Varsity's first time together this season, they showed a decided lack of condition and combination.

Varsity forwards, led by O'Leary, kept the ball around the Y guard line, but were held at bay or missed their shots when they did work it in close. Varsity handled the ball poorly and but for the steady checking of the guards would have been beaten by a much larger score.

Central started off fast and Oggy looked the best for the Y when the score stood 20 to 10 for the Central quintette at half time.

Varsity—Collins, Hynes 4, Riggs 2, Douglas 1, O'Leary 2, Sakler 2, Cock 2, Sniderman, McCallum 4, Horton 8. Central Y—Weyms 5, Blues 4, Kane 7, Wood 3, Murdoch 5, Oggy 15, Pogus.

VARSITY JUNIORS HAVE LARGE SQUAD

Aurora Juniors Will Offer Opposition by Stiff Body-checks

JACK WHITE HURT

Varsity's junior hockey squad will swing into action at the Arena Gardens to-morrow night in the second round of the S.P.A. series. The Aurora juniors will furnish the opposition and a real struggle should result. Both teams showed up well in winning their first round games, the Blues downing Danforth's 4 to 1 and the Yonge Street boys defeating Pickering College 7 goals to 1.

Judging from the form displayed by Coach Sullivan's squad in the practices this week they should be ready to turn in a good effort to-morrow. It is early in the season yet to judge the team, but there are so many bright prospects on the line-up that they should go a long way. There are several strong entries in the S.P.A. this year and if the Blues succeed in entering the third round they will probably run up against a real test. At that they may receive a surprise package when they step out onto the ice to-morrow. This Aurora outfit play strenuous hockey and specialize in handing out stiff body checks.

TO THE SOUTH WITH THE TRADE WINDS

Into the romantic West Indies where once swash-buckling pirates worked a lucrative, if bloodthirsty, trade goes a new pioneer of commerce. White hulled steamers of the Canadian National Steamship' West Indies fleet carry hundreds of passengers every Winter into these enchanted isles, now methods in class.

They take to the Indies flour, butter, cheese, rubber goods and other commodities in which Canada now enjoys the bulk of the market. —Photo by C.N.R.

"Personally, I do not feel that the professors are poor here. The trouble is that the right students do not get the right professors. There ought to be a general re-distribution."

Eugenia Watts, II year psychology, felt that people would be likely to disagree on which professors were bad.
"And if private grudges were allowed to triumph some professors would be rat-poisoned," she continued.

"Unless you get back to the medieval system where the students elect their own professors, you must make the best of the present system."

"Certainly there are professors who are so absolutely bad that they send their classes to sleep," Isabel Cleland, graduate of U.C., asserted. "All the same, to malign them in a public notice would only be taken as a joke."

Another fourth year student, who refused to give her name, was convinced that students should certainly have some say in the matter of good and bad professors.

"The faculty has no idea of what the professor's teaching capacity may be, however high his intellectual attainments."

Ha! Ha! Ha! Are You Leffingwell? If Not, Don't Blame Pance

By S. S. Leviathan

THE BLOOMERDER CASE

A Pance Pance Story

"Vi," observed Pance from the depths of his easy-chair, where he lounged as usual sipping the evening Sterno and nibbling tea biscuits. "A fresh case has arrived, a most intriguing case."

"Well," I replied, a trifle absently. "Let's open it. This canned heat loses its kick overnight, almost. Not like the pre-war stuff at all."

"My dear chap!" Pance interrupted, "what are you talking about! I refer, of course, to a fresh case of homicide—paricide, in fact, perhaps—let us sincerely hope so."

Waving aside my apology, he continued, "A most fascinating case, really! An elderly gentleman, one Lincoln J. Leffingwell, is discovered lying flat on his back in a swivel-chair, with a pearl-handled paper knife protruding pointlessly from his appendix. Nearby sits his daughter Lalage, a lively girl, balancing on her finger tips a pearl-handled paper knife, the tip of which is stained with crimson, and laughing merrily, with apparent innocence. On being questioned, the daughter asserts in her babbling way that she didn't know it would corrode it, and that in any case, believe it or not, she was listening for a night-jar. Well, my dear fellow, after all, and allowing for the influence of Shelley, what can one make of a statement like that?"

My possible, though unlikely reply was forestalled by the sudden bursting open of the door and the appearance of a young woman who from her vast verve, I concluded—rightly, as it eventuated—had to be the daughter in question.

"Ha! ha! ha! I'm Leffingwell," was her gay greeting as she threw herself down on a chesterfield and bounced boisterously from it to a chaise longue, meanwhile casually helping herself to the Sterno and a Social Tea.

Somewhat irritated by the extreme informality of her entrance, I replied, with perhaps a trace of frigidity, "So I should judge!"

At once our visitor rose and haughtily demanded, "You are not, I trust, casting aspersions?"

"My dear young lady," I hastened to reply, "permit me to assure you that we are not only not casting aspersions, but not even as Americans. Ha! ha!"

Rather pleased by the graceful wit with which I had avoided an unpleasantness, my pleasure was increased by the hearty chuckle which was Lalage's response to my sally. On looking to Pance for approval, however, I was somewhat taken aback to observe that he seemed, on the contrary, rather depressed. (See the brown study in black and white on page 47, entitled "Depressed Pance: An Irony.") This cold reception of my bon mot I decided to ascribe to the fact that the speech was my third already in this single case, whereas my customary limit is, of course, one speech and a pair of yesses in each volume.

"My father," lifted Lalage, "was at the time of his death seated on the old hair-loom, spinning a yarn, as was his custom each night before retiring with a Fisk . . ."

"Fish!" popped Pance, startled. "Yes, Fish," replied the girl, adding, with a sigh, "Poor father! he's in heaven now, I hope. How he must miss his Fish!"

"Well, if by chance he has not achieved the celestial regions, at least he will be fortunate in not having it with him in the other haven, where it would certainly raise the devil of a stink."

Anticipating a witicism, I was laughing before he had finished, hoping to placate Pance and perhaps to be accorded the privilege of another speech, even though only a dependent clause.

But before Pance could flash a look of gratitude the door opened again, and in burst Markhamwell and Teeth, agitated.

"We sure thought you'd give us the slip this time!" exclaimed Teeth with his usual hearty vulgarity.

"I was just telling Mr. Pance how my father died. He was reposing," she continued, "in a gentle slumber on the threshold of the front door, having just returned from a rather convivial Revivalist Reunion. Raising his head to my knee—my right knee . . ."

She had raised her slights, blushing with inborn delicacy, to a point a little below the thigh, when suddenly she uttered a terrific scream, rushed to the door, flung it open, and was gone.

Teeth was out at once in hot pursuit, but it was morning before he returned.

I confess I fell asleep a few hours before daybreak, while Pance purred with patient placidity, and Markhamwell paced the room like a caged surveyor.

Just before noon Teeth entered. All except Pance and myself sprang up at once, and Pance was not long in following suit.

When I awoke, a trifle befogged with sleep, Teeth was saying, "Mr. Pance . . ."

"What?" exclaimed Pance incredulously, "you don't mean to say that here, in my apartment . . ."

"Mr. Pance . . ." repeated Teeth, but Pance again interrupted.

"Teeth," he said, "I fear me I pulled a bloomer last night!"

"Aha!" retorted Teeth coarsely, "That must be a rough party you was at!"

the two Hon visitors on the paper. "The next war will undoubtedly be fought in the air and in the chemical laboratory, and so we would only be throwing away a traditional part of our national furniture by discarding all expenditures for defence. The situation for preventing war could not be worse and might be immeasurably better by this step."

Major-General J. H. MacBrien, the other guest speaker, in opposing the motion showed that the United States had broken the Munroe Doctrine on occasions and that our best defence was to have a militia nucleus around which the nation could hold its head high. Some force is necessary to protect our interests abroad and as wars are due to economic conditions as our trade expands, we will need greater defence.

"The only nation that would attack Canada, and it is very slight, is the United States, in which case Canada would be destroyed without troops even entering the borders," stated L. Tarshis, University College, first speaker on the paper for the affirmative. "Our money, which goes for national defence, could be much better used in other departments such as agriculture, health, justice or education. Whereas Britain and the U.S. spend 14 and 16% of their expenditures on national defence, we can be thankful that Canada spends the lowest proportion of any large country."

"By national defence we have a striking force in embryo and we would be showing signs of decadence because any state which does not depend on national defence invites invasion or depends on the help of another," stated G. E. Beament, Victoria College, first speaker of the negative.

"It is up to Canada to set an example for the rest of the world to follow by renouncing all arms," said E. Lautenslager, Victoria College, second affirmative speaker.

"It is an impossible thing to have some nations armed and others unarmed and on that account disarmament is not feasible," said J. G. Gibson, Victoria College, the final speaker on the paper. "A small expenditure to maintain national defence does not mean a defence of militarism and we are duty bound to be able to defend right."

OHIO PROFESSOR GETS COLD FEET

He took off his coat, although the temperature stood at freezing, and prepared to push down the door. Ten minutes of serious pushing had practically no effect on the door.

Dr. Paddock was beginning to despair. Chances of rescue looked pretty slim. Suddenly the door was opened by a chance passer-by and Dr. Paddock was freed from his cold dungeon as suddenly as he was imprisoned. "It was mighty cold in there," Dr. Paddock said when he got out.

O.C.E. DECLARES FOR BILINGUALISM

"Canada being a bilingual country, it is every English-Canadian's duty to learn French," said Miss Noble. "Canada owes its heritage to France and to England, and it is up to the Canadian people to learn about both heritages and assimilate them."

"Ontario's prospects in achieving this aim are great. If the young teachers have such a lofty ambition, the pupils in Ontario will naturally reap the benefits."

The members conversed in French for an hour or so, discoursing on the topics of the day.

The French Club is very fortunate in having a large number of French-Canadians, most of them graduates of Ottawa University, to co-operate and help the other students.

Pance frowned wearily. "Teeth," he said, "my good fellow, don't you know that that rude joke appeared in College Humidor in April 1927?"

And he sank sadly into his easy-chair, disheartened by his first failure. As for me, bursting as I was with words, I dared not venture on even a conjunction, so Stygian was his gloom.

So we turned to the welcome warmth of Sterno, and ere long another case was at an end.

STUDENTS IGNORE HOUSE CHECKROOM

"After the cloakroom has closed in the evening, people may leave their belongings at the Hall Porter's desk. We have been troubled with this business for the last ten years."

"The main trouble, of course, is that the cloakroom is in the wrong place. There are often cases of theft reported when the coats really are not stolen. Last night a fellow came to us and reported the loss of his coat. Feeling very Christian-like, I offered him my own. Shortly after he had left we found the coat—he had hung it in a different place than he reported and had forgotten just where.

"There is not as much coat stealing in Hart House as in the other buildings," the Warden asserted.

MEOS STUDENT INJURED, CONCUSSION ONLY FAIR

William Fowler, Meds '33, was struck by an auto on Hoskin Ave. near Hart House at six o'clock last night and removed to the General Hospital. He is suffering from cuts and bruises about the head and face. Hospital authorities last night said that it was impossible to tell as yet whether he was suffering from a fractured skull. At a late hour last night his condition was "only fair."

Old Veteran Dies After Long Illness

One of the oldest servants of the University passed away at noon yesterday when Robert Proudfoot, of the University Police, succumbed to a cancer of the lung which had confined him to his bed for the last eight months.

"Bob", as he was known to his many friends, was one of the "Old Contemptibles" of the British Army, a veteran of the South African War, and served in the Great War from early in '14 to the end. About six years ago he joined the University's staff of police, to which he was attached until forced to resign last March from the illness which finally resulted in his death. He leaves a wife and two children, both under age.

A military funeral will take place at Prospect Cemetery at 3.30 to-morrow. Rev. John Inkster and Rev. F. J. Moore of Hart House Chapel, will take part in the service.

ANTIQUATED IDEAS VIE WITH MODERN

Philosophers Are Learnedly Ignorant, States Dr. C. S. Brett

ASTRONOMY DISCUSSED

"In Siam they use sea-ficars for hurrying to keep an engagement, instead of motor cars," stated R. C. Jacobson, '30, at the regular meeting of the M. & P. Society yesterday afternoon. "They travel by canals, and if they collide when they are bringing produce to market, they smile and wave at each other—imagine an American like that in a collision."

"Incidentally," he added, "the women there paddle their own canoes." Street cars in Siam were electric when horse cars were still used in America, and talkies have been taken for granted now for a long time. Strange mixtures of the antiquated and modern were shown in the lantern illustrations: one ancient temple door of mosaic-work and carved mother-of-pearl was topped with an electric light.

"The word 'Metaphysics'," said Dr. G. S. Brett, head of the Department of Philosophy, "came into existence, when the last works of Aristotle were brought to light, and handed to a lawyer to set in order, with the annotation 'read this when you finish your physics'." From this Greek phrase was derived our word 'metaphysics'.

Dr. Brett discussed the aspects of interest existing in mathematics and physics on the side of philosophy, and the point of contact between these. (Continued on Page 4)

Students Have No Comeback Against Unpopular Professors

Dr. Wallace Disgusted at Harvard Practice of Rating Professors

FREE CHOICE IMPRACTICAL

Advises Students to "Season Your Righteousness with a Little Charity"

"In the choice of professors, the estimate of older members of the student body is not likely to be astray," was the opinion of Dr. M. W. Wallace, principal, when interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday. "Criticism is an excellent corrective measure," he continued, "and I am heartily in favour of it. I should like every student to attend whatever lectures he likes, but—" the principal modified his statement—"a system of free choice would not be practical, as it would upset the present arrangement of group study."

In Germany, he admitted, students have much more liberty in deciding what professors to study under, but the reason is that "the German university is more like a graduate school, and therefore the students are much more mature."

According to Dr. Wallace, Toronto has a pretty nearly perfect system. "Naturally," he said, "certain professors are less satisfactory than others, because human beings vary. I believe that now, however, we have much less incompetence than ever before, and many young men of promise are on the staff."

"Moreover," he continued, "as far as students are concerned a minimum of pressure is put on attendance. In the United States, on the other hand, if you don't attend 85 per cent of the lectures, you are dropped, whereas Toronto students probably attend more than 85 per cent without compulsion! The only roll I ever call is occasionally among first year people, to get acquainted with them and to moderate their intoxication with freedom—something quite natural in itself."

Dr. Wallace called himself sufficient. (Continued on Page 4)

Action Against Unpopular Professors not Possible in Toronto

COMPLAINING NOT ENOUGH

German Professors Chosen for Scholastic Rather Than Teaching Value

That no definite action could be taken by the student body at Toronto against unpopular professors, was the opinion of Mr. Victor Lange, who is doing graduate work in English. Students in Germany can express their rebellious attitude towards a professor by boycotting his lectures, or else by attending and disturbing the general peace by scraping their feet on the floor, by stamping, or otherwise "kicking up." This sometimes does result in the desired resignation.

But university conditions in Germany are completely different from those in Toronto. Attendance or non-attendance to lectures is voluntary; so that if a professor is sound scholastically, or if he adopts a humorous attitude towards his subject, his lectures are well attended. On the other hand, if a professor has a regular attendance of one or two students, he can settle the question of his desirability as a professor at that university in only one way.

Professors in Germany are appointed by the faculty and only through the consent of the majority. Mr. Lange gave as an example of active agitation the case of a professor at Jena, who was appointed by the Minister of Education against the approval of the faculty and of the students. He was a national socialist, and was strongly objected to for his partial and prejudiced attitude. The students rose in revolt, held meetings at which various speakers harangued against his appointment, and very decidedly expressed their antipathy.

"As a rule," said Mr. Lange, "our profs are good scholars and bad teachers or good teachers and bad scholars." (Continued on Page 4)

Joe Breen To Continue At Western University

Joe Breen, coach of the University of Western Ontario Mustangs, definitely stated to "The Varsity" in an interview yesterday that he would not coach the U. of T. team next year. He further stated that the fact that he has been eminently satisfied with his position at Western had precluded any chance of his accepting the coaching position at Varsity.

BILINGUALISM NOT DEEMED AN ASSET

Idea of Learning to Speak French is Considered Impractical

SCHOOL SYSTEM EFFICIENT

"Every Canadian ought to be able to read French and appreciate the contribution of the French people toward our heritage," Professor H. E. Ford, Head of the French Department of Victoria College said when asked if he agreed with the attitude of the French Club of the Ontario College of Education toward bilingualism as outlined in yesterday's issue of "The Varsity." "The idea that we can all learn to speak French, however, is thoroughly impractical."

Professor R. K. Hicks, Head of the French Department of Trinity College, when interviewed on the same subject, said, "Theoretically the idea of speaking both French and English is all right, but under the present school system in Ontario you can't teach people to speak French. All you can do is give them a reading knowledge of the language and teach them to understand it when they hear it spoken."

"The consensus of opinion seems to be that bilingualism is a drawback," remarked Professor Laflamme of the French Department of University College when asked his opinion on the subject. "Professor Osborne of Manitoba has said that bilingualism would be an asset for Canada and I believe that a knowledge of French among English-Canadians would help stabilize Confederation."

LACK OF FUNDS LENGTHENED LIFE OF WORDSWORTH

Supply of Money Exhausted, Wordsworth Returned to England

ESCAPED GUILLOTINE

French Revolution Ruined His Illusions, but Regains Them by Aid of His Sister

"We are too ultra-biographical in our study of poetry," said Professor Irving Babbitt yesterday afternoon in the second of the three Alexander lectures on "Wordsworth and Modern Poetry." These lectures are delivered in Convocation Hall by Dr. Babbitt, the professor of Comparative Literature in Harvard University, who gives his final address this afternoon at five o'clock. Dr. Babbitt maintained that in placing undue emphasis on the life story of the poet, we are inclined too much to lose the true essence of the poem itself.

"During the Revolution, as throughout history," said Dr. Babbitt, "emotional nationalism became the master of emotional internationalism." The implicit faith of Wordsworth in the teachings of Rousseau and his followers was emphasized by the lecturer in explaining the great poet's adherence to the revolutionary forces and his support of the belief in man's natural goodness, all of the evil in life being due to the effects of the institutions of society.

"Wordsworth owed his life to his lack of funds," Dr. Babbitt declared, stating that had his supply of money not become exhausted, Wordsworth would not have returned to England in 1792, and would most likely have suffered the guillotine, along with so many of the Girondists, with whom he was in extreme sympathy.

Dr. Babbitt then told of the spiritual depression which followed Wordsworth's realization after the Reign of Terror that he had been disillusioned, and that Revolutionary France was not the Messianic ideal which he had previously believed in and admired. (Continued on Page 4)

WYCLIFFE HOLD ANNUAL AT HOME

Guests Entertained in New Leonard Library by Hart House String Quartet

MUSICAL PROGRAM ENJOYED

On Wednesday evening the students of Wycliffe College entertained at their annual at-home, which was held in the new Leonard Library, and an inspiring and greatly appreciated program was rendered by the Hart House String Quartet.

Mr. H. R. Perkins, president of the Wycliffe College Literary Society, and Mrs. R. B. McElhenn and Mrs. B. W. Horan, patronesses, received the guests as they entered the library. Members of the faculty and the college council, together with representatives from other colleges, were special guests of the evening, and upwards of two hundred people enjoyed the chamber music, mellowed by the quiet dignity and spaciousness of the building. One of the choicest renditions of the evening was the well-known Andante Cantabile by Tchaikowsky, which was played as an encore.

Following the completion of the program the company were directed to the dining room where, amidst tasteful decorations, a buffet luncheon was served, bringing to a close one of the most successful evenings in the history of the society.

RECOGNIZE NEED OF GEOLOGISTS

Cornerstone of New "Mill" Building Laid by Minister of Mines

PROCEEDINGS ARE CHEERED

The cornerstone of the new "Mill" building, just north of the Mining building, was formally laid yesterday afternoon by Hon. Charles McCrea, Ontario Minister of Mines in the presence of S.P.S. students and members of the engineering faculty. Dr. H. J. Cody, chairman of the Board of Governors, presided.

Mr. McCrea said as he laid the cornerstone that the building, which is costing the Ontario Department of Mines $232,000, was a recognition of the need of men trained in geology, mineralogy and all other branches of mining engineering, in the opening up of mineral areas of Ontario.

"I hope that in the future you will need further equipment for the training of men for Ontario's development of the mining industry."

He paid tribute to the work that university graduates in engineering had already done in opening up Northern Ontario.

At the close of the ceremony the Schoolmen, some standing around the corner of the new building and some leaning out of upper windows of the Mining Building, gave a "Toronto" and a "Tolke Oike".

Choice Cigarettes Compensate For Energetic Bargain-hunting

The Literary Society Executive who are in charge of financing the U.C. Follies, have proved themselves no fools. A certain advertising and publishing agent of this city, quoted them a price for their dance programs. Mr. N. M. Secombe, social director, informed the young man he could get the job done for a considerably lower price. The salesman, who had made inquiries at leading firms, and discovered that their prices were all higher than the one he had quoted, offered to supply every member of the Lit. executive with a package of State Express cigarettes if they could get their price. The executive were successful.

Yesterday saw the entire executive augmented by a number of hopeful tobacco connoisseurs, awaiting the plunder. The unperturbed salesman arrived with a large parcel and proceeded to distribute his wares, displaying as much gusto as the wily directorate.

"I may look gullible," said Mr. Secombe, inhaling the exclusive brand appreciatively, "but I hope I am not a fool."

"A fool!" was the good-humoured reply, "is the last thing I would ever accuse you of being."

WASTE BASKET

Yesterday's papers were filled with the story of a Canadian ex-service man, suddenly the victim of a pulmonary hemorrhage, rushed in an ambulance to the doors of Christie Street Hospital, and refused admission on the grounds that he was a "Class Two" patient with a lung disorder, and as such was barred from treatment under the departmental regulations. Fifteen hours later the man died in the Western Hospital. He was 56 years of age, married, had come out here from England some 20 years ago, and had joined up at the outbreak of war, although over the required age. He had served in France throughout the war, being wounded twice, and finally discharged with a pension due to a disability of the knee.

From June until October of this year he was under observation as a possible tubercular patient at the Christie Street Hospital, being dismissed finally because his lung condition was held not to be a result of his overseas service. Thus he became a "Class Two" patient, under the regulations, and—when he was rushed to the veterans' hospital in a dying condition—he was promptly turned away without so much as a cursory examination by the doctors there.

"If regulations are not to be observed," the medical officer in charge is reported as saying, "we might as well throw them all into the waste basket."

Surrounded by the sanctity of red tape and the conscious piety of departmental regulations, the officer in charge—in common with too many others—does not seem to remember that sixteen years ago men were being deliberately urged, and eventually forced, to shoulder a gun and march off to hell, throwing their good lives into a waste basket from which not all the medical skill in the world would be able to salvage them.

"His tuberculosis was not due to his war service," reported the medicus.

Is it possible that these learned scientific men are willing to endanger their reputations by coming forward and stating that four years spent amid the filth, the shock, and the crawling mire of no-man's land are conducive to a healthy lung condition? Thousands of men who emerged from the waste basket to be discharged from military service as in "A 1" physical condition have since proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that no such thing as an "A 1" physical condition can possibly come out of the stinking cesspool which we call modern warfare.

Time For A Change

Editor, "The Varsity".
Dear Sir:

I agree with Mr. Cochran that the football coaching system needs immediate and instant revision if the University of Toronto is ever to accomplish anything in this particular sport. When one considers that for several years we have always had a junior team either finalists or champions of the Intercollegiate Union, one wonders what happens to this promising material in later years. Is it given a sufficient opportunity to develop or is it relegated to the background because of reasons unknown to those outside the circle? It is strange indeed that such material is allowed year by year to go to waste. Furthermore, it seems queer indeed that the Orphans and intermediates produce such mediocre teams when the interfaculty teams display such a high brand of football. With booters such as Hewitt, Lichty, Willis, Sheehy, etc., it seems strange that the Orphans' weakness in this respect was not remedied especially as

To present, to an undergraduate audience, a play with so little action as Maurice Maeterlinck's "The Intruder" is a deed worthy of "the fool" who "rushes in—". However, evidence was given at the Guild last Wednesday that the fool is not always misguided. The reiteration, by means of which the feeling of suspense is worked up to a tremendous climax, served its purpose, instead of becoming the stupid repetition of dull lines it might have been: the three sisters, like a Greek chorus in the background, heightened the effect of tragedy, which is the very essence of the play.

Mr. Selwyn Dewdney gave a very creditable performance as the old, blind grandfather. Miss Eugenia Watts' voice with its suggestion of minor notes was most effective. Unimportant details like the failure of the candle to extinguish itself at the crucial moment, we pass over with a tolerant smile.

Miss Ruth Haldenby directed this play and did a neat job.

ST. MIKE'S DOWN ST. HILDA'S 24-19 IN BASKETBALL SEMI-FINAL

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

St. Michael's basketballers created quite an upset in the first of the semi-final games for the interfaculty trophy last night. Their 24 to 19 win over St. Hilda's was the first defeat suffered by the Saints this year.

The win was no fluke, either. The Double Blue had a distinct edge all the way, with the possible exception of the last two minutes of play when the Saints scored two quick baskets and had the score at 22 to 19. St. Mike's rallied, however, and were going strong when the whistle blew.

And there are no intercollegiate players on this St. Michael's team, while the Saints forward line is composed of the two girls who subbed on the intercollegiate team in 1929 and 1930. It is rather hard to pick stars on the Double Blue squad, because the team is a very well-balanced one. However, Loretto McGarry and Olive Macklin would probably get the call if stars are to be chosen.

The Saints have an edge on the forward line, with Bea Symons and Sally Ballard turning in very fast games in these positions. It was noticeable that St. Hilda's forwards did not have to work as hard for their baskets as the Double Blue did for theirs, but St. Mike's were more successful at getting the ball through centre.

There was plenty of pep displayed at this game. Eileen Harrison, plucky little St. Mike's defender, drew cheers from the crowd on more than one occasion, when she displayed ability in the tackling line which would do credit to any rugby team.

There was a large turnout of roots, both male and female, at the game. St. Hilda's have always been justly famed for the support their team receives, but teams from other colleges are not always so lucky.

Vic surprised themselves and St.

DOUBLE BLUE WIN FROM ST. HILDA'S

St. Michael's Will Carry Five Point Lead Into Second Semi-Final

LORETTO MCGARRY STARS

St. Hilda's met their first defeat of the season at the hands of St. Michael's last night by a score of 24 to 19. The game was extremely exciting though the Double Blue had the edge throughout. The game started fast and the whole game was very hotly contested. It was not until just before the half-time whistle that St. Mike's were able to gain a three-basket lead, and the score at the interval was 14 to 8. The second half was also very closely contested, but repeated fouls made the playing less interesting. Towards the end of the game St. Hilda's staged a comeback which almost won the game for them, but were unable to make up the eight-point lead which St. Mike's had at the time. Bea Symons was put off for three personals and two technicals near the middle of the second half, and there were others who just escaped the same penalty. On the St. Mike's team, Olive Macklin and Victoria Quinlan shared the forward honours, and Loretto McGarry and Marion Darte stood out on the defence. Sally Ballard showed very good form on the Saints' forward line, while Gwen Murrell-Wright and Isabel Wright worked together very well on their defence. The teams:

St. Michael's—Olive Macklin (4), Victoria Quinlan (11), Helen Darte (4), forwards; Loretto McGarry, Marion Darte, Eileen Harrison, defence; Pauline Bondy, Evelyn Scully, subs.

St. Hilda's—Bea Symons (11), Sally Ballard (6), Ruth Harrison (2), forwards; Fran Crooks, Gwen Murrell-Wright, Isabel Wright, defence; Margot Thompson, Naomi Slater, Margaret Lambie, subs.

UNBEATEN TEAMS CLASH FOR TROPHY

Meds Meet School in First of Finals for Eckhardt Cup

The interfaculty water polo schedule came to a close yesterday afternoon with Jr. U.C. Sr. S.P.S. and Jr. Meds as group winners. All of these teams went through their schedule without a defeat.

The finals will be played Monday, Wednesday and Friday of next week at five o'clock each day. Jr. U.C. drew a bye and will meet the winner of the Jr. Meds-Sr. School tilt of Monday in a two-game series with goals to count on Wednesday and Friday. The winners of Monday's game is favoured to win the Eckhardt cup, but Junior U.C. may prove to be a black pony.

Both Jr. Meds and Sr. School have strong teams, with the Engineers having practically the same team that won the cup last year; this should be the closest game of the year and the best.

Mike's both by defeating the Double Blue 23-7 in their baseball game last night. After the strength both teams showed in their first encounter it was thought that there would be some interesting games this year.

The Vic sluggers displayed great form—and garnered ten runs in the first inning. There were also a large number of walks issued which slowed up the game considerably.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By T. A. F.

Frank Sullivan's Blue juniors are not taking on any easy marks when they meet Aurora to-night in the second round of the S.P.A. series. The visitors looked good in their 7 to 1 defeat of Pickering College last week and Varsity will have to step in prepared to take some hard knocks before the game is over. Although as a matter of fact it is impossible to estimate the strength of a team from these pre-season games, the locals have shown considerable promise of developing into a squad comparable to last year's Big Four champions. Sullivan has certainly not been hampered by scarcity of material. In fact the competition for places is so keen that a large squad is still being carried, fourteen getting a chance to show their wares to-night. In young Jackie May, late of U.C.C., the team has a real pivot man and Cunningham and Hendry of last year's outfit with several newcomers, are also showing good form. If the Blues win to-night they will likely face Gene Fraser's Niagara Falls team in the third round next week.

Cold weather or no cold weather, we for one are not going to pass up the Tigers-Beaches battle at the Stadium to-morrow. We advise anyone else who wants to see some real football to borrow a coonskin and the money for a bleacher seat, and turn out also. Besides being probably the last senior game Toronto will see this season, the Beachers are determined that they are going to pull a surprise and trim the Tigers. With all due respect to Reeves, McKenzie and Company, however, we don't think they can do it. Mike Rodden's man-eaters will be at full strength for the first time in six weeks, Cox, Rohmer and the one and only Brian Timmis having emerged from the infirmary. This time the East-enders have no "Red" Moores or "Yip" Posters on their line-up as they did in 1927 when they downed the Yellow and Black here. One thing they have got, of the youthful Ab Box. Sixty yard punts are nothing to this boy however, is one of the best kickers in senior football in the person when he is going right and the Tiger halves may find trouble in holding on to his spirals to-morrow. In any case there should be a real struggle and with rugby dope always uncertain several things may happen, among them a Beach victory.

Group winners in the interfaculty water polo league have been declared and the playoffs will take place next week. Junior Meds and Senior School will meet on Monday at five o'clock in the semi-final, the winner to face Junior U.C. in a two-game series for the Eckhardt Cup. These three teams experienced little difficulty in winning their groups and there should be some keen competition between them before a winner is declared. U.C. will be hard to down, Coach George Spence having turned out a smooth squad which has shown good combination all season.

Much Promising Material from Which to Choose the Team

FOURTEEN WITH SQUAD

To-night at the Arena Gardens the Varsity juniors hope to continue their march toward the S.P.A. trophy at the expense of Aurora. The Aurora team are keyed up to take a fall out of the students, so that an air-tight game should result.

More promising and experienced material turned out for the under age team this year than ever before, boys from all points of the province trying for places. After careful watching and no little worry, Coach Sullivan succeeded in cutting his squad down to the fourteen men who will play to-night.

Haddad and Shipp will share the goal tending duties. White, a fine defence player, was painfully cut in practice and will likely be unable to play. Donovan of U.T.S., Lynch and Dickinson, however, will undoubtedly give a fine account of themselves on the defence.

The juniors certainly have two fine well balanced forward lines. Cunningham at centre, and Hendry at right of last year's team, along with McPherson, a neat left wing player from Bloor Collegiate, will likely start on the attack.

The second line, is equally experienced, and finished. Little Jackie May, U.C.C. star, leads the attack, and is flanked by Boddington, a fine skater from U.T.S., and Minett.

With all this fine material available, it is expected that Frank Sullivan's juniors will give them all a battle for the Big Four and S.P.A. trophies.

LACROSSE LEAGUE MAY BE FORMED

Annual Tour of Varsity Team Through States Very Successful

MONTREAL TO FIELD TEAM

Lacrosse enthusiasts will be glad to hear that there is a possibility of an intercollegiate league being formed. The executive is busy on the details now and in a few days hope to be in a position to make an announcement. Supporters of Canada's national game feel that the formation of such a league would fill a long-felt want in intercollegiate circles.

It is likely that the University of Montreal will be able to field a strong team as the game has a great following in French Canada. McGill is also a likely starter. Queen's will probably enter a team, although nothing definite is known of their intentions. The Varsity team made a very good showing last spring in their annual tour through the States. Intercollegiate games, if the league materializes, will likely take place in the fall, beginning in 1931. All those interested in playing the game and who would like to turn out with the team will be made welcome.

Track Club Holds Annual Meeting and Elections

The annual meeting of the Track Club was held in the Debates Room, Hart House, Wednesday night. The election of officers for 1931 was held and those elected are as follows: Hon. President, Dr. Seiber (acclamation); Hon. Vice-President, S. P. Beggs (acclamation); President, H. A. Williams; Vice-President, J. A. Vila; Secretary, R. O. Standish.

VIC NINE SWAMP ST. MIKE'S OUTFIT

The softball game between Victoria and St. Michael's girls, at Vic men's gym, ended in a score of 23-7 in favour of Vic. Vic got away to a good start with ten runs in the first inning and although they weakened toward the seventh inning, St. Mike's were unable to regain lost ground.

Victoria proved the hardest hitters, and Marion Shaidle, pitcher for St. Mike's, was not in her usual good form. Norma Beecroft and Daisy Quance were outstanding players for Vic, and Marion Shaidle and Ann Quinlan were best for St. Mike's. The number of walks slowed up the game.

CDRESPONDENCE

ful mess we are getting into. We appear to be having the university laid open to public, or at least student criticism. Some people still seem to be feeling nervous as to the outcome.
They are afraid to let inquiry and an attempt to re-constitute the status of existing institutions continue. Let's get back to where we were only a few years ago when those who were "in the know" were able to keep their movements out of the "know" of the general student body. Just why they are so anxious to maintain this precarious state is hard to fathom. There is little, apparently, of personal advantage at stake. But they are being attacked by certain enterprising male students (females are excluded from the open meetings of the S.A.C. It is time for a little militant suffragetteing on that point). They seem to be afraid!

I must confess that so far there is little to tremble about in the manner of attack which the students are adopting. We are hampered by a limited knowledge of the constitution and just what it purports to constitute. Also there is a general apathy resulting from long years of stagnation and ignorance re Student Council proceedings. I suggest that by adopting in part or in full, the procedure of Victoria College Parliament or the old mock parliament of pre-twentieth century University College, would help the situation. In the latter body many of Canada's most distinguished citizens received their training. Where are the poms of yesterday?

To all appearances, present day undergraduates are not of any meaner calibre than those of thirty years ago, but they are unfortunately cramped in their style by their elders. Yours for U.C.

—Oscar Gibson.

Horatius Tells a Gruesome Tale Advice--Avoid the Perfect Male

By Horatius B.A.

My Dear Children:

I advise you to have nothing whatever to do with all these tests for the perfect male (and female) that are going around these days. Once I knew a man who married a girl who ran one hundred yards in 13 sees, but she ran through his bank roll of 100,000 berries in two years, so he divorced her and married a girl who scored 99.5 per cent. in the home management test, but she was cold and cheerless, so after she had saved another hundred thousand dollars for him, he divorced her and married another girl who could pass none of the common tests for wifery, but had come fourth in a Miss Hamilton contest, though she was just averagely pretty, and now he is supporting three children and all three wives on 60 bucks per week, as his pretty wife used up the 100,000 bones on a honeymoon, and a handsome young man who was promoting a golden bubble with hot air from Wall St.

The moral is: judge not that you be not judged.
And once I knew a prohibition agent who roamed the hills at dawn with a camera in search of stiffs. He found several and grew rich on his commissions.

The moral is that it is the early bird that catches the worm.

Yours very truly,

Horatius B.A.

P.S. Do you remember the contest on stage comic stars we held three However, as the educational value of the university is secondary, we choose our professors for their scholastic

In general, however, it seemed to Mr. Lange that in Toronto complaining about a professor was not enough, and active revolt could take the form only of boycotting his lectures, which, as Mr. Lange admitted, is rather detrimental in a student set on passing his examinations.

question: "If there were a continual replied: "That would be much too drastic, because usually where one

BURWASH RESIDENTS FINED FOR BREAKING RULES OF RESIDENCE

Took Men of Another Faculty into Residence to be "Punished"

LEVY $100 FROM 170 MEN

Perhaps Evidences Some Vic
Liabilities for October
Fracas

That, despite the Caput's ruling that the cost of the affair be levied on the Schoolmen alone, the male students in Victoria College residences, admit certain liabilities for the S.P.S.-Burwash fracas in October, is evidenced by the following letter sent last Friday to Dr. E. W. Wallace, Chancellor of Victoria, and subsequently forwarded for publication in "The Varsity".

Dear Dr. Wallace:

A special meeting of the Victoria College section of the Residence Council was held on November 27th to consider the affair with the students of the Faculty of Applied Science on October 16th.

The members of the Council decided that the action of the students of our Residences in bringing students of another faculty into the Residence for purposes of punishment was contrary to the Residence regulations.

It was decided to impose a fine of $100.00 to be assessed against all of the undergraduates living in the six Victoria College residences, numbering 170 men.

Yours truly,

W. J. Little,
Chairman of Residence Council.

Freshies Fail to Locate Directory Hiding Place

The new Directory has now been out for a week. Has everyone obtained his copy? Apparently not, judging from the good supply remaining in the registry offices, and the query of many freshies, "Where do you get them?"

When accosted by "The Varsity", a co-ed at University College offered a bit of criticism. "Suppose you do not know in what year is the person you seek. Wouldn't it be much handier to have the names listed alphabetically with the year, course, college, address and telephone number opposite each one, as they do at McGill? Just a thought, of course."

PUBLICITY FOR MEN ONLY

"Regarding the correspondent who wrote about 'militant suffragism' in Friday's issue, the man was completely mistaken," declared Miss M. Parkes, secretary-treasurer of the Women's Student Administrative Council. "The Students' Administrative Council that seems to receive all the publicity is the men's council, from which women are naturally excluded. The women have a council of their own and, of course, the Joint Executive is the supreme body consisting of the senior members of the two administrative councils."

"There seem to be a lot of people agitating for things about which they know nothing," stated Miss Reba Willets, president of the Women's Student Administrative Council. "Of course, women can't go to the meetings, open or otherwise, of the men's council, since they have their own organization. Even if 'militant suffragism' were instituted, the women would not care to go to meetings which are for men exclusively."

RADIO MOTION PICTURES

"Information is recorded on our minds as pictures. It is in mind pictures that we remember things that have happened," observed Francis Jenkins, speaking of Television in Convocation Hall. He went on to say that things learned through the eye are better remembered than those learned by other senses. Man's first effort to reproduce thought was in pictures. Later he used the sun to make pictures and called them photographs.

Television is a mere carrier service for pictures. Each one is composed of parallel lines of light and shadow; the more lines into which it is divided the better the picture reproduced.

By this process weather maps have been broadcasted to the navy, which could not be obtained by code.

Dr. Jenkins, the first man to produce photographs by radio, has a studio near Washington. An employee who has been with him for 17 years was selected because Dr. Jenkins noticed that the man put a monkey wrench the right way on a nut.

Next Week is Dead-line
For Biographies of 3T1

"University College and Saint Michael's graduating students are very slow in sending in their autobiographies to the Torontonians Year Book," the editor, Fred Payton, told "The Varsity" Saturday. The other faculties, for the most part, have their facts in.

"So far the autobiographies, with the exception of one or two, have stayed well within the set limits," further stated the editor. "These life stories are very usual and a few contain some very interesting facts."

"All the autobiographies as well as the pictures must be in the hands of the editor next week at the latest," Fred Payton declared.

PREFERS LIVING ACTORS

"That is a hard question to throw at me all at once," answered Edgar Stone, director of the Hart House Theatre, when interviewed by "The Varsity" on Friday afternoon, regarding the possible outcome of the closing of the Princess Theatre.

"It is very regrettable that such a fine house, of so long standing a reputation, should pass out of existence in Toronto," he continued, commenting on the fact that Toronto, being one of the most critical audiences on the North American continent, should prefer the talking pictures to the legitimate stage. Mr. Stone pointed out further that the house had not been successful in the latter years of its existence. The Princess is not wired for talking pictures as is the Royal Alexandra, so that it could produce either a picture or play, as it desired.

Commenting further on this city's preference regarding theatrical amusement, Mr. Stone said, "If there were a musical comedy being produced on Feminine masculinity struck the key note of the U.C. Follies on Friday night. The men all had a yen to be simple, sweet and girlish, costumed to type. Only the fourth year "Oshawa Millionaires" resisted the urge—and they won the shield, having tunelessly demonstrated the laudable effect of fancy on financial depression.

As Ross Johnson, director of the 3T1 skit, put it as he gracefully accepted the trophy: His group had felt that to be funny there was no need to make use of the obscene. (Applause.) In this it fully concurred with the declared policy of Bill Jacoby, program editor and director of the second year skit. (Laughter.)

Dr. M. W. Wallace, Principal of U.C. remarked that he was in a rather serious position, as he was presenting the shield without having seen the skits. In this he had much in common with most of those present, according to subsequent investigation by "The Varsity". Apparently nobody saw the stunts, the water polo, nor the refreshments. At least everyone saw the doorman in his scarlet dressing-gown creation, and the never-failing jovial males who danced together.

"I have been mentioned for the post, but it is the prerogative of the retiring premier to name his successor," stated Hon. George S. Henry, Minister of Highways, when questioned by "The Varsity" as to whether he had been appointed by the caucus to succeed Premier Ferguson.

In regard to the story in Saturday's "Mail and Empire" that he would probably also succeed the present premier as Minister of Education, Mr. Henry said that he was unable to give any information as the appointment to any portfolio requires the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor.

"The Minister of Education is responsible for the external affairs concerning the university, but the internal government is left to the proper officials and not interfered with at all," he replied when questioned as to what responsibilities that department had with the university.

"There has been no thought of interfering with the policy of your paper in any way and the government has never considered it at all," was the answer as to whether "The Varsity" had met with the displeasure of the government.

"All I can tell you is that the caucus did not consider who the next Minister of Education would be," stated Leopold Macaulay, provincial secretary of Ontario, in an interview with "The Varsity".

"Everything that happens at a caucus is supposed to be secret and so there is nothing I can say about what went on."

"There is no special attempt made to obtain graduates for the civil service, but it is not held against them," he said, when asked what attempts were made to place graduates of the university in the civil service. "Of course specially trained graduates are used in the Department of Health and other departments where special university training is needed."

Engineers Will Pay Burwash Hall Damage

First and second years of the School of Practical Science will be forced to assume responsibility for the damages done to Victoria College residence on the 23rd of October, last. In this disturbance much damage was done to Burwash Hall, in the general melee between students of Victoria College and those of the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering.

The finding of the Caput is as follows: "That the amount necessary to cover the damage ($811.77), done to the Residence, Victoria College, on the night of October 23rd be levied on the students in the first and second years of the Faculty of Applied Science."

PUBLIC DO NOT KNOW BIBLE AS YEARS AGO

Mr. Angus of Cambridge Warns Against Extreme Views

BIBLE TWO DISTINCT PARTS

"A talk on the Bible is necessary in this age," Mr. C. F. Angus of Cambridge stated at a meeting in Annesley Hall on Saturday evening, "as the general public are not acquainted with it as people were a generation ago."

Mr. Angus went on to stress the fact that the Bible is in reality not a single book, but two separate collections of books, compiled at different times, written in different languages and by people of different faith. The Old Testament is essentially Jewish and the New Testament Christian.

He advised readers of the Bible to be warned against the two extreme views of fundamentalism and modernism. The second tends to discredit the Bible because of a wrong interpretation of the works of higher criticism and the first stresses to too great an extent its infallibility.

In conclusion Mr. Angus outlined the method of approach we must take to a true reading and interpretation of the Bible. We must have an open mind, an honest intention to take the Bible seriously and a willingness to ask the help of the Holy Spirit, for we must bear in mind the fact that the Bible is a record of man's search for and finding of God.

On Sunday afternoon Mr. Angus resumed his lecture. "The idea that faith and science are opposed, is entirely wrong," he declared at Annesley Hall. "Science advances by faith assumptions, as we must act on sufficient evidence."

"A certain amount of faith in ourselves is necessary. The business world is based on credit, which is faith. When we choose universities we do so by faith. How are we to know who or who does not, poison the student's mind?"

"The parable of life is to move in the right direction," said Mr. Angus, comparing it to a man on a mountain without a guide. "To remain still is fatal."

The speaker expressed the opinion that other religions haven't a patch on Christianity. To him Christian religion is, "Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself."

Faith is man's courage to move to something better in life. He can never be sure it will be an improvement or not. His capacity for faith varies just as his capacity to paint or write poetry.

The meeting was closed by a discussion. Mr. Angus will continue his lectures Monday and Tuesday afternoons in Trinity College Library at five o'clock.

NATURALISTIC MOVE PREVENTS HAPPINESS SAYS IRVING BABBITT

Deplores Tendency to Dwell

Denouncing the primitivistic or "back to nature" movement as tending to arouse melancholy in man rather than happiness, and as being a definite obstacle to the progress of civilization, Professor Irving Babbitt said in Convocation Hall on Friday, "What we need at present is a 'back from nature' movement."

In this lecture, the third and last of a series on "Wordsworth and Modern Poetry", Professor Babbitt summed up his reasons for opposing the naturalistic movement and pointed out what were its effects upon mankind. He was not optimistic about our present situation, speaking at one point of "the patched and ghastly illusion of humanitarian progress" by which we have been deluded since the War.

"We have been developing a tendency in the last hundred years or more," he said, "to look back to beginnings rather than forward to ends." For this tendency he blamed the primitivists, who glorify the "natural man" and denounce the artificiality of civilization and its culture.

Quoting as illustrations two of Wordsworth's poems, Professor Babbitt said that they are "the most advanced expressions of primitivism in English literature," and that "lines more subversive of culture have never been written."

"Primitivism," he said, "is in its very essence hostile to culture."

Professor Babbitt compared the mental processes of the primitivists with those of the followers of other movements, particularly the Christian, Classical and Buddhist thinkers, much to the discredit of the former. He im-

FRENCH IN PROFUSION

The annual series of free lectures given in West Hall, University College, will begin next Thursday, Dec. 7, at five p.m. Principal Wallace, speaking on "The Academic Life", will treat his subject from the viewpoint of the person who devotes himself to academic studies, and not academic life in general. It is interesting to note that this is the first time the Principal has lectured in these series.

Professor W. J. Alexander, a well-known figure in university circles, will also give an address. M. B. DeBray has chosen as his subject "Georges Courteline", who was famous for his plays about everyday life. The lecture of R. Finch on "The Little Theatre in Paris", will contain the latest information, as Mr. Finch is in constant communication with them. E. K. Brown will speak on "The French Reputation of Matthew Arnold". The addresses of A. K. Laflamme and M. B. DeBray will be given in French, but the fact that four of the six lectures in the series deal with French topics is quite accidental.

RENAISSANCE

Last week Ibsen had his day in Toronto's little theatre when the players of Hart House presented "Peer Gynt" as their hundredth production. Hart House Theatre began its activities under Roy Mitchell in 1919, and it has thus taken eleven years to achieve the century mark in productions. The event would not be worthy of more than a passing comment were it not for the fact that on four of the six nights of "Peer Gynt" the players were appearing before capacity houses with the all-too-unfamiliar "Standing Room Only" sign gracing the box office.

The Hart House production of the Ibsen poetic drama was significant. It was significant not only because it was an audacious choice; not only because it had received a bold and original treatment at the hands of the Director, Edgar Stone; not only because of capable—and, in one or two cases—brilliant performances by the players. It was significant, even important, because it marked the renaissance of Hart House Theatre. Popular support, it seems safe to conclude from last week's success, has returned to the little theatre on Queen's Park!

There is no gainsaying the fact that the past three or four years have been lean ones for those interested in the little theatre movement in Toronto. Hart House, as one of the continent's leading little theatres, has been in the doldrums. The causes are too many, too involved, and too moot to discuss here. But there were many who despaired of seeing a return of the golden days of the first fine care-less rapture when an able and enthusiastic group of amateurs was doing thrilling and important things in the humming workshop under the quadrangle of Hart House. Production after production met with pitifully small houses, until it seemed impossible for the Theatre to carry on financially even for one more season. There were rumors a year ago this fall that the Syndics would not appoint another director, and that the doors would have to be closed.

It was then that the present director was thrust into the breach. Four productions marked the ensuing 1929-30 season. They were not exciting productions; they were done with obvious, and necessary, attempts to save money; and there was no noticeable picking up in popular interest. Yet the Syndics were evidently satisfied that the Theatre was back on the right road again, because this fall Mr. Stone was announced as carrying on with a full three-year contract.

"Dr. Knock" was the first production of the current season. From the experimental point of view, it was an obvious advance over anything done last year. Its appearance was signalized by two things: the return of the subscription list and the return of several excellent players who had deserted the boards several years ago. There was no doubt that—backstage, at least—the old spirit was beginning to make itself felt again.

Then came the century production. And now the old spirit appears to have returned to the audience side of the footlights as well. To behold the spectacle of people turned away from the box office empty handed on Wednesday morning, simply because the house—standing room and all—was completely sold out for the rest of the week, was a new and inspiring experience.

"Peer Gynt" was honestly and sincerely done on the part of director, players, and technicians. There can be no more doubt as to the difficulty of the piece than there can be regarding the striking quality of the production. Hart House Theatre is itself again, the public appears to have decided. It must be more than a flash in the pan; it must be, in the fullest sense of the word, a renaissance. "Popular" support for the little theatre must of necessity mean the support of a small and discriminating public. But a public of two thousand four hundred people is large enough to make each recurring Hart House production as great a success as "Peer Gynt".

And with the rebirth of Hart House Theatre, we shall probably see a gradual falling off in the number of independent amateur groups which have sprung up for experimental dramatic work during the lean years, and a gradual pooling of resources and talent to put Toronto's little theatre back on the proud pinnacle of pre-eminence it once enjoyed.

Drama in French

The feature of to-night's meeting of the Victoria College French Club will be a one-act play "On Ne Saurait Penser a Tout", by Alfred de Musset. The scene of this clever comedy is laid on the country estate of a French countess of the eighteenth century, and the manners and modes of an earlier age enhances its sparkling dialogue.

Under the direction of Mademoiselle Reize, herself an experienced actress and producer, the cast have well caught the spirit of this light-hearted play, and students of French, whether members of the club or not, are urged to be present and are assured of an enjoyable evening.

The cast includes Constance Lewis, Kathleen Russell, Marjorie South, Dorothy Rudolph and Mildred Pelan. There are, undoubtedly, other inducements which might be mentioned, but—"On Ne Saurait Penser a Tout". Come, bring your friends, and see for yourself.

Friday Afternoon Recital

An enthusiastic audience heard Miss Enid Gray, soprano, soloist of Bloor St. United Church, with Mr. Weldon Kilburn at the piano, give a diverse and quite ambitious program on Friday afternoon. Miss Gray, one of the cleverest of Toronto's younger sopranos, has just completed an engagement at the Canadian Pacific Banff summer festival.

Gifted with a pleasing voice of pure quality, particularly in the middle register, the two Italian numbers, Caccini's Amarilli and Caldara's Selve Amiche seemed to this writer as the most successful. Schubert, Brahms and the well-known Widmung of Schumann, provided a well balanced and representative classical group.

Massenet's Il est doux is exceedingly difficult, Debussy's Romance is charming and Foudrain's Papillon is chiefly interesting for its scintillating piano accompaniment. Four clever songs from the modern English school received a great reception.

Mr. Weldon Kilburn should be commended for his excellent work at the piano in a very difficult program.

CHAMPUS CAT

What has become of Gaspard McGuffey? His strange disappearance is at last explained by the following episode received by "The Varsity" to-day from Russia. The letter, it is learned, was smuggled across the Soviet border concealed in the tresses of an itinerant Cossack fish peddler's beard. This accounts for the fishy smell of to-day's paper.

Had its contents been discovered one of the greatest political plots in history would have been nipped in the bud.

Grad Speaks

Editor, "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:

How long are the graduates to be fed up on "hopes of winning the championship", only to see the chance thrown away by lack of coaching. Surely we who travel miles to see the games and sacrifice days of remuneration to encourage the team have a right to ask what is wrong. We all are growing sick of excuses.

The athletic body has the money, but does not act. The time will come when the alumni will be sick of the business and cease attending. Stir the sleepy, self-satisfied body up. We have as good men as any university. Why not give them a chance.

One of thousands of the same frame of mind,

By W. A. L.

Although St. Michael's will carry a five-point lead into the second of the semi-finals against St. Hilda's to-night, they will have a battle royal on their hands before the winner of the round is decided.

Five points is a slim lead indeed when a team like St. Hilda's is concerned. However, the Double Blue played an excellent game in the first semi-final on Thursday night, and if they can repeat should be able to take the game and round.

None of their shots were of the fluke variety, and most of them were made from close in. The defence played a steady game, and showed surprising strength at taking the ball through the first line of defence.

STAGE PEPPY FINISH TO FLOP WESTENDERS

Junior Basketeers Trained Y
Until Game's Last Minutes

CARROLL'S WINNING POINT

After trailing West End Y for practically the whole game Varsity's junior basketball team staged a whirlwind finish in the last three minutes of play to win their league game with the West Enders on Saturday night by the score of 20-19.

With three minutes to play, Varsity were trailing 18-15. Then the fireworks started. After Douglas had netted a basket to bring the Blue and White within three points of their opponents, Rooke sank a long shot that went through without touching the netting to put the count at 18-17. With only forty seconds to go, Himel was given a free throw which he promptly scored to tie the score. At the jump, a foul was given to Carroll which he netted to put Varsity up for the first time in the game and on the next jump fouls were handed out to both teams. A falter meant either a tie game or a loss, but Carroll sank his gift, as did Cameron for West End, and the whistle blew giving Varsity a one-point victory.

In the first half Varsity were unable to work the ball under the basket in an attempt to score and as a result started the second half trailing by a 12-6 count. However, in the last period, the Blues were able to penetrate the West End defence and gradually brought down the lead. Varsity's combination was much better than their opponents', but it did them no good until they were able to work the ball in for a shot. West End had much the better of the play in the first period, but Varsity's whirlwind finish gave them the margin of victory.

U. of T.—Forwards, Douglas (4), Shugar (2); centre, Hahn; defence, Carroll (1), Himel (3); subs, Rooke (5), Magwood (3), Dennis (2), Black, Jennett, Cahoon.

West End Y—Forwards, MacMillan (5), Cockburn (4); centre, O'Hara (2); defence, Drummond (2), Patterson; subs, Lobb (3), Murchie, Potts (1), Lansitie (1), Brownlie, Cameron (1), McGowan.

must be admitted they were not playing up to their usual form, especially on the forward line. St. Hilda's have an exceptionally fast and tricky line, and Sally Ballard, the Saints' diminutive forwards, has a particularly nice close-in shot.

Their defence did not turn in a very impressive game the other night, but after a session with their coach, Miss Athol Wesley, may be counted upon to be at their best—or better.

Anyway, to-night's game should be a howling success—especially if the St. Mike's rooters are out again in force.

P.S.—After the interfaculty basketball season is over, we are going to start a particularly objectionable campaign about eligibility—or lack of it.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By A. C. C.

Did you brave the wintry blast to see Balmy Beach blast the championship aspirations of the Hamilton Tigers last Saturday at the U. of T. Stadium? Despite a modest snow-storm and a biting wind, it was a great exhibition of football and we are glad we put on our heavies to watch the Eastern Canadian final. (There was an electric heater in the closed-in press-box.)

Points count in rugby and it was because the Beaches were able to collect eight of them to the Tigers' five that they will be playing the Regina Rough Riders next Saturday for the Canadian title. Many people left Ross Workman's rugby emporium with the impression that the better team lost, even on the day's play.

How do we get that way? Well, the Tigers just moved the yardsticks 17 times to the Beaches' once. In the third period, down six points, they marched right down the field for a touchdown after moving the yardsticks five successive times. Again they duplicated this feat, but did not make the major score. On the line the Beaches were completely outplayed by a crippled squad of veterans. It was only the spectacular booting of the youthful Ab Box that kept them in the picture.

Errors in judgment on the part of the Tiger quarter cost him team at least a tie. With "Pep" Leadley, the best drop kicker in Canadian football on the backfield, he called for an onside kick or attempted to make yards when the Tigers were in a position to score the needed three points.

Frank Sullivan's junior sextet continued their triumphant march in the S.P.A. series when they eliminated Aurora last Friday night in a decisive 8 to 2 win. Cunningham, at centre, performed in stellar fashion offensively, scoring three of the team's goals unassisted.

The Varsity junior basketball team just reversed their tactics when they defeated West End "Y" 20 to 19 Saturday night. When they played Central "Y" they led all the way only to be nosed out in the dying moments of the game 30-29. But Saturday night they trailed West End until the last three minutes of the struggle. Then they staged a brilliant come-back to win 20-19.

VARSVITY ELIMINATES JUNIOR AURORA TEAM

Advance into Third Round by Virtue of Their 8-2 Victory

SUPERIOR DEFENSIVE WORK

Continuing their quest for the S.P.A. title, Varsity juniors added another to their list of victims when they trimmed Aurora juniors 8-2 at the Arena Gardens on Friday night, and thereby advanced into the third round of the pre-season elimination series. Superior defensive work and a speedy attack gave the Blue team the margin of victory, and they held the upper hand throughout. The Varsity squad appeared to be in good condition, and their skating left nothing to be desired, but they lack finish in their passing and in their work around the nets.

The Collegians started off with a rush, and scored enough goals in the first five minutes to win the contest. Cunningham broke away to score in the first minute, and repeated his performance 2 minutes later. Aurora seemed disorganized and Jimmy Macpherson took this opportunity to run in the third counter. The Yonge Street team finally came to life and began to force the play. Smart, their stellar defence man, capped a nice rush by beating Shipp for their first score. Hendry had several dangerous rushes, but Gifford cleared.

The Blue regulars started the second canto with a fast attack and Hendry sent in a deadly shot on Cunningham's pass, but Gifford again out-guessed him. Donovan, the big Blue defence man, put Varsity five up when he picked the corner after a nice solo rush. Varsity pressed hard, but their attack was mostly individual; Cunningham finally dented the net for his third counter when he fooled the Aurora defence. Aurora scored again on a combination effort, and Foote flipped Sinclair's pass into the net. Hendry added one more to the Varsity total by banging in the rebound on Kennedy's shot.

The losers fought back hard in the final period, and though they failed to score, they held the winners to one goal. Donovan's shot after Macpherson's pass, almost beat Gifford, and the play became disorganized. Hodgson broke up what promised to be a glorified game of shinny when he scored from a scramble in front of the Aurora nets. The suburban squad, urged on by a large contingent of their supporters, tried furiously to register another counter, but the Blue defence was too strong.

Smart and Scott put up a good game on the Aurora defence, and their rushes were dangerous. Rac, Hodder, and Foote were the pick of the forwards. Lynch and Donovan made a stone wall in front of Shipp and Haddad, who alternated in the nets for Varsity. Cunningham was the best forward on the ice, and led the Blue and White attack. Hendry, May, and Macpherson showed flashes of the form Coach Frank Sullivan will need to retain the O.H.A. title.

have little fear of being spied upon.

We have few articles of furniture, but manage to keep as warm and comfortable after a fashion, as one could wish. We eat off our little stove and sleep upon a small bed of coal stolen bit by bit from the government yards. But it is soft coal, and, for Russia, not too bad.

My associate Vassili, whom I call Vassiline for short, (He is really Lord Fattigbam of the British Intelligence Service), is staying with me now, so it is not too lonesome.

We have just finished our supper of Smoked Horse, cold Mustard Plaster, (a rare delicacy among the Russians), and a small jug of very fair vodka.

As we have no tobacco we have to fill our pipes with fine shreds of old rubber boots purloined at great risk from bodies of Polish spies executed in the public square.

Food is very scarce here now and the people stand in long queues waiting for the government stores to open. One queue stood thus for two weeks until they froze solid. They are still there. A queuerous result of the present regime.

Winter is setting in now and it is very cold. The wind blows violently all the time and as there are no traffic lights here it blows up and down and across streets in all directions at once.

Just now we are inactive and feel very restless to be up and doing, but we can only sit and wait for word from our Chief.

Vassili and I had plotted to blow up the Moscow Sewer System, but abandoned the project when we realized that no one might notice the upheaval. These Russians are so indifferent to such things. Besides only yesterday we discovered that the Imperial government under the late Czar had secretly sold the sewers to the Turkish government for Armenian Relief work. Another example of their corrupt political administration.

Provided we are not discovered and executed before our next letter you will hear from us again shortly. But in case we are shot ask father to give Uncle Ben the enclosed recipe for the way to add wood alcohol to the beer as the Russians do in their Vodka. It's great stuff.

—Gaspard McGuffey.

NATURALISTIC MOVE PREVENTS HAPPINESS

plied that the primitivists were mentally lazy, allowing a "pantheistic reverie," a "wise passiveness," to take the place of strenuous mental effort.

"Emotionalism as a substitute for thought," he said, "is implied at least in Wordsworth's definition of poetry as a 'spontaneous overflow of feelings'."

After criticizing Wordsworth's philosophy, the lecturer asked, "Why not enjoy Tintern Abbey (the most primitivistic in spirit of Wordsworth's poems), as poetry, without concerning oneself about its value as philosophy? The answer bears upon the great problem of happiness. The two chief religions of the world, Christianity and Buddhism, look upon happiness not as a wise passiveness, but as a wise strenuousness. They condemn the spiritual idler."

The professor stressed the fact that mediaeval Christians held spiritual sloth and lethargy to be a cause of melancholy, and considered it a sin. "While Buddhism," he said, "considers spiritual indolence as the basis of everything that is deleterious."

The conclusion to be drawn from Professor Babbitt's statements were that the reading of such poems as Tintern Abbey, and the absorption of their philosophy, would produce melancholy in the reader and encourage mental sloth, tending to make him discontented with the progress of civilization and the culture it has built up.

Dealing with the teachings of the primitivists, Professor Babbitt poked fun at some of their sayings. He quoted Wordsworth as saying that a poet "should have fellow-feeling with idiots, and even be able to find in them something of sublimity."

Quoting from the poem "Peter Bell" he said that "Wordsworth, in a revolt from formal decorum, hoped to bestow poetic seriousness upon the long left ear of an ass." He also quoted Coleridge as saying to the ass, "In spite of the world's scorn, I'll call thee brother."

for Hollywood to distribute motion pictures by radio. As yet the largest television pictures are 7 by 8 inches. They can be built up in one fifteen of a second, but the unsolved problem is to be able to remove them in one tenth of a second. The speaker offered a $5,000 reward for the solution of this difficulty which would evolve a new type of motion picture.

Dr. Jenkins declared that he could now reduce the speed of motion pictures 200 times and illustrated this in a very interesting manner with some slow motion films.

A roadhouse near Colorado University has arranged for students to ride in taxis free of charge to dances held there.

TORONTO CRITICIZES THEATRICALS KEENLY

the screen, and an equally good one on the legitimate stage at the same time, the majority would be inclined to patronize the stage production, despite the greater price charged to see it. People want to see flesh and blood in preference to screen presentations, in this class of production. However, on the whole, the talking picture is at present in greater demand by the public. The public is very fickle and is apt to turn to the legitimate stage in a snap.

"Toronto is not a good theatre city in the eyes of the travelling road companies, as it is too critical," continued the director. "Many productions are sent to Toronto first to see how the Toronto public receives them and if they are successful in this city, they are considered profitable enough to travel the country."

"One of the chief reasons, perhaps," continued Mr. Stone, "for the meagre success attributed to some presentations that have visited Toronto is the great expense and loss of time incurred in travelling from one Canadian city to another, due to their distance apart. The cost of production in any case is high, and the return low in comparison."

Mr. Stone concluded by stating that the erection of a new theatre in Toronto depends entirely on the public demand, and if this demand is great enough to warrant the expense and risk incurred in such an undertaking, a new house will in all probability be erected to replace the old Princess; but at present it is very uncertain.

GOVERNMENT DOES NOT INTERFERE IN UNIVERSITY

"If nonsense is printed it will easily expose itself so why make any attempt to suppress it?" was his reply as to whether the university paper should be censored. "I have read about the Board of Governors' threat to withdraw financial support from the paper, but the government has in no way interfered."

Both cabinet members treated the supposed Liberal tendencies of the university lightly and as only an indiscretion of youth which was not to be treated too seriously.

The Perfect Male

Editor, "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:

Re your "A Hundred Points on the Perfect Male", third instalment, in the issue of Wednesday, November 26, division Sportsmaanship, head 10: "Does he beguile taxi fare and expect you to travel the trolley?"

May I suggest that this question is out of keeping with the others in the division? Whereas the first nine questions are impersonal as far as the questioner is concerned, in the tenth you drag in a woman. Now I ask you, why become personal?

Besides, why "beguile"? Doesn't that presuppose a "right" to taxi? And since when is a young lady as of right entitled to such luxury, and "expect you to travel the trolley"? Indeed, young lady, ask yourself when you became entitled to expect anything else.

Head nine points the finger of scorn at the young man who demands "dividends" after spending the evening in a balcony seat of a movie. Is not the tester in ten demanding "dividends" for having conferred the privilege of her company upon the one she is testing? Incidentally it did not cost her anything. May I say I am not trying to justify the "dividend" seeker in number nine. Possibly he needs no justification. Dividends may be dividends, but that depends on one's mental attitude.

The young lady surely would not sell her company, then why expect unusual privileges? And the question itself to my mind suggests that "taxi" is a privilege, not a right. It certainly is not a right.

Judge as thou wouldst be judged.

Notes: A Time-waster

Editor, "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:

Although not usually given to voicing my opinions publicly, recent editorials and articles in your paper have incensed me into giving vent to a few thoughts.

Primarily, I would like to say that I am deeply in sympathy with the opinions that are voiced in regard to the so-called "note-takers". Although enrolled in an affiliated college, I am of necessity taking a number of Arts subjects at the university and it is of these that I wish to make mention.

The majority of these subjects, and I presume there are many others of a similar nature, are delivered absolutely as note taking lectures. In other words, the lecturer merely delivers a lecture which is to be taken down as thoroughly as possible and, at times, this is extremely arduous due to the fact that we are not commercially trained for dictation. No time is allowed at all for discussion, nor is any fact statement referred to; all being given in a "take it or leave it" attitude.

Although only having been a student here since the commencement of this term this type of university work has already given me a great deal of cause for questioning both its usefulness and its apparent waste of time and energy. Why should I, and thousands of others, give up innumerable and valuable hours to scribbling down notes which could easily be given out in printed form at the commencement of the year? By this means one would be assured of having the correct ideas and emphasized points of the lecturer's subject. The time which had previously been given to note-taking, could be devoted either to discussion in the classes or to study. In fact, one could easily add another subject to their curriculum, utilizing this now apparently lost time.

Possibly my criticisms are somewhat stronger than the average student due to the fact that I have been engaged in economic life previous to my returning to studies and that I have learned to realize and appreciate the value of time.

NAUGHTY PERIOD REVIVED ON STAGE BY PLAYERS' GUILD

Congreve's "Way of the World"

This Week

COMEDY OF MANNERS

Modern Stage Methods and Interesting Scenic Effects Introduced

The gay and slightly naughty days of the Stuart Restoration will come to life again when the Players' Guild of University College presents on Friday night of this week upon the boards of Hart House Theatre, Congreve's sparkling comedy of manners, "The Way of the World". This is not only the Guild's first Hart House production, but it is believed to be the first time Congreve's play has ever been done locally. Three performances of this production are being given, there being a matinee and an evening performance on Saturday in addition to the Friday opening.

"Although," according to Edmund Gosse, "a work of consummate wit and stage-craft," "The Way of the World" had the misfortune to be damned by the theatre-going public, when it was originally produced in 1700, because "the great Mr. Congreve" had taken no pains to abate the biting satire with which he had treated the affections and foibles of his day. Congreve withdrew in great disgust from the theatre, and would write no more, although he was still under thirty, and despite the fact that "The Way of the World" was later revived with huge success.

FOREIGN EXPERTS NEEDED BY RUSSIA

Firing-Squads do not Menace
American Technologists Says McGregor

ENGINEERS URGED TO FLEE

"If the five-year plan should fail, it hardly likely that the Soviet politicians would accuse American and other foreign engineers of sabotage in order to clear themselves of all responsibility," said D. M. McGregor of the department of political economy yesterday. "Surely they realize that Russia is in no position to supply her own technological experts. She is too dependent on foreign engineers to take any chances of antagonizing them."

An editorial from Industrial and Engineering Chemistry addressed to the thousand American engineers in Russia and warning them to leave the country before they are confronted by firing squads, was reprinted in yesterday's Globe.

Asked to comment on the official Soviet review of the five-year plan, or piatiletka, which claims that industrialization has made such headway in the Workers' Republic that it may yet be completed in four years instead of five, Mr. McGregor declined to make any definite statement. "We really know little or nothing about Russia," he stated. "The report of a traveller who has seen parts of Russia may be likened to the impressions of this continent gathered by a visitor who has seen certain parts of New York and Chicago. Russia is so immense that it would take years to build up a perfect statistical system. It is easy to cook statistics."

A hundred points may be given on each section and the possible score is 1,000.

REALIZES LIFE AMBITION

Washington State College.—Little Joe Rashkov, a football-minded youngster from Spokane, has hitched his wagon to a star. He longed to be a water-boy for the Washington State eleven. Secretly he nursed a hope that he might dare write to the Cougar coach applying for the position. Then in a burst of daring, he actually wrote out his application.

This is the letter which "Babe" Hollingbery received and cherishes for its childish enthusiasm and sincerity:

My friend coach:

Impressed with the ardor of the young "Jerusalem Tiger," Coach Hollingbery immediately answered and brought about "the best thing that ever happened." BAOMINTON WITH TEA

The U.C. Women's Badminton Club held a novel tea in the auditorium of the Women's Union on Friday afternoon. The guests came prepared to play, and several doubles games were enjoyed before the tea hour, from five to six. Miss Irene Allen, IV U.C., the president of the club, poured. It was rumoured that lists for a tournament to be commenced in the near future are to be posted immediately at U.C. and at the Women's Union.

RECORD CROWD EXPECTED

Beatty Graduated in Law, Played on Seconds for Varsity

E. W. Beatty, President of the C.P.R., will be the guest of honour and chief speaker at the 41st Annual School Dinner to be held in the Great Hall of Hart House to-night. The School dinner is one of the biggest events staged by the Engineering Society of S.P.S. during the season, and every year sees it increase in size and interest. It will be recalled that last year over 500 Schoolmen jammed the Great Hall to hear Dr. J. H. Cody and Col. J. B. McLean. This year, with an increased registration, over 650 are expected to attend.

The speaker is prominent enough to justify this, for Mr. Beatty is rated as one of the greatest after-dinner speakers in America. Some of the well known characteristics he possesses are his business gait, his bachelorhood, his long black stogies and the famous list to starboard of his hat. He is a man of dynamic personality and great physical stamina, spending a great deal of time in his gymnasium in order to keep fit for the strenuous program which he has to fill.

He is a graduate in law and it is interesting to note that he once played for Varsity's Seconds, regretting that he could never make the first team.

PROVIDE POOL FOR GOATS TO PROTECT CITY WATER

University of Utah.—"We have had enough trouble with the cleanliness of the water supply for one year and we do not care to take any more chances of having bacteria added," is the way Chief of Police Joseph Burbridge put it in addressing representatives of the Greek letter fraternities of the campus at a recent meeting.

The Chief, through some unexpected way, found out that a few of the fraternities were contemplating giving their goats a "real" shower by tossing them into the 13th east reservoir.

"I realize that goats must be treated as goats, but I don't believe the entire city should suffer on account of some city schooler's prank. But in order to show you that I am a good sport, I have reserved a special place in the Liberty park pool for you boys to carry out your ducking activities."

Speaker Suffers Sudden Descent As Female Feudsters Air Dissent

As one glanced idly around the "spacious auditorium" of the Union:

—o—
The sleeper in the front row of the government who woke up only to applaud.

—o—
The tasteful blue and white streamers fluttering gently in the caress of a forty-mile gale. The windows flung wide in spite of the 8° weather.

—o—
The Speaker's cap falling off at crucial moments.

—o—
The almost universal interest shown in the gentlemen, or rather gentleman, of the Press.

—o—
The extreme gravity of the economic situation lightened a trifle when the Speaker's chair, plus the Speaker, fell off the platform.

EVIL IS SUICIDAL MAINTAINS ANGUS

True Scientist Can Believe

GOO CANNOT BE DEVIL

Regarding the actual existence of the Absolute, Mr. C. F. Angus, speaking on the subject of "God" in Trinity College Library last night, said that science and philosophy could prove nothing. "But," he added, "you need not think that if you want to be an honest scientist you cannot believe in anything but the atom."

Mr. Angus expressed the belief that man is not entirely fettered by divine will. "If Christian faith be true," he said, "God is always seeking us, interfering with our lives, and at the same time leaving us on our own responsibility."

Developing the history of belief in God, he stated that primitive man was conscious of his own weakness, and pictured God as a superior man—strong, and possibly holy. In the classical age, man began to question the nature of this being, and to ask about his plans for them—was he using them as playthings, was he a devil, or was he wise and good? Mr. Angus denied the possibility of God's being a devil. "Evil," he said, "is suicidal. It is impossible to think of the world as governed by an evil spirit."

Dealing with problems that face men, Mr. Angus said, "People ask—why do men and women perish miserably—why were our best men killed in the war—why are we allowed to make messes of our lives—why does not God do something about all this (Continued on Page 4)

MCGILL WOMEN DEFEAT VARSITY IN DEBATE BY JUDGES' VERDICT

Toronto Women Win
Debate at Queen's

The Toronto women's debating team which met Queen's in Kingston last night made up for the local defeat of the other Toronto team by gaining the decision of both the judges and the house over the Tricolour girls.

The subject was the same as that debated here, Resolved that this house approves of the empire economic policy of Lord Beaverbrook. The Varsity team upheld the affirmative side in Toronto and the negative in Kingston.

Agnes O'Dey and Bernice Venini, both of Loretto College, were the Toronto champions.

Down at McGill, MacMaster defeated the Montreal girls in the third debate of the tournament. Here also the same subject was debated.

STANDARD NOT LOWERED

"There is no probability of any change being made in the Upper School Matriculation standards since a very large percentage of those who try the upper school exams pass," stated Mr. Rogers, Chief Inspector of the Department of Education, when asked if the raising of the standards at the university would affect the matriculation standard.

"It is quite possible that the new regulations for obtaining middle school standing on term work will come into effect in a year or so. Last Easter the convention of high school teachers appointed a committee to consider the suggestion and will pass on the report of the committee at their next session.

"This, however, will not extend to upper school papers. We have found very few deserving people fail as there is an elaborate body for hearing appeals. However, there will be no letting down of the present matriculation standards."

WANT ANOTHER TRIP HERE

"Yes, indeed, we've heard of 'The Varsity,' and have actually seen pieces out of it in our own 'Daily,'" said Miss Rose Zahalan, debater here from McGill, when interviewed yesterday by "The Varsity".

Miss Zahalan and Miss Thelma Mitchell were met early yesterday morning at the Union Station by U. of T. women in a collegiate-looking Ford roadster, and during the day were conducted around the university and the city itself.

"I think it's simply great here—and the buildings are really wonderful," said Miss Zahalan. "At McGill things are so different. Although we have our different buildings, we are not (Continued on Page 4)

DISCUSS EMPIRE POLICY

Beaverbrook's Trade Policies Upheld by Affirmative and by House

At the Women's Intercollegiate Debate between McGill and Toronto, held at the Women's Union of University College last evening, the judges decided in favour of the McGill team by a vote of two to one. The subject of the debate was: "Resolved that this house approves of the empire economic policy of Lord Beaverbrook," the Varsity team supporting the affirmative and the McGill team the negative side of the argument.

The speakers on the affirmative side were Isabel Jordan, University College, and Ruth Sparling, Victoria College. Rose Zahalan and Thelma Mitchell were the representatives of McGill.

Miss Jordan, the leader of the affirmative side, opened the debate by explaining that Lord Beaverbrook's economic policy was one of free trade within the Empire and high protection tariff outside it. She maintained that the British Empire could only exist with such a policy and that it was the only real cure for the present state of depression. Her colleague, Miss Sparling, pointed out that the policy was desirable not only from a political, but also from an economic viewpoint, since Great Britain and the rest of the Empire need markets for their products.

The negative side, on the other hand, claimed that there was no natural economic unity between the parts of the empire, so the plan was not feasible. The empire, they said, was not self-sufficient and produced more than it could consume.

"The founding of large economic units leads to antagonistic competition," said Miss Mitchell. "There will be conflict for markets within the Empire, since the parts of the Empire are industrially keen competitors."

COEDS TOLERATE TROLLEY TRUNDLE

Prefer to Ride on Street-Car and Go Out More Often

MANY SAY 'BUNK' TO LETTER

The indignant letter writer in "The Varsity" of yesterday, denouncing the gold-digging co-eds who had the audacity to expect a taxi ride instead of a trolley trundle, called forth little interest from the subjects slandered. Some of those who had read the letter uttered such remarks as "bunk" and offered no explanation as to whether they referred to the letter or the ideas contained therein.

One co-ed held the same view as the writer, but probably for a different reason. She claimed that in this age of approaching equality of men and women, women should not demand or expect such consideration from equals. Another co-ed averred that whether or not a girl had "a right" to expect a taxi depended entirely on the kind of function she was to attend, formal or otherwise.

The general opinion among the co-eds, however, was that they did not expect to be taken places in taxis continually and that they would rather ride on the street car and go out more often.

TWENTY-THREE MORE DAYS

This is only the second day of December, and yet the feeling is already abroad that Christmas is almost here. When we were very young the knowledge that it was the second of December made the great twenty-fifth seem ageless aeons away. But now, as far as public announcement of the event is concerned, Christmas is not only here, but has been heralded for weeks. Newspapers, shop-windows, and posters, have been shouting the fact for days. Santa Claus himself had the audacity to arrive in Toronto the Saturday after Thanksgiving. Yet the day called Christmas is not scheduled to arrive for three weeks and two days. Little wonder that "commercializing Christmas" is a stock talk. It seems no use for us to kick against tricks. Whether we will it or no, we appear victims of the vast commercializing web.

Because already we are wedged in by signs, "Buy now," and "Shop early," because the giving of gifts and the sending of cards has always been done by our generation, we too, hand in hand with convention, meekly go forth to buy now, to shop early, to purchase gifts and cards. No matter if it bores us or our pocket-books, we must appear, for a time at least, the cheerful giver.

We would be the last to suggest the curtailment in toto of all such activities. Meet it is and pleasant so to do, this giving of gifts and remembrances at Christmas time, provided that the giver does it voluntarily, and does it enhancing his enjoyment of life and that of his friends by his act. Personally we have seen too many gifts and cards sent from a sense of duty and to keep up appearances to really believe that those who go in for great expenditures at this season really justify it to themselves, or their friends. It is time the conventional system of wholesale giving which has little vestige of Christmas spirit be relegated to the place of out-worn hypocrisy.

The present depression will play its share this year in doing away with that part of our giving which may be termed unnecessary and conventional. People are finding that this year they must give less, for they have less to give. By chance we may thus come a long way in up-rooting ourselves from those habits which have tended to make Christmas mean just a time for spending money, shopping till we are weary and our tempers ruined. Fortunately, Christmas Day itself with its intangible goodwill which cannot be bought and sold is usually free of these signs of distress.

Apocryphal Christmas shopping there was a letter in the city papers yesterday sent to the Canadian people from H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce, estimating our Christmas shopping bill at 50 millions and urging that we buy "Made in Canada" goods. Nor can it be denied that our Canadian manufacturers need our confidence more now than ever.

Thus we are faced with two situations—the need to cut down on any conventional giving which may serve to further commercialize Christmas, and the need to back our manufacturers with buying support, as well as tangibly remembering our unemployed. Difficult situations to be solved, ones which demand that we put wisdom as well as money into our shopping bags if this Christmas is to have any meaning of peace and good will.

Perfect Male Protests

Editor, "The Varsity".
Dear Sir:

As Secretary of the Perfect Male Union and three times winner of the Grand Sweepstakes prize as America's Most Perfect Baby, I feel it my duty to point out to the genus femina in particular the erroneous, malicious and lewd mistakes made in the stating of qualifications for the Perfect Male. Dismissing the fact that the perfect gentleman is the perfect male, we can now deal with what may not have been so obvious. I wish that I had the time to go over each one of these questions, using our president, Alonzo de Crabapple Pot-Belly, as my ideal. But let it suffice to say, that he, president of the P.M.U., could never get into a bathing suit. Furthermore, no healthy-minded woman marries a man

Theatre Arts Group

The Queen's Husband, by Robert E. Sherwood, American dramatic critic, and former editor of Life, is being presented in Hart House Theatre to-night and to-morrow by the Theatre Arts Group.

The play is a satire comedy on Monarchy, a parody on the Queen of Roumania, and concerns an imaginary bankrupt kingdom whose king is leaving for the United States for money, and while away, the king, who is hen-pecked, breaks his bonds and initiates a socialistic revolution and a new government. Also there is a romance.

The principal role of the fictitious King Eric is taken by J. Leslie Gilbey, and Marion Viccaro plays the dominating Queen. Kenneth Conn and Josephine Barrington are the enlightened lovers.

It is a perfect little drama with all the high-lights and fitful incidents to produce a clever and spicy satire.

ANOTHER LETTER

Moscow, Dec. 2.—Such has been the secrecy of our mission to Moscow that only to-day have we learned its object.

Orders from our Chief concealed in a loaded peanut shell were delivered to my accomplice Vassili, (who is Lord Fattingham in disguise), to-day by one of our Secret Service men in the guise of an organ grinder's monkey near the barracks.

Realizing the importance of the message Vassili came all the way home walking backwards so that no one could follow behind him.

Safe in the seclusion of our cellar, Vassili read the letter. "Great Heavens, man!" he exclaimed, astonished. "What is it?" I cried breathlessly. "The Chief has instructed us to steal the Five Year Plan!" he almost shouted.

"Splendid," I rejoined, "but where is it hidden?"

"He says he does not know that—we must find out."

Mutely we gazed at one another, overcome by the gigantic proportions of the scheme.

At last Vassili rose and smiled. We shook hands. "Well, old chap, this may be our last job together, eh?" After a pause, he added, "I know it's all rot—but in case I don't come back—I wish you would give this to my wife. Will you?"

"Why, of course I will," I replied, "but what is it?"

"It is a box of Aspirin she asked me to bring her from the drug store before I left," he said tenderly, with a trace of a tear glistening in his eye. "In some way I forgot to give it to her. —But I suppose you also have something to leave your loved ones?"

"No," I replied sadly, "the girl I was rushing turned me down: that is why I came over here—to brush up on my Russian. So you see I don't care what happens. —But if I should be shot, could you let the boys on 'The Varsity' staff know about it? It would be a big news story and my readers would get a great kick out of it as well."

"And perhaps, who knows, someone might shed a tear over it," added Lord Fattingham softly.

"I doubt it," I sobbed, giving way at last, "let's make sure of the shedding right now."

So we sat down together and had a good cry, and, I am sure, felt much better after it.

Will we be successful? And will you receive this letter? Only Time will tell. I am afraid we won't, and I am afraid you will. This is in code so there is no use reading it.

—Gaspard McGuffey.

With the Theatres

For the benefit of our readers, pictures are graded as follows in this column: Average (0), below average (-1) or (-2), above average (1) or (2).

An above-par week (below if you are a golfer), with the worst of the shows having fine scenes and the best, Singer of Seville, being a uniformly excellent piece.

There is a fair vaudeville show at both the Imperial and Shea's, especially at the latter.

Loew's.

Singer of Seville. (1). Charles Brabin directs Ramon Novarro in an excellent film. Novarro's voice is not good, but seldom annoying, and his acting as the gay young opera star in the making, is darn good. Dorothy Jordan is very fine as his amateur lover and Renee Adoree well cast as his professional paramour. The convenient scenes are well taken, and the technicolour sequence from Pagliacci is convincing.

JR. MEDS DEFEAT SR. SCHOOL 4-3 IN WATER POLO SEMI-FINAL

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

St. Hilda's left no doubt as to their supremacy over St. Michael's in the second semi-final game last night. The Saints emerged victorious by 19 points on the game, and 15 on the round, and they certainly deserved their victory. They will now meet Senior U.C. in the first of the finals, on Wednesday night. This game will be played at Hart House at 8.15.

At the beginning of the game last night, it looked as though St. Michael's were going to be able to hold their slim five-point lead. However, after about half of the first period, it was evident that Bea Symons was distinctly on her shots, and that the St. Mike's forwards were off theirs. After that, it was all over but the shouting.

This St. Mike's team deserves a lot of credit for the fight they showed last night, even after it was only too evident that they could not win. With only 3 minutes to go, and the score 38-14 against them, they pitched right in and showed a flash of their old form to score 5 quick baskets.

Bea Symons, the sensational Saints' forward, certainly turned in a great effort last night. It was her fine playing which just about made the difference between the two outfits, and she demonstrated just how well she can shoot. Fran Crooks, at jumping centre for the Saints, also turned in a better effort than she has all year.

There has been a great deal of difficulty in arranging for referees in the finals—and the dates also have been the subject of controversy. The date for the first game, as stated above, is now set as Wednesday night. The second game will be some time next week, probably Tuesday, although St. Hilda's might have some trouble

JUNIOR MEDS BEAT SENIOR SCHOOLMEN

Water Polo Championship Will Be Played Off with Jr. U.C.

MEDS WIN 4-3

By defeating Senior S.P.S. 4-3 yesterday, Junior Meds won the right to meet Junior U.C. in a two-game series for the interfaculty water polo championship. The game was very close throughout and was the best of this year's struggles, and though School had practically the same team as that which captured the Eckhardt Cup last year the Doctors had a slight edge on the play. Although behind at half time, Meds ran in three goals in the final period, while their opponents were getting a single and by splendid defensive work, managed to turn back the frantic last-minute attempts of the Engineers.

Both teams started fast and the Meds' goalie had narrow escapes on shots by Fisher and Powell. School had a close call when Davey's shot hit the upright and hovered on the goal line before it was flicked out of danger by the goalie. S.P.S. pressed and nearly scored in a scramble, but Fee, on Meds' defence, cleared nicely. After five minutes of play, Crocker opened the scoring on a long shot which slipped through the hands of the Medical net guardian. A minute later Rogers evened it up on a free shot after a scramble in front of the School net. Just before the rest period Hayhoe put the Engineers in the lead by a fast shot from well past centre which found the corner of the Meds' net.

After a minute of play in the second half, Davey evened the score on a pass from Middleboro. Culiner took a fast shot which just missed but he made sure of the next one and scored on a pass from Davey to make the Doctors one up. Fisher put the teams on even terms less than a minute later when he made no mistake on a free shot after a scramble in front of the Meds' goal. With two minutes to go Davey put the Medicals in the fielding their regular team. It is to be hoped that satisfactory arrangements can be made, so that both teams may be at full strength, and the game be handled by the best referees.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By De C. H. R.

The smack of leather-covered fists, the dull thud of falling bodies and the sharp clang of steel against steel, announce to all allowed within the sacred precincts of Hart House that the boxing, wrestling and fencing men are daily training to get in shape for the coming intercollegiate season. The men of the mitt, mat and metal sports have to work diligently for their laurels, and for two weeks now they have been training hard. With many of last year's B. W. and F. team out again this season, it looks like a championship for the Blue and White when they meet Queen's and McGill in the annual intercollegiate assault-at-arms next term.

The competition for places on the team has become quite keen since it was announced that the University of Toronto would probably send the boxing and wrestling teams on a trip to the States next January. Arrangements are being completed to have the wrestlers meet the mat men of the Naval Academy at Annapolis in friendly competition there on January 24th. The boxers are making plans to mix things with the fighters of the New York Athletic Club in the big city on January 26th. Although details have not been completed the trip south of the line is practically assured to those who make a place on the boxing and wrestling teams.

Victoria College starts the season off by holding their annual assault-at-arms in Hart House this evening. The faculty competitions bring out lots of new material and quite often give the spectator some bouts worth watching. The other faculty assaults follow later in the week and the winners of places will compete in the junior interfaculty assault. The dates for the junior assault-at-arms have been announced as the 10th and 11th of December, and by that time the mitt and mat men should be in good shape to stir up sufficient strife to cause a crowd to turn out.

We attended the semi-final in the Eckhardt Cup playoffs last night and we were not sorry for it. Junior Meds in eliminating Senior School showed some real form and deserved their victory over the team which as Junior School won the Cup last year. The victory was doubly sweet for Junior Medical men because they had just handed the Juniors from S.P.S. a 9-1 defeat and they knew that the senior team was out to take revenge. They all worked together well, but we noticed particularly the brilliant work of Davey on the Medical forward line.

FLETCHER MEETS STEVENS

The annual Victoria College assault takes place to-night at seven-thirty in Hart House gymnasium and from all advance notices should be a bigger success than ever. The entry list contains the names of several good men and the fans are assured of an evening of real battling. The bout between Winch and Gemmill in the 160 lb. class looks like the high spot of a first-class card. The former is noted for his aggressiveness but his opponent is not given to backing up under punishment either.

lead on a fast shot from centre, and though School pressed hard, this was the deciding tally.

The Medical students had the most of the play and Junior U.C. will have a busy time stopping them from repeating yesterday's victory and keeping such sharp-shooters as Davey and Culiner off the score sheet. Hayhoe, Fisher and Crocker were the best on the School team.

Junior Meds (4)—Rogers, Davey, Culiner, Middleboro, McLeod, Hardy, Fee, Magder, Douglas.

Senior S.P.S. (3)—Fisher, Hayhoe, Powell, Gibbs, Bryce, Ward, Withrow, Little, Crocker.

SAINTS TO MEET SR. U.C.

By defeating St. Michael's 43-24 in the second game of the semi-finals last night at U.T.S., St. Hilda's qualified to meet Senior U.C. in the finals for the interfaculty championship.

Both teams started strongly and scored basket for basket until Bea Symons got away for five quick baskets near the end of the first half to put her team in the lead by ten points at the interval. The St. Mike's forwards missed several easy chances to score on close-in shots, by shooting too hastily, and the passing was somewhat erratic.

After half time the Saints went right ahead and lengthened their lead considerably. Bea Symons sunk shots from any angle, and played well on defence. When the Double Blue took a minute out towards the end of the game, St. Hilda's were on the long end of a 38-14 count. St. Mike's rallied strongly after this rest and scored ten points in quick order, but the Saints had a commanding lead and at the final whistle were up 19 points.

Bea Symons was the outstanding star of the game, and Fran Crooks played a strong game at jumping centre for St. Hilda's. For St. Mike's Loretto McGarry and Olive Macklin were the best.

The jealousy question we now see. The man who has never appreciated that tummy-ache feeling, whose throat has never burned, or who has never suffered from palpitation of the heart, and become fired with the lust to kill, to kill, TO KILL, such a man, I say, is devoid of all fine feelings. Shun him. The agonies of one hundred and fourteen, love affairs and the present pang of the hundred and fifteenth—have taught me that the perfect male is not free from jealousy; rather, he is a chronic sufferer.

Here comes the dividend question. The members of the P.M.U. have been holding extra-mural classes at the Stock Exchange for the study of Dividends and have come to the following conclusion:

"Dividends are a state of mind. The psychology of the case is this—" (Here the finding becomes a trifle complicated and for that reason I have simplified it as follows.) This is one of the more malicious mistakes. The question, "How likely would he be to buy toothpaste instead of cigarettes, if the choice were necessary?" somehow recalls the Edisonian question, "If you were cast away on a desert island with a jar of Sta-Comb, the President of the University and Constance Bennett, would you consider fast-days necessary?" Impressed with Canada's selling ability, Lord Stonehaven, former Governor-General of Australia, interviewed at Winnipeg recently after a tour of Canada by Canadian Pacific Railway, urged that the Dominion do everything in its power to encourage inter-empire trade and specially of such articles which are particularly the products of one another, citing citrus fruits of Australia as an example of worth-while imports for Canada.

Winners of dual grand championships at Chicago and Toronto Fairs, two fine Clydesdale stallions from Saskatchewan, "Sansovino" and "Lochinvar," are showing at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto, November 19-27. Large experimental farms in the West, including the Prince of Wales "E.P." ranch, are also well represented in the entry lists.

Cultured, educated women, taught by tutors whom they shared with their brothers, existed in China prior to the 12th century and before the western world had attained any high degree of civilization. Dr. T. Catherine Woo, principal of the St. Paul's Girls College School, Oxford, declared when interviewed on board S.S. Empress of Asia recently. She broadcast a message to women of all countries, stating that Chinese women are no less intellectual than their European sisters, if given a chance to learn.

It is expected that the improved ship channel in the River St. Lawrence as far as Montreal, giving a 35-foot depth for ocean liners, will be completed by 1934. This will enable liners of 25,000 tons gross to reach Montreal, 1,000 miles from the Atlantic, the largest inland port in the world.

According to the president of the Radio Manufacturing Association of Canada, the per capita expenditure in the Dominion on radio sets is the highest in the world. In 1929 Canadians spent over $50,000,000 on radios and equipment.

Sugared strawberries from British Columbia put up in cartons found a ready market this year. About 100,000 pounds were bought by American interests and large quantities were bought in Eastern Canada. It returned about seven cents a pound to the grower.

Nine years ago, Mrs. W. A. Freeman, of Ardeno, Alberta, a native of Wisconsin, won a pair of bronze turkeys in a raffle. To-day she has the largest turkey ranch in Canada and is the acknowledged queen of turkey raising in the Dominion. Her turkeys will return a revenue of $10,000 this year.

Coming for the first time to Saskatchewan, the Western Canada Fox Show will be held December 2-6 at Saskatoon. At Winnipeg last year more than 200 foxes from as far as Prince Edward Island, were shown. Even greater interest is expected in this year's Show.

Directors of the Co-operative Wholesale Society of Great Britain who recently concluded a tour of Canada have expressed themselves as greatly interested in the World's Grain Show to be held at Regina in 1932 and have indicated that in all probability they will visit the Exhibition and Conference at that time.

 Second Dentist—Open your cash-drawer.
 Purser obeys.
 Third Dentist—Open wider, please. The Purser is obviously frightened. His eyes cross, his nose twitches, his false teeth rattle and he drops a pig. Fortunately there are no pigs in it.
 First Dentist—Now you needn't be so afraid. We guarantee painless extraction.

Purser—What do you mean? What have you come here for? Don't you know it's after one o'clock?
 Second Dentist—We want your money. Hand it out.
 Purser—Suppose I won't?
 Third Dentist—Don't worry. We'll have it out in just a jiffy. Now spit.
 Purser—I'm a poor man. I've a stenographer and seventeen children to support.

First Dentist—Pay us or your life isn't worth a song. Not even a limerick.
 Purser—But I know a limerick.
 Second Dentist—Spit it out. Here's a bowl.
 Third Dentist—This is going to hurt a little.
 The Purser strikes an attitude. First dentist is struck by the attitude and strikes second dentist in retaliation. Second dentist clasps his retaliation with both hands. A general strike is averted by the presence of mind of third dentist, who makes presents of mind to the other two.

Purser—There was a poor boy from New Guinea,
 Who deplored that he was much
 Tew Skuinea;
 For he daily raised laughs
 Being cut into haughs,
 By the master magician, Hew-Duinea.

First Dentist—How long do you brush your teeth?
 Purser—From Wimbledon to Wimbledon is fourteen miles. What kind of tooth-paste should I use to develop my teeth?
 Second Dentist—It all depends how long you expose the film.
 Purser—See this negative of grandmother in my cuspid? I exposed her till she got pneumonia. She was dumb.

Third Dentist—Perhaps she pneumonia think. Give us our money.
 Purser—Let me see your registration cards.
 Dentists (In chorus. Verses may be added if desirable)—Curses! We forgot them. Excuse baffled.

A Gateway to Financial Independence

Everywhere and always, people are looking for a way to financial independence. Thousands have tried a short cut—and lost money by speculating in the hope of quick returns.

It's the wise man who takes the long view—putting his money into a savings account, where it is safe and earns a reasonable rate of interest.

From coast to coast, throughout the Dominion, the Bank of Montreal, through more than 660 branches, is safeguarding the savings of thousands of Canadians and paying interest on their deposits, thus providing a gateway to financial independence.

Imperial.
Playboy of Paris. (4-1). Not so good in spite of a neat bit of work by O. P. Heggie. Maurice Chevalier does not sing and as he cannot act, though his face is superbly expressive, he is a disappointment. Florence Dee looks pretty. It's about a waiter who inherits a fortune and fights a duel. Two swell clowns in the vaudeville.

Shea's.
The Sea Wolf. (1-). The best picture at this theatre for some time, although it is full of faked scenes and illogical sequences. Milton Sills is the lone wolf of the seas, a relentless brute and sometimes a gentleman, who looks well in the part. Jane Keith is fair, but was always far too clean to be true. John Rogers is perfect as the cockney cook. Vaudeville good—especially Caesar Rivoli, impressionist.

Tivoli.
Half-Shot at Sunrise. (0). This is really an amusing comedy, with Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey as "punning heroes", and Dorothy Lee for atmosphere. Wit, war and women make the plot, and you laugh in spite of yourself. Besides, there are several good shorts, one with Charles Hackett of the American Opera Co., in Faust.

Uptown.
Three Faces East. (1-). Constance Bennett in a rare combination of comeliness and characterization, and Erle Von Stroheim is reminiscent of Mussolini in his portrayal of a German secret intelligence potentate. Ginger Rogers is herself in a short short and there is the usual batter-slinging comedy and canned synchronizing. S.P.S. men may see themselves in the news reel.

CHRISTMAS HOLIDAYS TO AFFORD STUDENTS A VARIETY OF JOBS

Favor With Many

University of Toronto students are planning to spend their Christmas holidays in a variety of ways, and for a variety of purposes, according to student interviews obtained by "The Varsity" yesterday.

A few are intending to try to improve the condition of their pocket-book. One male student expects, if his plans materialize, to be selling dump-trucks in Eaton's toy department. Of his earnings a goodly part will be devoted to the purchase of Christmas gifts.

The majority, however, are going to work at their weak subjects. In some cases that weak subject is Horace or Catullus; in others, more numerous, it is Hebrew. Undoubtedly this information will be hailed with delight by the faculty.

A number of the undergrads plan to go home for their holidays. When he gets there, one ambitious man is going to spend his afternoons shooting rabbits and his evenings tobogganing in the moonlight. To offset these pleasures he will learn to use a typewriter.

Many men and women will spend the two weeks practicing the piano, in anticipation of examinations coming in February or June. One of these will (Continued on Page 4)

GOVERNMENT AT KNOX SCORED BY SPEAKER

Allan Stewart and A. Wilson Point Out Weaknesses of Administration

MAJORITY VOTE ON MOTION

"I most severely censure the government and the members of the cabinet, and deeply deplore the inadequate way in which they have been officiating during their term of office," said Speaker Johnson at the regular meeting of the Knox College Undergraduates' Association held in the college last night. The Speaker of the House went on to condemn the inefficiency of the government, and urged that it make an attempt to carry on in a more adequate manner.

The censorship of the Speaker against the government came as the result of a motion moved by Mr. Allan Stewart, B.A., leader of the opposition, asking that the Speaker censure the government and cabinet for its inefficiency. Mr. Stewart and his second, Mr. A. Wilson, B.A., dwelt on the weaknesses of the administration, and pointed out the inadequate manner in which many of the affairs of the government had been handled.

Mr. E. L. Birch, B.A., the Prime Minister, made a feeble attempt to justify his government's actions, and he was supported by Mr. James Munro, Conventor of the House Committee. The motion was passed by a substantial majority.

Among other business brought up at the regular meeting of the K.C.U.A. last night were the plans for the annual Christmas dinner, which will be served before the students leave for the vacation.

It is through the generosity of the Literary and Debates Committee that it has been possible to enlarge the prize list for the Christmas Issue of "The Varsity" this year.

Wealth of Enormous Value
When Put to Legitimate Uses

"Man is to-day in the grip of a system from which it is impossible to escape without bringing about the collapse of the system. The only possible remedy is to change the concept of wealth," stated Professor E. J. Urwick, speaking to the Fabius Club at the Women's Union last night.

Professor Urwick was introduced to the meeting by Mr. A. J. Elder, president of the Fabius Club. The president very briefly traced Professor Urwick's career up to the time when he came to the University of Toronto, where he is now head of the department of political science of University College.

Rising to speak, Professor Urwick stated that there was a mistake in the wording of the title of his speech: it was not a philosopher, but the philosopher who was speaking, and it was not wealth, but what is mistaken for wealth that he was speaking of. "I am only the mouthpiece of the philosophers, through which their ideas when he outlived his opponent to on this subject are given to you," he stated.

Third Year

PRIZES TO BE AWARDED

In order to encourage interest in the fine arts the Willington Arts competition will be held for the third consecutive year with prizes to be awarded in music, literature, painting and sculpture. The competition is open to amateurs and professionals who are British subjects in Canada. A prize for one hundred dollars will be awarded for original composition for the violin and pianoforte. There will also be a similar prize for an original composition for the organ. The third one hundred dollar prize will be awarded for a vocal solo setting, with pianoforte accompaniment, of a poem chosen by the committee. The committee has chosen two lyrics, one by Marjorie Pickthall, Wanderer, and one in French, Aveu Fleuri, by Albert Lozeau. There will also be two prizes in English Literature and two in French Literature.

"Perfect Males" Worry About Contest Outcome

The "perfect males" at this university are afraid their feminine admirers will send in their names to "The Varsity" for publication, following the contest which was printed last week.

A number of men phoned "The Varsity" office yesterday and requested that their names, if submitted, be withheld. A prominent member of the senior rugby team, evidently conscious of his own score, was very sure that even if his name was submitted, it would be only by someone playing a joke. Another said that his "woman" was taking this method to work out a revenge upon him.

"Never go to an editor and say, 'I want to write an article'. He would have to be a very good friend to help you out," warned Mrs. Conover, at the meeting of the Journalism Group of the Literary Society in Wymilwood last week.

In the course of her discussion on Article Writing, Mrs. Conover, herself much experienced in the literary field, gave some very helpful hints about markets and methods for those wishing to break into print.

The group meets weekly under the leadership of Mrs. Conover, to consider such topics as plots, articles, and manuscript preparation.

C. F. ANGUS ADMIRES THE MYSTIC SINGH

Career of Indian Philosopher Traced at Meeting at Trinity

SINGH DISLIKES THE WEST

"The greatest man I have ever been fortunate enough to meet," said Professor C. F. Angus, in his address at Trinity House last night, "is Sunder Singh, the Indian mystic. He was born in the Punjab in 1899, and as a lad he spent nights in meditation, hoping for the appearance of a god, promising to sacrifice his life to the one that appeared."

Professor Angus then went on to describe how the great Indian philosopher had experienced a vision of Jesus which was instrumental in converting him to Christianity.

"Rather than have his son become a Christian," related Professor Angus, "Sunder Singh's father drove him away. He went to a missionary and then to a theological college. But now, he found the Christian religion 'second hand' and critical and Christians telling dirty stories. He refused to join a church and wandered about, begging and preaching."

Professor Angus traced the life of the man through all the events that "eventually were to mould his character". Sunder Singh went to Tibet and there, although he was maltreated frequently, some miracle always saved him from death. Enemies feared him as a magician, for so magnetic was the man's personality.

Sunder Singh, it was pointed out, has paid visits to England and America, but has a dislike for the western conventions.

Professor Angus, in conclusion, said that there existed a certain amount of evidence to bear out the "Singh Stories", but that it was the quality of sincerity in the man's character that moved him most.

E. W. BEATTY TRACES C.P.R. GROWTH IN ADDRESS GIVEN AT SCHOOL DINNER

Cold Weather Induces
Cool Thieves To Act

Though not as active as they were last year, coat thieves have taken their toll around university buildings already this year, according to university police.

Last week two coats were reported missing, bringing the total for the year up to seven.

Police think that prevalence of warm weather until recently is the reason why there have not been more thefts to date.

Picnics in Hart House yesterday warned members that thieves were operating and advised them to check their coats in the check room downstairs, instead of leaving them exposed on the hooks in the corridors.

In many university buildings, hooks where the students leave their hats and coats while attending lectures are just inside the doors.

TERM 'LADY' IS OBSOLETE

"Some women are just women, but some women are ladies," said Dick McKibbin, IV C. and F., when asked what he thought of the statement published in yesterday's "Varsity" to the effect that women are snobs and the term "ladies" is a farcical one. "I think the word 'lady' still keeps a higher meaning than 'woman'."

Mr. Walter Arnold, also of C. and F., supports Mr. McKibbin with the statement, "If there are any snobbish co-eds, I have never met them."

Two co-eds who were approached took the opposite side of the question. "Women in general are certainly snobbish," said Lillian Kibbs, II U.C., "if they can get away with it. And they are more often snobbish to other women than toward men."

An anonymous co-ed was vehement on the subject of 'lady' and 'woman'. "The word lady has gone down in the world. We say 'charlady'; the movies have 'ladies' night'. The shoe (Continued on Page 4)

U.C. GUILD PRODUCTION

"Not only is it the first time 'The Way of the World' has been done in Toronto, but is actually the first time on record that the Congreve comedy has ever been done in Canada." This was the statement of Miss Patricia Godfrey, vice-president of the University College Players' Guild, referring to that society's production on Friday and Saturday of this week.

"It is amazing," declared Miss Godfrey, "that it has taken 230 years for this fascinating play to come to Canada, but we feel quite thrilled that it is our own Guild which is finally having the courage to do it and that Hart House Theatre is to be the scene of its first performance in this country."

Railway, Steamship, Express

"The Canadian Pacific Railway will cross a barren country, which is in frost eight months of the year. British Columbia is a barren, cold bleak country which will never be prosperous even if it was covered by a network of 50 railroads." This appeared in 1881 in a London paper and by a peculiar coincidence, it was called "Truth," said E. W. Beatty, president of the C.P.R., guest speaker of the evening at the 41st annual dinner of the Engineering Society. "Previous to 1881, the Canadian government had tried to finish the railway. The construction was filled with scandals and many people were inefficiently employed. A private syndicate offered to build it within ten years and operate for that short period, known as in perpetuity. This was done."

"My three predecessors, as presidents of the company, were far-seeing men. Each one was different and each seemed to fit into the period of his office. Lord Mount-Stephen, the first president, was a financier, Sir William Van Horne, the second president, was a great constructor. He saw far into the future of Canada. Lord Shaugnessy had a fine piece of mental machinery—to him is due the credit of organization. He was born an American and in the words of an American newspaper, 'he was the peer that made Milwaukee famous'."

"What was good for Canada, was good for the Canadian Pacific, was one of our slogans of years ago. In the past 10 years the C.P.R. has built 2,500 miles of railway, completed the Connaught tunnel, paid partly for the Viaduct of Toronto, and built many bridges in Canada. In the Great War we lost 13 vessels and since the war, our new fleet has been the largest construction of any one company in (Continued on Page 2)

CHARACTERS SHAPED BY LOVE INTERESTS

New Habits, Unlimited Possibilities Result from This Experience, Angus Says

LOVE OF JESUS GREATEST

"Falling in love is the strongest moral influence on human character," stated C. F. Angus in his lecture on "Jesus" in Trinity College last night. The past is forgotten, new habits are formed, and wonderful possibilities develop. This is what occurs when we fall in love with Jesus—we become saved. "You are unlucky if you have no acquaintance to whom this is happening now," said Mr. Angus.

"There never was a time when there was more hero worship for the central character in the Gospels. Everyone admits that Jesus is the best of men, the noblest example and ideal. If people tried to conduct an examination of themselves from his standards, how miserably they would fail. No one here is a criminal or an adulterer, but in his heart, each has lusted or wished to kill, but has not because of conscience or lack of courage. Where do we rank Jesus? With Buddha or Socrates? No, they are dead, but Jesus, the source of strength and salvation, is gloriously alive. He is God himself."

POLYGAMY

A noted Archaeologist and Egyptologist suggests that in place of the present system of monogamy, the economic ills of the modern world might be solved by the acceptance of a revised social system, not only permitting, but favouring a state of universal polygamy.

Whether or not the possession of numerous wives would add materially to domestic happiness is a debatable point. The establishment of a nation-wide net-work of harems would undoubtedly diminish the influx of female typists, waitresses, and general utility women into the business world. But it would also have the effect of reducing women to the level of a chattel, which can only end in the complete vitiation of the male, and the resulting disintegration of the social structure.

In short, to gain for society a temporary lifting of the economic pressure, the learned gentleman seems to suggest a course which could only end in race suicide.

THE PERFECT MALE

Looks, health, individuality, sportsmanship, efficiency, background, money, domesticity, disposition, and charm—these are the heads under which the undergraduate women of this University are being urged to measure their gentleman friends with a view to discovering the Perfect Male. The fact that there seems to be a notable lack of enthusiasm manifested in the paucity of the replies received to date by "The Varsity" speaks well, we submit, for the intelligence of the women of the local campus.

The ordeal of having to live the rest of one's life with a man who held the record of having baited a perfect 1,000 in a Perfect Male Contest would sour the disposition of the sweetest girl graduate that ever graced a commencement platform. There isn't a woman in the world who doesn't crave large and fascinating gobs of imperfection in her males. The man who possesses one or two dashing sins becomes positively irresistible.

We suggest that the Perfect Male of the University of Toronto, once he is found, be taken out—like Sparta's infants—and exposed on a bleak hillside until the winds of reality and an opportunity for due contemplation on the eternal feminine have rendered him either a Perfect Corpse or the sort of hero who is willing to defend the postulation that woman's place is in the trolley and not the taxi.

Science Courses Unbalanced

Editor, "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:
I would like to unearth a question treated humorously in your columns last year, which also contains much matter deserving serious attention. This letter is prompted by a growing feeling of dissatisfaction with the courses of Science in the Faculty of Arts. Four years of undergraduate work have failed to satisfy me that anything approaching the desired effect is being achieved.

First, sir, I maintain that the time table in these science courses is unbalanced. The time tables of those important first two years gives lecture and lab time to certain subjects altogether out of proportion to their relative value.

The present system further errs in making the day's work far too heavy. This second point is probably more important than that considered above. So much compulsory labour must be crowded into a single day that the student has no time to think for himself. Any other reading on subjects relative to his work taken at the university must be done after a long day's toil at lectures and labs, when even the best of minds are in a post-absorptive state.

When one's nose is kept to the grind stone in such fashion it discourages intelligent interest in any subject owing to the immediate demands of the other subjects. If the student continue his interest in one subject then he finds himself overwhelmed by work he has let slide for even a day or two. Such a system causes the student a great deal of confusion which he cannot avoid by reason of his own ambition. In this manner a superficial habit of study is formed which can only be shaken off with difficulty.

Surely something can be done to make the work less discouraging and more stimulating in order to develop original thought and activity.

I would earnestly urge some discussion in your columns both pro and con relative to this subject.

Sincerely,

N.I.T.

DIRECT FROM RUSSIA

Still Moscow, Dec. 3.—This morning Lord Fattingham and I were plotting to gain possession of the Five Year Plan. We were in good spirits, having breakfasted well after a good night's rest.

Fattingham, who is a cold tub enthusiast at home, still enjoys the habit to a lesser degree in his makeshift bath right here in Moscow.

On rising every morning he strips, then steps nude into our frying pan filled with cold water, and sings and smacks his chest while I sprinkle fresh snow over him with the coal shovel. If he sings very much the shovel generally slips.

"Makes a fellow feel tremendously fit, you know," he remarks, then stands around and glows with radiant health for a bit.

But, as I say, we were plotting. In fact we plot every morning after breakfast from 9 until 12, excepting Sundays, when we sit about and smoke and talk with a Trinity accent.

"What earthly good will it do to steal the Five Year Plan?" Vassili asks. "They will likely turn around and draw up a Six Year Plan."

"My dear Lord Fattingham," I replied, "that is just what we want them to do. Because then they will be set back eleven years, and by that time we will have the place overrun with Knox and Emmanuel missionaries."

"Great Scott!" he exclaimed in alarm. "Isn't that a little too—?"

"Not when you consider this: our own country is being overrun with their agents."

"Oh, I say, Gaspard," Vassili interrupted. "I found out something yesterday which may interest you a bit. I discovered a district report from the Toronto Soviet Extension Department. They are planning to overthrow the whole control of the University of Toronto and establish the 'Workers', or Student government."

"And abolish the Governors?" I inquired.

"No. It states specifically that they are to be left alone as they are, from their point of view, harmless—that is what the report says. Perhaps they will try them for treason," he added, as an afterthought.

"You are getting into rather deep water there," I warned. "Only an editor of 'The Varsity' would dare to venture that far."

We have a dangerous mission tomorrow. I have a premonition of impending disaster. If you hear from us, we are safe; if you don't you can probably hang up a gold star in our memory and also two small white ones for neatness.

RUSSIA'S EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM OF GRAVE CONCERN

Communism will eventually bring on its own suicide with the spread of universal education, Dr. Loftus D. Coffman, president of the University of Minnesota said before 1,800 delegates at the opening session of the 23rd annual meeting of the eastern Illinois division of the Illinois State Teachers' Association recently.

"Russia has created, or is trying to create, the greatest universal system of education in the world to-day," said Dr. Coffman, who recently visited Russia with a group of educators.

"The outcome is of grave concern to every country in the world, including the United States," he said. "In the next ten years Russia will take a place of great influence among the nations of the world."

WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY DISLIKES COLLEGE SONG

Seattle, Washington.—They're having quite a battle at the University of Washington over the singing of the college song. It is traditional for everyone to remain at the end of a rugby game to sing the Alma Mater. Recently, the students walked out as the song was going on and as a result the Daily is conducting a vigorous editorial campaign against this "element of hoodlums."

"Faith in the country, plus the intelligence of the people in it, has made us build many hotels, of which the latest is the Royal York. In the last ten years we have spent $386,000,000.

"The C.P.R. is the only billion dollar corporation in Canada. Its board of directors is mainly Canadian and its staff almost entirely so. Every month the money of 59 currencies must be changed into Canadian money. We are thus two up on the celebrated Mr. Heinz.

"Besides being a railway, we are a steamship company, an express company and the largest hotel company in the world. We are lumber, mining, coal, and colonizing companies, and we also own and operate experimental farms.

"American companies pride themselves on their manifold activities. They are efficient and well operated and are large, but the C.P.R. is greater than any of them, in size, activities and mileage.

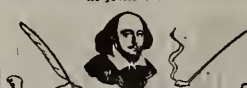

"I have great respect for the average railway employee and a high opinion of their integrity. A check-up was made over a period of five years and only $237.00 was taken when a total of a billion and a half dollars had passed through their hands.

"In 1912 our taxes were $1,582,000. In 1928, $8,000,000 — 482 per cent of an increase. We make mistakes, but they are being lessened; in 1922 we paid $2,000,000 in claims; last year we only paid out $800,000. In regard to safety, before the war we had one person injured for every 500,000 carried, to-day we have one in 3,400,000 injured.

"The C.P.R. is making its contributions to Canada: its pay roll is $289,000; its purchases $200,000, and its taxes $21,000 daily. Lord Shaughnessy before he died, had great hope in the future of Canada. You, as engineers, are to take part in this great future," E. W. Beatty concluded.

Some 660 Schoolmen attended the banquet of the Engineering Society. G. E. Beament proposed the toast to the University and Dean DeLury replied. To the toast of the Faculty, G. H. McVean, proposed and Dean Mitchell replied. J. N. Franklin proposed the toast to the profession, and Dr. Hogg replied. Finally P. A. Bal-lachy proposed a toast to the Representative Societies, and representatives of the Engineering Societies of McGill and Queen's replied.

JR. MEDS FACE U.C. JUNIORS IN FIRST WATER POLO FINAL TO-DAY

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

When St. Hilda's and Senior U.C. meet in the first game of the finals for the interfaculty championship to-night, there is bound to be some excitement. There is keen rivalry between these two teams, and both are on edge for the important game. As in the semi-final round, a two-game series is to be played, with points to count, so that the final outcome does not entirely hinge on the result of to-night's game.

However, the play to-night should be a fairly accurate indication of the comparative strength of the two outfits. Until their game on Monday night against St. Michael's, the Saints had not shown the form which was expected of them all year, and even now are not up to the calibre of the St. Hilda's team which won the championship last year.

This is the third time in three years that St. Hilda's have reached the finals. In their first effort, they were eliminated by Junior U.C., and when the same teams met last year in the finals, the Saints disposed of the Red and White in the usual series of two games by four points. Although the team which will oppose them to-night is Senior U.C., there are three players on it who were with the Juniors in

JR. MEDS AND JR. U.C. IN THE POLO FINALS FOR ECKHARDT CUP

Junior Meds Have Outstanding Stars, but Lack U.C.'s Combination

BOTH TEAMS WIN GROUPS

Goals to be Counted in Two Games on Wednesday and Friday

Jr. Meds and Jr. U.C. will battle for the interfaculty water polo honours on Wednesday and Friday of this week at five o'clock. Jr. Meds entered the finals for the Eckhardt Cup by defeating Sr. S.P.S. Monday by four goals to three. Jr. U.C. had the bye, but George Spence's boys will have a hard battle to annex the Cup.

Jr. Meds have a particularly strong team this year, with Culner of the senior Varsity team and Davey being the standouts of the scoring threats. Jr. U.C. have no outstanding star, but they are well trained in combination.

Both teams won their group without a loss, nothing up four victories each. Goals will be counted in the two games, and Jr. Meds are slightly favoured to repeat their victory of Monday. The teams will line up as follows:

Jr. Meds—Rogers, Davey, Culner, Middleboro, McLeod, Hardy, Fee, Magder, Douglas.

Jr. U.C.—S. Smith, M. Smith, Ross, Lealie, Tindale, Clute, Chisholm, Caplan, Cameron, Hermant.

1929 and 1930, so there is no love lost between the two outfits.

Senior U.C. have three intercollegiate players on their squad in the persons of Wilma Hazlett, Louise Crouch and Jean Allen. The first two are on the forward line, and form the basis of the Red and White attack. Madge Newman, a newcomer this year, takes the third forward position and teams up well with her famous mates.

Jean Allen is at jumping centre for U.C., and the duel between her and Fran Crooks who is at the same position for the Saints, should be very interesting. Both are players of no mean ability, and it is more or less a toss-up as to which will carry off the honours.

The Saints' attack centres around Bea Symons, who showed such surprising form on Monday night. With her on the forward line are Sally Ballard and Ruth Harrison, who are both extremely effective players. Both Miss Symons and Miss Ballard have been members of the intercollegiate team in former years, and take their places with the best of them.

The guards on both teams are fairly strong, although the Saints have shown a looseness in their defensive play which almost proved disastrous for them on several occasions during the season. In their last game, however, they seemed to have tightened up, and if they can steady their play a bit, should make matters interesting for the Red and White forward line.

U.C.'s defence is also quite effective, but have been guilty of a certain amount of loose ball handling. They will need to be right on their guard against mistakes of this kind to-night, since the Saints have a disturbing habit of annexing any loose balls within reach, and they intercept passes with alarming swiftness.

On the whole, the teams seem to be fairly well matched, and the game to-night will be an exciting struggle from start to finish. It is scheduled to begin at 8.15, and will be played at Hart

SPEAKING OF SPORT

The B. W. and F. season opened last night with the annual Vic assault. This was the first of the faculty tournaments, the remainder being slated for the coming two weeks. The bouts last night were just fair. The boxers were not well matched and several technical K.O.'s resulted. However, the winners displayed good form and one or two likely prospects for the interfaculty assaults came to light.

The S.P.S. fistiana, etc., to-day (two shows, afternoon and evening), should be much better. The Schoolmen have a large entry list, containing some first-class bouts. Besides furnishing real entertainment for the fans it will give the Engineers a chance to get some of that well-known fighting spirit out of their systems. The S.P.S. tourney seldom fails to be a big success and this one should be no exception.

The first game in the water polo finals to-day will be a contest between a team of stars and an outfit which depends on smooth combination for success. Junior Meds have a powerful squad, but they will have to be mighty good if they expect to down Junior U.C. The Red and White have been under the expert eye of George Spence of the intercollegiate all season, and they have yet to be defeated. They specialize in team play and expect to carry a nice lead into the second game. We wouldn't like to bet on either team, however. It looks like a toss-up.

SECOND YEAR SECURE ASSAULT AT ARMS VIC ASSAULT EVENTS FOR S. P. S. TO-DAY BY TOUGH FIGHTING

Boxing Brings Out Excellent Material for Davidson Cup Competition

HUESTIS BANTAM PUNCHER

Few Entries in Wrestling Bouts but Are Keenly Contested

Second year walked off with the honours in the annual Victoria College assault-at-arms at Hart House last night, their entries winning all of the major events. Boxing furnished most of the excitement although most of the bouts were one-sided, and several prospects for the junior assault were unearthed. Kay, a well-built fighter in the 160 lb. class, was the individual star, winning both his bouts by technical knockouts. Vic should field some good men to compete for the Davidson Cup, emblematic of the interfaculty B. W. and F. championship.

Heustis, a fighting gamecock in the 125 lb. class, put up one of the most finished performances of the night win by a technical K.O. in the first round. His punches were well timed and his superior condition was evident. Vivian, at 125 lbs., also gave an aggressive display, outpunching Norman to give the sophomores another K.O. to their credit.

The 148 lb. battlers were the most evenly matched and Knott and Keith, the finalists, put up a hard slugging encounter until the latter's poor condition allowed Knott to put him down for the count. In the 160 lb. class, Winch, last year's champion, and Kay, last year's 148 lb. winner, met in the final, and battled away for two rounds before the powerful Kay sent in the blow which forced Referee Wilton to stop the bout.

There were only four entries in the wrestling events, but two close bouts resulted. Fletcher, at 145 lbs., retained the title he won last year by getting the referee's decision after the 6 minute round. Tilbury had no trouble in taking the fencing title, having House. There was an extremely large turnout of rooters at the semi-final games, and this one is worthy of even an increased attendance.

Preliminaries at Three and the Finals at Eight o'clock in Hart House

The preliminaries of the annual School of Science assault-at-arms take place this afternoon at three o'clock in the Hart House gymnasium. The finals will be fought off at eight o'clock to-night.

This is one of the biggest assaults that School has ever held and promises to be one of the best. These bouts have always been notorious for their good boxing and wrestling and should not be missed by any enthusiasts of these games.

The entry list speaks for itself: Boxing: 126 lb. Barber, Bannister, McCracken, MacLachlan; 135 lb. Bryan, Smith, Marsh, Hayes; 147 lb. Hedley, Bush; 160 lb. Hallett, Wall; 175 lb. Wallbridge, Duncan, Clark, Elson. Wrestling: 126 lb. Barber, Salter; 134 lb. Wheatley, Masse, Barrett, Boland, Kirk, Inkster; 147 lb. Mueller, Somers, Eaton, Taylor, Jones; 158 lb. Tyson, Dimitrieff, Ord, Mason, Scythes, King.

Of the graduating class of approximately twenty men at the R.C.A.F. training depot, of Camp Borden, four were Manitoba students, one winning the "Sword of Honour" for highest rating in the three summer courses.

The entire assault was well handled by Gord McKinney, intercollegiate wrestler, and though the entries were not as experienced as in former years, they put up game displays and at least two of the winners should go far in the junior assault to be held on the 10th and 11th of this month.

At the University of Minnesota, so many members of the staff have resigned because of low salaries that the academic prestige of the institution is undermined, according to deans and administration officers, as reported in the Minnesota Daily. Outstanding men in every department have been lost within the last few years to other schools that pay more for their professors. Additional buildings are also required.

University of Utah.—For the benefit of the fraternity men on the campus, the Utah Chronicle, in conjunction with the Intra-fraternity Council, has completed a ballot among the social fraternities of the campus as to whether or not those organizations wished to retain favors at formal parties this year.

Only active members of the organizations were allowed to vote. Pledges and alumni members were not counted. Of the ten organizations voting, six favoured the retention of formal favors, while four favored their abolishment. The vote was very close.

Of the total of 189 men voting, 109 favored retention of the custom of presenting mementoes at parties, while 80 were for the abolition of favors.

Lawrence, Kansas.—America, Canada, Belgium, Indo-China, Armenia, and Holland have built dormitories at the University of France for their students according to Monsieur Auguste V. Descols, associate director of the national office of schools and universities in France, who spoke recently in Fraser theatre on "University Life in Paris".

French students in Paris do not as a rule live in dormitories, but recently a French industrial magnate has donated a group of buildings for them. It has room for only about 360 students, which is a very small proportion of the whole student population, which numbers 28,000. Eight thousand of these are foreigners.

Unless college fraternities change their attitudes and adopt a constructive point of view, scholarship and academic work, a recent editorial in "The Michigan Daily" of the University of Michigan warns them that they will disappear.

It is noteworthy that such leading American universities as Yale, Princeton and Harvard have already eliminated fraternities and are finding the dormitory system of residences more satisfactory.

FIRST PERFORMANCE OF CONGREVE'S COMEDY

of the jeers and tumultuous hisses which greeted the first night of "The Way of the World" in London in 1700, William Congreve himself walked out from the wings and said, "Is it your intention to damn this play?"

"Yes, yes," was the cry. "Off, off!"

"Then I tell you," said the author quietly, "that this will be a living play when you are all dead and damned!"

Despite the fact that time has proved Congreve's prophecy to be true, it is pointed out, it is seldom that the opportunity is offered the playgoing public to see this brilliant comedy.

I am in love with a girl who refuses to return my affection in a tangible form unless we are engaged. How can I become engaged without laying myself open to the danger of matrimonial entanglements when I graduate?

—Puzzled Paul, IV U.C.

Ans.—Unless you are willing to state just what you mean by tangible my only advice to you would be: don't graduate.

Dear Aunt Agatha:

I am exasperatingly disappointed in my fiancé. He insists on having midnight lunches of onion sandwiches and I am simply distracted. I cannot bear it any longer. Yet I love him with all my heart. Shall I break off the engagement?

—Hopeless Hepzibah, II U.C.

Ans.—Don't see him after midnight.

—Aunt Agatha.

Dear Aunt Agatha:

There are twenty men on my track and five is the greatest number I can handle at one time. What shall I do?

Ans.—Change your track.

—Aunt Agatha.

Dear Aunt Agatha:

I am a fair co-ed of unstained character. My boy-friend insists that I wear silk stockings during the cold weather. He claims that it makes him itchy to look at woolen ones. It was however, my dear mother's last wish that I protect myself by wearing woolen ones from October to May. Shall I give my darling up or continue to be comfortable?

—Fatuated Fanny, III U.C.

Ans.—Be comfortable—and watch your boy-friend.

—Aunt Agatha.

Dear Aunt Agatha:

The morning after the Hart House Masquerade I found myself married to two men. Dare I show discrimination?

—Perturbed Pauline, III Trinity.

Ans.—Follow the Pauline dictum. All things to all men.

—Aunt Agatha.

Dear Aunt Agatha:

A policeman has been annoying me terribly with his attentions. What shall I do to divert his attentions?

—Annoyed Ann, III Household Science.

Ans.—Buy a police dog.

—Aunt Agatha.

Any amourously addicted student may write to Aunt Agatha in care of "The Varsity", Hart House, University of Toronto. Kindly confine all letters to approximately fifty words.

VIEW OF MONEY IMPORTANT

"Half of the beautiful things of life are impossible to elaborate. The Wealth God is bound to spread out the baser desires because the better cannot be elaborated."

"Much of beauty lies in simplicity and antiquity. True beauty is everlasting, and hasn't the changeability and decay necessary to the wealth-makers and lovers. The beauty that the wealth maker produces can't be lasting, it must be consumed."

"The wealth maker hates the lilies of the field because he can't put silk stockings on them, they can't be elaborated, they don't fit in his scheme."

"Good taste does not fit in with wealth making because it can't stand variety, and variety is the life blood of the wealth maker."

With epigrams and amusing analogies, Professor Urwick developed his theme. He commented on the changing fashions in dress, art and social life, and concluded with giving the philosopher's views on the conditions of wealth.

"Wealth," he said, "depends on the complete satisfaction of all the vital wants of everyone; the sharing of possessions with as large a number of people as possible, and elimination of all base desires in the satisfaction of which the better things of life must suffer."

WOMEN ARE NOT SNOBBISH

shine parlours have private rooms for 'ladies'. This name used to be applied away back, to high-born demoiselles, and it broadened out with the Victorians to include everyone who was 'genteel'. Now it stretches to cover such a variety of individuals, and is used so indiscriminately, that it has not only lost its real distinction—it is positively obnoxious to a great many. Stupid usage has ruined the word. I prefer to be called a woman. Men are evidently of the opinion that 'lady' is not obsolete, and that women are snobs."

Bill Palmer, IV Arts, gave the question some thought. "Are women snobs? No," he said, "I have found it quite the opposite. Those who seem snobbish are often using the attitude as a defence. As for the terms lady and woman. Certainly, I think there is a subtle difference. I don't suppose most people give it much thought, but in using the term lady, I guess we imply something a little higher than woman. I admit the term is abused. And yet when a man calls a girl a lady, he certainly means something fine. Incidentally, a snob is not a lady."

"If a girl can get along without working during the college year, she can derive more from her college career," is the opinion of the advisor for women at Boston University.

However, she advises a girl to work if she must do so, to attend college. She believes that a girl should never try to make use of every free hour; she should have some time for leisure and relaxation.

Summer employment was recommended as a good way to earn a substantial share of the winter's expenses.

All those mentioned above were asked whether the present financial depression will affect their giving at Christmas this year. The first man said his gifts would not be reduced except that his mother-in-law would be neglected! Another is going to use the financial depression as an excuse for cutting down the number of his presents this year and consequently would rather his intentions were not revealed.

Two fortunate men have no worries as to the source of money for their gifts. One enjoys the advantage of several scholarships; the other lives on the income of his grandfather's savings.

A Victoria Charles House man's job disappointed him this summer and as a result he is buying only one dozen Christmas cards instead of two.

"Women dietitians on the staff of leading American magazines receive salaries of ten to fifteen thousand, and the Canadian magazines are rapidly developing the House Management department."

Miss Wilkins regretted the fact that the university offered no regular journalistic course, and recommended all those who intended to make writing their career to take the Extension Course here or the course at Columbia. She pointed out the value of regular writing hours, and advised all beginners to "write for the waste-basket" before submitting stuff to any editor.

"A black enough picture of the world's condition to-day cannot be painted," Professor A. E. Lang, said in his talk on "International Current Events" at Wymilwood yesterday. "The world was never in so critical a position, not even just before the war."

"England is very close to the brink of disaster, closer than most of us realize," declared Professor Lang. "Thousands of people there live solely on the 'Dole'."

"The countries of Europe are lining up allies, not exactly for war, but allies caused the last war," he stated, explaining that Italy and France, now bitter enemies, are trying to see who can get the most allies and effectually thwart his rival's projects.

CHINA YIELDS A CLUE

"My mission to Peking might not be correctly termed ancestor worship," stated Prof. Eliot Smith of the University of London, speaking in Convocation Hall last night on Sianthropus. "The discovery of this skull forms a solid foundation of irrefutable fact, opening a new epoch in human history. It gives us a comprehensive and concrete conception of the early type of man."

Outlining the history of the discovery, Prof. Smith said that the skull was found on the floor of a cave of the Tertiary Period, near Peking, in December 1929. Unlike the two skulls previously unearthed in Britain and elsewhere this one was in one piece, filled with debris and encased in limestone.

"It is the most significant relic of ancient man ever discovered," declared Prof. Smith. "The features of the other two skulls are so different that many had argued that they could not possibly be human remains. The great importance of the Sianthropus skull is that it contains features of both the others, bridging the gap between them, and settling the question."

With the aid of slides, Prof. Smith told the story of the history-making activities of Dr. David Black in China. (Continued on Page 4)

POLITICS NOT DIRTY GAME

Exhorts Student Liberals to Avoid All Partisan
Pettnesses

"Liberalism is a search after knowledge, it is progressive; Conservatism means hanging on to the old things; it is slow to move. The reforming spirit is distinctly Liberalism," said Mr. Nelson Parliament, Liberal organizer for Ontario, at the first University of Toronto Liberal Club luncheon yesterday noon.

"Liberalism has been a universal movement at many periods of the past. The Protestant Reformation was a Liberal movement, as all great reform movements have been," Mr. Parliament continued. "Social legislation has been and is the distinct achievement of governments whose doctrine was Liberalism."

Speaking more directly to the many undergraduates present, Mr. Parliament pointed out the opportunity that they have for the study of the aims and doctrines of Liberalism, and of the Liberal party in Canada. "Study national problems," he said. "Not merely to discover means to use these problems to bring about the political triumph of the Liberal party, but to find ways to better the condition of the nation. You will, I assure you, find that these ways and means are contained in the doctrine of Liberalism, which is the foundation of the Liberal party in Canada."

"When you have completed your university education and go out into the business world, do not confine your interest to the particular branch of business or the profession you may take up. A man with an education should not withhold himself from politics. Many do this; they say that politics is just as free from dishonesty as any branch of business. If it is dirty, it is because the public makes it so."

"Too much party politics has always been present in Canada. I am a strong party man and believe in the party system, but it must be used properly. Too many elections have been won on false cries. CHRISTMAS EXAMS IMPOSED AT WILL OF INSTRUCTORS

Decision As To Method Used for Term Marks Rests with Professor

LIBRARY MORE POPULOUS

"Say, Is This April?" Queries
Student in Crowded
Reading Room

It rests with the professors of the various courses whether or not the students shall have Christmas examinations, it was learned at the Registrar's office yesterday. In most courses a term mark is necessary, and this is usually obtained by term examinations though essays are sometimes used.

This year examinations will be written from Saturday, 13th, to Friday, 19th. The Pass course especially has Christmas examinations, though students of most of the colleges and faculties must write them.

The records of the university library show the effects of the Christmas examinations in the increase in the number of books in circulation. In October of this term, there were 853 books per day used, and in November 1,219. December also runs above the 1,000 mark.

This year the library is used more and more. October, 1930, showed an increase of eight per cent over last year, and November an increase of six per cent. The other day one student, surprised to find the reading room filled, was heard to exclaim, "Say, is this April?"

All necessity of going from student to student studying in the lower reading room of the library, to find out how soon the next lecture begins, has been abolished. This reading room is now provided with a big white clock, which was installed yesterday at noon over one of the doors leading into the stack room.

French Club Continues Its Weekly Meetings With Enthusiasm

BILINGUALIST CRAZE GROWS

The linguists of O.C.E. have shown such enthusiasm that the French Club met again yesterday in spite of the fact that it had met last week. Mr. Ferguson, the honorary president, entertained the members with a graphic description of his trip to Normandy. This recalled to him an extract from Alphonse Daudet's "Lettres de mon Moulin", which he read.

Mr. Ferguson thinks that an effective way of teaching French songs is by means of records. He had several with him which he played, the members joining in the singing.

Miss Irene Trotter of Western University, when questioned as to what benefits she reaped from these meetings, said that it was the best means of facilitating French conversation.

Mr. J. C. Leduc of Ottawa University, when approached on the same subject, thought it was a social asset from the French-Canadian's point of view.

Mr. C. P. Partridge of University of Toronto, thinks that it is a great help in professional work.

Varsity Trims Good West End Quintet By One Point Margin

Varsity seniors nosed out the West Enders last night by one point at West End Y.M.C.A. in a fast exhibition of basketball. After securing a big lead in the first half the Blue team slowed down the play, running true to form and held their opponents at bay.

Then, with several long shots and some untested rebounds, West End suddenly caught up but remained one point down for the remainder of the game. Cook and MacCallum were the best for Varsity with Haugh and Sanford as standouts on the Y line-up. Haugh was high scorer with 8 points.

In the first half West End found it impossible to penetrate the tight defensive play of the Blue quintette, being restricted to four points, secured on two long shots from outside the guard line.

The fast, sure passing of Varsity repeatedly resulted in a close-in score with MacCallum scoring twice on rebounds. Sakler turned in a good performance on the defence, stopping several shots with neat checking.

Then, in the second half, Varsity fell back and West End opened up the play with long shots and passes, running up eight points in succession. But MacCallum kept the Blue team in the lead with a clever rush, dribbling more than half the length of the floor to score from under the basket and the end of the game came with the score 22-21 for Varsity.

UNITED OR UNTIED?

A member of the graduating class of the Department of Public Health Nursing recently stated that she thought that there was a woeful lack of co-ordination between the smaller faculties of this university.

We believe it to be quite true, that, apart from the five or six large faculties, most of which have certain residential accommodation, there is really very little opportunity given for intercourse between the minor departments of the university. Some of these courses are comparatively new and consequently a student who comes into the university from a distant town feels, to an intensified degree, the inevitable isolation common to all students, attendant upon new surroundings and the leaving behind of all friends and relations. It is true that certain acquaintances are made with classmates, but this circle is of its nature very narrow, and does not facilitate the development of a true university spirit, which should be present in each one of us, that it may later give place to an international spirit.

This is a danger peculiar to a large university, as in those of a smaller size, everybody knows everyone else, and the resultant feeling of fellowship is apparent to all who have ever come into contact with these privileged people.

If a university thinks it fit to incorporate a new faculty, these authorities should see to it that its members are properly looked after and not left in the cold without any means whatever for attaining the rank of a bona fide university student. These students are capable of enriching the life of the university just as much as students of an arts faculty, and, indeed, if the nature of their work be considered, they are probably more imbued with the ideals of true fellowship and service than are most students.

The men are probably well looked after in this regard by the extraordinary advantages offered in Hart House, but the women have no common stamping ground where one faculty can become acquainted with the work of another. Ask any student what Physio-Therapy is and he or she will stare blankly at you and probably suggest that it is a branch of physics!

This paper could go on preaching fellowship and co-operation ad nauseum, but unless the students of these smaller faculties voice their resentment as a body, and bring the attention of the authorities to themselves they will continue to be ignored by the rest of the to the no small loss of both sides. If the men of the university realized how many charming young ladies in these courses are anxious to get better acquainted with their fellow students there would be a sudden advent of new societies upon the campus.

Let the negative attitude of officialdom cease and let us have a university with all faculties mixing freely, united on a common ground.

Art, Music and Drama

As a diversion from their regular weekly playlets, the Players' Guild betook themselves to Hart House Theatre, yesterday afternoon, and Mr. Edgar Stone cleverly explained and demonstrated the various intricacies of make-up.

He showed every phase from the base to a formal attire of whiskers, using Mr. Jack Morley for a model. Artistry is the essential in make-up, just as much as in the painting or drawing of an artist, nor must the charm of the person be lost or counteracted, for personality in acting is everything. The charm behind the personality of the actor is what keeps people in their seats, no merely a beautiful make-up, and when the naturalness of the face is tampered with, charm is displaced by incongruity.

It seems, however, that there are ways to accentuate one's beauty—the true purpose of the artifice. Mr. Stone showed how one might make the eyes more lustrous and deep, but he said, with a smile, that the stage no longer required the vamp or Theda Bara effect of lines under the eyes. In speaking of building up the face for comedy characters, he described the difficulties of the long, weird nose in Cyrano de Bergerac, and how many hours it took to perfect it in a work of art.

Drama has many aspects, each as important in its place as another, and make-up is certainly a notable, but rather unappreciated one. The Guild should, therefore, present to the world dramatists, who, if not clever, are at least enlightened.

Gibson Objects

Editor, "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:

May I be permitted to express an opinion regarding your editorial of November 27th. In the report of the Hart House debate of the 26th, to me were attributed the words "a small expenditure to maintain national defence does not mean a defence of militarism and we are duty bound to defend right". The same sentence with a slightly different wording appeared at the head of your editorial.

As well as I am able to recollect, I believe that I did not express the words, "we are duty bound to be able to defend right". If I did so, the meaning implied was this. Canada is a member of the League of Nations and did sign the Covenant. She is, therefore, pledged to provide armed assistance to the League in a case of extreme emergency, in order to defend the decisions of that body. In spite of the argument for complete disarmament the fact of Canada's pledged word and international duty to the League remains clear.

Your editorial of November 27th was a most diminutive contribution to the spirit of the debate and a most inaccurate expression of the stand which I maintained. Your implication that I wished to defend militarism as a national policy is obviously unfounded. I believe in a Canadian army able to act as an additional emergency police force for internal needs, and able to co-operate in providing a military force which will stand behind the moral force exerted by the League. You have, sir, no more right to brand me a militarist than I have to brand as fanatical pacifists, my opponents of the 26th.

With thanks, I am sincerely yours,
J. G. Gibson.

Criticizes Honour Science Courses

Editor, "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:

It was with much interest that I read N.L.T.'s letter in to-day's "Varsity". The criticism levelled at the Honour Science courses are in my opinion deserved. There are several important points which he has missed and on which I feel especially keen.

First, Sir, may I present the plea that the pass subjects in this course should not be compulsory. If these pass subjects were optional a student might spend more time on one subject and derive greater benefit from it. By practicing this throughout the four years he would have an opportunity to continue one subject throughout or he would be able to spend sufficient time on one subject to really grasp it in a year. With this modification the pass subjects would serve a real purpose.

My second thought is the disproportionate distribution of time spent on the three major subjects in the course, namely, physics, chemistry and biology. If this is to be the ground work for a course in Science, should not an equal time of work be allowed on all three of these subjects? Consulting the time table it is seen that the hours are approximately equal, while considering the outside work demanded on these subjects, it is realized that they are totally out of all sense of proportion.

Sincerely trusting this discussion may be carried on with definite benefit to the courses involved and thanking you for this space in your publication so noted for its freedom of thought,

Yours, etc.,
SCY.

ST. HILDA'S CAGERS DOWN U.C.; MED POLOISTS EARN BIG LEAD

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

The brand of basketball displayed at the first of the final games for the interfaculty cup last night between St. Hilda's and Senior U.C., was not of the calibre which is expected of teams which have gone as far towards the interfaculty championship as these two have.

Except for a few minutes in the second half, when the Saints showed a flash of real form, neither team combined as well as they did in some of the league games. There was a great deal of sloppy passing, and quite a bit of inaccurate shooting, with the players loitering on the sides of the floor or bunching in the middle.

Although the Saints started strongly and scored six points before the Red and White broke into the score sheet, U.C. had the edge in the first half, and were up four points at half time. The fine floor work of Louise Crouch and her accurate shooting accounted for the difference in the score in this period.

U.C. managed to hold their lead until more than half of the second period was over, but with about seven minutes to go the Saints came to life and soon went into the lead by one point. Due to some strong defensive work they were able to hold U.C. until the final whistle and increased their lead by one point on a free shot by Sally Ballard.

Except for the work of Louise Crouch, the U.C. combination was almost entirely lacking. Time after time, she had possession of the ball at centre floor and had to waste valuable time because no one could get in a position for a pass. In the dying moments of the game, with the count 27 to 25 against them, U.C. tried some long shots which went wide of the mark, and almost paved the way for St. Hilda's to run up a larger lead.

However, both teams were handicapped to a certain extent by the fact that they were playing on a comparatively strange floor. By next Tues-

St. Hilda's will carry a two-point lead into the final game for the interfaculty basketball championship, as a result of their 27 to 25 victory over senior U.C. last night at Hart House. The game was very exciting, especially in the last few minutes, when the Saints were leading by one point, and U.C. resorted to long passes and long shots in an effort to pull the game out of the fire.

Play started slowly, with St. Hilda's running in three baskets before the Red and White struck their stride. U.C. then forged ahead, due to the good work of Louise Crouch on the forward line, who scored 10 points in this half and did most of the playing in the forward area for her team. After the interval, U.C. came back day night, when the second game will be played, both squads will probably be in form again, and the result should be a much more interesting contest.

Some of the outstanding players on interfaculty basketball teams have taken rather an unfortunate attitude in the games just completed. They give a rather distinct impression that they do not care about interfaculty, and play in the fall only to be in practice for the intercollegiate tryouts after Christmas. Such an attitude is fatal; it handicaps even the best of coaches and one player who acts in this manner can do a whole lot toward disorganizing team play and team spirit.

St. Michael's and Vic have decided to postpone the third game of the basketball series until the gym at U.T.S. is available, which will probably be next Tuesday night at 6 o'clock. The home floors of both teams are not of the best, and it is desirable that the third and deciding game should be played on neutral ground, where both teams can be at top form.

At a meeting of the Athletic Directorate held yesterday afternoon, the recommendation of the executive of the basketball club that Miss Marion Forward, twice coach of the intercollegiate seniors, and Ruth Harrison, St. Hilda's, who managed the same team last year, was formally accepted, and the appointment of these two capable officials is now a certainty.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By A. C. C.

Yesterday's assault maintained the high standard of boxing and wrestling that has made the annual School of Science tournament the best of these interfaculty events. School again shows the way. The assault was well handled and most of the bouts were hard fought. More action was displayed in the mat game than last year and several promising grapplers were uncovered. Dimitrieff, a freshman, lived up to his Russian traditions, and was good enough to win the 158 pound class handily.

Bush gained the only knockout of the day when he had Hedley out on his feet in the third round of a gory battle. The referee said uncle for Hedley, although the latter was game to carry on. As a matter of fact, Hedley looked to be leading in points at the time, but the heavy body blows of the winner wore him down.

The Medicos are having their mit, mat and thrust squabbles today. University College will hold theirs on the 8th if there are enough entries from the largest faculty on the campus. The junior assault will take place on the 10th and 11th. Don't pass up any of these fight festivals.

We took time off from the S.P.S. scraps to watch St. Hilda's gain a two point lead over U.C. to take into the final game Tuesday. Prominent among those present was a large contingent from Trinity. U.C. men were conspicuous by their absence. The Saints are present title holders, but despite a handicap of two points, the Red and White gals are determined to wrest the coveted laurels from them.

The Varsity water polo team are out to smother West End "Y" to-night at the "Y" tank. Last year the West Enders took the Daily Star trophy, emblematic of the City League championship, away from them, but this year the Blues are confident of retrieving the silver ware. Bob Armstrong, Varsity centre star, who is ill, will be replaced by Davey, the lad who has been doing the heavy scoring for Meds. In yesterday's game with U.C. Davey accounted for 3 of his team's 5 points, and did his bit to keep the Artsmen off the score-sheet.

quite strongly, and managed to hold their lead for about half of the period. The Saints' forward line then came to life, and gradually forged ahead, and with three minutes to go, were in the lead by one point. The combination of the Saints' forward line was particularly good in this period, and the defence did not give the U.C. line many openings. Bea Symons was outstanding for St. Hilda's and scored 17 of her team's points, besides playing an effective game otherwise. Louise Crouch and Jean Allen were best for U.C., and Miss Crouch was the most effective player on the floor offensively. The game was very rough and although only thirteen personal fouls were called, there were a number which went unnoticed.

St. Hilda's—Bea Symons 17, Sally Ballard 5, forwards; Margot Thompson, side centre; Fran Crooks, jumping centre; Isabel Wright, Gwen Murrell-Wright, defence; subs, Ruth Harrison 4, Margaret Lambie, Naomi Slater.

Senior U.C. — Wilma Hazlett 9, Madge Newman 6, forwards; Louise Crouch 10, side centre; Jean Allen, jumping centre; Adele Statten, Dot Starr, defence; subs, Jean Robertson, Pat McLean, Toots Moritz.

She spoke of several writers who had literally "written their way around the world" in this way.

Miss Wilkins explained that a knowledge of the type of newspaper or the magazine for which you are writing is one of the most essential features of the writing game. She, herself, writes for both "The Gossip" and "Saturday Night", but one assumes a different style for each. "You must be able to put yourself in the place of your readers," she said.

When U.C. Team Play Broken Up

WINNERS SLOW ATTACK

Junior Meds secured a strangle hold on the Eckhardt Cup when they outplayed and outscored U.C. juniors in the first game of the interfaculty water polo finals, finishing on the long end of a 5-0 score. In blanketing the Red and White team the Medical squad practically assured themselves of the title, as goals on the round count in the two-game series.

The winners unleashed a powerful attack in the first half, and when the Arts boys became disorganized, ran in enough goals to settle the issue. U.C. rallied strongly in the last half and the teams played the entire seven minutes without a score.

U.C. secured on the centre and Lealie sent in a hard shot. Rogers was given a free shot and made no mistake, taking the corner for Meds' first goal. Ross scored for the losers but it was disallowed. Eric Davey stole the ball from Ross and dented the net on a nice shot from centre. A minute later he did it again to make it 3-0. Tindale sent a fast shot over the top for U.C.

Davey gave Middleboro a perfect pass for the Red and Black's fourth counter, and Davey picked up a loose ball and hurled it home to make the half time total 5-0.

Under the spell of George Spence's vociferous coaching, U.C. fought back hard in the final canto, and Ross' shot just skimmed the top of the net. Close checking kept both teams from breaking away, but the losers should have scored at least three goals in this half. Their shooting was very erratic. (Continued on Page 4)

Closely contested bouts featured the annual S.P.S. assault held yesterday afternoon and evening in the boxing room at Hart House. The tournament was a decided improvement over last year's meet, chiefly due to the more extensive conditioning which has been carried on during the past few weeks.

The feature bout of the assault was the clash between Bush and Hedley in the 147 lb. boxing final. Both men showed that hitting ability coupled with speed, which is so noticeable in the welterweight class. Bush scored heavily with right hooks to the body and gradually wore his opponent down. He was awarded the decision on a technical knockout in the last round. In the heavyweight final, Mel Elson secured the decision over Wallbridge after an aggressive bout. E. R. Eaton demonstrated the advantage of possessing a powerful straight left in defeating Wall in the 160 lb. class. After a hard fight Marsh received the decision over Bryant in the lightweight class. The 126 lb. final between Bannister and MacLachlan was postponed until to-morrow.

Both bouts were hard fought and in the first it was the referee's decision that gave the bout to Eaton. In the second bout he secured the only fall on a strong headlock. Dressed poultry shows are being held in Regina on December 10th and in Saskatoon on December 11th for the purpose of arousing friendly competition in poultry production among the farmers of the province and further to advertise the poultry industry, according to W. Waldron, provincial markets commissioner. Mr. Waldron said that money prizes and special awards are to be given at these shows.

Little Julian Vebob, of Princeton, B.C., eight years of age, has accepted foster parenthood of his 2½-year-old sister, Marie, and his 1½-month-old brother, Mat, across the Atlantic on Canadian Pacific liner Montcalm, while their father treks back to his wifeless home in the mountains. That the British and American people should assist the Kuomintang Nanking Government in the continuation of its difficult task of drawing China together, is the opinion of Col. Haley Hall, D.S.O., British Customs Commissioner, late of Tientsin. Interviewed recently while en route to London, England, by Canadian Pacific Railway, "The Empire," military power and general ability are to be found in this Southern Government, and only when China is reorganized will business conditions become stabilized," he added.

It is just 25 years since the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan were created. At that time the population of Alberta was 185,000. It is now about 650,000. Saskatchewan in 1905 had a population of about 195,000; now it is around 867,000. Total area of land under cultivation in Alberta, 25 years ago, was 650,000 acres. To-day the two provinces have 15,000,000 and 30,000,000 acres under crop, respectively.

Two big bull moose—one of them one of the finest this year to come out of New Brunswick forests—and six buck deer were the trophies of the hunting party headed by Bob Shawkey, late manager of New York Yankees. Harry Rice, Yankee outfielder; Benny Bengough, former Yankee catcher, now with Milwaukee, and John Kracke, New York sportsman, were the other members of the party and all were successful in getting game.

The Southern Alberta honey crop this year will reach at least 750,000 pounds or almost double what it was a year ago, according to latest advices. The quality this year is said to be very high.

EMMANUEL OPENS ABOUT XMAS, STATES REGISTRAR

Emmanuel College will be used by men in the Theology course. This is a seven year course for ministers of the United Church. It will consist of an Arts degree and then three years at Emmanuel.

In conjunction with the creation of the new college, some new residences are being built. These extend some five hundred feet behind Burwash Hall. The foundation has just been completed, and it is expected that this addition should be finished about April, and the opening take place at the beginning of the fall term. Since these residences will be occupied only by graduates and senior men, it will be very up-to-date, and perhaps a little better than the rest. Professor Auger explained that the accommodation of this residence would be about seventy. These would be divided into five houses with about thirteen men in each house. The work on both these buildings is getting along fine, and from what one can tell from their present condition, they should be very beautiful buildings when finished. The Emmanuel College is made of grey stone and is a striking contrast to Victoria which is just alongside it.

The Protagonist of Posterity

By P. A. Gardner

RACY RHYMES
Consist this week of a few suggested theme-songs for productions past, present and future.

FASHIONS IN LOVE
The sun shines bright,
My head is light,
My heart with love is humming
For Ralph or Clyde—
I can't decide
Which would be more becoming.

TWIN BEDS
After long long months of waiting
The great day has dawned—and how!
Frederick, my old four-poster,
Is a proud proud daddy now.

Nasty Old Herb Brown's song for the heroine in "Trader Horn", forthcoming, will probably run something like this:
Oh, Trader Horn, I love you!
Oh, Trader Horn, I do!
With your Jungle Jingle Jangle
And your Monkey Doodle Doo.

BIG CONTEST
Perhaps you have been wondering just what our sub-head this week signifies. As a matter of fact we are rather anxious to know ourselves. Therefore, by special arrangement with Miss Kitty Catto, of Catto's Ltd, we are offering fifty prizes in Crash, to the total value of 39 cents a yard, for the best answers explaining just why "posterity" invariably begins with a "p".

If you are planning a Calico Tea or a Gingham Orgy, be sure to procure your materials from Catto's. Our motto is "All the goods that's fit to print." And don't forget to look over the new Tulle Kits. (Adv't.)

Regarding the contest, which closes on Dec. 3, 1930, you may get an inkling next week. In case you don't know what an inkling is, it's the five-cent size of Skrip.

BOOK REFUSE

Eaton's Abasement. Traffic Press. $0.19.

Pride takes a fall in the underworld. Typical excerpt: "Stand and deliver!" commanded Elmo grimly.

"I'm sorry," said Winnie demurely, "but the afternoon delivery is closed." "My C.O.D.," exclaimed Elmo. "How can I sleep without pajamas?" Winnie's reply will be found on page 333 of your copy of the book, which is procurable in all drugstores.

Speaking of our fans (both of them) reminds us that we are hoping by Christmas to see their numbers increased to two million, perhaps more. We are glad to be able to tell you, as proof of our world-wide popularity, ity, that we even have a Japanese fan. . . . No, we haven't, either. Little Prudence, our third youngest but six, has just come in with downcast eyes and confessed. "Poodenth wath duta pyaying wiv it," she lisped, and we didn't have the heart to punish her. We let her off with a warning. Next time, though, we'll cancel her subscription to Toike Oike, and won't that break her heart!

Another fan, Miss Mildred Miff, '43, writes in to suggest "Knickers? No, White People!" as the title for the next Paira Pance story. Thank you, Mildred. But next time you write we would like it better if you requested our photograph.

According to a widely advertised statement, "Three Faces East". Well, we may have been wrong all these years, but our 3 faces and will continue to face west.

Here's a joke which we feel assured will conform to Professor Satterly's standards of a good clean joke, as exemplified recently by him amid loud applause.

"George Gray, inventor, asserts that his helicopter aeroplane will rise from the ground at an angle of 190 degrees."

And here's a specially selected conundrum for Ernest, our most prolific fan, whose letter we are preserving in our fan attic.

Q. Why do old maids wear cham-oisette gloves?

A. To keep the chaps off.
There is, of course, another answer, but it is not for Ernest's dainty ears and blown-glass sensibilities.

A book just published bears the title "Those Earnest Victorians". And very timely, too.

In conclusion, we repeat, for the benefit of those who don't read Judge Jr.'s column, the best story of recent months.

In the days of the old silents, Conrad Nagel (the Robert Leslie of Hollywood), and Aileen Pringle, were scheduled to make a scene of flaming passion. After twelve retakes the director, disgusted, exclaimed, "Well, try it once more and we'll let it go at that!" They did. And someone overheard a bit of their conversation as they came out of the clench. "As I was saying," said Nagel, "there are at least twelve Christian Science churches already in Los Angeles, and more are bound to come."

Don't miss next week's issue of Tush! The inside dope on Toronto's most appalling scandal! Out Thursday!

ing a better policy is bound to be harmful to the country. A party should always stand for something which is going to be of benefit to the country."

Speaking of the position Canada has won for herself among the nations of the world in spite of her small population, Mr. Parliament said that the most capable men must continue this progress as a duty.

"Canada has great opportunities for achieving greatness," he said. "If we miss our opportunities it will be because the capable men have not done their part."

In concluding his address Mr. Parliament stated the policy of the Liberal party in Canada. These were, he said, Individual Liberty; Collective Prosperity; National Unity; and a tending towards nationhood.

Mr. J. Wilson, president of the Twentieth Century Association of Ontario, and Mr. Harris, president of the Twentieth Century Club of Toronto, were present and gave short addresses. Mr. T. W. Jamieson, Victoria IV, president of the University Liberal Club, introduced the speakers.

Empire, such courses are being contemplated by the University of British Columbia and the University of Alberta, but there has been no request for such an extension department here according to W. J. Dunlop, Director of the University Extension.

"It is only in case of murder or for blood tests that we have recourse to the university," said Mr. Guthrie. "We have our own school for training recruits for the police force and we give them a training in the general background of criminology. Our detectives pick up their knowledge from practical experience and have no special training."

"A school such as that established for the Vancouver police might be very useful, but there has never been any attempt to set up such a course here, nor is it likely that any of our police will be sent to the school out west."

The city police provide protection during the rugby games and supervise traffic and help the university police force whenever asked. In the trouble with the Communists last year students of the university even co-operated with us in dispersing them from the university grounds."

GERMAN STUDY CLUB HEARS VIVID LECTURE ABOUT PASSION PLAY

Rehearsals Begun in Autumn
So Actors Could Grow Their Own Beards

INTEREST IS GREAT

A Comedy by Ludwig Thoma Was Read, Aided by Side-Acting

"When we arrived in Oberammergau, we entrusted our baggage to a porter who looked as though he had walked out of the Old Testament," was the opening remark of Mrs. G. Holt's most interesting account of her impression of the Passion Play, addressed to a meeting of the German Study Club held yesterday evening in Wymilwood.

"All spectators went to mass, then took their places for the performance, which begins at 8 o'clock, lasting till 12, and continuing from 2 till 6. Rehearsals for the play begin the autumn before the presentation, which gives the actors time to grow the beards and hair necessary for their parts, as no wigs are allowed. There is a rehearsal of 2 hours every evening—the whole village is so immersed in the spirit of the play that they themselves almost live the events of the Passion of Christ, and it is this simplicity and wholeheartedness which determines the success of the presentation."

A group of remarkably fine actors read "The Poor Relations", a comedy by Ludwig Thoma, and with their humorous side-acting, helped the club to understand what it was all about. Beethoven's Fifth Symphony played on the Orthophonic, concluded a most interesting evening.

NATIONS CLUB WILL DEBATE EUROPE U.S.

Model Assembly Will Be Held in Victoria College Hall

OPEN TO UNDERGRADUATES

The University of Toronto League of Nations Club will stage a Model Assembly of the League of Nations, Tuesday, December the 9th at eight o'clock in the Alumnae Hall of Victoria College. The subject under discussion will be the organization of a United States of Europe, originally the idea of Count Coudenhove-Kalergi and proposed at the last session of the Council of the League by M. Briand.

The proposal will be put forward by J. L. Stewart of Trinity College, and L. Tarshis, of University College, representing France. The opposition to the proposal will be launched by S. Hughes of Trinity College and L. Mahan of University College. The Assembly will take the same form as the Model Assembly of last year only it will not be on as large a scale.

After the conclusion of the debate, which will be participated in by members of numerous organizations on the campus, a critique will be delivered by one of the advisers of the League of Nations Club on the faculty. Following this a vote will be polled on the proposal.

All clubs interested are invited to send delegates or any individual wishing to participate should get in touch with J. L. Stewart. All delegates will be representatives of countries and it is hoped to have as varied a list of countries represented as possible.

PERFECT UNIVERSITY IN GRADUATE SENSE

Should be a Free Society of Scholars, Flexner's Idea

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

This university is not a "perfect university" according to the criterion suggested by Abraham Flexner in his recent book, "Modern Universities". Such was the gist of the remarks given to "The Varsity" by Dr. R. B. McElheran, principal of Wycliffe College, in an interview yesterday afternoon.

"A school, or institute of higher learning, a university in the post-graduate sense of the word, should be a free society of scholars. Administration should be slight and inexpensive. Scholars and scientists should participate in its government, the president should come down off his pedestal."

This definition of Flexner's does not apply to the University of Toronto in the undergraduate sense, in the opinion of Dr. McElheran. It does, however, apply to the group of scholars who are doing post-graduate work here, as for example, those carrying on research in the department of physics. The graduates are practically all subject to no interference either from the outside or from the administrative (Continued on Page 4)

Address Announced of Last Fall's Editor

N. J. DeWitt, former Editor-in-Chief of "The Varsity", who for the past eight months has been a patient in a sanatorium for lung disorders at Gravenhurst, Ontario, has recently been moved to Arizona, where it is expected a winter's rest will affect a complete cure in the pulmonary condition from which he has been suffering following an attack of pneumonia last winter.

Mr. DeWitt's new address, as ascertained last night by "The Varsity" through the kindness of his father, Professor N. W. DeWitt of Victoria College, is: 1735 East 3rd Street, Tucson, Arizona.

UNIVERSITIES FAIL IF THEY DO NOT ADD TO WORLD HAPPINESS

So States Principal Wallace in First of Thursday Lectures

OUTLINES BEST PROFESSOR

Most of Them Should Devote Themselves to Sensible Criticism

"In one respect we may regard universities as having failed. Great scientists who have graduated from our universities have given us great comforts, but it is doubtful whether we have brought peace and happiness to the hearts of men," said Principal M. W. Wallace of U.C., in the first of the annual series of lectures held in West Hall yesterday. "We are keenly aware of human misery. We can produce clothing but we have not learned to clothe the naked. A perfectly functioning university should contribute to the happiness of the world."

Speaking of the qualities which should be possessed by capable professors, Mr. Wallace was of the opinion that professors should be investigators and researchers after truth. He should not have a maze of complicated ideas, but they should be clear. Mr. Wallace believed that no quarter should be shown to those who are lazy and incompetent. He was of the opinion that only a few professors who have the ability should attempt to publish works, and that the rest should devote themselves to sensible criticism of articles, and search after truth.

"A professor who is lazy or dull, or is lacking in self-control, is little more than a public nuisance," he said. Principal Wallace expressed his opposition to the groups of business men who support the universities to-day. He believed that those of them who think that a university should only encourage the technical problems of life to-day, and that the dead languages ought not to be taught, are mistaken. But he was thankful for the faith in learning for its own sake, which is held tenaciously by many unlearned men and women.

Hail To Varsity's Perfect Male Gaspard McGuffey, Hail All Hail!

Varsity's perfect male has been found! After several days of searching into the validity of the any entries received, the contest editors are in a position to divulge the result. They wish to state that, while the struggle for first place was at all times keen, it was always possible to pick the ultimate winner. No other man received the nominations of so many of the co-eds and no man was awarded such high marks by his female admirers. Who is the winner? None other than our dear old friend Gaspard McGuffey!

The marks that Gaspard was awarded by the members of the fair sex who sent in his name were averaged by the contest board and are as follows: Looks, 90; Health, 95; Individuality, 99; Sportsmanship, 95; Efficiency, 84; Background, 95; Money matters, 78; Domesticity, 100; Disposition, 92; Charm, 94. Conditions are not jet black in the opinion of the economics department, but they certainly are a very dark grey. The world has gone through trade depressions before and can live through them again. When interviewed by "The Varsity" with regard to the statements made by Professor A. E. Lang at Wymilwood to the effect that the world has never been in so critical a position before Mr. Plumtree, lecturer in the department of economics disagreed with Prof. Lang's opinion that France was in the best condition to-day.

VERSATILE IN INTERESTS

A complete description of the management of the Port of London was given by A. E. Wilder and A. E. Smith, representing the Port of London Authority, in an address to the Engineering Society yesterday afternoon.

The Port of London Authority, it was explained, was formed in 1909 to operate the Harbour of London, replacing private organizations.

It operates all the warehouses and stores the varied commodities which are imported, and in addition controls 69 miles of docks. It conducts the sampling, testing, sorting and weighing of shipments for the importer, thereby assuring him of impartial work. It provides passenger facilities and is financially self-supporting. Convocation and Dining Halls For Trinity Wing

Some additions to Trinity College are expected within two years, Provost Cosgrave told "The Varsity" to-day. A large dining hall and a convocation hall will be built, and two new residences will replace the ones now in use. The new men's residence will be directly north of the college, and the women's residence will be west of Devonshire Place, it is expected. A chapel is also contemplated. These buildings will all be commenced within two years, the Provost said, if at all possible. It depends on conditions.

Students Want More of Vincent

When interviewed as to the defects of "The Varsity" and any suggestions for its improvement, the students seemed to think that the only thing not worthy of being complained about was the paper on which it is printed. Otherwise everything from the editorial to Champus Cat displeased someone or other. The general attitude of the students towards the paper was aptly expressed by an Arts man, when he said that they seem to be going around "with a chip on their shoulder".

J. U. Coleman, II Meds: "I think that the paper is turned out too often and therefore has not a chance of being very good. As to its picking quarrels with the authorities, that happens in all university papers. I come from British Columbia and the paper at that university was often involved in arguments."

T. G. Spencer, II Victoria: "The paper should be published every two days, and the quality would be considerably improved. Champus Cat is no good just now. It was better last year."

J. McGeog, II St. Michael's: "It ain't what it used to be. It isn't as interesting. It should be a little more breezy."

ABOLISH PASS OPTIONS

"I'm not overworked this year. In first year you are—your spend all your evenings on physics problems," said Louise Elder, III C. and M., when asked by "The Varsity" yesterday during a laboratory period for her opinion of the letters which have appeared in "The Varsity" recently complaining of overwork in the Honour Science courses.

"Three hundred per cent of our time in first year is spent on John Satterly's problems, and labs. The rest of the time is our own," commented M. Freed, III C. and M.

Dr. E. F. Burton, professor of physics, referred "The Varsity" to the calendar when spoken to yesterday. Chemistry, biology and physics each contribute one half hour to what is described in the calendar as Course 18, which is called Physics because it is given in the Physics Building, although Dr. Burton explained, it is really more closely related to Chemistry and Biology. Dr. Satterly lectures on this subject because he is well qualified to do so.

"French and German are necessary for anyone who intends to get his Ph.D.," said Dr. Burton. "Many students do not know what they are going to do when they first enter the university. The other pass subjects are due to the arrangements with (Continued on Page 4)

QUIXOTE

"Write for the waste-basket," was the counsel given here the other day to co-eds aspiring to journalism, by one of Toronto's leading presswomen. She went on to deplore the lack of a regular course in journalism at this University, stressed the importance of the Extension Course in Journalism, and pointed out the value of regular writing hours. One of her salient remarks was: "You must be able to put yourself in the place of your readers."

All of which is, doubtless, very sound. We have no quarrel in the world with the lady in question. She views writing from a strictly commercial viewpoint. She appears to have no illusions whatever about such old-fashioned fictions as "inspiration". The much-overrated artistic temperament will wilt like an autumn flower before her cold, common-sense attitude. The criterion of a work of prose or verses, in her world, is its market value.

One may be pardoned, nevertheless, if he permits himself a slight and possibly prejudiced shudder, at the thought of several hundred methodical female magazine writers seated doggedly before as many typewriters in the act of putting themselves in the place of their readers. One craves the privilege, also, of being so old-fashioned as to indulge in the once highly-regarded whimsy that—far from writing for the waste-basket by way of apprenticeship—if one has something to say, the words and style will follow; and that unless one finds it an absolute physical impossibility to refrain from writing, one had better not write at all.

As for a University course in journalism, the market is already sufficiently glutted by third-rate hack writers without our gracing their soporific scribbles with an academic degree. The English-speaking world is crawling with twelve-year-old minds which have received diplomas from so-called Extension Courses in Journalism. Books, magazines, and newspapers are hourly disgorged from the all-too-mechanically-perfect presses. The art of the book of verse and the jug of wine is lost in a world which subsists very nicely on true story periodicals and ice cream sodas.

If any more courses are to be added to the University curriculum, we suggest a course in Contemplation.

Them Few Kind Words

Editor, "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:
A few days ago I adopted the standpoint of a critic, and expressed myself as I then saw fit. However, it is only fair play that one should not look wholly to the errors and shortcomings (as one sees them), in a fellow being; but should be willing and glad to commend and praise, from the same viewpoint.

I, therefore, would here like to express my praise and commendation of the fine points of "The Varsity", with particular reference to the Champus Cat of Tuesday, and also in respect to that day's Editorial. Both of these articles are stimulating food for thought and are such as would make us justly proud of our undergraduate daily. May there be more of them!

Thanking you for your space, I remain,

Yours truly,
Ernest W. MacQuarrie,

It would be more helpful for the modern college girl to attend parties oftener than she does, instead of staying home and studying late at night, according to a statement by Dr. Louise Powell Brown of Hunter College. Some of the most trying moments are given teachers by girls who study to the exclusion of social affairs, Dr. Brown said—Columbia Spectator.

U.C. Players' Guild

To-night and twice to-morrow, the Players' Guild of University College are presenting The Way of the World in Hart House Theatre.

This play by Congreve is the most representative drama of the two centuries immediately after Shakespeare, and is the most popular by far of all the early seventeenth century comedies.

In presenting it, the Players' Guild is making a very valuable contribution to local amateur dramatic history.

No one in the university who enjoys spicy comedy, or who wishes to be considered informed about the theatre should miss this production.

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

Varsity senior hockey team held their first practice at Varsity Arena yesterday, and had an encouraging turnout. They have been fortunate in securing the services of Jack Sinclair of rugby fame, as coach, and although he was not out yesterday, the team is counting on him to lead them again to the championship which they won from Queen's last year.

The team has lost only three players from their championship outfit of last year, and as there are a couple of promising freshies out, they expect to be able to round out a strong team. Gwen Murrell-Wright, III St. Hilda's, will manage the team this year and should prove to be a capable official.

There are several girls who were outstanding on interfaculty hockey teams who would probably make a strong bid for a position with the intercollegiate. Wilma Spear, who captained the U.C. team in 1929, is back at college this year, and would be a welcome addition to the list of aspirants.

The second game of the finals for the interfaculty basketball championship will be played on Tuesday night of next week at Hart House. Both St. Hilda's and Senior U.C. will put in some strenuous practices before they clash again, and the game on Tuesday should be an extremely exciting one.

Now that the basketball season for most colleges is over, there are some girls who played on these teams who would now like to turn out for baseball. They were prevented from playing both before because of the one-sport rule. However, there is a ruling that to qualify for a semi-final or final game, a girl must have played in a league game. The game next week between St. Michael's and Vic is the deciding one, so these girls will unfortunately not be eligible.

VARSIITY-WEST END Y POLO FINISHES TIED

Blue Led First Half of Slow Game by Two Points

DAVEY AND CULINER STAR

Varsity senior water polo team tied West End Y 2-all in a rather rugged game in the latter's pool last night. Varsity had the better of the play in the first half and were two up at half time, but the Westenders came to life in the second half and evened things up.

The Blue and White started off with a strong offensive and Culiner scored on a pass from Davey after 35 seconds of play. The Y team had a close call when the same player's shot hit the cross bar. Kable, in West End goal, made some nice saves, but most of the many fast shots by Culiner, Davey and Spence were a little wide. Just after a fast shot by Spence had hit the cross bar, Glass put the Collegians two up on a pass from Davey. Davey missed three fast shots and the score was 2-0 for Varsity at half time.

In the second half West End pressed and had most of the play. Ayers was forced to make some spectacular stops to keep the West Enders off the score sheet, but after many tries Kennett scored the initial goal for the Y on a backhand shot which bounced off the head of a forward. About this time, Glass and Sellers were put off for rough-housing. After three wide shots and a brilliant save by Ayers, Lansittic tied the score when he beat the Varsity goalie with a beautiful shot after evading his check. Both sides fought hard for a score, but the game ended in a tie.

Varsity's usual smooth combination was lacking, probably because of the small pool. The Junior Meds stars, Davey and Culiner, stood out on the Blue and White team, while Lansittic and Kennett were best for West End.

JUNIORS MEET FALLS TO-NIGHT AT ARENA

Have Stiff Opposition in Champions of Last Year

CATARACTS FAVOURITES

Varsity juniors enter the third round of the S.P.A. junior hockey series to-night at the Arena Gardens when they face Niagara Falls, one of the strongest junior aggregations in the province, in the second game of the double header.

Junior S.P.A. teams have now reached mid-season form and with the semi-finals and final series next week the remaining teams in the running will provide some keen and exciting struggles in the race for the coveted trophy. The juniors, under the coaching of Frank Sullivan, showed considerable improvement in their last game in which they trounced the Aurora team 8-2 and have been flashing some smart hockey in their workouts the past week in preparation for the game with the Falls.

Niagara Falls were the winners of the S.P.A. Junior series last year and are counted on repeating again this year. It is said that the team that defeats the Falls will win the cup. Although the Cataracts have lost two of their best players of last year's champion team, they have added two, the Bowman brothers, formerly of the Parkdale juniors. This will be the first appearance of the Falls team here this season, they having a bye to (Continued on Page 4)

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By T. A. F.

Frank Sullivan's Varsity juniors will face the well-known acid test to-night. They are tackling the strong Niagara Falls Cataracts, present holders of the S.P.A. trophy, in the second game of a doubleheader. Despite the loss of Jerry Shannon and "Fan" Heximer, who have lined up with Port Colborne seniors, Gene Fraser's crew look almost as strong as last year. Kaminsky, at centre, whose work featured the great series in the finals with West Toronto last year, is going better than ever this season. In addition our old friends the Bowman brothers, who starred for P.C.C. against the Blues last year, have been persuaded to play their hockey for the Cataracts. Their addition certainly does not weaken the team. However, the Sullivanites are capable of turning the trick. They look better every time out, and in any case it will be a real game.

Football is still with us. Regina Roughriders, perennial champions of the Prairies, are bringing what is reputed to be the strongest team which ever came east in search of the Dominion title to try conclusions with Balmy Beach, conquerors of Hamilton Tigers, at the Stadium to-morrow. The Westerners are confident of being able to turn the trick this season. As a matter of fact they say the same thing every year, but this time there is a real possibility that they will come through. The class of football on the prairies is improving every season and the Regina outfit looks good enough on paper to put up a real struggle. Unfortunately, the forward pass is barred and an effective trick is thus removed from their attack. Still, as we have said before, you never can tell in football. The Beachers pulled a surprise last week and to-morrow they may be on the receiving end of another upset. Latest reports state that the senior tussle will be preceded by the final between Argonaut and Native Sons of Winnipeg for the Junior Dominion title. The doubleheader should provide a fitting ending to the season with plenty of action for the fans. Don't miss this, as they say in the theatre reviews.

The senior O.H.A. looks to be in for the biggest season in some years. Last winter the close struggles and the fine brand of hockey put on by Varsity, Queen's and the Sea Fleas, began to win back some of the fans who had deserted the simon pures for the pros. Several of the turnouts brought back memories of the old days when Granites, Varsity, Dentals et al were packing 'em in to see the best hockey in the world. The only trouble was the fact that is was only a three-team group, with the Fleas and Blues fighting it out for the top rung. It will be different this year. Six teams will go to the barrier with keen competition assured. The teams are Varsity, Nationals, Marlboros, Kitchener, Hamilton and Port Colborne, and anyone who can pick the eventual winner from an evenly matched sextet like this is some picker.

The "T" senior water poloists received a rude jolt last night when West End "Y" held them to a two-all tie in the latter's tank. The men of Latchford were counting on a victory to put them in first place in the City League, but they were unable to hold a two-goal lead obtained in the first half. The small pool seemed to handicap the Blues and they failed to show their best form. The fact that Bob Armstrong was missing from his regular position at centre also weakened the team, although Davey, who replaced him, turned in a nice game, making the passes for both the team's goals.

The second and final game for the interfaculty water polo championship will be played to-day at five o'clock. Meds are carrying a five-goal lead into the struggle and are confident of preserving it. They haven't won the cup yet, however. U.C. got off to a bad start in the first half of Wednesday's game, the Meds running in five goals before the Red and White could get under way. The Artsmen will not go down without a real fight in to-day's game. They have played great polo all season and are quite capable of turning the tables on their rivals.

MEDICAL ASSAULT HAS 3 KNOCKOUTS

Bannister Beats McLachlan in S.P.S. 125 lb. Final

FULTON DEFEATS EATON

Although Meds assault did not bring out an exceptionally large number of entrants, the quality of the bouts was above average and as a result the fans were treated to some high class boxing and wrestling last evening in Hart House.

The program consisted of six boxing bouts, three of which ended in knockouts, and four wrestling bouts, only one receiving a decision, the others all ending in straight falls, as well as the final of the S.P.S. 125 lb. boxing title which ended in a win for Bannister over McLachlan in one of the best bouts of the day. McLachlan, a clever boxer, could not cope with the heavy hitting produced by the winner and although putting up a real battle, was unable to take the decision.

Perhaps the best bout of the program was the 160 lb. final in which Fulton by a last round rally, got the judge's nod from Eaton after a stirring scrap. Eaton tried the iron-man stunt of entering both the wrestling and the boxing tournament, but his wrestling bout took a lot out of him and this weakened him considerably for the boxing final. He started out in convincing fashion by easily taking the first round, in which Fulton was forced to take plenty of punishment, but he tired quickly in the next two sessions, Fulton's last round attack leaving no doubt as to the winner. In the 125 lb. final, D. Green received an unpopular decision over Tisdale in a fast, close bout, when an extra round might have settled the argument more satisfactorily. The bout was close all the way and any advantage obtained by Green in the first round was offset by Tisdale's efforts in the latter sessions.

In the 134 lb. wrestling final between Brenner and Oille, the former was, to all appearances, headed for a victory, but Oille surprised everybody by taking two quick falls, using a double arm hold in each case. The only wrestling bout, which went the limit, was a tame affair between Hosking and Fletcher, the former winning after little action had been displayed by either.

Several of the finals will be left over until next Tuesday. In the boxing these include the 125 lb. class in which D. Green and Robertson will contest supremacy and the 135 lb. final between Magner and J. Green. MacDonald was proclaimed the winner of the fencing when no other entries were received.

BOXING

125 lb. semi-finals: D. Green defeated Tisdale; Robertson defeated Heller. 135 lb.: J. Green knocked out Stuart in second round; Magner knocked out Way in the first, and Leichman in the third.

160 lb.: Fulton won by default over Moffatt; Fulton defeated Eaton in the final.

WRESTLING

125 lb. final: Wallingford defeated Thomas in two falls.

134 lb. final: Oille defeated Brenner in two falls.

160 lb. semi-finals: Eaton defeated Jenner in two falls; Fletcher defeated Hosking.

Referees: Boxing, P. Rivers; Wrestling, W. H. Martin.

THERAPIST OUTLOOK NOT AT ALL GLOOMY

The Union, he added, was only because of lack of accommodation.

"We feel no impatience in the matter, although we certainly do realize that there is some difference along the same lines as what is brought out in to-day's editorial," said Miss E. K. Russell, head of the Public Health Nursing course.

"We are a new course and we know it. But as the course grows this will disappear, and we are not worrying. I think the other small courses feel the same way."

Miss Russell added that there is a committee which was started last year working at the present time and trying to bring about closer connection both among the faculties themselves and between the small and the large ones. Miss Addison and Miss Kilpatrick, who are on this committee, could not be reached yesterday for an interview.

"We have plenty," said one member of the faculty of Occupational Therapy. "There is nothing but the matter of residence and the Union. Of course social connections are entirely up to the individual—besides, we are too busy to notice if there is anything lacking. We have 28 hours a week."

BUSINESS CONDITION IS NOT SO CRITICAL

wages of the French labourer were lowered and consequently she could produce more cheaply. Anyone who supports the ideal of progress would prefer conditions in England even although the dole is necessary. And France," he continued, "has a large peasant farming population which is not directly affected by a depression in wages."

"I do not see so much reason for being depressed," said Miss Bliss, lecturer in economics, "nor do I think Prof. Lang is exaggerating when he says that thousands of people in England are living on the dole. Statistics and records show that most of the men on the dole only draw it for temporary relief and work as much of the time as possible. Construction is going on in London and it really looks as though new life were springing up through the old depression. The gravest problem seems to be that people cannot seem to be able to stop producing, without trying up economic conditions; and they cannot consume all they produce."

the third round. However, they enter the game to-night in championship form, having just completed a two-game exhibition series with the Ottawa Rideaus. Kaminsky, at centre, is rated as one of the best at the pivot position in junior hockey, and with Kalfish and S. Bowman on the defence and B. Bowman on the wing the Falls present a formidable opposition.

While the Blue and White have had very little opposition this year as compared with the Cataracts, they are entering the game fully aware that they are up against an experienced and favoured team.

CAMERA CLUB

Members are reminded that there will be a meeting of the Camera Club in the Music Room, Hart House, on Tuesday evening, December 9th, at 8 p.m. The speaker will be Mr. Stanley Harrod, of the Toronto Camera Club, who will describe the process of mounting prints. Refreshments will be served.

Trinity which require a Religious Knowledge option. That was one of the conditions on which they came in. This explanation was offered after Dr. Burton had read the letter attacking the pass subjects in the Honour Science courses.

Dr. John Satterly, when interviewed on the same subject yesterday, replied, "I don't think there should be any pass subjects in honour courses."

"If everybody kept to the hours in the calendar, they wouldn't be overworked. Many instructors seem to take liberties with the calendar," he continued. "As far as homework is concerned, the more the students can do the better for them. But every instructor should remember that there are other subjects. As far as the first year of Honour Science is concerned, most of the homework they get on Physics is really given on behalf of the three subjects, Physics, Chemistry and Biology," he concluded.

LONDON AUTHORITY OPERATES HARBOUR

Motion pictures of many phases of the docks and their equipment in operation were shown. These included the unloading of grain, meats, fruit, newsprint and lumber. Methods of sampling were pointed out. Almost all the unloading and handling is carried out by machinery. Pictures of conveyors for numerous materials such as wool, sugar and tea, illustrated the transport of the commodities to the warehouses.

The docks and warehouses are constructed of concrete, many of these having been erected by the Authority since its inception. Pictures of a modern dock, covering 64 acres, by means of which it is possible to unload a vessel from three points were exhibited. Dry docks are also operated by the Authority.

Mr. Willey mentioned that England is the largest buying nation in the world, having purchased $300,000,000 of goods in 1929, 40 per cent of which passed through the Port of London.

bodies of the university.

The possibilities of this "free society of scholars" demand certain qualities of character in those concerned. They must be of certain maturity of learning and character, industrious, serious and devoted to duty, and with a definite idea of citizenship. These characteristics are held by probably the greatest majority of post-graduates, but it is questionable whether they are held by a bare majority of the undergraduates. Hence, while the definition seems to apply quite exactly to the post-graduate group, it does not apply to the undergraduates of this, or any, university.

Eight hundred and twenty-nine students at the University of Kansas were former Boy Scouts.

DEBATERS DENOUNCE FEDERATION FATHERS BECAUSE THEY DID IT

Devote Large Flow of Oratory to Debate Debatability of Resolution

VOTE IS EIGHT TO SIX

Consensus of Opinion is that Conception of Dominion was a Mistake

The Trinity Literary Society experienced some difficulty in getting their debate under way Friday night. The motion was, "Resolved that the Fathers of Confederation shouldn't have done it". The government argued that the motion was a negative one, and that under parliamentary procedure, the subject could not be debated. Authorities such as Col. Kidd, speaker of the Federal Parliament, the Sergeant-at-Arms, and other members of parliament were quoted. After much hectic arguing it was agreed to debate the motion.

The leader of the opposition, E. A. Brooks, was the first speaker for the affirmative. He said that he had experienced some difficulty in understanding what the "it" in the motion referred to. His first idea was that the Fathers of Confederation shouldn't have had their portrait painted. "Any one who has seen the portrait will agree," he said. Then he remarked, "The Fathers of Confederation conceived an idea and brought forth a Dominion." This, he considered a mistake. The Maritime representatives at the Quebec Conference in 1864 were out of sympathy with the idea and were coerced into joining the Dominion. For geographic, economic and social reasons North America should be divided vertically instead of horizontally.

G. E. Graham, first speaker for the negative said that at a gathering at the Grange one day certain ladies had been shocked at a painting of Cupid and the Fathers of Confederation had had their portrait painted to prove that Canada could stand up in her pants. He also said that the Fathers Aid to Jobless!

An appeal for discarded clothing, and particularly warm underwear, is being made on behalf of unemployed veterans by Mr. C. C. Thompson, a graduate of the University, to students who are interested in providing relief for men unable to find work this winter. Mr. Thompson is connected with a Red Cross Society Hostel in Victoria Street School downtown, which provides food and shelter for veterans who are unable to get jobs.

Officials of the Hostel have discovered that there is an extensive need of warm clothing among these men, and Mr. Thompson has expressed a hope that University students might help to supply this demand. Anything from a sock to a suit or overcoat will be acceptable, though the chief demand is for underclothing.

Donations will be received at the S.A.C. Office in Hart House between the hours of nine and five-thirty, and at other hours may be left with the Hall Porter. Contributions should be brought in as early this week as possible.

It is hoped that any students who have discarded clothing at hand will avail themselves of this opportunity to relieve to some extent the hardships with which these men are threatened.

Unknown Organist Shortens Lecture

An unknown musician favoured Professor F. B. Kenrick's pass chemistry lecture on Friday with a mouth organ solo. Near the end of the period a distinct, but faint melody was heard issuing from the gallery as an accompaniment for the professor. A chorus of sh-sh's which followed, spreading over the whole audience, brought the lecture to a conclusion four minutes early.

Women's Staff

There will be a meeting of "The Varsity" women's staff—both the regulars and the probationers—on Monday at 3 p.m. in the women's office. All concerned please take notice.

JOURNALISM COURSE PROVES NOT POPULAR

Downtown Journalists Agree Practical Experience

MIGHT BE OF SOME USE

"I have never been enthusiastic about such a course," said Andy Clark of the Globe, when consulted by "The Varsity" recently for his opinion on the subject of establishing a course in Journalism at the university. "I have assiduously refrained from addressing the men at the university on this subject because I consider such a course unnecessary. "In my opinion," he went on, "if a man who has taken an Arts course has not derived sufficient grounding from it, combined with some practical experience, to make a journalist of himself, no amount of training in a course of Journalism will make a journalist of him."

Another member of the Globe's editorial staff, Dune Halliday, expressed

The Hon. Chas. McCrea, Minister of Mines for the Province of Ontario, struck a very optimistic note in his address on "Mining in Ontario" before the Royal Canadian Institute on Saturday night last; he described the mining resources of Ontario in glowing terms.

"A vast deposit of lignite has been discovered in the vicinity of James Bay which is conservatively estimated to contain about one hundred and fifty million tons. To provide transportation, the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway is being constructed as far as James Bay so that Ontario will soon have a sea port of its own."

The Hon. Mr. McCrea told how he had travelled through the wilds of Ontario as far as the railway had been built, in luxury; leaving North Bay

ADVANCE TO SEMI-FINALS

Shipp's Work in Goal is High Light of Furious
Contest

By John M. Chorlton

Behind the sensational goal-tending of Shipp, Varsity junior hockey team advanced to the semi-finals of the S.P.A. series as a result of their well-earned victory over the strong Niagara Falls squad by a 3 to 2 score at the Arena Gardens on Friday night.

Setting the pace throughout, Varsity gained their win by superior checking and better combination play. The play was fast and close, especially in the last period when Niagara Falls were fighting furiously for a goal and only wonderful saves on the part of Shipp in the Toronto net staved off defeat in the dying moments of the game. Shipp was called upon to stop bullet-like drives from the sticks of last year's Ontario finalists and on several occasions saved shots that seemed destined for sure goals. Although Shipp's work in the net was the highlight of the game, every Toronto man turned in a stellar performance.

May opened the scoring half way through the first period when he scored on a brilliant individual effort, shooting from outside the defence and giving Dunham no time to stop the shot. With only a half a minute to "Nonsense! when they do stay in, girls don't study late at night," said Dorothy Starr, fourth year Physiology and Biochemistry, regarding the statement of Dr. Louise Powel Brown of Hunter College that "It would be more healthful for the modern college girl to attend parties oftener than she does instead of staying home and studying late at night. Some of the most trying moments are given teachers by girls who study to the exclusion of social affairs," which appeared in Friday's "Varsity".

It is her opinion that if anything, girls go out to too many parties and as a result are too tired to study when they do stay in. It would be a lot more healthy for them if they stayed home and studied oftener.

Unconventional Hospitality Features Queen's Hall Entertainments by Night

No. 7 Queen's Hall has gone in for neighbourhood entertaining on an elevated and quite unconventional scale. On Saturday night about 11.30 lights were observed in the Provincial Mining Research Building, and it seemed as if men with flashlights were moving around on their hands and knees. An alarm was sent in to Police Headquarters, and three of Chief Draper's Dandies answered the call. They circled the building, but it was all dark, and all the doors and windows were locked. So for them the episode was finished.

But you can't keep a good woman down, and upon further research from the windows the light was again seen. A second alarm was sent in and three different Draperites appeared, only to be again disappointed, and return home. But one brave Scotchman, who seemed to feel something in the air, remained, and by yelling loud enough, was taken into Queen's Hall, and up to one of the rooms overlooking the Mining Building. After a long wait the light appeared.

Then of course Scotty was the hero of the moment. "Have you a bullet-proof jacket?" "Are you afraid?", he was asked by the mob of Hallites in deshabille, who had risen for the occasion. He phoned in for re-inforcements and then the building was completely surrounded.

"If you hear any noise," Scotty warned the shivering girls, "don't get scared. We're going to break in."

And sure enough they did! Got in through a window.

After a while he came back to calm Queen's Hall. "Some watchmen! It's those Dominion Police going the rounds. And we were all through the ground floor and upstairs, before they even met us. Some watchmen!"

However, the Hallites don't limit themselves to Scotch policemen. The other day, the girls, when they came down to dinner, found a presentable young man in the hall looking rather lost. He refused to answer any questions put to him by the dean. Then one of the maids saw light. She got him into the sitting room, and while the others entertained him there, she chased over to the Psychiatric Hospital, and persuaded the dubious woman at the desk to send someone over to collect a patient. A doctor and interne, when they arrived, identified the young man as the genuine goods, and walked him back to the hospital, meek as a lamb.

Upon investigation, it appears that he is a school teacher whose teaching proved too much for him.

"I don't think he's as crazy as he seemed," said one unblushing co-ed, "coming over here to a girl's residence."

RIGHTEOUSNESS WITH CHARITY

The principal of one of our Arts colleges recently told an interviewer that the invariable formula with which he met students who approached him with complaints about certain professors was: "Temper your righteousness with charity". This phrase illustrates a curious anomaly in our university life. It boils down, finally, to a consideration of the question: "Are our undergraduates to be treated as mature, or are they not?"

The same don was, we believe, credited with the statement that one of the features of the University of Toronto was the fact that, in Arts, at least, attendance at lectures is not compulsory. This, as the gentleman is doubtless aware, is only true in certain courses and under certain circumstances. As compared with the rigid compulsion which obtains at colleges in the United States, the broader and more casual tolerance of our own Arts don regarding attendance at lectures and groups presupposes a degree of maturity in Toronto undergraduates of which American higher educationists would never for a moment permit themselves to suspect their students. At the same time, however, we fall far short of the European system under which university students are not only allowed complete freedom as to selection of subjects and attendance at lectures, but are even permitted to select their own professors. In the United States, of course, where lectures are, in many cases, termed "recitations"—the professor is a teacher; while in Europe he is a savant. In Canada we do not seem to be quite clear what he is. In this University, at least, we appear to afford him the dignity of the savant and the power of the teacher.

Students whose failure to attend lectures and groups has resulted in a failure to obtain standing at the end of the year, despite a sufficient series of pass marks on the final examinations, will realize only too keenly that the student's privilege to elect attendance does not extend very far. Our undergraduates are not held to be sufficiently mature to decide upon the relative value of reading as against lectures to suit a particular need in a particular subject. The highly-touted group system itself enters here to render personal contact between professor and student absolutely necessary.

It would appear from our initial quotation, nevertheless, that our undergraduates are regarded as mature enough to be able to pass individual judgment upon professors. Yet they are disarmed by the tolerantly smiling dictum, "Temper your righteousness with charity". Theoretically our professors, it would seem, are not teachers—although the students have neither the right to choose them nor the right to change them. It appears to us that students whom a system of term marks and class essays forces to attend lectures and groups willy-nilly are not students whose righteousness is to be taken very seriously nor whose charity is to be held as particularly essential.

To clear up such ambiguities, the question of the maturity of the University of Toronto undergraduate would seem to be a peculiarly pertinent one for discussion by the learned Council of the Faculty of Arts.

The Way of the World

In spite of the fact that The Way of the World is filled with exceedingly complicated intrigue that is too confused to be readily understood, the Players' Guild of University College were successful except in the first act of this Congreve comedy in holding the interest of their audience in their production last Friday and Saturday in Hart House Theatre.

The play, first presented 230 years ago, is not the best of Congreve's plays for the stage, but is supreme in the study. There is almost no action whatever and the characters are one and all completely intellectualized. They pursue their "bloodless loves" in a world of pure abstractions, and at no time raise the least passion in an onlooker's breast. Their jealousy is intellectual and not physical, and their little naughtinesses rise from unfaithfulness of mind and not of body.

It was this play—almost without a plot and literally without human characters that the Guild brought to life in their production. They succeeded because the mental characteristics of a 1930 audience are very similar to those of the modern sophisticated audience of 1700, and because Patricia Godfrey and Selwyn Dewdney infused rather more life into their lines than is strictly in accordance with the best Restoration traditions.

The lines throughout are filled with allusions that tickle the fancy of today even as it delighted the wits of the good Queen Anne. But the excellence of the lines is not alone sufficient to account for the success of the Guild production. There was some finished acting, one or two inspired performances, and evidence of careful work on the part of H. E. Hitchman, the director, though his success in the coaching of individuals in the cast was certainly more successful than his management of stage positions. The grouping was often aimless and the entrances occasionally messy—a serious fault in the meticulously formal drama of Congreve.

LIMELIGHT

Moscow, Dec. 8, Special to "The Varsity" by Fast Male.

My Dear Publique,—

I have just found out that I have won the Perfect Male Contest at the University of Toronto. I am sorry that I am not at home to defend myself from these charges, but I am, as Chaz has told you, confined in a Moscow dungeon by the Acheo or Secret Police.

I was arrested Wednesday, (while performing a dangerous mission), by the Soviet Agents for carrying concealed weapons.

In my pocket they discovered a small but deadly pair of garden shears for nipping plots in the bud. Although plots are not scarce here, tampering with them in any way is a crime punishable by death. As a result of my work they will probably present me with one, but it will be in the foreign cemetery.

But to return to the contest. The reply, supposedly from me, appearing in Friday's issue, was a fake. The message was intercepted and changed by Soviet Spies working under cover at the University Press!

This information may surprise you but my investigations here have disclosed the fact that "The Varsity" staff is full of Bolsheviks.

The reply said, "KNEW it all the time, Marks not high enough to suit me. Wait till the girls see my Russian beard—Gaspard."

My actual answer was—"Horried to hear the good news. If I am an example of the Perfect Male, God help the Race.—Gaspard."

True enough, I had grown a very fair Russian beard, but two nights ago the rats crept into my cell and chewed off all the right side of it. Probably the work of the Right Wing organization. A very close shave. But this is a very common occurrence over here and illustrates the Radical difference in our prison systems.

JUNIORS BEAT FALLS 3-2; FACE DUKES IN SEMI-FINAL TO-NIGHT

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

Now that interfaculty basketball is over for most of the teams, the thoughts of most of the interfaculty players are turning to the intercollegiate tryouts, which take place immediately after Christmas. Prospects for another championship are very bright this year, although only four of last year's team are eligible again this season.

Competition for places on the defence line will be especially keen, since Jean Allen, who subbed in this position last year, is the only defence player still at college. Coach Marion Forward will have her hands full in picking the remaining guards from such players as Betty Thomas, who jumped for the intercollegiates two years ago, Isabel Wright of St. Hilda's, Loretta McGarry of St. Mike's, Pat Palmer, who played for Junior V, and numerous other candidates, all of whom starred for their respective teams this fall.

The forward positions do not offer so much competition. All of last year's regular forwards will be out after their old positions, but Sally Ballard, who subbed on the forward line, will have to work hard to keep off the team several of the girls who turned in excellent games in the interfaculty series. Bea Longley of Junior V, and Bea Symons of St. Hilda's, are among those who will make Miss Ballard step to retain her old position.

JUNIOR MEDS TAKE WATER POLO TROPHY

Defeat Junior U.C. 4 to 1, to Make the Score 9 to 1 on the Round

U.C. BETTER NEXT YEAR

Jr. Meds won the Eckhardt Cup and the interfaculty water polo championship when they defeated Jr. U.C. 4 to 1 in the second game of the final played in Hart House tank Friday night. The score on the round was 9 goals to 1.

The game was much more evenly contested than the score would indicate. Although Meds earned at least a goal edge by their superior defence and shooting ability, they did not have a three-goal margin of the play.

Both teams played good combination with the play being much more open than in the first game when Meds defeated U.C. 5 to 0.

U.C. secured on the centre. Ross shot over the net on a pass from Learie. Davey of Meds, picked the ball out of a scramble and passed to Rogers, who made no mistake. A minute later Ross equalized for U.C. when he scored on a free shot. Culner stole the ball in a melee and put Meds one up on the game. Ross tried to bat one in on a pass from Learie, but McLeod saved sensationally. Tindale for U.C. failed to score from three feet out. It looked like a sure goal, but McLeod saved it. The first half ended with the score 2 to 1 for Meds.

In the second half U.C. again secured at centre. Ross missed another from close in. Rogers scored for Meds from a scramble and a few minutes later Davey ended the scoring for the game when he went into the corner for the ball and placed a beautiful shot by Chisholm. U.C. kept trying, but could not score, the game ending 4 to 1 for Meds.

Meds showed a clever and well balanced team. McLeod was sensational in goal. The defence, with Middleboro starting, worked smoothly and effectively, while the forward line of Davey, Culner and Rogers is of intercollegiate calibre. They are champions worthy of the cup.

U.C. proved to be fast and good ball handlers, and with this year's experience under their belts, should win the championship next year. Ross was the best of the forwards and M. Smith stood out on the defence.

Jr. Meds (4) — Rogers, Culner, Middleboro, McLeod, Hardy, Fee, Magder, Douglas.
Jr. U.C. (1) — S. Smith, M. Smith, Ross, Learie, Tindale, Clute, Chisholm, Parker, Hermant.

The committee in charge of the At-Home was composed of the undergraduate members of the Athletic Directorate: Messrs. J. D. Sinclair, R. E. Diprose, J. W. Graham, J. D. Keith, D. H. Traynor and J. R. White.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By A. C. C.

The S.P.A. hockey pot has been boiling for some weeks and by the end of this week one of Toronto's sextets will emerge with the gravy. Frank Sullivan's youngsters continued their winning streak by eliminating the powerful Niagara Falls Cataracts last Friday 3 to 2 and in doing so demonstrated that they constitute a real threat for the laurels. In many quarters it was thought that the Falls would take a fall out of the Blues, but instead they were outplayed by a crew of fast, clever puck chasers.

To-night the four remaining teams in the S.P.A. junior series will battle for the right to play in the final Thursday night. Victorias engage Toronto Canoe Club in the opener and Marlboros tackle Varsity in the second game. The Blue and White seniors get into action to-morrow night (Tuesday), when they play Port Colborne. Jerry Shannon and Fan Heximer, ex-Niagara Falls stars, are with the Ports this year and are sure to be thorns in the flesh of "Red" Porter's clan. Varsity will miss the services of Bruce Paul and Jimmy McMullen, who are now wearing the colours of the National Sea Fleas. The Fleas play Windsor in the second semi-final fixture Friday night and in all probability Paul and McMullen will be playing against their former team-mates next week for the S.P.A. senior title if the Blues can eliminate the Ports to-morrow night.

You had better pass up some of those pressing social engagements and take the g.f. down to the Arena Gardens to see the crucial games this week.

The Eckhardt trophy, emblematic of the interfaculty water polo championship, has changed hands as a result of Junior Meds 9 to 1 defeat of U.C. on the round in the finals. Last year Junior School held the cup, but now the Medicos will be the custodians of the silverware for a year.

The junior basketballers evened the count with Central "Y" in no uncertain fashion when they won Saturday night's game at Central 40 to 19. When the "Y" quintet played at Hart House last week the Blues were nosed out 30 to 29 by allowing their opponents to come from behind in the last few minutes of play. But Saturday the Varsity squad drew into a substantial lead early in the first half. They maintained their offensive tactics to the end and coasted to an easy victory. Don Wood, who is coaching them, has a starry collection of cage players who combine experience with ability. They are beginning to shape up like a real team and if he succeeds in getting the most out of the squad, Varsity should make its strongest bid for the basketball honours that have reposed with the Elizabeths for far too many years now.

go in the initial period, Buck Bowman took a long shot at the goal going in fast, scoring in a scrimmage in front of the net, with Shipp on the ice. Play was decidedly in Varsity's favour during the whole of the first period and was featured by the back-checking of the Blues. Varsity used the man for man system of defence and this broke up many of the Falls' dangerous rushes.

Mancuso put Niagara in the lead late in the second frame when Steele worked the puck down the ice, passing to Mancuso after rounding the defence, giving Shipp little chance to save the shot. It was a good effort, being the best combination of the game to that time and the goal was well earned. Varsity started out the final period with a rush and the pace was lightning fast. Bennett scored the tying goal when he took a pass from Lynch, who got a loose puck behind the Falls' net, Bennett flicking the puck into the corner. After that goal, both teams tried frantically to score and the crowd warmed up for the first time in the game. Three minutes later, Hendry brought the puck out of the corner and netted the winning goal from the side of the net. In the last minutes of play, Niagara Falls tried desperately to tie the count while Varsity sent fresh men in continually to stop the rushes of the opposing forward line. Several times Shipp made sensational saves of Kaminsky's shots and drives that looked like sure scores were turned aside.

Outstanding for the losers was Kaminsky, who turned in a wonderful exhibition of stick-handling, but his efforts were all individual rushes and the lack of combination of the Falls squad was a deciding factor in the game. No man could be picked out as starring for Varsity as every man on the squad turned in his best game a controversial opinion on the subject, when he stated that he considered such a course to have a certain value when augmented by practical experience, as the course gives a good grounding.

"The only successful way in which a course in Journalism could be run," he said, "would be to have it as an option in the English course at the university, as it is done at Columbia University. However, at Columbia the scheme has been successful, due, in part at least, to an endowment, which Varsity at present lacks. No philanthropist comes forward with such a gift for Varsity."

JUNIOR BASKETEERS VANQUISH CENTRAL Y

Hold Early Lead to Win with Final Tally of 40 to 19

The Varsity junior basketballers had little difficulty in defeating Central Y 40 to 19 at the Y gym Saturday night. The Blues, using a short passing game, had the Y squad completely baffled and after the first few minutes ran up a substantial lead which was never overcome. Central, on the other hand, relied on a wide-open game with long passes which were intercepted by Himmel, Varsity's stellar guard.

Rooke, Varsity's centre, ran wild, scoring 14 of his team's points. The Central Y players were unable to hold him in check. Shugar also figured prominently for Varsity as a playmaker and as a sharpshooter. He divided the twine for 10 points. Wagman and Westaway were outstanding for the losers.

of Confederation had gone out one night and paced off the boundaries of the Dominion of Canada.

The second speaker for the negative, S. Hughes, referring to a statement of the first speaker, said that the people of Ontario were not closely bound to the people of New York since Ontario had Orange Orders and no Liquor Laws. He said Canada was logically divided for "the railways run east and west."

J.C. Clough upheld the affirmative by referring again to the Maritimes. He stated that rep by pop had not proved a success. The Fathers of Confederation provided for a Senate that cannot be changed. The number of seats for the Maritimes in the Senate is 24, and the number in the House of Commons cannot be less than 24. The population of the Maritimes has not increased as fast as the rest of the Dominion, yet the number of seats cannot be decreased.

The motion was upheld by a vote of eight to six. The subject of the next debate, which will be held after the Christmas vacation is, "Resolved that in the opinion of this House, Shakespeare is greater than Bernard Shaw."

LITTLE MIDNIGHT OIL FOR VARSITY CO-EDS

Dr. Edna Guest, medical advisor to Victoria College women's residences, when interviewed by "The Varsity", stated that the keynote of her work at Victoria was to educate the students to the idea that a well balanced life was essential to health.

"I believe that to a large extent we have been successful, at least with residence girls, with whom my work is concerned. In their first two years, their late leaves and time are restricted so that they may become accustomed to the ideal balance of rest, recreation and work. The girls catch the idea very quickly. In their third and fourth years you can usually depend on them to map out a normal life and leave college educated from the health standpoint to cope with the problems of life."

Dr. E. H. Gordon, medical advisor to women students, was of the opinion that you could not make any broad general statement as to whether the modern college girl went to too many or too few parties.

"Every girl has a different normal and it is part of her education to find it, to find out for herself what she can and what she cannot do from the standpoint of health."

"Some girls are happier studying than they would be at parties, and since happiness reflects on health, it is healthier for them to stay in and study. Dr. Brown is speaking of two unrelated things. Studying late at night is never good for their health but neither are late parties. Dancing often takes more nervous energy than studying. Some girls go out oftener than is good for their health and some stay in too much, often because they are not asked to go out and cannot afford movies or concerts."

The Dalhousie Gazette complains that the University of Toronto is not aware of the fact that their university is situated in Halifax.

Victor Lange as Mirabell, and Andrew Allan as Witwood, turned in the most finished performances of all, but the almost mechanical perfection of their gestures and the constant cynicism of their voices did not materially enliven the play, though quite in keeping with the period and mood of the piece. Stanley Ryerson was at his best in the prologue, but not quite convincing in his part, especially in the long and tedious first act. Colin Jarvis would have done better as the servant masquerading as a gentleman had he been more mature.

The ladies were not so successful as the men of the east chiefly because their voices occasionally disappeared and because their actions lacked the exaggerated grace of Lange and Allan. Isabel Dickson, Margaret Donald and Helen Anderson were all good in so far as the reading of their lines went, but were too much alike in manner and occasionally deficient in dignity. Isabel Dickson, as Millament, handled nicely one of the best scenes in the play as she and Mirabell gradually laid down terms for matrimony.

Patricia Godfrey was the real star of the show, and with Selwyn Dewdney as the contrived squire, Witwood, added sufficient farcical humour to the second and third acts to prevent the artificial humour of the play becoming boring. Her performance was a masterpiece of comedy characterization. Selwyn Dewdney showed evidence of careful tuition in the hands of Mr. Hitchman. His drunk scenes were distinctly reminiscent of certain scenes in which the latter has appeared.

The scenery was passable, though no local artist but Murray Bonnycaste would have conceived such combinations of colours. The lighting was adequate except for the atrociously dark fore-stage to which several of the players from time to time wandered. The programs were works of art.

The whole performance was unexpectedly smooth and was a credit to the Guild.

Friday Afternoon Recital

Miss Reta Swain, soprano, the artist at the Friday afternoon recital, gave a quite varied and delightful program of modern composers.

Meyerbeer's famous "Robert le diable" opera, which was received with such a furor a hundred years ago, perhaps demanded more from the artist in the way of a dramatic manner and a powerful expression, than the numbers in the third and more modern group. This piece served as sufficient evidence that the German author in striving after French ideals did acquire an exuberance and grandioseness of style, yet lost a certain amount of sequence and unity.

Two Debussy numbers and Cui's "Broken Statue" were representative of those composers' work. Miss Swain sang the latter in a trifle too lyrical and sentimental a vein, yet made her audience feel the sombre and tragic moods reflected in the composition.

Hutchinson's "The Huntsman" and Menges' "The Little Seamstress" were delightfully rendered and were quite humorous both by reason of their unexpected brevity and pointed themes.

A number by the Italian, Respighi, and Warlock's "Arbor Green", were also treated sympathetically, and were well received by the audience.

Miss Edith Foote proved a quite capable accompanist.

—J.H.Y.

Sunday Evening Concert

In his program last evening Mr. Norman Wilkes, pianist, proved himself not only a most capable performer, but an artist. Enormous technical resources are not permitted to be the sole feature of his playing, for the varying moods and colours are always enhanced and vivified by his own emotion; and it is probably in consideration of this faculty that Mr. Wilkes took his whole program from the 19th century.

For this writer the feature of the evening was the Schumann Etudes Symphoniques. Four moods and four colours received distinctive and delightful treatment.

The first, which might be called andante maestoso, revealing an excellent round tone passed on to a brilliant allegro. The third movement a pleasing lyric, was thrown into sharp relief by a finale built on a very robust motif.

Several Chopin numbers were quite charming, a well-known Scherzo proving very popular.

Two Debussy numbers, Delphic Dancers, and Wind on the Plain, dead-ly in the hands of mere technicians, became quite interesting through Mr. Wilkes' imagination. The Ball at the Fairy-King's, by Korngold, tuneful, scintillating and redolent of diminished sevenths, and very respectable distances, raised a storm of applause.

Fireworks were reserved for the finale. The familiar No. 6 Liszt Rhapsodie is certain to revive spirits flagging before an onslaught of Schumann or Chopin. Piling climax upon climax, the number closes in torrents of sound and was a real technical triumph.

OPTIMISM IN SPEECH OF MINES' MINISTER

early on a Wednesday morning, he arrived at the Moose River, which is about fifty miles from James Bay, the following morning.

Stressing the fact that the land was not wasted after the miner had taken minerals from it, he said, "that there were great areas of arable land suitable for a large number of families after the miner had left."

"With our great natural resources, we are endeavouring to bring home to Ontario the advantages, not only to miners, farmers and the various industrial concerns, but to the general public." He went on, then, to elaborate on the facilities this province offers to tourists and sportsmen. There are thousands of lakes ideal for fishing; the woods are teeming with wild life and now good roads make almost any point easy of access.

HONOUR GRADE NECESSARY

Failures in First Year Pass
Must Return to High

A reduction in registration in Arts and the necessity of university students returning to preparatory schools, will be the effect of the abolition of first year pass arts according to information obtained from Simcoe Hall.

The new Honour General Course in Arts which will come into effect at the commencement of the '32-'33 term will be a three year general course. For the want of a better name the new course will be called "General" because the students will have a greater range of subjects from which to choose. This fact will, no doubt, find favour with many students who have recently objected to the restriction.

Optometry Junior Is Injured

at Central Y

SPENCE WILL MISS EXAMS

A very unfortunate accident occurred at the Central Y gymnasium last Saturday afternoon when E. Spence, a junior student at the College of Optometry had both arms broken at the wrists.

At the time the accident happened, Spence was playing on the College of Optometry basketball team against Normal School in the last game of the series in the Central Y house league. The game was about half over when Spence fell backwards and in order to save himself from a heavy fall, fell on both his arms.

It was at first thought that he had hurt his back but when the players picked him up they found his right wrist badly twisted. It was not until he was admitted to the hospital that it was learned that his left wrist also was broken. His left wrist must remain in a cast for about two weeks and his right wrist six weeks.

The fact that both arms are injured will make it doubly hard on Spence, since it will necessitate missing his term examinations.

Mercer

ABUNDANT IN ETHIOPIA

"In Abyssinia there existed a great ancient civilization," stated Professor S. A. B. Mercer in Trinity College library on Saturday afternoon, "and we are interested in that country because we feel that ancient manuscripts of the Bible may be found there." Professor Mercer gave a very interesting lecture on "Abyssinia and the Bible."

In order to show why orientals are interested in Abyssinia or Ethiopia as the natives prefer to call it, Professor Mercer gave a short history of the Bible. About 500 B.C., after the Babylonians had taken Jerusalem, they took many of the Jews to Babylon. While at Babylon the Jews came into contact with the learning of the Babylonians who had systematic learning, libraries, and schools. The Jews conceived the idea of creating a literature of their own and so the first five books of the Bible were written, and when they got their freedom, these five books were taken back to Jerusalem.

RADICAL CHANGE IN ARCHITECTURE

Extra Year Added to Four-Year Course Will Raise Standard

ONE OF LAST TO CHANGE

"We can't cover the course in four years," was the reply given by Professor C. H. C. Wright of Architecture, when asked the reason for lengthening the course in Architecture from four to five years. "We are one of the last universities to make this much needed change," Professor Wright continued, "but that has been due to the fact that we were placed with the Faculty of Applied Science, of which all the courses are four years, rather than with the Faculty of Arts, in which Honour Courses are five years. We did not like to make the change for fear of a sudden dropping off of applications for the course. It may seem strange, but when the affiliated schools of Architecture in the States made the change, the first two whom it would be expected would bear the brunt of the falling off rather had their numbers increased."

"Each province has its own association of architecture and all these are units of the Royal Canadian Association of Architecture which covers the Dominion of Canada. Any graduate of an approved University may become a member. Not so with the Royal Institution of British Architecture, one of the oldest and best recognized institutions along its line in the world. Professor E. R. Arthur, Associate Professor of Architecture, stated: "In order to cope with the problems that arise in the professional world it is necessary that we have a five-year course in order to train our students to meet these problems."

"As a matter of fact," Professor Arthur continued, "the numbers in the course have increased since the five-year course was installed; however, this may be only a coincidence."

"It is possible for the best musicians to come to the University Settlement now," "The Varsity" was informed yesterday. "The lack of a good piano has been a real handicap, but now through the generosity of the women's fraternities, and the Heintzman Company, a new upright piano has been placed in the Settlement."

The University Settlement was found to be in a state of excitement in preparation for the Christmas activities. The first production of the Little Theatre plays, "Pinocchio," will be staged on December 13 for the neighbourhood. The same program will be open to the public on the night of December 20.

The girls of the Settlement are being entertained by the women of the university at the Women's Union on December 19. The university women are busy making dolls' clothes, "The Varsity" was informed.

The men and boys will be given a party at Hart House by the men of the university on the night of December 18.

Community night is planned for December 22, when the parents of the children attending the Settlement are invited.

Outplaying and outskating the Marlboroughs to score a decisive 3 to 1 victory in the semi-finals of the S.P.A. at the Arena Gardens last night, Varsity juniors earned the right to meet Toronto Canoe Club in the finals for the trophy Thursday night. The Iron Dukes were favoured to eliminate the Blues but were not the equal of their conquerors on the night's play. Varsity notched two goals in the opening period and made it three after one minute of play in the middle stanza. Marlboroughs scored their lone tally in this frame.

Coach Frank Sullivan placed two speedy forward lines on the ice. There was little to choose between the two. Both trios checked back like fiends and combined smoothly on the attack. Cunningham at centre, flanked by Boddington and Hendry started, and were relieved by May, at the pivot position, and McPherson and Bennett. Hodgson also relieved on the firing line and fitted into the play. Lyneb

Embryo Authors Doubt Women

Artists

PROSE AND POETRY SAME

A lively meeting of the Writers' Club took place on Friday evening, when the discussion began with a battle royal as to whether women could ever be great artists, and concluded with an attempt to define the difference between prose and poetry. Some asserted that there was a distinction and others said there was none.

Papers were read, the first being a story by Kenneth Erwin, the president. The fact that it had not yet found a title was considered a good sign, and all through the reading the strange situation and bizarre turn of thought of the tale aroused keen interest. Afterwards the group discussed the question whether psychological and straight action could be used simultaneously in one story.

The Hart House String Quartet will give their second concert on Dec. 12th, in Convocation Hall. They are here shown with George Barere, world-famed French flautist.

DEFICIT

Since the first of October, the Joint Executive of the Students' Administrative Council, a special committee of the Board of Governors, and the editorial staff of "The Varsity" have been carping—both in print and in meeting—about a compulsory fee of one dollar per year which the Board of Governors has for some time exacted from every undergraduate for the purpose of maintaining "The Varsity". Recently, when the Governors threatened to cut off this on the grounds of alleged misdemeanours of the undergraduate newspaper during the past two years, the members of the Joint Executive—aghast at the possibility of the loss of this important source of revenue—arose in their might and made certain ponderous resolution about the future conduct of "The Varsity" as earnest to the Board that the students' daily would hereafter be maintained along such lines that the purest of Governors and friends of the University need not shudder.

And now we receive the Annual Financial Statement of the Joint Executive, only to discover that the compulsory fee really hasn't anything to do with "The Varsity" after all. We read: "Deficit on publications exclusive of revenue from fees: 'Varsity' . . . $2,444.57." There it stands in large black type—in red letters in the actual balance sheet. The undergraduate newspaper is working with an annual deficit of almost two and a half thousand dollars.

Last year, as the editorial columns of this paper pointed out, both "The Varsity" and Torontonensis were represented by the finance committee as showing an annual deficit. The fact that there were fees for both these publications was quietly ignored. The monies taken from these fees were deliberately extracted from the report on publication revenue and expense where they rightfully belonged as virtual subscription monies, and were coolly placed elsewhere in the statement to prove how clever the finance committee was to show a yearly surplus despite the fact that they were carrying two losing propositions. This year, thanks to "The Varsity's" agitation of last year, the words "exclusive of revenue from fees" is inserted together with the statement of a "Deficit".

We maintain that the makers of the annual financial statement of the Students' Administrative Councils have absolutely no right to make it appear even by permitting an ambiguity, that "The Varsity" is showing a deficit of $2,444.57 and that Torontonensis is labouring under a deficit of $3,947.30 per year. The members of the finance committee may admit in their own minds that these deficits are only seeming deficits and do not actually exist at all, but one very gravely suspects the motives of these same persons in writing a deficit on the publications account and placing the entire $14,045.00 "Fees received from Bursar" on the credit side of the administration account.

The Calendar specifically states: "The annual fee for the Students' Administrative Councils paid by all undergraduates proceeding to a degree, provides for a year's subscription to 'The Varsity' and entitles the student to a copy of Torontonensis on graduation. The fee also covers administration costs of the Joint Executive and Students' Administrative Councils." But, as far as the Annual Report is concerned, the entire fourteen thousand goes to the administration costs without any "also" whatever.

If the Joint Executive is going to use the possibility of the removal of the compulsory fee as a bogey to frighten the editors of "The Varsity", they might at least give them the benefit of that compulsory fee in the financial statement. Under the present system, it would appear that the undergraduate newspaper is to suffer all the handicaps of an official publication without obtaining any of the financial benefits of such a publication.

Just A Suggestion

Editor, "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:

On reading "The Varsity" of Dec. 4th, I saw a notice regarding the pictures of the junior intercollegiate rugby team. The information was to the effect that the players could obtain them upon receipt of one dollar and fifty cents ($1.50).

I think that "any intercollegiate team" which makes such a creditable showing as this year's junior rugby team should get their pictures free.

In order that I may not be misunderstood, I would like to state that

Sketch Room

The current offering in the Hart House Sketch Room is a one-man exhibit of the work of F. S. Haines, O.S.A., A.R.C.A. It is very good in all respects. The three large pictures on the east wall are the best in the exhibit. They are all landscapes with beautifully formed trees prominent in the foreground. Mr. Haines is undoubtedly an exceptionally fine painter of trees, as this exhibition and also the painting in the West Common Room of Hart House prove fully. Mr. Haines' brush work and his handling of both the warm and the cooler colours are a delight to the eye.

Most of the pictures in this exhibit are studies of trees. However, there is one study of horses and a hunting scene, both very good, which show that there is a large degree of versatility in the work of this artist. Mr. Haines is one of Canada's finest artists and this exhibit is specially to the undergraduate.

CHAMPUS CAT

CONDEMNED

Moscow, Dec. 9.—This morning I was roused early and led into the ante-room of the Soviet Supreme Court, where I met eight of the Russian scientists who were waiting to go on trial with me.

They were a dismal, dejected looking little band, now gazing hopelessly before them into space, and now fiercely tearing their hair and stuffing handfuls of it inside their shirts to keep out the intense cold which penetrated even into the buildings.

One of them was already warming up for his trial by weeping bitterly into a quart sceler, while the others sat watching him in mute admiration. Two others, intent upon following his example, were squabbling over the right to peel the one remaining onion in the party.

One could not but pity them. They were slowly going mad. Old Nicholas Cuberootsky was already sitting in his corner and mouthing endless logarithms through his toothless gums.

By the time we were led into the courtroom they were all sobbing bitterly except Peter Outsley, who could not get going on account of having overwrought himself the day before.

I felt sorry for him as he sat there beside me during the trial, so I jabbed him with a safety pin a few times, and soon he was crying even better than the others.

"Paul Croupceff!" someone called. At last my turn had come. I stood up.

"You are charged with being a Perfect Male of the Bourgeois!" thundered the Prosecutor.

A hush fell upon the entire court as the judge studied me for a full minute.

Then he spoke. "Case dismissed."

There was something vaguely familiar about the judge. Had I seen him before? Then I recognized the voice. Great Heavens, it was Lord Fattingham!

I began to laugh.

All eyes were turned to me in amazement. "Mad," remarked the judge in a bored tone, "take him away."

I am not an "intercollegian", nor is this propaganda from the boys. I only know one fellow on the team personally, and he does not know I am writing this letter.

Just a suggestion.

to the Fourth Precinct Prison."

Soon afterwards I found myself in a cell of the new dungeon. Peering into the gloom before me I was startled to find that there were other occupants of the room. As my eyes became more accustomed to the darkness I saw—Great Heavens again, they were women!

VARSITY JUNIORS DOWN MARLBOROS 3-1 IN S.P.A. SEMI-FINAL

U.C. ASSAULT FIRST IN YEARS

Mat and Foil Events of High Calibre, with Mediocre Boxing

FINAL EVENTS FAST

The first U.C. assault in several years, at Hart House yesterday, saw some rather mediocre exhibitions of boxing, though the wrestling and fencing were of a high calibre.

In the opening fistic struggle, Littner scored a technical knockout over Rudkin. The latter was fouled in the first round but carried on and was knocked down twice in the second round when the bout ended. This was the only bout in the 135 lb. class.

Roy defeated Sparks in the 118 lb. class in a very close contest. In the first bout of the 153 lb. class Sheppard and Ecclestone gave a poor exhibition of slugging, with the latter winning out. In the final of this class, Greer, a clever boxer, won the decision over the rather tired Ecclestone.

Thorburn scored a technical K.O. over his much smaller opponent, Beckett, in the third round of their 147 lb. match. In the second struggle in this weight, the fastest bout of the day, Rieder got the decision over Flint. In the final, Thorburn managed to pile up enough points to offset Rieder's last-minute rally and got this close bout on the referee's decision.

These bouts were well handled by Murray Wilton as referee, and J. Jackson and P. Rivers as judges.

In the first mat struggle Walker showed he was a clever wrestler by getting a fall on Clark in four minutes and won the bout a minute later.

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

St. Hilda's will have to step to hold their slender two-point lead when they hook up with U.C. in the last game of the finals to-night at Hart House. It is just a question of whether the Saints, and especially Bea Symons, will be able to play up to the form which characterized their last two starts.

In the first game of the finals, neither team was quite up to the form which was displayed in the semi-finals, but the game was very exciting and the teams staged a spectacular finish. U.C. had the edge in the first half, but the Saints outplayed the Red and White slightly in the second period, and on their showing in the last few minutes, deserved the margin.

The game is scheduled to start at eight o'clock and an attempt will be made to start it on time for once. The same referees who handled both the semi-final games and the first of the finals will be in charge again. It is to be hoped that U.C. will have more supporters. At the last game one brave co-ed started a U.C. yell, and not one single voice joined hers. When a Red and White team does as well as this

BLUE PUCKSTERS IN SENIOR TUSSELE

Varsity Seniors to Meet Last Year's Finalists at Arena To-night

LINEUP STRENGTHENED

Varsity's senior hockey team will need to use all their scoring and defensive ability in to-night's game at the Arena Gardens if they hope to come out on the long end of the score with Port Colborne, last year's Ontario finalists for senior honours.

Several of last season's stalwarts are back on the line-up for the Blue and White again and a few new stars have been found who will bolster the team considerably. Dewar, last year's star defence man, and Harley, regular right wing last season, as well as Ames in goal, are expected to repeat their last year's brilliant performance.

Among the newcomers are Lenahan, who chased the puck with Owen Sound last season and will take up his position at centre this year with Varsity. What Lenahan lacks in size he more than makes up in playing ability and is a real scoring threat at all times, as well as a wonderful play maker. Smilie of last year's Varsity juniors, will pair up with Dewar on the rearguard, taking the place of Paul. Bill Stewart, stickhandler extraordinary, will occupy the left wing position and indications point to a good season for last year's star. On the substitute line will appear Billy Bell and Freddy Murray, sub centre and wing respectively last year, and as this pair have improved considerably the second line will be strengthened over last year. Ferguson and Leake of last year's intermediates, will also line up with this season's team.

Port Colborne have two star additions this year in Shannon and Fan Heximer of the Niagara Falls juniors, and the old stalwarts including Cross and Merrill will again be back. The winner of this game will advance to the S.P.A. senior finals and both teams will be fighting hard for the victory.

using a flying mare to down his only opponent in the 153 lb. class.

Schuman was much superior to Bourke in the second wrestling bout at 126 lbs. and got two falls within four minutes.

Mr. Martin looked after the wrestling contests.

Scully won the fencing, with Wishart second, and Silversby third.

basketball outfit has, they should certainly get some support.

The intercollegiate hockey team will hold a practice on Thursday at the Varsity Arena at one o'clock. A large turnout is requested, since the team is to be picked before Christmas, to avoid any possibility of a mix-up over eligibility such as occurred last year. This system means that there will be no drafting from the interfaculty teams, which has its drawbacks, but still is infinitely preferable to uncertainty as to eligibility.

The final game of the baseball series will be played at U.T.S. to-night. Both Vic and St. Michael's have won one game each, and both will be at top form for the deciding game. Playing at U.T.S. was a welcome solution of the gym difficulty for both teams, and there will be no low ceilings and beams to make the ball behave queerly.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By T. A. F.

Take it from us Varsity has a junior hockey team which is going to make us all forget about last year's championship squad. Did you see what they did to the highly-touted Marlboros last night? Not a thing except outplay them for the greater part of the game and come out on top by 3 to 1. Great credit must be given to Coach Frank Sullivan for the way in which he has rounded out a well-balanced squad from among a lot of players who had never worked together until a few weeks ago. The Blues' combination was a treat to watch. Sullivan certainly had the material to work with, however. It is impossible to pick stars, although Shipp, in goal, deserves special mention. On their showing last night the Blue Kids should be able to take Toronto Canoe Club in the final game on Thursday night without too much trouble.

To-night is the first chance to see what the 1930-31 edition of the Blue senior hockey team looks like. The squad has been practicing steadily for the past three weeks under the eagle eyes of Coach "Red" Porter and Joe Sullivan, and seems to be pretty much of an unknown quantity as yet. Right now it looks as though they are below the strength of last season's O.H.A. finalists, but it is a little too early for any predictions. The loss of Bruce Paul and Jimmy McMullen certainly left a big gap in the line-up. Men like these are not found lying around loose every day. Paul was just about the mainstay of the team last year, offensively and defensively. However, Porter can always be counted on to make the best of the material on hand. He certainly has a "find" in the person of Lenahan, who learned his hockey at Owen Sound. This boy is one smooth centre-player and no mistake. He can skate and stick-handle with the best of them and is a great play-maker.

The Blues will have their work cut out for them to-night. Port Colborne had a real team last year and with the addition of Fan Heximer and Jerry Shannon from the Falls, they are stronger than ever this year.

It seems as though U.C. is undergoing some kind of an athletic revival this year. In fact things have gone so far that the college gathered together enough men for an assault yesterday. Seriously speaking, though, congratulations are in order to Messrs. Walker and Sullivan and all those responsible for the assault. Despite the fact that none of the contestants in the boxing are likely to be picked for the next Olympic team the bouts were hard fought for the most part and the men made up for any lack of skill by their aggressiveness and their willingness to trade punches. Grier, who won the 160 lbs. class, was the pick of the mittmen insofar as actual boxing ability was concerned. The two wrestling matches provided some fine grappling and the Sheppard-Ecclestone middleweight bout was a first-class comedy act to live up the card.

The Dental assault is next in line, being slated for seven o'clock this evening. This will be the last of the faculty mitt and mat shows and from all accounts should be a good one. The interfaculty junior fistiana opens to-morrow and anyone who has the slightest interest in this line of sport will certainly be on hand to see it.

BLUES TRIM DUKES

and Donovan were towers of strength on the Blue and White defence and their poke-checking tactics and swift breaks down the ice featured the game. Nor was the rearguard in any way weakened when White did duty on the defence. However, if any one player must be singled out as a star, Shipp, in goal, gets the call. Several times the Dukes beat the Blue defence and walked in on the Varsity goalie, who rose to the occasion and saved in spectacular fashion. In the last few minutes of the game, with two Varsity players in the penalty box and with four Marlboros in Blue territory he was called upon to turn aside an avalanche of shots.

After 14 minutes of play in the initial period Boddington sifted through the Marlboro team and his shot trickled down the legs of Stein in goal. Hodges forced Shipp to rise to great heights when he boomed in on the "T" net guardian. The latter came out of his cage to smother the Duke's shot before he could lift it off the ice. Lynch accounted for Varsity's second goal on a pretty pass from Jackie May just before the first period was over.

McPherson drilled one home from inside the Marlboro blue line to commence the middle period. The Marlboro goalie looked bad on May's shot which found the corner of the net. He made up for it, however, when he made a marvellous save of another shot from May's stick. It was on the return rush that Morrison beat Shipp for the Dukes' only counter. Shipp made another great stop of Good's shot. The Marlboros started to mix it with the locals and Shill, Good and Grey were banished to the cooler. The students swarmed about the Marlboro citadel. Gamble took a poke at a Varsity player and he too was given a rest, but as he went off Grey came back on. The Dukes, playing three men short, made a brilliant stand, and managed to keep the Blues off the score sheet. The locals were over-anxious. Both May and Cunningham beat Stein, who performed in stellar fashion in the nets, but neither goal was allowed on account of forward passes. Then Shill returned to the ice and single-handed worked his way through the U. of T. squad only to have his shot blocked by the impregnable goal-tending of Shipp. The crowd boomed the decisions of the referee during this period and paper was thrown on the ice.

In the last canto Marlboros got a tough break when Shill gathered in the rebound of his own shot and drove the rubber past Shipp. The referee disallowed the goal for some unknown reason. The Dukes protested but the referee faced off the puck and the game continued. Hendry accounted for another point for the Blues which also was not permitted.

Offensively, May, McPherson and Cunningham were the best for the winners, while Shill and Good stood out for Marlboros. Morrison was the backbone of the Marlboro defence.

NEW PASS ARTS

placed upon the subjects from which they must choose.

In addition to students who have Honour Matriculation standing, any student who has successfully passed the first year of the present Pass course will be granted admission to the new Honour General Course in Arts.

In the 1929-30 term there were 485 students enrolled in the first year of Pass Arts, while this year there is an increase to 524. Now under the new regulations, another 500, who would normally enter university next fall, will be held back for another year. This will mean a severe reduction in the total Arts registration.

Any student who fails to obtain standing next spring in his first year Arts will be required to leave the university. If he desires to continue his educational career, he will have to return to high school and remain there until he has obtained his Honour Matriculation. Then and then only will he be allowed to return to his Alma Mater.

Whereas in the present Pass course in Arts the students carry five subjects, in the third year of the new Honour General Course a student will be permitted to drop any two of these subjects and double up on two of the remaining three subjects. In the fourth year of the new Honour General Course it will be necessary for the student to carry only two and possibly one subject.

Students of the present Pass Arts course may be admitted to the new General Honour Course if they finished the first two years and have a fairly high standing and wish to spend another two years in the General course for their degree.

Dilettante Dental Detectives Discover Dire Destination of Deleted Dress

ACT THREE (3) OF OUR PLAYETTE

The scene is the bedroom of the Warden of Quatt House. The Warden is stretched out on a stretcher, in yellow and lavender striped athletic shorts and a dress-shirt, sipping a cup of cocoa and stretching himself to improve his proportions. Enter our three dentists, armed with razors; they are going to beard the lion in his den. He sees them, but remains lion there by mane force.

First dentist takes his razor and raises the Warden to a sitting position. Warden (hastily pulling on a pair of white ballet stockings with pink toes to cover his nakedness)—What a ballet nuisance! I say, you know, old chap, this simply isn't done, what? Come, come, I say!

Second Dentist—You can't come anything over us. Say on, comrade.

Warden—on, comrade.
Third Dentist—Lay offa that! The Warden rises and offers the Third Dentist his stretcher. Third Dentist takes it, and with a single blow stretches the Warden at his feet.

First Dentist—Tell us if it hurts. Warden (he is now stretched beyond all recognition and peers into a mirror in a vain effort to recognize himself)—Why are you here?

Second Dentist—Are you the Perfect Male?

Warden—I was trying to make myself into one, but my ambition never went to such lengths as this.

Third Dentist—As a human string-bean you have no peer, but we want perfection.

The Warden wraps his neck around a chandelier kindly placed there by a stage-hand and peers at the intruders.
First Dentist—Do you use Pears' Soap?

At this one the Warden's bally stockings fall off. To avoid scandal he coils his legs up neatly to stimulate hoarse. Second Dentist hands him a blanket to cover his embarrassment.

Warden—I cannot tell a lie, the Perfect Male ain't I.

Second Dentist—Your rhyme is all right, but the Warden is imperfect.

Enter a postman with the Perfect Male.

Third Dentist—Eureka!

Warden—You are not the Perfect Male. Eureka tobacco. I bet you're not more than 99 and 44-100ths per cent pure.

First Dentist—Ivory mark to make about that.

Second Dentist pulls out his razor in a fit of anger. It fits perfectly.

Warden—Come, come, now, no hair-splitting. (To Perfect Male) What do you want?

Perfect Male—Somebody stole my coat.

Warden—Here it is under my stretcher. I've—er—been saving it for you.

All—So that's where they go to. Exit en chassant.

lem and formed the Jewish Kaland. These Jews returned as a religious group and claimed these five books to be their charter. The Samaritans separated from the main Jewish body, taking with them the first five books, but the Jews added the Prophets to their previous collections about 165 B.C.

About 60 B.C. a third group was brought together. These three groups formed the sacred writings of the Jews and forms the basis of our Old Testament.

These sacred Hebrew writings were translated into Greek about 280 B.C. and from that time on translations were made into the majority of the languages throughout the ancient world. They were translated into Ethiopic about 600 A.D.

Owing to the loss of the earliest manuscripts, great differences exist in the texts. The early copies of the Bible were written out by hand and it was an easy matter to make mistakes. The earliest known manuscript

In tracing Priestly's literary career the speaker stated that since 1922 he has written several volumes of essays some criticisms and five or six novels. that exists was written 1600 years after Isaiah. Professor Mercer is of the opinion that a great abundance of early manuscripts exist in Ethiopia. While he was there a short time ago, he found a manuscript that was 200 years older than any found before. The finding of early manuscripts will settle a great many differences in the text of the Bible. There are also a great many inscriptions in Ethiopia which cannot as yet be deciphered.

Professor Mercer concluded his lecture by a number of lantern slides of ancient Greek and Hebrew manuscripts. Tea was served after the lecture.

APPEAL FOR CLOTHES PROMISING SUCCESS STATES A. G. BURNS

Trinity Leads in Response to Cry of Cold From the Unemployed

SHOES, SOCKS, UNWEAR

Individual Contributions May be Left in Hart House

The appeal being made by Mr. C. C. Thompson on behalf of unemployed veterans for discarded clothing, especially warm underclothing, promises to be successful, although the plan was published first only two days ago in "The Varsity". That is the opinion of Mr. A. G. Burns, Secretary-Treasurer of the S.A.C., given to "The Varsity" yesterday afternoon.

According to Mr. Burns, Trinity College has led the way in this project by sending in a large pile of clothing of different kinds, including about a dozen pair of shoes, a couple of overcoats, socks, underwear, etc.

The School of Graduate Studies has promised to bring the matter up at a meeting yesterday afternoon, while E. B. Jolliffe is going to put the plan before a meeting of the Victoria College Union.

So far individual contributions have been few in number. Any student who has any unwanted clothing, especially underclothing, is given an opportunity to give assistance to the unemployed in Toronto. Donations will be received at the S.A.C. office in Hart House between the hours of nine and five-thirty, and at other hours may be left with the Hall Porter. They will be turned over to Mr. Thompson, who will distribute them among those who receive food and shelter at the Red Cross Hostel in Victoria Street School downtown.

It is hoped that both associations and individuals make an effort to get their contributions in this week if possible.

THEATRE REVIEWING CRITICIZED BY CLUB

Who Reviews, Leads Opinion, and Must Remain Unbiased

PLANS FOR NEW YEAR

Lively criticisms and discussions of reviewing in its various forms was the order of the program yesterday, when the Women's Press Club held their final meeting of the term at the Women's Union.

Following up the ideas suggested by Miss E. J. Reynolds, reviewer of Hamilton, in her enlightening talk at the last meeting, the various members had reviewed theatres and plays during the last few weeks and the articles which were strictly anonymous, were relentlessly criticized.

The fact that Toronto, or perhaps no cities but London, New York or Chicago, offers small field for original, intelligent reviewing, did not blight the enthusiasm of the young aspirants. It seems a field of particular interest to everyone from the standpoint of the critic, if not the writer. The reviewer, who leads the opinion of the people, has a powerful influence and must keep his mind unbiased, and open to every issue.

The plans for the new year were outlined by the president, Miss Adler, in the business meeting. Of most significance is the change of the day from Tea will be served in the Graduate Dining Room between 3 and 4.30 p.m. at 25c per cover.

USES OF CHEMISTRY IN DETECTING CRIME

Chemical Club Hears Rogers
Talk on Scientific Cross-Examination

'ONLY A REPORTER'

Some of the uses of chemistry in detecting crime were told to the Industrial Chemical Club by Professor L. J. Rogers last night. His talk contained a great number of examples drawn from his extensive experience as provincial analyst, including many cases where technical examination has resulted in the acquittal or conviction of those suspected to have committed a crime.

An interesting example was in determining the authorship of an incendiary fire. The building had presumably been entered by using a key that was found in the door. This key had been found to obliterate its number, but microscopic examination revealed the same numbers as on the owners' keys. Some brass filings were found in the building beside a vice, and to confirm their suspicions the police had them analysed as well as the original key, thereby proving their identity.

The accuracy of some chemical tests, the high degree of care and cleanliness necessary and the need for being sure of any conclusions formed were stressed by several examples.

A touch of humour was given by the following incident. Some material had been sent for analysis and as Prof. Rogers was discussing the case with a friend, a visitor came into his

ST. MICHAEL CLUBMEN HOLD FINAL MEETING

Disagrees With Mr. Ford That There is No Good in Liquor

WE DON'T THINK CLEARLY

The sixth and final meeting for this term of the St. Michael's Oratorical Club took place yesterday. B. J. Ryan, the first member of the club to speak, sketched the present downfall of our economic structure, comparing it to a machine. B. Weiler, discussing Henry Ford's recent stand in favour of prohibition, disagreed with Mr. Ford's belief that there was absolutely no good in liquor.

The next speaker, James Davidson, was of the opinion that the present generation is kept in ignorance of the current affairs by the governments and is afraid to open its mouth. "People seem to like to be kidded and clear thinking is something we don't possess," he said.

T. P. O'Connor declared that censorship should not depend on police officials, but on the mature thinkers of the country, and that books should be judged according to their motive rather than according to a certain extract.

SPONSOR HOCKEY GAME FRIDAY TO AID NEWLY FORMED HOSTEL

A unique opportunity is offered to undergraduates of the University and others to be of some real assistance in relieving the acute distress of those less fortunately situated than themselves, by supporting the benefit game to be played at the Varsity Stadium on Friday evening of this week between two teams of the Commercial League.

A small group of men and women, many of them prominent in University and social circles, have unselfishly sponsored a scheme for the relief of the hungry in the city of Toronto. They allow no publicity to attach to their names. Yesterday, representatives of "The Varsity" saw five hundred men, many of them pitifully clad, line up at the hostel, the Everyman's Club on Duke Street, and receive generous quantities of wholesome food.

The organization has received the generous support of downtown manufacturers and business men, to whom they are indebted for supplies of food. It is for the support of the hostel, where club-room facilities are being established, that the funds are needed. The Athletic Directorate have generously offered the use of the Arena free of charge for one night. It is for the students to do their part, however small, by rallying to support the undertaking.

LITERARY SOCIETY PRESENTED MILLAY

Trinity College Seniors Interpret Subtle Satire on Civilization

BLACK AND WHITE SETTING

"Aria Da Capow", Edna St. Vincent Millay's clever satire on civilization, was presented Monday night by STI at St. Hilda's Literary Society. Ample scope for dramatic talent was found in the struggle between the two shepherds and Erica Mundy as Corydon, and Dorothy Livesay as Thyrsis, made good use of their opportunities. Margaret Tamblin, a most impressive "muse of tragedy", Louise MacMillan as Pierrot, and Eva Bettis as Columbine, completed the cast.

In spite of limited stage requisites the setting was exceedingly effective in black and white. Costumes served to emphasize the feeling of envy and hatred engendered by the division of property by the shepherds; meanwhile, society, oblivious of tragedy, pursued its light-hearted and meaningless way. The play was preceded by "Rehearsal", by Christopher Morley, a comedy which provoked much amusement. This effort was marked by an ease and naturalness which is achieved when actors are at home in their assigned parts.

French Representative's French Startles Model Assembly Forum

M. Stewart, first representative of France, rises to address the twelfth Assembly of the League of Nations. He begins in French; horrible suspense—ah! relief, he reads his speech "on English". M. Stewart presented the plan of the United States of Europe. War has merely added so many miles of economic barriers. The fear of war is still choking Europe and the French delegate decried the naive minds of nationalists who would oppose the solution to be found in Union.

The Assembly was interested to learn that Mr. Hughes of Canada considered his own mind that of "a naive nationalist". He was clearly not in favour of the proposal. As to Russia's joining this United States of Europe, he asked if any union could survive with the chill, poisonous, sweaty hand of Bolshevism messing around at the root. With an excusable pun, Mr. Gheiber of Germany remarked that the Canadian representative, in thinking of Russia, "saw red".

LEADING MINISTER DEFINES ORATORY

Dr. Scater's Opinion that Pre-Speech 10 Minutes is Nerve-Wracking

PRACTICE MAKES PERFECT

"Modern oratory is dignified conversation—nothing else; yet it presents truth mediated by personality," said Dr. J. R. P. Scater, minister of Old St. Andrews Church and past president of the Cambridge Union, last night at a dinner of the S.P.S. Debating Club in Hart House. He recalled some amusing incidents in his own career as a speaker and reassured his audience that "there is nothing more nerve wracking than the ten minutes before an important speech".

In recounting the basic simplicities of good oratory which are so simple as to be often overlooked, he stressed the importance of practice in developing a proper speaking voice and manner, ably illustrating his points by demonstrations of what to avoid. "Regard your consonants, especially the final dentals and the vowels will look after themselves," he said.

English is one of the greatest means of expression in the world. For adjectival variety and rhythm, it is at its best in the King James version of the Bible, and its greatest richness of vocabulary is found in Shakespeare. He stated further that the ability to be

A St. Michael's College Glee Club for the promotion of choral work in the college, has been recently formed, it was learned by "The Varsity" yesterday. The men responsible for its formation are the Rev. Father Phelan, and James Clancy, President of the Students' Council. After Christmas, weekly noon-hour songsters will be held in the club room under the direction of the Rev. Father Phelan. The first meeting will take place to-day at one p.m. in the club room. The officials of the club are asked to be present.

ILLEGITIMATE CHILD SUBJECT OF ADDRESS

Mrs. Sisouski Lectures S.C.M.
Victoria Groups at Victoria

EVILS OF ENVIRONMENT

"The Problem of the Illegitimate Child", was the subject of Mrs. Sisouski's address to a joint meeting of the Victoria S.C.M. groups at Wymilwood Tuesday afternoon. "These children are born for two reasons," she stated. "Firstly, they are wanted by women who do not wish to be tied by marriage; a selfish view in consideration of the child's position in life. Many girls become mothers, not from a lack of morals, but because their home life is deficient and in loneliness they seek sensational pleasures and although many of these girls are quite intelligent, they become associated with the wrong kind of people.

"The problem of the girl and that of her child should be considered separately. The mother's whole life is changed and while she usually desires to retain the child it can't be done on a small salary and also she is condemned by society.

"The illegitimate child's position at school is quite hard as other children are usually curious and tactless. The attitude of this child is often one of resentment and contempt."

A regular league hockey game between the teams of the Bell Telephone and of the Northern Electric will be played in the Varsity Arena on Friday night. The proceeds from the sale of tickets for this game will be devoted to the maintenance of the Everyman's Club, on Duke Street, which provides meals and club house facilities for men out of work.

Everyman's Club is an enterprise sponsored by a number of young women in every walk of life, who are giving freely of their time and work, not only to provide food, but an atmosphere of good-fellowship for men who have no means of support. They ask no questions of those they help, either as to religion, or race. They ask only that controversial opinions be left outside the door.

All the food which is served is donated by various firms and individuals who are interested in the enterprise, and the money which it is hoped to obtain from Friday's game will be

BLUE BEAT COLBORNE IN SEMI-FINALS S.P.A.

WEAK OFFENSIVELY

Varsity seniors scored a well-merited win last evening at the Arena Gardens when they nosed out Port Colborne 3-2 in the semi-finals of the senior S.P.A. series. Only a mere handful of fans were present to witness a real good exhibition of fast hockey in which the teams were very evenly matched. Port Colborne appeared to be away for a win in the second period when Hudson and Cuthbert scored two quick goals following a scoreless first period. Varsity added one before the middle frame closed, Leake scoring with a minute to go. Lenahan evened the count in the final stanza and in the closing minutes Dewar notched the winning tally.

Considering that it was their first game of the season, the Blues made an excellent showing in their first win over the Ports who have stepped up this year into the senior A group. Possessing two of the best forwards in junior hockey last year in Jerry Shannon and Fan Heximer of the Niagara Falls Cataracts, the Ports have a smooth working team that is equally strong both on the defence and in the attack.

MY LADY'S NICOTINE

Boston, eminent and atmospheric capital of Massachusetts, is the home of many a "thou-shalt not" organization—the most recent of which the Anti-Smoking League for Women which has just launched a nation-wide movement to oppose and discourage smoking, particularly cigarette smoking, by women. "Smoking," it is asserted, "has broken the fine traditions of our sex." The crusading ladies propose to see to it that the hand that rocks the cradle is not stained with nicotine.

We cannot help decrying the action of the virtuous females on the banks of the Charles River. Just when we thought we had reached the point where a woman puffing on a cigarette no longer felt it necessary to sublimate her action into the rarified realm of naughtiness, we are confronted with a crusade which makes the combination of women and cigarette again the symbol of delicious revolt against all that is stuffy and tiresome.

Even the broad tolerance of sophisticated Toronto is leavened by the presence of those who piously declare that God did not make the female orifice a funnel for tobacco smoke. Disregarding the possibility that God did not make the feminine mouth for the purpose of receiving enamel-decaying sweets or sucking on academic pencils either, we cannot help urging that there is something infinitely more pleasing from an aesthetic point of view in the sight of a woman enjoying her cigarette over her coffee than in the spectacle—presumably blameless from a reformer's viewpoint—with her fingers inked and her nose smudged as an emblem of secretarial or bookish pursuits.

Exactly what "fine traditions" of the so-called fair sex have been "broken" by the acceptance of female cigarette-smoking into the common custom, one is at a loss to guess. Any male whose self-conscious purity prompts him to term "unladylike" the action of a woman inhaling tiny puffs of smoke from a small white cylinder, when he can view with perfect equanimity the lady of his dreams partaking of a large steak smothered in onions with a generous order of fried potatoes, needs a good strong mental purgative. And any gentleman who permits himself to question the moral resistance of a woman who professes and indulges a weakness for My Lady Nicotine—patroness of smokers since the great Sir Walter—... any so-called gentleman whose warped and inhibited soul shudders at the thought of a woman's appetite for a form of stimulative relaxation which the lordly male had come to regard as his own divinely-appointed right—... any such, we suggest, needs a good swift kick in the region to which—under the circumstances—we offer no apology for drawing attention.

But, as for petticoated puffers of both sexes whose lack of taste and nice discrimination in the matter of tobaccos allows them to smoke immediately before meals, to switch from one blend to another for purely financial reasons and without recourse to any of the canons of the time-honoured cult of My Lady Nicotine, and to devour cheap cigarettes with a neurotic voracity equalled only by their assurance—... these we repudiate as unworthy and leave as legitimate prey to any band of prohibiting reformers which may arise in the immediate or far distant future—whether it be on banks of Charles or beside the chaste waters of the classic Don.

With the Theatres

For the benefit of our readers, pictures are graded as follows in this column: Average (0), below average (-1) or (-2), above average (1) or (2).

We regret that through an unavoidable error this column was omitted from yesterday's issue of "The Varsity".

One sentimental melodrama and four comedies of various orders of intelligence make up this week's crop. The melodrama was good and so was one of the comedies. The rest were just so-so.

Imperial.

Life of the party. (1) — Winnie Lightner may be growing older, but she and four men from Broadway are funny enough to put this show high up on the scale of farcical comedies. What a relief to watch a few comedians working without effort. Neither dirty nor dumb, Winnie and Irene Delroy team up as a pair of gold-diggers, and even if the plot is senseless, they do some pretty pointed work. All technicolour and an interesting kiss at the end.

Art, Music and Drama

Judy Windermerer's Fan

This afternoon, to-night, to-morrow night and Friday night, the Victoria College Dramatic Society is presenting Judy Windermerer's Fan in Hart House Theatre.

This play by Oscar Wilde, an Irish dramatist of forty years ago, is a comedy of English manners, written in a sophisticated style by a master in that line.

The play is worth seeing—not only because it is really humorous but because it forms an interesting link between the theatre of Ibsen and that of Shaw.

Oscar Wilde did not write plays that are easy to produce. If the Victoria Players are successful they will have succeeded where others have failed.

and will open a new field for amateur dramatic endeavour.
See this play.

Trinity Dramatics

The Three Sisters, by Anton Chekov, will be presented by the Trinity College Dramatic Society on February 13 and 14, 1931.

This will be the second time a Chekov play has been presented in Toronto. The first occasion was when The Cherry Orchard was produced in Margaret Eaton Theatre about six years ago. The Three Sisters has never before been played here.

Mr. Dixon Wagner will direct the play. He took part in The Cherry Blossom under the late Bertram Forsythe when it was presented.

ORDER OF THE BATH

Fourth Precinct Prison, Moscow, Dec. 9.—Awakened by the sound of voices near me this morning, I opened my eyes to find the four female occupants of the cell grouped together in the far corner on the straw.

They were talking and giggling among themselves and occasionally looking in my direction, as if I were the cause of their amusement. In spite of my long years of diplomatic training I am afraid I blushed a bit, but managed to bring myself under control and give them a nonchalant greeting.

"Good morning," I drawled, "may I ask what is exciting your mirth so early in the day?"

"He's awake," said the largest, and then, turning to me,—"hey, who the heck said that you were a perfect male anyway?" Giggles.

Anyway! I blushed again, and diplomatically buried my head in the straw.

A moment later I felt someone touch my arm. I looked up. It was the quiet young woman who had not laughed. "You mustn't cry; don't pay any attention to them," she said, "they are very rude."

I looked at her curiously. How much did she know? Certainly her cultured accent and finely chiseled features seemed out of place among the lowest criminals. Who could she be?

I resolved to find out. "Is not my presence rather—er—unusual here among you?" I began.

"Yours is."

"Oh?"

"We were very much embarrassed."

"Yes, yes."

"—Because you snored all night."

"Oh!"

Footsteps sounded along the passage. The jailer appeared. "Get ready for the bath, there, you," he called into us. The other three women rose and walked to the door. My little friend leaned over and clasped my hand in her own. "Come," she said.

Long years of diplomatic training had failed to teach me how to handle a situation like this. What was I to do?

I took a deep breath and rose like so much yeast. The jailer barred my progress. "Not you," he growled, "your turn don't come till spring."

Wasn't that a dirty trick? My friends are still plotting my escape. Vassili has had to abandon the idea of smuggling in a rope ladder to me because my cell is on the ground floor. But I have not given up hope.

VIRGINIA WOOLF SUBJECT OF DR. EDGAR'S ADDRESS

"A sense of life and personality are given the highest place in the works of the elusive Virginia Woolf," stated Dr. Pelham Edgar yesterday afternoon in Wymilwood to his group on the Modern Novel.

"Plot is merely a secondary consideration," he continued. "Incidents are not related consecutively, but in such a way as to lay open for inspection the consciousness of the characters with all the zigzag deviations of their minds. Sometimes descriptions are almost too extravagant in eccentricity and the imagery is often so fantastically symbolical as to be inexplicable."

Tell "The Varsity" to hold up my obituary for another week.

BLUES TRIM PORT COLBORNE 3-2 IN S.P.A. SENIOR STRUGGLE

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

When St. Hilda's took the inter-faculty basketball championship from Senior U.C. last night, they proved themselves worthy champions, although they are not up to the form of the St. Hilda's team which won the championship last year. U.C. were unlucky on their shots in the final game, while Bea Symons could not miss the basket.

On the floor play, however, the Saints were decidedly superior, especially in the second half. Play in the first half was fairly even, and although the Red and White shot offener, the teams were tied 15 all at half-time. It is to be hoped that next year this business of fouling will be checked up more strictly. The game last night was extremely rough, and if the girls were put off for fouls during the season, much of this might be eliminated by the time the finals are reached.

Vic took the baseball cup by taking the odd game in three from St. Michael's last night at U.T.S. The score was 16 to 10, and it was chiefly due to the good work of Marion Shaidle and Ann Quinlan for the Double Blue which kept the score down. This is the first time that St. Mike's have had a team which was even a threat, and by next year, with the material at their disposal, should develop a championship team.

FIGHT COMPETITORS GIVE MEDIOCRE SHOW

Dental Assault Produces One High Light, Comminsky

KICKAM BEATS SINCLAIR

The Dental assault, held yesterday in the Hart House boxing room, was featured by somewhat poorly contested bouts. With one or two exceptions the boxers showed little knowledge of the manly art and displayed remarkable lack of condition.

The best bout of the meet was the light-heavyweight final. Comminsky, a cool boxer and a hard and fast hitter, defeated Simpson, the welterweight champion on a technical K.O. in the second round. The former was without doubt the best prospect shown in the tournament. In the heavyweight class, Kickam defeated Eddie Sinclair in a hard fought battle which went the limit. The same two met in the heavyweight wrestling final and again Kickam won, by two straight falls.

Hackett and Murphy met in a fast, interesting bout in the 126 lb. final. The decision went to Hackett, who was more aggressive and clever than his opponent. Gowland very nearly overcame Peters in the lightweight bout, but the decision went to the latter in an extra round.

The mat men showed more class and condition than the boxers and several good bouts resulted. Wachna met a clever opponent in Mason, but defeated him with one fall in 6 minutes. Leslie took the odd fall in three from Peters in a 3 minute extra round in the 135 lb. final. Hymen took the only fall of the bout from Holden after 4 minutes in the 126 lb. clash and won the championship.

Two wrestling and one boxing final were postponed until this afternoon. During the preliminaries in the afternoon, two bouts postponed from the Meds assault were held. In the 135 lb. final Magnus defeated J. Greene in a great fight. In the other bout Robertson won a rather slow bout from Greene to annex the 126 lb. championship.

composed of Lenahan at centre, Mel Harley at right and Bill Stewart at left, easily matched the fast Port front line. Varsity worked much better around the nets and had better timing in their combination plays. Coach Red Porter has discovered one of the finds of the season in Lenahan, formerly of Owen Sound, the diminutive centre star turning in a smart performance.

Varsity's weak point in the night's performance was defensively, with the result that the Blue goalies were called upon to make several close saves. Doc Ames, in the nets for the first and third periods, turned in a smart display in goalkeeping. Lebarri donned the pads in the second frame, but was unfortunate in having the two goals scored against him although they were of the impossible type. Don Smillie and Skin Dewar teamed together for the Blue defence, and should improve with experience. Smillie was fast on the attack and had several nice rushes. Dewar's winning goal was a gem, it fairly burned past Moore. Bill Stewart's stickhandling was much in the limelight, while Mel Harley turned in However, Vic deserve lots of credit for their showing. This is their second championship in two years, and is the third year in succession that they have been in the finals. Norma Becroft, Jean Davey and Mabel Shaffer were outstanding for Vic, and Miss Becroft especially turned in an effective game for the Searlet and Gold.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By T. A. F.

Varsity seniors made their bow last night with a well-earned victory over Port Colborne. The team looked good for a first effort and the results of Red Porter's work for the past three weeks could be seen in the combination of the squad and the way the players backchecked. The defensive work of the rearguard might have been a little better at times, but they will improve when they get a few more games under their belts. There were no outstanding stars on the night, every man turning in a nice effort. We have to give the team credit for being a whole lot better than we thought they were. The Blues will meet the winner of the Sea Flea-Windsor tilt in the finals for the senior S.P.A. trophy next week.

The senior water polo team gets into action again to-night when they meet Central Y in Hart House tank to-night in a city league fixture. This should be a real contest as the teams are evenly matched from all appearances. Bob Armstrong will be back at centre for the game and the Blues will be at full strength. They need a win to stay on the top rung of the league and are out to make it a decisive one. Incidentally there will be no admission charge, which means that under the house rules of Hart House no ladies will be admitted.

The preliminaries of the junior assault are slated for this afternoon and evening. The entry list is bigger than ever this year and the show should be one of the very best. Most of the men competing have their eyes on a place on the intercollegiate team and will be in there battling from the first gong. It also furnishes S.P.S. men a chance to take a sock or two at the Vic boys without getting the Caput on their trails. There is always keen rivalry between the faculties and to-day's show will be well worth the small price of admission.

We dropped into the Everyman's Club yesterday to see if all the things we had heard about it were true. Believe us, they are—and a lot more. We haven't the space here to describe all the work that the energetic sponsors of the organization are doing. As a matter of fact it is covered in a news story on the front page of this issue.

Like most charitable institutions, funds are inadequate to meet the pressing needs of the present acute situation. Firms and individuals throughout the city are stepping in to do their best to help in every way, and students at the university are offered a chance to add their bit. Tickets are now on sale at twenty-five cents for a hockey game which will be played Friday night at the Varsity Arena. The game is a regular league fixture between Bell Telephone and Western Electric of the Commercial League.

Now the Arena is being given free of charge for the evening by the university authorities, the teams are offering their services gratis, as are all the attendants of the rink, so it remains for the co-operation of the public, including the student body, to fill the rink. A sell-out crowd will ensure the continuation of the great work done by the Club for the rest of the winter.

Besides doing their bit in a worthy cause those who purchase tickets will see a real hockey game. The brand of hockey played in the Commercial League is as good as any in the city. These teams put on some of the hardest-checking struggles to be seen anywhere, and as this will be a regular league fixture it is sure to be a real display.

a brilliant performance with his tireless checking. Billy Bell gave a good account of himself when he relieved at centre, as did Freddie Murray at left wing. Ferguson and Leake, of last year's intermediates, went well on the forward line. Moore was quite prominent for the Ports in the nets and had a strong defence in Hudson and Horne. Heximer and Shannon flashed the best hockey for the Ports on the front line, while Cutburt and Morrill played well.

The first period went scoreless, with the goalies making many smart saves. The Ports had several openings, but messed it up at the nets. Varsity tightened as the period progressed and for the latter half had a slight edge.

Cutburt opened the scoring in the second canto when he trickled the puck through the Blue defence to slap a backhand drive behind Lebarri. Varsity weakened a trifle and Hudson followed a half a minute later with a second goal. Varsity made a great bid to regain themselves but the Port defence was too strong. With but a minute to go, Leake picked up a pass from Stewart at the nets and from the scramble a goal resulted.

Varsity came into their own in the final frame. Lenahan grabbed a loose puck near the Ports' nets and his shot slid past Moore for the tying goal. Referee Harry Watson handed out his

SOCIALIST WEALTH IDEA DISCUSSED BY FABIANS

The Tuesday group of the Fabius Club met at the Women's Union last night to discuss the subject, "The Socialist Concept of Wealth". This topic arose out of the address of Professor E. J. Urwick to the club's general meeting held last week. The need was stressed of changing the attitude of society toward wealth to one where common sense and good taste should play a more important part than perhaps they do to-day. Several members put forth some very constructive schemes by which they felt a start might be made towards such a change in public opinion in this regard.

The second discussion group will meet at the Union on Thursday to consider a similar subject.

Toronto, Ont. Dec. 9.—Patrons of Royal York Hotel will enjoy the finest beef at the coming Christmas and New Year festivities that it is possible to procure as a result of the purchase by the hotel management of the four car lots of prize beef at the Royal Winter Fair. Numbering no less than sixty of the finest steers, local stockmen consider them the finest collection of steers ever exhibited at the Royal Winter Fair. In detail the Royal York purchased the grand champion car lot, consisting of fifteen Angus steers, bred and fed at the Canadian Pacific farm at Strathmore; the second prize car lot of fifteen white-faced steers owned by the Province of Alberta; the third prize car lot, also owned by the Province of Alberta, and the fourth prize car lot of fifteen Angus steers sent to the show by the University of Alberta.

Aunt Agatha Advises Piping Down; In Next Breath, "Grow Moustache"

By H. N. Gladstone

Dear Aunt Agatha:

I have quite as distressing a problem as "Fatuated Fanny" brought to you last week. I have a so-called boy friend who is an inveterate smoker, and (horrors!) he absolutely refuses to smoke the same pipe twice in succession. I simply abhor pipe smoking. Shall I keep my darling or be an old maid?

—Broken-hearted Betty, III U.C.
 Ans.—Tell him to pipe down or to get under the sink with the rest of the pipes.
 —Aunt Agatha.

Dear Aunt Agatha:
 My boy friend insists that he will not take me out unless he can take me by taxi cab. Yet he never has money enough to hire a cab, and for that reason we never go out. I am willing to go by street car or walk. What shall I do?

—Perturbed Portia, IV Vic
 Ans.—Express yourself.
 —Aunt Agatha.

Dear Aunt Agatha:
 I am a fair co-ed in my third year at U.C. and I am most anxious to go to the Meds annual "Daffydil Night" which I have heard so much about and yet have never attended. I have a great many boy friends but none of them are embryonic physicians. If you solve this problem I will be extremely grateful to you.

—Desirous Dorothy, III U.C.
 Ans.—See a doctor at once.
 —Aunt Agatha.

Dear Aunt Agatha:
 I fell in love with Mrs. Millamant, the heroine in the U.C. Players' Guild production. I attended every performance just to see her. Since you are well acquainted with everyone around the university, perhaps you can tell me how to go about meeting her?

—Desperate Donald, II Wycliffe.
 Ans.—If you will send me character references, fingerprints, your age, weight and height, and a photograph, I will see that they reach the lady in question.
 —Aunt Agatha.

Dear Aunt Agatha:
 I am in love with a girl twelve years my senior and she refuses to consider me seriously as a candidate for her affections. Pray tell me how I can get her to disregard the difference in age.

—Anguished Anthony, IV S.P.S.
 Ans.—Grow a moustache. It might also prove useful in case you should wish to purchase a liquor permit.
 —Aunt Agatha.

Dear Aunt Agatha:
 Is it true that men prefer stenographers to university girls, and if so, why?

—Concerned Caroline, II Victoria.
 Ans.—Yes, I believe they do. It seems that stenographers are more used to being dictated to by the male sex.
 —Aunt Agatha.

Dear Aunt Agatha:
 Should a girl be offended if a man attempts to kiss her the second time he takes her out?

—Misunderstood Max, V Dents.
 Ans.—It depends on where he attempts to kiss her.
 —Aunt Agatha.

If I have failed to answer any enquiries in this issue, it has been because of lack of space. I will endeavour to do so in my next.—Aunt Agatha.

WITH THE THEATRES

Loew's.

Remote Control. (-1)—William Haines and Mary Nolan struggle through some amusing situations. William Haines is the hero, solves the mystery, and falls in love. Mary Nolan is the heroine and falls in love. It all takes place in a radio broadcasting room. You will laugh, but this is far from being a good picture.

Shea's.

Big Boy. (-1)—Al Jolson is at his best but the picture is entirely disappointing. The whole plot is incongruous, the story disconnected and the end a positive let-down. Jolson sings good songs, but has nothing to work on. Plays the part of a negro jockey like an ordinary minstrel. He doesn't even blacken his hands. The whole cast is good, but the picture is a wash-out. However, there are two good vaudeville acts, especially the eight-stringed band of Dave Apollon.

Tivoli.

Tolable David. (1)—A new star shines in the firmament. Richard Cromwell has come from nowhere to steal almost all the thunder in the screen dramatization of Joseph Hergeheimer's poignant melodrama. He is the youngest son of his mother, who when the rest of the males in the household are disabled, wins through to victory, honour and love in a family feud. Bright directing by John G. Blythe. Joan Peers is the heroine and passes. The three villains are all too villainous. Hollywood Theme Songs is a really good satire on musical comedies.

Uptown.

Sunny. (0).—Marilyn Miller sings poorly, there is not much reason for the dancing, and every once in a while the plot gets lost. Otherwise this is a really bright comedy with Marilyn and Joe Donahue doing most of the heavy work. Wish O. P. Heggie could change his face at times. It always looks the same. Still, he is funny. Two people get married on a ship so that they may land and get divorced. That is the story.

Furious fistie melees, the grunts of wrestlers, and the clang of foils featured the preliminaries of the Junior Assault-hold at Hart House yesterday afternoon and evening. Every class has an entry and some of the closest bouts in years resulted from last night's draws. Magnier, freshman in Medicine, put up one of the most finished performances of the tourney in outpointing Marsh of S.P.S. in the 135 lb. class, who in defeat gave a heavy punching exhibition, but the winner's straight left scored enough points to give him the decision.

Greer of U.C., and Cameron of St. Mike's engaged in a rare old slugfest in the 160 lb. group and in the final round, both boxers tried hard to register a knockout, but the former's better condition gave him the margin of victory. Strachan, in the light-heavy class, also showed considerable class.

Ted Eaton of Meds furnished the surprise of the wrestling bouts when

Scenes of Carnage Desolate East House When Freshman Worm Turns

The lads of East House are already in the throes of spring moving. Habitations are being made desolate, and rooms that last week were cosy nooks of quietness now show gaunt and bare in the cold grey autumn shadows.

It all started Monday night, when a covey of pure-minded freshmen were forced by an unofficial committee of "vigilantes" to bring their bedding down to the Common Room and roost there under lock and key for the night.

Undaunted by their plight, these twentieth century martyrs renewed their flagging spirits with loud singing of hymns.

On Tuesday night hostilities were resumed, but the younglings, following the lead laid down by Mahatma Gandhi, practiced passive resistance. Then one by one they disappeared. One by one they were haled forth into

A short address on Canadian Poetry was delivered by N. A. Benson, erstwhile Champus Cat for "The Varsity", before a group of Victoria men in Gate House, Burwash, last night. Mr. Benson dallied with the styles of poetical writing exemplified in the works of various Canadian authors, including Professor Pratt of the English Department of Victoria College and Charles G. D. He also read extracts of his own composition, from his three books recently published, The Wanderer, Modern Canadian Poetry and Free Praise for Patriots.

QUEEN'S DESIRES BRAINY READERS

Paper's Mechanical Equipment
Much Improved and Editors
Are Better

STUDENTS ACT AS LEAVEN

A new angle on the value, if any, of student publications, is presented in a recent editorial appearing in the Queen's Journal, the official organ of the undergraduate body at Queen's University.

Veering from the obvious view that what contribution the student newspaper may make to the future lies in the way of training journalists, the Journal editor advances the opinion that it is of even greater value in creating an intelligent body of readers.

His editorial, in part, is reproduced below:—

"The crying need of the press is intelligent readers. Wonderful strides have been made in mechanical equipment and skill, better-trained men are writing copy and editing the papers, but the final result is not always outstanding. Men trained in the problems of the press and its ideals would be an aid in raising the plane. If college publication work develops a trained reading group which will act as a leaven in raising the intellect and taste of the public to demand better things of its newspapers, then college publication work will have accomplished a great social service."

outer darkness, to some mysterious bourne from which none ever return. And then arose brave Roderick Dhu, and all the other freshmen too! They arose in their might and they battled in the night, and bloody were the slaughter and the carnage of that fight!

Hostilities finally ceased due to a lack of man-power in the ranks of the vigilantes, and they withdrew from their wounded. Peace and the light of Edison were restored to the Common Room when some brave adventurers sallied forth to South House and borrowed an electric bulb. Strangely enough, he or some other seized the opportunity to ring the fire-alarm at the corner, and in a brace of shakes only fire, however, met their gaze, but only an ephemeral aura of tranquil peace, perched serenely on the brow of East House.

Address

Speaking on Behalf of C.M.A., Declares Latter's Stand
Yet Unvoiced

At an open meeting of the Medical Society in the lecture room at Hart House last night, Dr. T. C. Routley, of the Canadian Medical Association, gave an address which contained material of exceptional interest not only to the student body but to the community as a whole. In his speech he outlined the work and purpose of the C.M.A., which is headed by the most prominent men in Canadian medicine and in reference to which he announced the fact that in the election campaign beginning next week the Liberal Party will use as the chief plank in their platform, the advocacy of what amounts to State Medicine for Ontario.

This information, he explained, was a "scoop" of his own from sources which he did not wish to divulge. He showed that the organization of the C.M.A. rendered it necessary for the government to consult it before any plan could be definitely adopted. Although not declaring the stand taken by the Association in regard to this all-important question, he made it clear that it was its intention "to protect the interests of the profession and at the same time those of the people". To expose them to a system of medical treatment which he intimated could not approach the optimum as regards the relation between patient and doctor, was not a sound policy.

Quoting the case of British Columbia, where state medicine is being established, he described the way in which invaluable aid was given by the

"ENTIRELY INDIFFERENT"

The male undergraduates of the university refuse to take the subject of women smoking, or smoking women seriously, if the eight men interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday can be considered to express the opinion of the average male.

Those men who were sufficiently interested to express an opinion refused to give their names, but their views that the subject was unworthy of serious consideration were unanimous. "Utter rot", and "piffle", were some of the terms used by these serious-minded males.

Sexes Mingle on Ice As Architects Battle

The first year Architects won a hard fought game of hockey from the second year yesterday by a score of 5-3. Miss Dama Lumby, second year's feminine Architect, played a good game as goalie, while Professor Billy Wright brilliantly upheld the Sophs as forward.

Harry Roberts, playing for the second year, was the star of the game. Arrayed in a rugby helmet, he made the first point for the opposing team when he slipped a fast one past his own goalie.

"Varsity" Staff Elections Friday

A combined meeting of the staff of "The Varsity" will be held at Wymilwood on Friday, December 12, at 4.00 p.m. The list of those eligible to vote at the annual fall elections, which will be held at this meeting, will appear in "The Varsity" of to-morrow. Attendance is compulsory.

Extensive Campaign for the Year

DISCOVER NEW TALENT

"The St. Michael's Glee Club is a revival of one that flourished some years ago," stated Charles Henry, self styled publicity agent of the club, when interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday. "It is, to the best of our knowledge, the only faculty glee club in the university. There is one at Hart House, but it isn't organized."

This organization seems to have a group of enthusiastic supporters, who are to form the nucleus of the new venture. They have outlined an extensive campaign for the year, and are determined to carry it out. Songsters will be held once a week and all members of the faculty are invited. The administration of the club will be looked after by a "general directorate" that will consist of representatives

ARMSTRONG SCORES NINE

Varsity senior waterpoloists swamped Central Y under an avalanche of shots to win their league fixture 14 to 2 at Hart House last night.

Bob Armstrong was back on the line-up and demonstrated that his eye is as good as ever by scoring 9 goals.

After running up a comfortable lead, Varsity eased up a bit. The half time count was 5 to 1 and in the second period the Blues ran in 9 more without trouble.

The game was rough and featured by some exceedingly strenuous play. The Y team started much of the fireworks, but the locals handed back as much as they received.

Bottle Containing Vic Names
Immured in Emmanuel Concrete

OTHER CONTENTS UNKNOWN

During a strictly unofficial ceremony which took place at noon yesterday, residents of East House, Emmanuel College, immortalized the 1930 class in theology of Victoria College in imperishable fashion.

The medium was prosaic—a tightly corked bottle was the central figure in the operation, and a workman completed the affair when he embalmed the bottle in concrete.

The bottle itself contained the signatures of all the men in residence in East House, of a number of the Victoria faculty, including Chancellor Wallace and Principal Gaudier, a shiny new 1930 five-cent piece, and a list of all the men registered in theology at Victoria at the present time.

The receptacle was immured in the final instalment of concrete to be poured in the process of building the new Emmanuel College, which has now virtually reached completion.

The original contents of the bottle are not indicated.

Chicago Lie Detector Reveals Exam Cheats

University of Chicago students are going to be used to test a lie detecting machine. The "lie detector" will reveal cheating in examinations. Dr. J. A. Larsen, research psychiatrist, announced recently that he would conduct experiments on students who cheat purposely. The purpose is to test the accuracy of the machine and to demonstrate its value in a court of law.

"The question of a smoking room in the new University College women's residence has not yet been decided either way," stated Miss Kilpatrick, Dean of Women, when interviewed yesterday. "It will be decided most probably by the principal of the college and the Alumnae Association, which is furnishing the residence."

"There is no definite ruling against smoking in the women's residences, and as far as I have been able to find out from the building bonds, there is no mention of it there. However, it was an accepted fact when I took the position of acting Dean of Women, and I have never cared to change it. In the older house, the danger of fire enters into the problem, and that is mainly why the girls are requested not to smoke."

"As to smoking in the Women's Union, this prohibition, as the other, existed when I came here. I would like very much to have a room in the Union set aside for that purpose, but there is positively no available space. Smoking during social functions at the Union is allowed in the men's cloakroom, where there is not so much possibility of a fire, and which is rather easy to clean. This accommodation was provided this year, because it was rather hard on the men to dash out on cold nights for cigarettes between dances."

"There has never been any definite ruling against smoking in women's residences," stated another official. "The University of Toronto is a state

MOUNTING ADVICE FOR CAMERA CLUB

Stanley Harrod Lectures on Proper Mounting of Prints

PROVIDES EXAMPLES

The Camera Club was given a short but very interesting talk on the mounting of photographic prints by Mr. Stanley Harrod of the Toronto Camera Club Tuesday in the Music Room of Hart House.

Mr. Harrod started by displaying a number of dummy prints in various positions on the mountings, showing that a picture cannot be placed dead centre and still give the best effect. Mr. Harrod did not recommend any particular formula for this, he himself always uses his own judgment. He then exhibited a number of copies of a photograph on a dozen different mountings of varying shades, pointing out the difference a suitably chosen mounting will have on the general effect of a picture. Ivory paper was recommended as safe for most pictures as it does not draw attention from the picture to itself. The colour of the mount should, as a general rule, be colder than the tone of the picture. Photographers were advised to use pencil lines round the print rather as a means of relieving a hard contrast between the edge of the print and the mounting than as a supplementary frame.

Mr. Harrod finished by answering questions and giving useful hints on other branches of the art.

KERCHOO!

This might have been an interesting editorial if we did not have a cold. But we have, and as a result, life is seen at a disadvantage and we feel like the miller of Dee. Even the fact that we are not alone in our misery is not very comforting. It is safe to say that a good seventy-five per cent. of the students, faculty, and adherents of this University have suffered, are suffering, or are going to suffer from this particular indisposition this winter. With the coming of the chilly season, we, from force of habit, but against our wills, look forward grimly to the fact that sometime ere spring we will have a cold, that till it is gone we will be completely miserable to ourselves, and a nuisance, nay, a danger, to our friends and the public.

True it is that some among us take preventatives believing that an ounce of serum But despite this and other precautions such as the avoidance of draughts, the addition of extra and cumbersome clothing, the hated wearing of stupid rubbers, despite all these, colds, insidiously as is their nature, descend upon us so that "plain living and high thinking" become impossible. Hot lemonades, mustard plasters, pills, medicine, are applied till our patience and our tempers are quite ruined, and we nurse a grudge against an unjust world until the cold germ agrees to depart unquestionably the victor.

Diabetes, cancer, tuberculosis, have all come in for their share of investigation and attempts at curing. Rightly so. But what of investigations into the whys and wherefores of the cold significantly named "common"? True, we did hear once of an American committee of specialists who were investigating the subject. But as yet we have heard of and seen no tangible results.

In this issue there is some attention given to the question of the practice of medicine coming under the control of the province. Our remark on such an important subject may be considered a trivial one but, remembering our own present affliction and that of so many of our fellow creatures, we feel called upon to proclaim the idea a splendid one if state control of medicine might include a little more practical attention given to the cure and annihilation of the curse called the cold. Considering the menace this particular germ is to the sum total of man's happiness and enjoyment of life we feel this is a subject deserving of serious and intelligent attention.

And now the labours of composition give way to the one hundred and fifth sneeze.

Co-Ordination Needed

Editor, "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:

May I, as a member of one of the smaller departments of this university, express my hearty agreement with the editorial of December 4th? There is, sorry to say, "a woeful lack of co-ordination between the smaller faculties", and with it, a feeling that we are "left in the cold" as far as university activities go.

In a university of federated colleges, it is difficult to have a common life and heritage—to have the same united feeling for our university as one finds in a smaller college or university. In each department or faculty we make friends and discuss topics of mutual interest. But are we broad-minded Canadians to find an interest only in our own faculty? Is there not a great deal to be secured from the mixing and exchange of ideas between not only the various departments in Arts, but between Medicine, Arts, S.P.S., Dentistry, Music, and even Social Science?

Perhaps we in Social Science feel this lack of unity more than some others. Our range of studies is broad and closely related to that of other departments and faculties, and we realize how much could be gained by a closer union and fellowship. We know there are societies within many departments and faculties discussing things of interest to us as well as to themselves—yet because of custom or official etiquette, we are debarred. We too have our Community Club in which we discuss subjects of interest. May I suggest that we would be glad to consider a joint meeting with any other interested faculty or department society, or club in the university.

Nor do we offer such a suggestion from purely selfish reasons alone. We feel that we would have something to give. In our department we have a total enrolment of 200 men and women, of whom 70 are full-time students. Many of these students are graduates, not only our Toronto University Colleges, but also of McMaster, McGill, British Columbia, New Brunswick, two English universities, several American

Lady Windermere's Fan

Lord D: You talk as if you were a man of experience.

Cecil G: I am.

Lord D: You are far too young.

(Act III, Lady Windermere's Fan)

Probably the most experienced and mature amateur dramatic group in Toronto would have failed to present Lady Windermere's Fan as it ought to be presented. Certainly the Victoria College Players failed last night. They failed because they had chosen to produce a play that puts a premium on experience and on sophistication; although their players were too young and too untrained to possess either.

Lady Windermere's Fan, the best known of all the plays of Oscar Wilde, has all the superficial cleverness that we find in Congreve, but its mood is entirely different. The ingredients that make up the plot form the popular combination of suspense, surprise, humour and sentiment. It is a melodrama built around the idea that no mother ever sinks so low as to cease to love her child, and gilded over with an acid-sweet icing of meaningless paradoxes and fashionable chatter.

The period of the play is really 1890, but it is presented in modern dress amid modern surroundings. This was an excellent idea, but unfortunately the majority of the men tried to mingle Victorian gestures with 1930 clothes. The combination was rather incongruous.

With five exceptions the acting was monotonously unimaginative, due to the quite natural inability of most college students to appreciate the temper of Wilde's humour. The play flowed on evenly enough. The lines were well read, but there was no enthusiasm in the acting. Especially did the men find it difficult to appear natural in their parts.

The best acting was certainly that of Olive Smith as a gossiping old Duchess. She held the centre of the stage whenever she appeared and more than any of the others read real meaning into her lines. Harold Vaughan as the stupid lord, played up the comedy in his part to the maximum and was quite successful.

Ada Anderson was not convincing in a difficult role, but I do not know three amateurs in Toronto who could have carried the part of Lady Windermere with any real measure of success. She was at her best in the soliloquy at the beginning of the third act, though she held the interest of the house all through the fourth act. Louise Hurlbut was certainly the only girl in the east who could have handled the part of Mrs. Erlynne; but even she lacked the skill that comes of experience and that is very necessary in so subtle a role as that which confronted her.

Most of those appearing in this production were on the stage for the first time and as they are nearly all in the junior years, their experience this year should stand the society in good stead when they come to presenting their next show.

But we do hope they will try to find a play that gives a chance to those who will take part in producing it. Victoria College has the material and there are fine and interesting plays to be found.

Obituary

"The Varsity" announces with deep regret the untimely passing of a valued member of the staff in the person of the genial editor of this column, Mr. Gaspard McGuffey. Our bereavement at this time is rendered exceptionally sad by his unconsciously ironic remark in this column only yesterday, "Tell 'The Varsity' to hold up my obituary for another week!"

Though suffering continuously from an organic disorder which daily threatened to assume critical proportions, Gaspard courageously withstood all knowledge of his condition even from his most intimate friends. It consequently came as a distinct shock when, on hurrying to the General Hospital upon receipt of information that a newly admitted accident patient was calling our name continuously, we found the sufferer to be none other than the unfortunate Gaspard, suffering from a severe attack of angina pectoris.

Officials informed us that he had been suddenly stricken while walking up Elizabeth St. and had been rushed to the General Hospital at once. An emergency operation was performed almost immediately, but the strenuous efforts of the city's finest surgeons proved unavailing, and shortly after one o'clock this morning he fell into a stupor which gradually became deeper till it passed imperceptibly into a merciful death. The pain-contorted features smoothed themselves to their former appearance of classic beauty, and upon that noble brow there settled for all time the "peace that passeth all understanding."

His last words were touching and pathetic, "Say good-bye to all my dear old college friends," he said. "Tell the Dean and the Registrar and dear, dear Sir Robert that in that happy

VARSITY JUNIOR PLAY T.C.C. FOR S.P.A. TITLE TO-NIGHT

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

St. Hilda's have indeed created an enviable record in the interfaculty basketball this year. Including their league games they played a total of ten games, and won all of them except the first semi-final against St. Michael's. In the last three games they seemed to come to life after rather a poor start, and led by Bea Symons, who displayed remarkable shooting ability in all of these last struggles, won through to the interfaculty title.

In the game last night, players on both teams were over-anxious, and there was a lot of sloppy passing and hasty shooting, especially at the first of the game. The first half was extremely exciting, with the teams scoring basket for basket all the way through. Neither were good enough to obtain a commanding lead at any time, although the Red and White had a slight edge on the play in the first half, and had the heart-breaking experience of watching several shots roll around the edge of the basket and out.

There were five girls competing in the final who played intercollegiate basketball, and all of them were outstanding. Bea Symons and Sally Ballard, who have subbed on the Blue senior forward line for two years, were the greatest threats on the Saints' outfit, while Louise Crouch, Wilma Hazlitt, and Jean Allen on the Red and White squad, have all turned in very steady games this season. Louise Crouch especially, has been the main cog in the U.C. attack.

Adele Statten, who played a great game on the U.C. defence, deserves special mention for the showing she has made this year. She is in her fourth year, and has not played basketball since she came to college, but notwithstanding this, turned in one of the best defensive games seen at Varsity this year. She was able to keep the speedy Sally Ballard in check for most of the game.

Eleanor Wallace, who played jumping centre for the U.C. Freshmen this year, is going to make a real bid for the intercollegiate team this year. She is a sister of Wilene Wallace who jumped for the Blue seniors four years ago, and was one of the best jumpers ever seen at Varsity. Her sister seems to be following in her footsteps. Her play leaves nothing to be desired on the offense, and with a

CLEAN BASKETBALL WINS FOR Y TEAM

West End Runs Up Early Lead Over the Varsity Juniors

HARD PLAY IN LAST HALF

West End juniors defeated Varsity 28 to 21 in a fast and closely contested game last night in the big gym at Hart House. With the Blue team entertaining an off night the Y sent in a team that played fast clean basketball.

Starting off with a bang in the first five minutes of play, the Y ran up eleven points before Varsity could ripple the twice once. After taking time out Varsity slowed down the play, stopped the Y's attempts to break through, and with hard consistent shooting, gradually overcame their handicap to come out and tie the score at half time 13 all.

In the second half both teams settled down to hard checking and maintained a steady man to man defensive game, but with five minutes to play, the West End team scored several long shots and obtained an eight point lead, most of which they held till the last in the face of a sudden but fruitless onslaught by Douglas and Shugar.

The game ended 28 to 21 for West End, which places them at the head of the group, while Varsity have won one and lost two.

West End—Forwards, Brownlee 3, Coburn 4; centre, O'Hara 8; guards, Murchie 4, Paterson 3; spars, Cameron, Drummond 6, Lobb, Lansitie, McMullen, Potts.

little coaching should develop into a strong player defensively.

When Vic took the interfaculty baseball title from St. Michael's by a score of 16 to 10, the best player on the floor was the St. Mike's pitcher, Marion Shaidle. Besides hurling a stellar game, she fielded her own position and that of most of the infield, and it was almost entirely due to her good work that the Scarlet and Gold were held to 16 runs.

After the game, one of the coaches was heard remarking sadly to the umpire, "If Marion Shaidle had been twins, Vic wouldn't have won that game".

Don't forget the intercollegiate hockey practice which will be held to day at one o'clock at the Blue Arena. Coach Jack Sinclair is anxious to have a large turnout. There are quite a number of freshies who have a real chance to make a place on the squad, and just now it looks as though the Queen's will have to field a pretty strong outfit to take the championship away from Varsity.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By A. C. C.

Just another reminder of the benefit hockey game at the Varsity Arena Friday night when two strong commercial league teams, Bell Telephone and Northern Electric hook up. A ticket to this game is only going to set you back two-bits, one quarter of a dollar. And one quarter of a dollar will feed ten men as much as they want. You won't miss 25 cents as much as you would a meal, so why not buy a ticket even if you can't go to the game and help some poor chap who knows what it is to miss a meal.

The people who are behind this Everyman's Club for down-and-outs—it doesn't matter who they are—are counting on raising enough money to carry them through the winter and to equip a real clubhouse for unemployed men who would otherwise spend their time on the streets. This is YOUR chance to do your bit towards helping those who are less fortunate.

What Varsity's waterpoloists did to Central "Y" in the Hart House tank last night was just too bad, too bad for Central. The score was 14 to 2. The locals had their visitors completely at sea, literally.

The sport fans have got to make a choice between the finals of the Junior Assault-at-Arms and the S.P.A. junior final between Frank Sullivan's puck-chasers and Toronto Canoe Club. If you like the mit and mat game in preference to hockey, then you will witness some keen boxing and wrestling bouts. On the other hand, the juniors are expected to win the coveted S.P.A. trophy, but the Canoeists will put up a great battle, led by Stewart, their husky defenceman.

Varsity's intermediate and junior basketball teams didn't fare so well in a double-header with West End "Y" at Hart House last night. The intermediates, playing together for the first time this year, led 9 to 8 at half time, but lack of condition and combination gave the West Enders the edge and the game. The juniors distinctly had an off night and failed to produce the brand of basketball that carried them to a one-point victory over the same team on the "Y" floor recently.

SCLATER QUOTES MEREDITH'S POEM

Minister Unravelling Poetry
Where Two Lawyers

HARDY ULTRA-PESSIMISTIC

The Rev. J. R. P. Slater addressed the English Association in the Reference Library Hall last night on the subject, "Optimism and Pessimism in the Poetry of Meredith and Hardy". He prefaced his remarks with the statement that he enjoyed English literature perhaps because he never spent any of his nine years at university on it.

"Both Hardy and Meredith in their poetry set out to teach and this is especially true of Meredith," said Dr. Slater. "Meredith was a very didactic person." In Dr. Slater's opinion, both poets display an authentic singing note, but, as he put it, "Hardy is as clear as day, Meredith frequently as obscure as midnight."

As an example of "Meredithian Mystery" Dr. Slater quoted Meredith's "Penetration and Trust". Dr. Slater said that he had shown this poem to two lawyers, both of whom could make nothing of it, and it remained for a simple Irish minister to unravel it for him. After reading it, Dr. Slater gave an explanation of the poem for men only, "If you want your wife to love you, cave-man her."

"Meredith was an optimist, Hardy a pessimist of pity," stated Dr. Slater. A key to Meredith's teaching is to be found in his "Faith on Trial". His view is "that good is strength, strength comes from strife, therefore strife is good". Hardy, on the other hand, had a sympathetic heart which was attracted to the sad and from this arose his pessimism.

In reply to remarks from the floor concerning the modern school of writers, Dr. Slater said that "he wished he wasn't in the society of ladies and hadn't his clerical collar on so that he could say what he thought of the moderns, especially Galsworthy." However, he gave the Association his general views and concluded with "Their love of truth isn't quite honest."

Varsity Defeated BY WEST ENDERS

Fouling Features First Half;
Blues Lacking in Teampay

SHORTT IS HIGH SCORER

In a rough and ragged league opener West End defeated Varsity Intermediate B's decisively 24-16 last night in the big gym at Hart House.

After securing a five point lead in the first five minutes with a few individual efforts, Varsity fell down de-fensively and the Y caught up. Heavy fouling was a feature of the contest along with a decided lack of combination and team play.

Occasionally both teams broke through on a sudden dash and scored, but the first half ended with the low score of 9 to 8 in favour of Varsity.

In the second half Willis came on for McIsaac and turned in a good game on the defence, starting several good plays for the Blue quintette. On one occasion Hutchison, who was left unguarded momentarily, caught an end to end pass from Willis and scored neatly from under the basket.

The West End team then opened up and scored several long shots and close in shots on rebounds, getting far in the lead. Varsity, lacking condition, fell back, and Shortt got away unguarded for four baskets which cinched the game for the Y.

The game ended 24-16 in favour of West End Y. Shortt, the high scorer, Cunningham and Paterson were the best for the winners, while Willis, Hutchison and Humphrey turned in the best games for Varsity.

Central Y—Forwards, Cunningham 2, Baird 2; centre, Paterson 5; guards, Miller 2, McPherson 2; spars, Martin 3, Bolton, Shortt 8, Cousie, Smith.

Among the events of major importance to distinguish the coming winter sports season in Quebec, will be the International Dog-Sled Derby to be held February 19-21 over a 120-mile course. It is expected Emile St. Godard, four times winner of the trophy, will defend his title. The Marguerite Bull at the Chateau Frontenac will be another high light on February 20. Other events will be the International Convention of Snowshoe Clubs from Canada and New England and the annual ice canoe race through the fies of the St. Lawrence about the middle of February.

The sporty seaside lay-out of the Victoria Golf Club where the 27th annual mid-winter golf tournament will be staged from February 23 to 28 came in for unstinted praise from Gene Sarazen, former United States open champion, and Al Espinosa, of Chicago, interviewed recently. "I thought Victoria would be a land of ice and snow around this time and that Vancouver Island was a suburb of the frozen north," he said. His visit provided him with one of the surprises of his golfing career and both climatologically and from the golfing point of view, Victoria was in both his and Espinosa's opinion ideal.

Making fast time in handling the annual inbound movement of the fruit, now as much a part of the Christmas board in western Canada as the turkey or mincepie, a Canadian Pacific train of 26 cars carrying about 60,000 boxes of Japanese oranges reached Field recently after making the run through the mountains from Vancouver in fifteen minutes less than scheduled passenger train time. By mid-December it is calculated that 700,000 boxes of these oranges will have been delivered.

Colorful Yuletide pageantry, including the ceremony of bringing in the bear's head and Yule log will be observed at the Empress Hotel, Victoria, Christmas Day and carol singing, a chaf in Elizabethan costume attended by page boys and a court jester in cap and bells will accompany them through rotunda and dining room to the place of honor where the Lieutenant-Governor R. Randolph Bruce who is sponsoring the celebrations, will be seated.

Last week 970 letters came in one day to the radio office of the Canadian Pacific Railway from Melody Mike fans. They came from cities, towns and villages all over Canada and included many from the United States. It is an all-Canadian radio feature declared by radio station people to be, with one exception, the most popular feature on the air today.

The Emperor of Japan is among the recent new customers for British Columbia pure-bred poultry. A consignment of selected birds which sold for $450, from some of the best poultry farms in British Columbia, was recently shipped to the Imperial farms. Each of the hens in the consignment has a record of 300 eggs or better per year.

Entered in competition with several countries, an exhibit of game trophies from British Columbia recently won highest award at the famous Leipzig (Germany) Fair. It included giant moose, deer, wapiti, sheep and goat heads and skins of fur-bearing animals.

Unmarried Uncle Urges Unions
Spick McGush Put In Coventry

By P. A. Gardner

Tush is devoting its entire space this week to Toronto's most hideous social problem—Unmarried Uncles.

It is calculated that at the present moment there are in Toronto 14,634 unmarried uncles, of which number the university harbours not a few. Things have finally come to a head in the Spick McGush case.

Spick McGush, prominent politician and business man, has for years led what seemed to the world at large a spotless life. It was not until the other day that the appalling fact came to light that Mr. McGush is in reality one of that little band of outcasts, unmarried uncles. Now that this deplorable circumstance is publicly known, Tush feels it its duty to outline the actual facts of the case.

Years ago, shortly after Spick had graduated with honours from Victoria he was faced with the greatest temptation of his life. He yielded, and became in quick succession best man (ah, mocking epithet), then uncle.

Pity, my friend, pity the helpless, sunless niece, abandoned by her uncle under the rose! Pity the repentant uncle, his misstep taken, no remedy in sight; his brother Span respectfully married, himself an outcast in the sight of God—though accepted by the world, who did not know.

But when they knew! Dear heaven! the thought seared Spick's soul; it drove sleep from his lids; it flashed across his eyes and blurred the columns of his tabloid.

And now they know, know, know! Yes, yes, yes! And they have sent poor Spick to Coventry, the brutes! For, after all, Spick was but human. You or I, faced by the avuncular urge, might have yielded too.

For the unmarried uncle is more to be pitied than blamed. It is that smug and spousy lecher, the husband, who is to blame! Has he no self-control? Can he not wait until the best man himself is married before he makes of him an example—a pilloried criminal for unfeeling crowds to jeer at?

Of course, there is marriage after the birth of the niece—but no man of true delicacy can feel that the stigma has been removed by such a tardy step, even though in the right direction. No, the truly iconoclastic uncle-before-God prefers to bear his shame without mitigation, to wear the mark of Cain without any stars for good conduct!

Let us, then, have mercy on the unmarried uncles! Do you know a niece-out-of-wedlock? Then find out her uncle, visit him, comfort him, lend him a record of "Everything's Gonna Be All Right", take him to hear Dr. Shields and his message of goodwill and sympathy.

And remember, all you wedded uncles, amid your complacency remember! You too might have had nieces, nephews even, born before the Church had laid its hands upon you! Remember, and when you behold a poor natural uncle skulking shamefully by, say, "There, but for the grace of Brother Bill, go I!" And, remembering, give him a helping hand!

We do not urge you to go so far as to introduce him into your own circle. There are limits, we realize. But you will find ways. Let him come disguised to your side door after midnight and receive helpful tracts from you; save your cast-off collar studs for him; there are a thousand and one means by which you can make the poor wretch feel less of a pariah. Make him feel that there is a God, Who loves him even though he has fallen from grace. It's up to you!

My friends, this is going to be terribly hard to write, but I must do it! Tush! has never shown favour, nor will it now!

My friends, as I penned the last word above, a telegram was delivered to me from my brother, who married on Graduation Day a girl whom I myself might some day . . . who knows? . . . ah well . . . he won't; he deserves her! . . .

But this girl promised me, with the graceless smile which she always wore, promised me that never through her agency should I become an unmarried uncle. And now, a few short months after her vow, she brands me with that mark of Hell! Me, me, the Editor of Tush!, the apostle of moral uplift! Ah, it is hard to bear, but I must bear it! And gladly I display my wounded heart, that beholding it, all may take warning and avoid as the plague the assumption of unclehood without the connubial safeguard.

"Edwin arrived this morning. Both doing well. Bill." Terse but cutting, it lays bare my soul as with a scalpel. But wait! Am I Junior's uncle? There is still hope. Perhaps my old sweetheart did not break her vow to me . . . Perhaps her faith is still inviolate. . . .

Oh joy! joy! joy!

institution and in light of the fact that the people of the province would react most unfavourably to any policy on the part of the university which would allow any such thing, we would have to wait until public opinion was educated to such a point. However, the ruling has never been made since, if the time should come when public opinion would look leniently on such a thing, it would be much easier to bow to a changed custom than to erase a written rule."

"In the case of the Victoria College women's residences, there is no such ruling, owing to the fact that it could never be enforced with any success," declared Miss M. E. Addison, Dean of Women of Victoria College. "The girls are asked not to smoke by the student government because of danger of fire."

The heads of the various house committees stated that the girls themselves had taken no definite stand on the subject, except for informal discussions. The question might arise later as to whether the girls are to be allowed to have any voice in the decision on the subject in the case of the new residence, but it is understood that the women will "receive no consideration whatever on the subject of a smoking room in the new women's residence."

The proposition is solely for the purpose of providing entertainment for the college and at the same time to discover new talent, and could really be termed as a choral and dramatic club.

After Christmas they are going to commence rehearsals on a play, that will be put on at the Hart House Theatre some time near the end of February. The college orchestra will work in co-operation with them, and Dr. Gerald Phelan is to be the music director.

Their first performance will be given in conjunction with the Athletic Directorate at their smoker, which is to be held early in January. SCAPEGOAT CURSE OF ANCIENT DAYS

QUERIES UNANSWERED

"A scape-goat in ancient times was the sacrificial animal on whom the priest placed the sins of the community, and then turned it loose in a desert country where it was to be a curse to anyone who touched it," said Mr. Russell Gordon, the chairman at the T.I.C.C.U. meeting at Wymilwood yesterday afternoon.

"Christ is the ransom paid to Satan to deliver us from corruption," stated Mr. Philip Downer in his speech, "Christ the Sinner." During the open discussion which followed Mr. Downer's address, the principal question raised was, "Did Christ carry all the sins of the world?" This question caused a wide-spread argument in which everyone asked more questions and stated their own opinions, Association in arranging a system whereby the province and the profession might co-operate in a more or less satisfactory manner. Neither in this nor in his reference to community medicine which has been the object of experimentation in the middle west, did he discuss the outcome of these social changes.

In his review of the accomplishments of the Association during the last eight years, he mentioned the organization of lectures, clinics and demonstrations that have enabled practitioners in the outlying corners of the dominion to enjoy in their own community the benefits of the most recent results of scientific investigation. This service has been conducted on a solid economic basis. He spoke of the undertaking of an extensive study of the problem of the nursing profession and its important relation to the medical world. A sum of $30,000 has been used for this purpose and the report which is being awaited by both the British and American Medical Associations will appear in the Journal of the C.M.A. this spring.

CANOE CLUB DOWNS BLUE SEXTETTE TO CAPTURE S.P.A. JUNIOR TROPHY

Davidson Clinches 5-4 Win for Junior Canoeists in Last Period

JACK HOUSLEY STARS

T.C.C. Keep Edge on Varsity in Spite of Final Rally

In an exhibition of ragged and random hockey the Toronto Canoe Club juniors triumphed over the U. of T. junior sextette to take the Sportsmen's Patriotic Association junior trophy by a score of 5-4 at the Arena Gardens last night.

The score was close but the Canoeists earned the title, as they led the play most of the way, and except in the last half of the final period the Blue and White juniors played a listless game. Jack Housley was the outstanding man on the ice, scoring three of the Paddlers' goals, while Davidson, on the forward line for T.C.C., put in the other two. Cunningham and McPherson were the high lights for Varsity, doing most of the play-making and hard checking for the Blue juniors. Shipp, in goal for Varsity, played a steady game and kept out some hot shots.

Hendry started off the scoring early in the first period by slipping in before House saw him. That lived things up for a time and the Canoeists kept Shipp busy for a few minutes. Davidson, on a pass from Jack Housley, lit the red light for the second time half way through the period.

One minute after the second period got under way Jack Housley fooled Shipp by faking a pass to Brown and gave the Paddlers the lead. Donovan tallied a half minute later to even (Continued on Page 4)

MAGAZINE ENDS HIGHBROW POLICY

Graduate Talent, Book Reviews, Drama, Excluded from U.C. Publication

SALE BEGINS TO-MORROW

The December issue of the University College Magazine, which has been somewhat delayed because of the printers, will be put on sale either Saturday or Monday, it was learned by "The Varsity" yesterday. It will be sold at the east side door and main rotunda of U.C., at two or three tea rooms and probably at Hart House book shop. One of the main features of this edition of the magazine will be its complete change of policy. It will not be as "highbrow" as formerly but is designed more for popular taste. Another is that there are no articles in it by graduates, it being the intention to develop the talent of the undergraduates of U.C.

Heretofore 14 out of the 36 pages of the magazine were taken up with athletics, drama, book reviews, etc., but now the drama and book reviews have been excluded, a comparatively short space being devoted to the activities of the Literary and Athletic Society, and as a consequence there will be much more literary material. The feature of the current issue is an article by Victor Lange, the German Davis Exchange student. There will also be a number of efforts of the budding poets of U.C., short stories and travelogues, with illustrations. Great credit for this edition is due to the women's editorial staff, which has been enlarged by three year representatives, and has been very active.

VIOLATED RULE BRINGS INVENTION

Story of Communications Told. Original Switch-Board Exhibited

EXPLAIN MODERN METHOOS

Mr. Steel of the Canadian National Telegraph Company addressed the Mathematics and Physics Society yesterday afternoon on "Recent Developments in Communication".

The speaker gave a brief sketch of the history of communication from the time when man used smoke as a means of despatching messages to the system that is used now. He gave a very interesting example of a mechanical device invented by necessity. "A certain school in France had a rule that there was to be no communication between residents of one dormitory and residents of another. Two of the boys, in order to overcome this ruling, set up a mechanical semaphore with which they could send over two hundred messages. In 1794 the French government decided to use this system and put one of the young inventors in charge of its construction."

He showed the society the first switch board installed in Toronto in 1857 by the Great North Western Telegraph Company.

Speaking of the apparatus now being used, he said, "The system now in vogue can transmit four hundred words per minute and twenty different frequencies are worked over one pair of wires at the same time. It is also possible to send a telephone and telegraph message over the same pair of wires. For the telephone conversation, all sound frequencies over twenty-eight hundred are eliminated as it has been discovered that that is all that is necessary to make a voice distinguishable. The ones over three thousand are used for the telegraph message."

FLUSTERED CO-EDS DATE KANSAS APOLLOS

Age-Old Customs Reversed on Long-Awaited Leap-Day

University of Kansas, Lawrence, Kansas.—For one day, December 13, the males at the University of Kansas will listen to feminine voices, "suddenly grown sweet and imploring, beseeching of him the favour of a date." Co-eds are right now a bit flustered and thrown off balance by this unexpected turn of affairs that has so unceremoniously reversed the customs of their social life. Betty Co-ed may now call without fear of censure the cute boy with the curly brown hair that sent thrills and chills running through her when they danced at open house. On the other hand, she must also look after the matter of transportation to and from the party, drinks at intermission and food afterwards.

"Varsity" Staff Elections To-day

WOMEN SMOKERS HINDERED BY RULES

Problem will be Revived When New Residence Forms Code

DO BOYS LIKE SMOKERS?

"A smoking room in the residence would be a very good idea," said Betty Nelson, 3T2 Victoria, when asked her opinion yesterday on the smoking question. "We do not smoke in Annesley because of fire regulations, but there is certainly an element in the residence which enjoys smoking, and which would rather do so frankly, and in the casual privacy of the residence than be forced to take advantage of public tea rooms and restaurants. I think many Victoria co-eds believe that Victoria boys do not like girls who smoke. I think this is becoming less true every year, and just so long as smoking is considered to be forbidden fruit, so long will it have an attraction. Once it is accepted casually as it is bound to be, it will be so much less of a problem."

"At Wymilwood, there is no chance," said Jean Morton, 3T2 Victoria, "we are on our honour because none of the residences are fire-proof. I doubt if there would be much patronage of the smoking room. We don't really talk about it as it is. Girls who want to smoke go out for it."

"Queen's Hall girls are up against university rules," said Minerva Sinclair, Head Girl at Queen's Park. "This is a perennial problem, but it has aroused nothing but informal discussion. I believe there is a strong opinion both ways, with regard to the suggestion of a smoking room in the new residence. After Christmas there will be a meeting to discuss these other questions, when we draw up a policy for next fall. There will probably be lively discussions then, both locally and over the province. Call around later and you will hear some news."

SPORTS FANS NEEDED TO SUPPORT EVERYMAN'S CLUB HOCKEY FIXTURE

Earlier this week, we published details of an organization, which includes in its staff of workers many local persons. We refer to Everyman's Club, which was sponsored for the commendable purpose of relieving, to some extent, the acute situation which exists in the downtown districts of Toronto.

A benefit hockey game between two of the best teams in the Commercial League of Toronto has received the unstinted support of students. In particular, the Engineering Society, under the direction of A. E. Tyson, the president, have disposed of a large block of tickets, and the University College student body have done their part to make the night a success for the organization.

The limits of space prevent us from describing more fully the work that is being done. But we may be assured that the cause is a worthy one, when it has received the endorsement and support of such University figures as Dr. H. Wasteny, J. B. Bickersteth, T. A. Reed and Dr. W. Seccombe. The headquarters of the movement are at 62 Duke Street, and visitors are always welcomed, particularly in the evenings, when recreational facilities are provided.

Over twelve hundred tickets have been already disposed of, and it is expected that other faculties will do their part in assisting the work. Tickets may be secured from the University Book Room, and any authorized Faculty representatives may secure blocks of tickets to hold for sale by calling at the office of the Assistant Comptroller of Hart House.

'VARSITY' EFFECT ON INTELLIGENCE DECRIED BY MED

Champus Cat and Sports Highly Esteemed by C. and F. Man

AOEQUATE FOR PURPOSE

Five Minute Quota Allotted for Reading of "Varsity" by Vic Student

"The Varsity" certainly doesn't help to make its readers intelligent," answered J. E. Ford, of third year U.C., when questioned regarding his views of the Queen's Journal editorial which appeared in yesterday's "Varsity". "But it is plenty intellectual enough for its purpose," he added. "News-papers are not supposed to be educative anyway."

"The only part of 'The Varsity' that's educative is the Sports Section," said Harold Irwin, of second year C. and F. "I'd sure hate to miss my Champus Cat, too," he exclaimed, "even though it may not have such an intellectual influence on my character."

V. M. Christie, Vic 3T3, maintained that "The Varsity" has much more of a tendency to make a reader intelligent than has "College Life", while P. J. Simmers, Trinity IV, thought that "The Varsity" is intellectual enough for anyone and that the readers have no regard for the sections which do border on the educative.

"I don't know how anyone could say that it made a reader intelligent," commented H. D. Jenner, of fifth year Meds, observing that he for one, would welcome with open arms any change to make "The Varsity" a sheet which would have such an influence. "Of course, such a paper could not be a (Continued on Page 4)

Arrest of Murder Suspect Aided by U. of T. Grad.

Near 2.00 o'clock this morning the police captured a man whom they believe to have perpetrated the cold-blooded murder of one of the city police force last night.

At 1.45 a graduate of the University of Toronto and present member of its staff, who was a former member of "The Varsity" staff, was stopped by three policemen as he was driving along Malton Rd., about one mile west of Weston. He was ordered to turn his headlights down the adjacent ravine, and in the latter a 22 calibre revolver was found. After this search, the suspect, allegedly a London man, was found on the road nearby and promptly taken into custody.

The guilt of the man arrested was still unconfirmed at 5 a.m. to-day.

MODERNS ESCHEW VICTORIAN AGE

Seek to Startle and Shock Rather than Charm, Says Alexander

POETESS AVOIDS MEANING

"In the last quarter century there has been a distinct revolt against the belief, morals, manners, and taste of the Victorian age, and this is exemplified in the modern poetry," said Professor Alexander yesterday afternoon on an opening for the second of the series of Thursday lectures delivered in West Hall, University College. His subject was, "Traditional and Contemporary Poetry—some differences between Victorians and Modernists."

"The modern poets," he stated, "prefer to startle and shock rather than to charm." He quoted one critic as saying that contemporary poets hate beauty and detail, and claim rhyme to be a silly element, but free verse the only true means of expression.

Professor Alexander cited not a few examples of the element of ugliness in much of our present day poetry, and said that perhaps this was due to an exhaustion of beautiful subjects.

The lecturer turned to the Ultra-Moderns as his chief concern in treating contemporary poets. "These poets show a singular disregard for the reader, and the very obscurity of their writing is a merit. The genuine poet does not write for the reader, but (Continued on Page 4)

U. OF W. MEN INVESTIGATE HIGH COST OF GROOMING

Colossal Cost of Caring for Collegiate Countenance Calculated

University of Washington, Seattle.—Investigations here show that "Joe College" spends about $27 a year for the maintenance of that "well-groomed look" above the collar.

Since October 27 a beard contest has been held and for the past six weeks, contestants have been comparing various features resulting from their lack of shaving—length, colour, texture, fuzzability and other features of their chin covers.

At the close of the contest certain deductions were arrived at, namely: that the average college man shaves four times a week, or two hundred times a year, using a tube of shaving cream every five weeks, or $3.50 a year. Razor blades amount to $5; $3.50 for shaving lotions and $2 for talcum. Haircuts and occasional shampoos amount to $15.

VAN DER SMISSEN AWARD ANNOUNCED FOR U.C. STUDENTS

Third and Fourth Year Modern Languages Students Eligible for New Scholarship

PUBLIC SPEAKING PRIZES

Conditions of War Memorial Awards Recently Published

The donation of several new University College scholarships and of two new scholarships at St. Margaret's College was announced yesterday afternoon.

In memory of the late Van der Smissen, former professor of German at University College, a scholarship of the value of $100 is being given by his wife. It will be awarded annually to the student of the fourth year in Moderns at U.C. who ranks highest in first class honours in German.

Other new and valuable awards for University College students will be announced shortly. Several revisions have been made in the regulations regarding the awarding of the James Harris Matriculation Scholarships.

At St. Margaret's College a prize for public speaking is to be awarded annually by the Old Girls' Association. The Florence Necland's Chapter of this association announces the giving of a prize of $15 to be awarded each year for a French essay by a member of the third year.

Graduates and fourth year students at U.C. are reminded that the Gertrude Davis German Exchange Fellowship, which enables a student to take a course of Graduate Studies at some German university will be awarded for the second time this year.

The Alumni Federation has published the conditions of award for the University of Toronto War Memorial Fellowship and the fifteen annual U. of T. War Memorial Scholarships for the year 1930-31. Further particulars concerning these scholarships can be obtained from the Registrar.

Significant Novelty Program Promised to Economics Enthusiasts

FIRST ANNUAL AT-HOME

The roof garden of the Royal York Hotel will be the Mecca for all embryo financiers to-night, when the Commerce Club will hold their first annual at-home. A widespread interest in the dance has been taken, not only by the students, but also by the graduates, a large number of whom are expected to attend.

The program for the dancing, which will be from 9 till 1, includes fourteen dances and two extras. Novelty programs have been arranged which will be particularly significant to students of economics.

The patronesses will be Mrs. E. J. Urwick, Mrs. M. A. Mackenzie and Miss J. M. Jackson. Among the guests will be representatives from the Commerce Clubs of Queen's and the University of Western Ontario.

The committee in charge of the arrangements is composed of Professor G. E. Jackson, W. J. Ayers (chairman), F. W. Coudlyn, J. G. Garden, H. W. F. Appleton, J. H. Broughton and W. M. Jacobi.

THE POWER OF THE PRESS

During the past few years the power of the press has been constantly assailed in our community, so it is comforting to us to discover from time to time examples of its being sustained. Ed. Barrow, former manager of the Toronto Maple Leafs and one of baseball's brightest brains, has been demoted because he assaulted Bill Slocum, a well-known New York sports writer. Barrow is now Secretary of the New York Yankees, but he made a mistake when he stepped on the toes of the "fourth estate" in that city. After his attack on Slocum the latter's cause was taken up by the Baseball Writers' Association, the Publishers' Association, and the newspaper on which Slocum was employed. The result was that Barrow was demoted as well as having to apologize. He had disliked Slocum and assaulted him because he presumed to dig up his own facts instead of taking from Barrow only the information which he decided to release, in his capacity of publicity manager of the Yankees. Barrow's stand on the matter is faintly reminiscent of some of "The Varsity's" present critics. The Buffalo Evening News has the following to say about the matter:

"Barrow and others must understand that the freedom of the press is a public inheritance. The public does not want only the information which is dispensed by the paid press agent of a baseball club, after passing through the hands of a censor. The most interesting information regarding a team is oftentimes 'dug up' by an enterprising reporter, and even though it may embarrass those connected with the club it must be published. The lesson given Barrow may be a warning not to attempt to muzzle newswriters."

We are inclined to wonder whether the Toronto press is in as strong a position as the one outlined above. A newspaper in this city can hammer away at an issue and perhaps influence its readers to a certain extent, but the support of no single newspaper can assure the election of their candidate for the mayoralty, be his policy and record ever so praiseworthy.

This fall a prominent rugby official, a member of the ruling rugby family in the C.R.U., made two flagrant errors in his refereeing. No mention was made of it in the press. A well-known sports-writer has admitted that it would be as much as his job was worth to mention the matter adversely.

We like the way they do some things in Chicago. Gangsters can execute each other; they can assassinate district attorneys; they can terrorize tradesmen, and control municipal politics with impunity. But they went too far when they killed Jake Lingle, an obscure reporter. The hue and cry has not yet died down, and will not till the murderer is caught and convicted.

That is as it should be. The press ought to be held in respect, and it will be a sad day for the University if "The Varsity" is strangled and reduced to the position of an official news-bulletin.

ATTEND THE BENEFIT HOCKEY GAME AT THE ARENA TO-NIGHT!

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

The intercollegiate hockey team held another practice yesterday, and they had a very successful turnout. Coach Jack Sinclair is anxious to choose the team next week, but it may be only a tentative one. There were six new players out and this practice went much more smoothly than the first one. Offensive play mostly was indulged in, with great stress being laid on passing and shooting.

Pats have entered a city league, and Varsity have sent in their application. It is hoped that Aura Lee and Torontos will also be able to enter a team, and thus will be able to provide more opposition for the Blue team. If a city league is not formed the only league games will be the series of home and home games with Queen's, and two games is rather unsatisfactory when a team has practiced as hard and as long as the Blues do.

The tryouts for the interfaculty hockey will be held immediately after Christmas; if there is as much interest taken in the league this year there should be a very satisfactory season. U.C. entered two teams, and Vic have an A and B team while most of the Producing few knockouts, but providing some high class boxing and wrestling bouts, the finals of the junior assault were staged last night in Hart House and as a result several prospects were unearthed for intercollegiate competition.

In the boxing there were ten good bouts, only two ending in knockouts, while only one of the twelve wrestling bouts ended in straight falls and action was the key-note throughout the whole performance. The feature boxing bout of the evening brought together Strachan and McNutt in the 175 lb. class, Strachan getting the decision after three furious rounds of fighting in which McNutt was sent to the canvas in the first round and in falling hit his head on the floor, nearly knocking him out. However, he gamely continued and at the end the judges had a hard time calling the winner.

Perhaps the best wrestling bout from the spectators' standpoint was the Eaton-Stephens clash in which Eaton won in spectacular fashion, getting the first fall in three and a half minutes and winning the decision handily. In the heavy class Longley defeated Newell after a hard bout.

smaller colleges enter one team each. Last year the trophy went to the Saints and they should produce a very good outfit again this year.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By De C. H. R.

The Sportsmen's Patriotic Association junior trophy went to the better team last night when the Toronto Canoe Club junior sextette eliminated the University of Toronto juniors in the final game by defeating them by one goal. Frank Sullivan's boys lacked the combination and the team play that have made Blue and White squads famous in the past, and even their brilliant rally in the dying moments of the game consisted chiefly of one-man stuff. Nevertheless Coach Sullivan has a team that should go far in the Big Four group, once they have profited by experience in playing together. With men like Cunningham, MacPherson and May from which to build a forward line, the U. of T. mentor should have no trouble in putting together a good team by next Tuesday night, when the O.H.A. junior season gets under way.

According to the superstitious among the followers of the ice sport, the Canoeists may be sorry that they took the trophy, for it is generally believed by that class that the winners in the S.P.A. never cop any more silverware during the season. Be that as it may, the Varsity junior squad have only to combine hard work with fighting spirit and Old Lady Luck won't be far away.

And here let us remind you of the Benefit game that is to be played at the Varsity Arena to-night. For the small admission price of twenty-five cents you are assured of a smart calibre of hockey when the Bell Telephone squad clash with the Northern Electric team in a regular Mercantile League fixture. Those behind the Everyman's Club, the Arena attendants, the Athletic Directorate, and the members of the teams are all doing their part to provide funds for a good cause. One thing only is left, and that is left to you. If you turn out, accompanied, of course, by the one and only, the large attendance that is necessary is assured.

The School of Practical Science surprised no one by taking the honours in the junior assault-at-arms which has been run off at Hart House during the past two days. An unusually large entry list featured the assault this year, and things were made quite interesting, as the boxers and wrestlers had visions of a trip to the States ahead of them. The boxing, wrestling and fencing this year were all of high calibre and some interesting new material was brought to light. The junior assault does not always attract the attention that it warrants, but a good crowd of students witnessed the encounters this year.

At a meeting of the interfaculty basketball managers yesterday afternoon the managers placed themselves on record as being opposed to having men from the intermediate B team and the junior team take part in interfaculty competition. It appears that assurance has already been given to certain players on these teams that they can play for their faculties during the coming season, and only on that condition did they promise to play for Varsity. Surely this is against all Varsity traditions of sportsmanship, and will serve to kill interfaculty competition as far as the smaller faculties are concerned. It stands to reason that the faculty of the largest enrollment has the biggest proportion of cage stars, and will be best represented in interfaculty competition.

Most certainly the Blue team will not benefit by having their men partake in interfaculty basketball, nor will the lesser material be given a proper chance to develop if this plan goes through. Men trying out for interfaculty teams will not be given the encouragement that they have received in the past and the purpose of such competition at the University of Toronto will have fallen through. However, the question is left to the Basketball Club and the Athletic Directorate to decide. We may only express an opinion.

The other motion which received the unanimous endorsement of the interfaculty basketball managers was one in which it was proposed to pay the referees of the games this year. This should result in a better brand of officiating than has been the rule at these games in the past, and should ensure the presence of an official promptly at the time scheduled for the game to begin.

It is a far cry from these winter sports back to intercollegiate rugby, but news which is of interest to the Varsity fan is being circulated. The latest whisper from Dame Rumour is that Ab Box, the youthful booter who did much to carry Balmy Beach through to the Canadian championship this year, is to enter the University of Western Ontario next fall. To date the rumour has been neither denied nor confirmed, but should he decide to continue his academic career at London, the Mustangs will be a big threat in senior intercollegiate rugby circles in a couple of years time. As the rules stand now he would be unable to play in his freshman year, and he certainly must be in earnest about bettering his education if he is thinking of leaving the sports world for that length of time.

SURPRISE MOTION PASSED BY BASKETBALL MANAGERS

At a meeting of the managers of the different faculties, a motion was passed that this body go on record showing its disapproval of allowing players on intermediate B and junior teams of the university to play interfaculty basketball. This comes as a distinct surprise, because the players were given to understand that they would be allowed to do so.

A fee of $1 per game is to be given the referee in an effort to raise the calibre of the officials. Eleven faculties were represented at the meeting.

Drama in French

The possibilities of sheer melodrama were excellently displayed by the Trinity College French Dramatic Society, when a Grand Guignol play, "Au Rat Mort" was presented Wednesday evening by Loetitia Wilson. The plot is slight in itself: a Russian general, famed for his adroitness in committing murders, makes a rendezvous at the Paris Night Club with his latest lady. She fills him with liquor cunningly, and when he is powerless, reveals her identity as the sister of one of his victims. Her intent is to kill with a revolver. He bargains for mercy, but when she has obtained a large enough bribe, she turns suddenly and strangles him with her white evening gloves. Then her accomplices, faked as two "agents de police", drag her handcuffed to safety. Loetitia Wilson, as the avenging lady, played the role with much skill and vivacity; and J. K. Thomas as the naughty "General Gregorff" was quite convincing, though his enunciation was not distinct. Particularly enjoyable was the maitre-d'hotel as done by John Gilmore; the other minor parts entered well into the spirit of the show. The only criticism might be regarding positions; half the time one character blotted out another. Even so, this French play received more appreciation than any hitherto done by the club.

In the Ohio State University it is stated that before being pledged to any fraternity chapter the student must attend some Christian church regularly, "or with reasonable regularity."

A Rhymster Writes Rollicking Verses Of An Unrestrained Monarch Who Curses

There once was a monarch Zerubbable who stepped on an India rubbable the rubbable bust and Zerubbable cust and his diction was simply turbbable. There once was a son of a gun who fought in ten wars on the run for his father the Canon who dwelt near the Shannon blessed fighting as Heaven sent fun. A preacher fell down a deep well and instantly started to yell saying Lord it is cool but I feel like a fool and I'd rather be farther from Hell. There once was a maiden divine who dwelt on the banks of the Rhine her father the baron had come out of Sharon and bartered the maiden for wine. A young man discreet and reliable met a maiden quite easily pliable but he took to his heels and a cab of four wheels for the maiden was really too wileable.

"VARSITY'S" EFFECT ON INTELLIGENCE

The opposite opinion was voiced by daily," he emphasized.

Bill Clarke, of 371 Vic, who, while claiming that "The Varsity" has no intrinsically educative value, held that it is just about the kind of a paper for the purpose it is supposed to serve. "It is certainly no 'Atlantic Monthly,'" he said, "but for those who are looking for a campus magazine which really elevates the intelligence of the reader, have them see Acta Victoriana. Nobody takes over five minutes to read 'The Varsity,' anyway, and they certainly can't imbibe much intelligence from that."

because the poems demand to be written," he quoted one upholder as writing.

One young poetess was pointed out as claiming the audible effects to be all-important, and the meaning, if any, to be of no account. "The 'Review' critic, although he praises her poetry, says that one is apt to tire of it. Possibly that is because we have been trained to enjoy meaning," the professor suggested. "Her poetry is easy to memorize, and has a kinship to the sounds emitted by a saxophone."

"The modernist is inclined to be of cynical and bitter temperament, and leaves us with a vague feeling that life is not worth living. This does not make great poetry," Professor Alexander concluded.

EDUCATION NOT MERELY COLLECTING OF FACTS ASSERTS KNOX HEAD

Should Bring Out Best That Is In Us, Dr. Eakin Tells Students

ANNUAL YULETIDE DINNER

No Bachelor Premier Will Be Knox Products, One Wit Remarks

"Education consists not in the mere collection of facts, but in bringing out the best that is in us," said the Rev. Dr. Thomas Eakin, Principal of Knox College, in addressing the undergraduate association of that faculty at their annual Yuletide dinner in the college dining hall last Friday evening. Dr. Eakin, as honorary president of the K.C.U.A., was the chief speaker for the evening. The Principal further remarked on the spirit that prevailed in the college this year, heartily commending the men in residence for the harmony and friendliness that existed within the college walls.

Dr. Eakin was speaking in reply to the toast to the college, proposed by G. M. Graham, B.A., treasurer of the K.C.U.A. M. E. Burch, B.A., the president of the undergraduate association, acted as chairman and toastmaster for the evening, and quite ably carried out his duties.

L. E. Wismer, in proposing the toast to the Knox College Undergraduate Association, introduced a humorous trend into the spirit of the evening when he remarked that should there ever come a prime minister from these halls, it was quite evident that he would not be a bachelor. Mr. Lowry, in replying to the toast, said that in his three years of work in honour and pass Hebrew he had not yet acquired a sufficient knowledge of the language to be able to translate the Knox yell. However, he had obtained a copy from the author of the yell, and delighted the association by reading it.

A novel skit was introduced quite unexpectedly into the program when A. Y. McLean proceeded to present letters to the men of the East House (Continued on Page 4)

NOVELS DISDAINED BY YULETIDE READERS

Library will be Scene of Activity Before Holidays

HEAVY READING PREFERRED

"History and economic books are in greatest demand for the Christmas vacation," stated Miss M. L. Newton, Head of the Circulation Department in the university library when asked what students read during their holidays.

"Few novels or light reading fiction are signed for, which seems to show that most books taken out are for studying purposes. Since the lists are not yet complete, it is hard to say how many books will be taken out. Last year 1,649 Christmas books were given out, which was an increase of twenty-one per cent. over the year before, and we expect an even greater increase this year.

"The lists have been open since December 8th and books may be taken out from the end of this week until the beginning of the next session. The number of volumes which are taken out over the holiday is about the same as the number of week books given out in an average month of the school term."

Warden Will Entertain At Christmas Dinner

As in past years undergraduate members of Hart House, who live in countries other than Canada or in distant parts of the Dominion, and are thus unable to spend any part of the Christmas vacation at home, are informed that they may put their names down at the Warden's office for the Christmas Dinner at Hart House on Monday, 22nd December. The Canadian Singers have kindly offered to sing some carols after dinner and the Warden will have a small gift for each man present.

MCGILL UNIVERSITY SECURES HUGE GRANT

Will Devote New Fund to Intensive Study of Unemployment

FIVE YEAR PLAN

McGill University, Montreal — The Rockefeller Foundation last week appropriated to McGill University a sum in excess of $100,000 for Social Science Research, on a five year plan beginning next June. This grant is in line with those donated by the Foundation to the Yale University Social Research Institute and to the University of Chicago.

The lack of funds has been one of the stumbling blocks hindering the university from pursuing lines of investigation in social science research. This grant, however, will enable departments to go ahead and to carry out many plans which they would otherwise not have been able to do. It has been proven that McGill has the people necessary for directing the investigations.

One of the first studies to be considered is the subject of unemployment. This subject has great potentialities of expansion, primarily because it is of first rank significance among social problems, and also because it is calculated to open up further spheres of research so that opportunities will be provided for contributions from other departments of university work.

Owing to its situation and to its mode of government, McGill has special advantages in treating the problem of unemployment. Moreover, the fact that Montreal is a metropolis of industry and finance will help greatly in the inquiries in the social and economic conditions.

DOMINION LEAVING IN AERIAL SURVEYING

Camera and Aeroplane Effect Remarkable Changes in Survey Methods

Canada is the leading country in the field of aerial photographic survey at the present time. Mr. Roland Craig, an outstanding expert in this modern development, and in charge of surveys in the Dominion Forest Service, was the speaker at the Forester's Club.

The aeroplane has revolutionized the survey methods in the last few years. Thousands of square miles of northern timberland have been photographed by R.C.A.F. planes, working in conjunction with the Forest Service. In the province of Manitoba, where an extensive forest inventory was carried out in 1927, a saving of 75 per cent. in time was realized through the use of aerial photographs in eliminating barren land and areas covered with unmarketable timber.

Besides providing an accurate basis for mapping topographical detail the photographs are used to distinguish (Continued on Page 4)

CAMPUS PRESERVES ANCIENT BOULDERS

Relic from Glacial Period Saved as Tribute to Professor

HISTORIC PURPOSE SERVED

Several boulders similar to the one now gracing the southeast corner of the campus opposite the School of Practical Science are being saved from the excavation for the new museum building. "The Varsity" learned recently during an interview with Colonel A. D. LePan, Supervisor of Grounds and Buildings.

Regarding the stone now on the campus, Colonel LePan said, "It's a glacial boulder that has historical and geological interest. It was carried down here by ice during the glacial period and was taken from the excavation for the School of Hygiene building. It was thought that it would be fitting to maintain it as a specimen of a glacial boulder and as a tribute to Professor Emeritus Coleman, who has always been particularly interested in that branch of the work."

Examination of the deeply scored surface of the boulder reveals evidence of the terrific erosion to which it was subjected.

EMINENT LEGALIST TO ADDRESS LAW CLUB

Brilliant Ottawa Lawyer will be Guest at Initial Meeting

TRINITY GRADUATE

One of Canada's most eminent jurists will be in Toronto Thursday night in the person of Charles Morse, Esq., K.C., D.C.L. Mr. Morse is coming up from Ottawa to address the first meeting of the Law Club of the university.

Now registrar and acting judge of the Exchequer Court and editor of the Canadian Bar Review, Mr. Morse is a graduate in classics of Trinity College. Recognized as one of the most learned members of the Canadian bar, he is particularly well qualified to address the young legalists of the university on his subject, "The Profession of Law".

By securing Mr. Morse as its first speaker, the newly formed club is off to a flying start in its attempt to secure really prominent lawyers as the speakers for its meetings. The organization meeting of the club, held recently, was marked with great enthusiasm and the following executive was elected: R. White, W. M. Gray, J. L. Stewart, F. R. Hume, H. Weese.

Freshman Rule Prevents Team from Continuing in Junior Series

WOULD PLAY JUNIOR D.R.F.U.

Athletic Directorate Will Treat Matter at Their Next Meeting

As an aftermath of the rugby season, an interesting situation has come up in connection with the junior rugby team, intercollegiate champions, since the team is talking of remaining intact another season. The entire squad is eligible for the junior series next year and are anxious to play in the O.R.F.U. group, since some of them are disappointed that they didn't get a crack at Argos, who went on to win the Dominion honours.

Several persons of prominence in Varsity athletics have expressed their disagreement with the present system whereby only freshmen are eligible for the junior squad, since there are a number of men in second and third years who are within the age limit, and who, being ineligible for junior, are unwilling to play intermediate because of the unsatisfactory showing this team has made in former years. Even this year the intermediate squad failed to win a single game, but only one of last year's juniors turned out with this team. Three from the same squad were carried by the Orphans; (Continued on Page 4)

VICTORIA MUSIC CLUB PLANS LIGHT OPERA

Will Play "The Gondoliers" in Hart House Theatre Soon

SUCCESS PREDICTED

What is considered to be one of the best Gilbert and Sullivan light operas will be played in Hart House Theatre in the near future. The Victoria College Music Club will produce the "Gondoliers".

Since early in October this club has been holding regular full rehearsals, and the production is well under way. Last year's production, "The Pirates of Penzance", was an outstanding success, yet the one this year points to even higher levels. "The Gondoliers" is much more artistic than last year's production since there are many added solos of exceptional beauty. The soloists this year are expected to score a real success. No outside talent is being used.

Those near the club are confident that the production of "The Gondoliers" will reach a high water mark in their interpretation of Gilbert and Sullivan.

Sing Special Carols At Knox Vesper Service

Christmas season will bring again the annual vesper service in Knox College Chapel on Wednesday, December 17th at 5.15. Christmas carols are to be an important feature of the program. A special group of carols will be rendered by a choir under the direction of Mrs. John Dow. The service is to be conducted by the Reverend F. J. Moore, and Dr. Stuart Parker will give an address. Professor J. D. Keichum of the Department of Philosophy, will preside at the organ. It is to be noted that this service is to be quite brief and will terminate at 6 p.m. sharp.

GOOD RESOLUTIONS FOR HOLIDAY WORK PERVADE UNIVERSITY

Many Students Now Employed in Downtown Stores and Offices

SDME LEAVE CITY

Term and Final Exams Occupy Time of Students at Present

Studies will occupy a considerable portion of the Christmas holidays, according to a number of men of the various faculties interviewed by "The Varsity". With the prospect of some term and final exams after the holiday, the amount of work that is intended to be done is large. Whether these good resolutions stand the strain of Christmas festivities will be seen in January and April. Those subjects to which the first year Engineers will, or should, devote most of their time, are Calculus and Analytical Geometry, in the opinion of those interviewed, as there is always a high mortality in these two exams in April. In all years exams are held in those subjects that are completed in the first term, these coming after the holidays.

Most of the students whose homes are out of the city intend to leave as soon as the term closes or before, as is frequently done in S.P.S. The number of men who have secured positions during the holidays is quite small although a large number have applied for work.

Those who expect to swell the depleted bank account have principally turned to selling in Eaton's, Simpson's or haberdashery stores. This work is expected to last only until Christmas Day. Two others will be driving trucks. The money thus obtained is to be employed for Christmas presents. A number of fourth year men have solved the Christmas gift problem without much hard thinking by the simple expedient of sending their (Continued on Page 4)

DECLARES LECTURES ARE NOT COMPULSORY

U.C. Registrar States Upper Class Lectures not Insisted On

"Smith College girls are exempt from compulsory attendance in their third and fourth years if a suitably high average is obtained in their first and second years," was a quotation in Friday's "Varsity".

Professor McAndrew, Registrar of University College, claims that he does not insist on the attendance of students of the third and fourth years, "For by hat time," he said, "if they cannot pilot their own rafts, they will never be able to do so."

Then, on the other hand, his students hold a different opinion for the term marks are ascertained by little unexpected test papers. However, the professor vindicates himself from that insinuation by the fact that he does not believe term marks should decide the issue whether students should be given their year when they pass their final tests. He claims term marks should be used only in case the student is unable to write the final examinations.

His view on this matter is shared by most of his colleagues. So it would seem that Varsity students really have the same privileges even if it is not so advertised.

A SECONDER FOR THE MOTION

"... We would gaze into the future to view a day when the present myths will become a reality, and student government will at least be more than a cloak for official supervision. More still, we consider it our sacred duty and obligation to hasten the consummation of this ideal."

This is a quotation from an editorial in the latest issue of The University College Magazine, just off the press.

"The Varsity", which has been playing the necessary but unpopular role of the Voice Crying in the Wilderness, may be pardoned for expressing satisfaction that at last we have a seconder for a motion that had long since taken on the hue of a glorious but hopelessly lost cause.

"We dare not say," declares the same editorial, "that student government is a certainty, when the representatives of all colleges and faculties, including our own, express their entire satisfaction with the system of having a graduate president of the supreme student governing body of the University. Our representatives are but the body; the brains and initiative in our so-called student government must be attributed to those other than undergraduates."

While it is not quite true to imply that the representatives of all faculties and colleges voted against the various motions designed to replace a graduate president with an undergraduate president, it is true that the Faculty of Applied Science was the only one to present a solid bloc of votes to the cause of student self-government when it came to a show-down. The rest took refuge in the assertion that terms "student" and "undergraduate" were not synonymous.

This is what the editors of The University College Magazine are going to be told. They are going to be assured that graduate students have as much right to a place in the student government sun as undergraduate students. They are going to be warned that an undergraduate president would mean inter-faculty friction and the gaining of control by the largest faculty.

In this event, we suggest to the editors of the said publication that they retaliate with the reminder that the present President, in common with the incumbents of the presidential chair for the past several years, cannot be considered a student in either of the accepted senses of the word; that the "largest faculty" cry is a bogey which could easily be laid by inclusion in the forthcoming constitution of a clause substituting faculty representation for population representation; that no single faculty is likely to gain a majority over all other possible combinations of faculties, anyway; and that the present proposals to make both graduates and undergraduates eligible for the position of president of the S.A.C. are merely designed to lull the slowly reviving interest of the undergraduate body in their own affairs back to sleep again so that the little inner circle may proceed to do things in a corner and put their own private interpretations upon the constitution, just as they have done for years.

Still, we warn the editors of The University College Magazine that the net result of their outspokenness will be that somebody will either try to put a muzzle on them or have them fired.

UNIVERSITY SETTLEMENT PLANS CHRISTMAS PARTY

Will Give Boys the Freedom of Hart House for One Day

A festive occasion is planned by the girls of the university for Settlement children at the Women's Union on December 19. About 225 little girls will be conducted to the party by undergraduate women and members of the S.C.M., and will enjoy a real party. In addition to carol singing and story telling, one of the Little Theatre plays will be given by the children themselves. After a huge dinner every little girl will go home with a large bag of candy.

The boys also come in for their share when they are entertained at Hart House on December 18. Divided into groups under different members of the House Committee, they will be able to swim in the tank, shoot in the rifle range, play billiards, and use the track. Supper will be served in the Great Hall, the cooks exerting themselves to provide a special meal, including all the ice-cream they can eat. This will be followed by an address, probably by Canon Cody, and the giving of Christmas presents.

Art, Music and Drama

Friday Afternoon Recital

Solveig, the sweet-singing lover of Peer Gynt, returned to Hart House with all her art and charm, and her audience spent what was probably their happiest Friday afternoon of the season.

Miss Alice Strong has a voice of delightful finality considerable range, and which, save for two tired moments, was marked by singular clarity and vitality which strongly fortifies her pitch. The excellence of her diction and its effectiveness in conjunction with melody, betrays that long-lived fraud that bastard "Oxonian-Cockney-American" is the only fit language for singers. Miss Strong's unaffected honesty and careful artistry, make her singing very pleasurable.

The program revealed that this artist is equally good in lyric and coloratura work. Thus the Haydn "With Verdure Clad", and La Forge's "Messenger", were quite as good as the beautiful Handel "O Sleep Why Dost Thou Leave Me" or "My Lovely Celia", by Higgins.

Willan's "Early One Morning", Verdi's "Pace, Pace, Mio Dio", and Besley's "Listening" were very pleasing, and "Do Not Go, My Love", by Hagermann revealed a glimpse of the dramatic power of which Miss Strong is capable.

Mrs. Edith Parker Kind at the piano tossed off two MacDowell numbers and the Liszt Second Hungarian with considerable verve and pianancy.

—R.A.McE.

Hart House String Quartet

As usual the Hart House String Quartet played to a packed hall and highly appreciative audience. Nervous expectancy and personal interest pervaded the theatre, for compositions by well-known Torontonians, Dr. MacMillan and Dr. Willan, were to have a prominent place on the program.

Let us be gay.

A good start is half the battle. If we don't have an inspiration pretty soon, it may be all of it.

The first offering was the Second Quartet in D major by Borodine. Possibly the fact that the number was composed for the entertainment of the Russian court in its palmy days does in some measure explain its character. The nocturne is "pretty", but cleverly developed, and the Finale is rather melodramatic, but it was well played and seemed to please the audience very considerably.

Mr. Campbell McInnes introduced Dr. Willan's "Poem" by reading Yeats' poem "To the Lake Isle of Innisfree", the number being suggested from the image in one of the lines "and evening, full of linnets' wings". This composition is new and is quite unlike anything Dr. Willan has done before. One might easily believe it to be one of Debussy's better creations.

Mr. Leslie Holmes, baritone in conjunction with the quartet, sang four songs, one by Dr. Willan, "To an Isle in the Water", similar in character to the "Poem" and three roisterous and hearty sea songs in French by Dr. MacMillan. Really string quartets with melodies, reminiscent of French folk-song written across the top, this group was interesting enough.

The program closed with the Brahms C minor quartet. Players and audience breathed more easily. The Allegro in very characteristic manner, passes on to a Romance on broad, sweeping lines with lovely cadences. The Allegretto has an easy grace and simple elegance in which the players joined happily. The Finale, another allegro, builds up to a magnificent climax. This concert was just another of their successes and the quartet will have won still more laurels by their New York recitals before we see them again.

guard the nets and Kenny Holmshaw will be in reserve. The latter played a stellar game against Windsor and may start to-night. Marty Nugent, Jack McKay and Bruce Paul present a powerful defence, with Applagath also on the sub line. On the forward line "Weiner" Lough at centre, and Gordie Beal and Fennell on the wings provide the Fleas with a fast and shifty trio. Coach Harry Watson is able to place another strong forward line on the ice with Frankie Collins, "Mucker" Mercer, Ross Paul, Barry and Sid Hetherington to pick from.

Red Porter's men showed class in spots in defeating Port Colborne last week and should be in form for this battle. Ames will take care of the net-minding and will probably have Dewar and Don Smilie in front of him as the regular defence. Al Williamson and Williams will get the subbing assignment on the defence. Harry "Red" Whitehead has not sufficiently recovered from the effects of his illness last summer to turn out, but when he gets into shape the Blue defence will be strengthened. Lenahan, Stewart and Harley form the first string forward line, with the first named at centre and the other two at left and right wing respectively. This boy Lenahan, who came here from Owen Sound, is spoken of in glowing terms by Coach Porter and may add that necessary scoring punch which was lacking last year. The students are not as strongly fortified with subs for the forwards as the Fleas are, but they have Billy Bell, Murray, Bill Leake and Stew Ferguson on the reserve list. Coach Porter expects much of this year's edition of the Blues and is sure his hopes are not unfounded. The game will start at 8.30 p.m. at the Mutual Street Arena.

Dodging Exams and Shooting Dons Reduce "Varsity" Scribe To Brevity

By Vincent Geller

Apology—This week there are examinations to dodge and professors to shoot. It therefore behooves us to make the B.P.F. as short as we can get away with. Our boss, A.E.F.A. (may all his children be torch singers), will be displeased if this space isn't filled. He may even revert to his gentle old habit of heaving the Underwood at us. A Happy Christmas and a Merry New Year to all, including the S.A.C.

Blah—No doubt the young racketeer who plugged a cop last week will attain renown as the crook-of-the-month... Judge Lindsay's hysterics in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine was as obnoxious as Moron Manning's holier-than-thou speech... well, perhaps the poor man can't afford a press agent... They have no radio at Shakespeare Land... Thank God... Your attention is drawn to "Etcetera"... the 54,632nd native venture in refined journalism... it is a product of Toronto's Hobohemia and the ads are dull... If Gilchrist of the Embassy wants to use our stuff in his broadcasts he might at least come across with a couple of complimentary tickets.

Pome—

If fortune deserts you, don't grumble or curse;
Just keep on repeating, "Thank God it's not worse."

It's not hard to say, and it's simple and terse.

This poem is bad, but thank God it's not worse.

rugby team, which carried off the inter-house championship this year. Mr. McLean felt that the mug which was awarded could hardly become individual property, and presented each member of the team with a nicely designed letter "E", which was done on cardboard and strung around the neck of each man.

H. Davidson, B.A., as chairman of the Athletic Committee, read the names of the men who had qualified for their letters for interfaculty competition, and Dr. Eakin presented them. The men who received letters were: S. Cole, D. Orhms, O. Bush and J. Morrison. The last named replied on behalf of the men. A song and the singing of the National Anthem brought the program to a close.

JUNIOR CHAMPIONS
MAY ENTER LEAGUE

the rest seem to have dropped out of rugby.

In the meantime the entire junior aggregation are awaiting some definite answer to their plan. Harry Bales, present coach, is in favour of the idea, and if he were given another year in which to round out the weak spots in the players' styles, the big teams would certainly benefit in the long run. Even as they are, there are at least three members who are ready for the jump to senior company. In another year's play at least ten from this team would be ripe for the promotion.

This year's junior team showed its main strength in co-ordination and team play, since many of the players are light, especially the halves, and the opinion has been expressed that it would be a mistake to break up a smooth combination when it can be kept together for another year. At present, Henderson, Webber and Weston seem to be the only men who could stand the gaff in senior football, but several others should fill out a lot in another season's growth. If the team should decide to play junior O.R.F.U. there would still be a freshman team to carry the Blue and White in the Intercollegiate Union, and we might even witness the spectacle of two Varsity teams playing off for provincial honours. The directorate will probably discuss the matter at their next meeting.

Former Convicts, Gangsters, and Racketeers Invited to Dinner

Men engaged in one doubtful racket or another, former convicts and gangsters, were the invited guests of university professors recently at a smart Chicago oyster house. "The unemployed, the worthy down and outer, and the unfortunate" were not bid, and the banquet was "a private and select affair for men who have permitted their energies to be misdirected." The professors hobnobbed with men from the underworld on a program arranged by Ben L. Reitman, the promoter of Chicago's "Hobo College." A dissertation on "Society's Right to Protect Itself from the Anti-Social Human Being," given by a professor of the Chicago Theological Seminary, was followed by the views of "an enemy of society" on "What a Guy on the Velvet Ought to Know."

Blue Team Nets 39 Baskets

Score 31

Varsity intermediates defeated the Broadview Y team on Saturday 39-31 in a basketball game which was very close, but marred somewhat by undue rough checking by both teams.

By half time Varsity had piled up a lead of 14 points and it looked as if they would win easily. However, five minutes before the end of the game the Broadview team set up such a fast attack that it looked as if they might pull off a win, but Varsity withstood the rally and won going away.

Grant and Hutcheon who netted 10 points, were best for Varsity.

Varsity—Guards, McIsaac, Henderson; forwards, Bronstein, Humphrey, Grant; subs, Hutcheon, Loblaw, Latimer, Willis, Fox.

Broadview—Guards, Carmichael, Elliott; forwards, Kay, McKay, Webster; subs, Stewart, Oakley, Potts, Cavendish.

The Essence of a Life

By S. Gampel

His beginning was in the indefinite, undefinable, undiscernible origin of life. His name was Libido. His fate was tragic. In the obscure scroll that Moslems call the "Book of Fate", his true worth may have been apparent, but life discovered that he was unadaptable and slew him with blankness and a cold denial.

In babyhood he lusted proper care, which was to him an unimaginable goal, although the lack of it he sensed amazingly. Ignorance and pride and dotage tended him. He had convulsions, whooping-cough and colds. He used the voice his ancestors had trained for a like eventuality, and love and paternal pride entered the lists on his behalf and warred and abused each other, the one in indignation and in outraged sympathy; the other in defence.

Yet he entered manhood in the main unimpaired, though with a reputation of dis-ease and veiled desire. He seemed a dreamer and indeed he was, for dreams embossed the texture of his lust, and helped him for some time to evade the onslaught of reality.

But soon his father died; his mother dropped off like a stricken fruit, and life encompassed him as the dark sky engulfs a feeble tar. He missed the parents, who, to him, had been as the pictures on the wall of his room, benevolent and in their proper place; and that love is essentially selfish may be seen in this, that he often wept when his loneliness bit too deeply at his heart. In such times he had recourse to crowds and living swirls of people, and he studied the unconscious actors in this scene in the drama of his life with a strained interest.

He watched the hustle and the bustle, the myriad and intricate steps in the queer play of motive and desire, of inhibition and opportunity, of birth and environment; and complex emotions stirred in him; strange mixtures of disgust and rage and pity; often of admiration and desire. He tried to plumb the depths, and realized that existence constituted struggle; that the most dynamic and the most cognizant invariably walked with eager step and bright appearance, radiating enjoyment while the tired character trailed his funereal self in aimlessness and consequent unrest. Yet he shrank in distaste from the life that the crowd personified and his mind grew jaded with the tinge of sombre selfishness that was o'erspreading it; that reached at

Christmas

By W. G. Dustan

When I was young with golden hair and had a pinafore to wear, and pretty rosy cheeks, I used to sit and suck my thumb and long for Christmas Day to come for several weary weeks. I'd go to bed to dream of joys, of go-carts, trains and tinkler-toys, I hoped that I would get; no thought I gave to tummy-ache plum pudding carries in its wake; it's easy to forget.

When Christmas morning came around, I'd gaze in bliss at what I found beneath the sparkling tree, and last his outward lineaments, overflowed his countenance, and hardened into the pale sunken cheek and the dull heavy eyes of his misery.

As another year went round I always

Swinging down the dusty road
That leads to Florence from Fiesole,
Between the terraced olive orchards
And in the shade of cypress trees,
I marvelled at the beauty of the hill-side.

I pitied the men in monasteries,
That they should only see this beauty from afar—
But still, theirs was a peaceful life,
And mine—a restless wandering
In search of beauty.

I met a peasant girl
Toiling upwards through the heat,
The white dust lying thick upon her shoes,
A clumsy, heavy basket on her arm.
Softly was she singing
Some old Italian song.
Her face reminded me of a Madonna
I had seen in the Uffizi,
Oval and brown, with deep-set eyes.
Involuntarily we smiled,
Murmured "Buon giorno," and passed on.

And I was glad that I was not a monk.
Perhaps she is climbing that road to-day

And remembers that meeting. . .
Perhaps that is why
I suddenly threw down my book
And started to write this Just now. . . .
Three years later,
And three thousand miles
From Fiesole.

In Ambush

A woman seated at a mirror files
Her pointed almond-coloured nails with care.
Her fingers hover over jars and vials
Of velvet creams and perfumes. Round her bare
And lovely throat she winds a chain of brass.
Twisting her mouth she daubs her lips with red.
Dazed by her own pale beauty stoops her head
To smile at her image swimming in the glass.

Song

I have been dumb when in your eyes
I've seen with wonder and surprise
Far misty fairylands and skies
I never knew.

I have been dumb when in your hair
I've breathed the bliss of April air
And bent to bury kisses there
As lovers do.

I have been dumb when cool and white
Your fingers on my cheek alight
As softly as the summer night
Drops healing dew.

I have been dumb when on your breast
My weary head has lain caressed
Until the amber of the West
Has turned to blue.

I have been dumb when on my own
Your soft half-parted lips I've known
In magic moments shared alone
With love and you.

I have been dumb

When Wild Oats Die

By Ellsworth Toll

So far as that meddling parson was concerned, it would be all over in ten minutes. Yes, sir! Only ten minutes! And Squint O'Rourke glowed with fiendish satisfaction. Try and close his joint, eh? And right in the middle of the Christmas rush! Why, what would Gopher City be without the O'Rourke Pool Parlours? How would the boys get rid of their surplus cash? And the girls . . . ? Run him out would he? He'd show 'em. The proper place for a parson was at home, or in the Ladies' Aid,—not hounding honest citizens who happened to run pool parlours. Of course the parson was only a blind. Everybody knew that. But what business of the parson's was it? They weren't his girls, were they? Or his cards? Or his booze? O'Rourke snorted. Run him out, eh? He'd show 'em.

Those Who Wait

— those who wait
In darkness."

Our star was the brightest
Most glittering gem
That studs the blue arc,
Heaven's great diadem.
An angel appeared, music rent the skies,
Faith dawned in our hearts, hope shone in our eyes.

Our star was our guide
It came in the night,
A new astral wonder,
We prayed at the sight.
We have lost it now in the blinding snow,
Where is our goal, how can we know?

The end is a throce,
Though built upon hay,
And mean beasts adore
An infat, they say.
Clouds melt now away, and show us
the light
Of our star, or we perish of cold in the night!

Love led us onward,
Love lighted the star,
We rose from our work
And we came from afar.
We were doubtful, and now we are failing in trust,
The star was a dream and the angel of dust.

Back to our old toil
We have no new fire
To light our dull spirits,
And cleanse us from mire.
We have lost our star, our vision is gone,
Shall we turn? Shall we ooward unlighted, alone?

Christmas Tree

When snow was covering all the land
I saw your Christmas fir tree stand
Dripping with glittering crystal things,
With snow and stars and angels' wings.
I saw your lighted candles shine,
Your dark green holly leaves combine
With berries red as blood is red,
While mistletoe hung overhead.
I saw it standing by the door
And wondered at the fruit it bore.

I went out quickly as I could
To that small clearing in the wood
Where stands my fir tree gaunt and stark,
And etched in black against the dark,
I watched the winter moonlight throw
Its sombre shadow on the snow;
It bore no gifts for my delight,
No candles lit against the night,
But dark and grave, as fir trees are,
It pointed upward to a star.

In The Wood

That day was a sort of truce
With sun and falling leaves:
(We were in the noose,
And both of us were thieves).

That day was a resting-place
When you lay by my side,
And I said a little grace
As though you just had died.

That day I shall remember
All my years along—
'Twixt September and November,
One sudden day of song.

THE ESSENCE OF A LIFE

He took to solitude and somnolently lay in the half-gloom of his dwelling, rhythmically breaking the silence with the swish-swish of his head on the pillow. Thinking, with him, had developed into a disease, that was slowly corrupting the latent energy and the will to live within him. Hunger at length ejected him and he ate without delight.

And so his life went on; deeper and deeper grew his degradation; more and more did he abandon himself to wretchedness, till finally, when his source of income vanished and he felt at last the pain and hardship of poverty, he was pricked on to join the distasteful struggle and rouse himself from the besetting lethargy that gripped him.

He ranged after work at first with keen dislike and a bat-like shyness, but this wore off and he clutched eagerly at every straw that came his way. For a slender wage he plucked the feathers from countless chickens, and after a long abstinence, almost regained his delight in gratification, so keen had been his plight.

And so he plodded on. Economic and political avalanches and upheavals battered him and others like and unlike him. A social cataclysm uprooted him and drew him headlong into its flaming vortex. He felt a sense of brotherhood with humanity that he had never experienced before. It became a flame within him consuming him with its heat and the freshness of its vigour. In a gesture that was now a part of him, he joined the ranks of Right that clamoured in its own self-righteousness, and died in Flanders in a war to end all war.

Peer Gynt

What mountain winds blew through his heart that night
After her song was gone,
What deep wind music trembled in the pines,
What diapason?

The wind how splintered, with what sorrow torn,
How rent asunder,
What long cry shivered the terrible night
After that wonder?

O Peer, you were so close to the heart of things
So boyishly young,
Yet so old with a myriad frustration of dreams
The heart so wrung.

O Button, do you still listen to youth's high talk Remembering;
Or have you forgotten that you ever heard Solweig sing?

Found! A Solution

(With apologies to Edgar Allan Poe's "The Raven")
In the last of all our classes, while we wondered if he'd pass us,
Poring over wise conclusions, reached by sages gone before,
My whole mind was so confounded, that I seemed surprised, astounded,
When these syllables resounded, just beside the classroom door,
'Tis the prof. who's calling order, "Page one hundred, question four,"
Only this, and nothing more.

I recall it all so well now, just exactly can I tell how
All that happened then inside the classroom door,
How eagerly I wished the morrow, that I might a text-book borrow,
And relieve me of the sorrow, caused by question number four,
The question I'd been asked to solve, question number four,
Now remember—evermore!

Back into my memory peering, long I pondered, wondering, fearing,
Doubting, guessing mortals never dared to guess before,
But the silence was unbroken and my class-mates gave no token,
And the only phrase there spoken. "I've explained this oft before."
This remark was echoed back, "I've explained this oft before."
Merely this, and nothing more!

Thus, I sat engaged in guessing, though no syllable expressing,
Till I vowed I'd answer something, and hesitate no more,
Yet so vaguely had I muttered, that I knew not what I uttered,
Confused, perplexed, my brain was cluttered, with the many facts of yore,
All the knowledge I had gathered in the golden days of yore,
Now confused me, more and more.

Suddenly, my soul grew stronger, I need hesitate no longer,
I, myself, had found solution to that question number four,
Then with voice both loud and bold all my calculations told Till they said, "Einstein behold! for we have H₂SO₄."
The answer 'round the classroom still re-echoed—"SO₄," Merely this, and nothing more.

—E. Margaret Armstrong.

THE LOSING OF CLAIRE

married life had brought its own peculiar compensation; for as his wife lost her looks, her cooking grew better and better; so that just as one appetite was beginning to be starved, another, perhaps more important, met with gratifications previously unknown.)

After I had shaken hands with Dave's mother, I went in and met his father; and last of all I met Claire.

It was then that I began to think seriously of getting married. Claire was all golden locks and tall alabaster innocence. An ideal wife—aesthetic and not too sophisticated; so white a covering could not but harbour a mind of mediæval purity.

So I thought then.

After that I called quite often. Many an hour did I spend in the parlor, my hands full of tea and biscuits, looking at Claire and talking to her mother. With Claire herself I hardly exchanged a word. Much more important to get a stand-in with the family; that is a firm foundation from which one cannot be dislodged by a mere girlish whim. I laughed at her brother's stories, and lost money to him at black-jack. I conversed at length with her parents about the various imbecilities in which they were interested. I didn't worry in the least about Claire; she would do as she was told.

It was true that one evening she rather startled me.

"Mr. Jones," she said, (it was almost the first conversation we had had), "have you ever done anything really original, or courageous, or sincere?"

"My dear little girl," said I, "it is not the business of a man who hopes to make a success in the world, to be what you call original, courageous, and sincere."

That was our only serious interchange, and it was the only unpropitious moment in this early period of my romance.

It was soon after this that I began to ponder an appropriate form of proposal. After meditating the possibilities of the telephone and the mail, I determined to put the matter quite bluntly, when next we should be alone together. I did. Slightly to my surprise, she hesitated and seemed likely to refuse. But this fear was eliminated by the instantaneous interruption of her family, who had been listening at the door.

"Why, my dear!" said her mother, "of course you can't refuse him! Such a nice, polite young man!"

"Such a damned good head, God forgive him!" said Dave.

"Such a clear-headed financier!"

said her father.

"Yes, my dear girl," said I; "that is the point. I will be able to keep you in luxury for the rest of your life. I don't see what more you can want: to want anything more would be unnatural and unchristian."

"O dear," Claire said, "I suppose I must take you. No doubt it's a golden opportunity."

And she submitted apathetically to being kissed.

Following upon such success, you may conceive my shocked dismay, on calling next day, to find the shades drawn and the house in mourning.

Dave led me sadly into the dismal parlour.

"Where's Claire?" I asked.

"Shh!" said Dave, "Claire has run away. Skipped off in the night, leaving a note on her pillow."

His mother entered, wailing, "O Mr. Jones, thank heaven you've come. Tell me—what shall I do about this wicked wicked girl?"

"Yes," said her husband; "what I've been telling her is, 'Wait till Mr. Jones comes. Mr. Jones will know what to do.' Those were my very words."

I soothed them as well as I could, having it in mind that, whenever the girl should return, I would stage a touching forgiveness, and perhaps marry her after all.

But even this was not to be. When she did return, it was unexpectedly. I went to visit Dave in his office one day, and there she was. With her was something big and masculine.

"Come in, Mr. Jones," said she pertly. "I want you to meet Edgar. Edgar is my husband. Edgar may not be much, but at least I got him for myself."

Dave looked extremely uncomfortable, and I could see that he was not impressed with Edgar. As for me, for once in my life I was thoroughly indiscreet.

"My girl," I said, "I consider that, for a wealthy stock broker I have been very ill-used. Your conduct has been undoubtedly foolish, and perhaps immoral."

Since then, Claire and I have not been speaking. My moral superiority has made me a social outcast, which is rather hard.

Not from anybody's point of view has this story a happy ending. As for Claire, her husband is an oaf; it is quite unlikely that he will ever be able to support her; she will, I trust, be horribly unhappy.

And as for me, the affair has been terribly damaging to my dignity.

SEA FLEAS DEFEAT BLUES 4 TO 1 TO RETAIN S.P.A. TROPHY

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By A. C. C.

The sports staff of "The Varsity" wishes all its readers a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

This is the season of dreams about sugar-plums and white-whiskered chimney sweeps.

And we are going to write to Santa Claus and ask him if he will put a paid coach or an Athletic Director into our stockings.

And if he doesn't we are going to go around and tell all the little boys and girls that there isn't any Santa Claus.

The seniors didn't look so good last night against the champion Sea Fleas, but we are convinced that they are capable of playing better hockey than they did last night. If they had opened up the throttle and checked back the result would have been different. But there is no doubt about the fact that the Sea Fleas have a powerful line-up and should go a long way in the O.H.A. race. In Nugent, Paul, and McKay, they have experience and ability on the defence. They have a wealth of forward material out of which to form a winning machine. Certainly they are stronger than they were last year when they won the O.H.A. title.

NATIONALS REMAIN S.P.A. CHAMPS BY 4-1 WIN OVER BLUE SENIORS

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

A meeting of the hockey club will be held immediately after the holidays to arrange a schedule for the interfaculty season this winter. Managers of the various teams will have their hands full arranging practice hours on the half-dozen rinks at their disposal. They are requested to have this information ready for the executive of the club, as nothing can be done until all the teams are accounted for.

An attempt to form a hockey team to be entered in the city league will be made by a group of girls, chiefly those formerly connected with the Toronto Ladies' Club, who have been able to secure financial backing. This is good news for the members of Varsity's entry in the same league, and although it looks as though there will be only three teams competing for the city title, there should be some interesting competition in this group.

Immediately after the holidays preparations will be made for the various faculty swimming meets. As a general rule, the girls who are victorious in these meets are selected to represent their college or faculty in the interfaculty meet, which is held some time in March. The use of Hart House pool is usually granted for this event, and competition is very keen, both for individual and college honours.

It is too bad that the only pool open to the co-eds during the year is the tiny affair at the Lillian Massey building. It is impossible to practice high diving there and the length of the pool is so short that no one can get up any speed at all before hitting the end. Most of the entrants in the long plunge have to go into this event without any satisfactory practice at all.

Varsity Makes Poor Showing to Lose Uninteresting Demonstration

MERE HANDFUL ATTEND

Short Lived Rally in Third Period is Only Feature

By A. C. Cochrane

In one of the most uninteresting hockey matches seen this year or any other, National Yacht Club retained the S.P.A. senior championship by trimming Varsity 4 to 1 at the Arena Gardens last night. Not until Lenahan scored the Blues' only counter in the third period did either team put any effort into their play. Then both teams demonstrated to the mere handful of fans that they were capable of producing the fast, hard-checking hockey that they did last year in the O.H.A. They cut loose and both teams bored in on the nets with fine abandon and Funston in the Varsity goal was called upon to save in sensational fashion on shots from the Paul brothers. But this rally by both teams was short-lived and when, five minutes later, Bruce Paul made his second goal of the evening and the score stood 4 to 1, they eased up. The spectators sat back in their seats and froze.

During the first period the players simply went through the motions. The back-checking of the Varsity forwards was non-existent, and after 11 minutes of play Bruce Paul sifted through for the Sea Fleas' opening counter. Gordie Beal put the Nationals two up when he scored on a rebound from Bruce Paul's shot on Ames. Ames hadn't a chance to clear on either shot, but at the end of the initial frame he was relieved by Funston who finished the game.

Anyhow, one consolation is that Varsity girls should know how to negotiate the turns.

They Came from Afar

And behold the Star which they had seen in the East went before them.

You who have spent your days in wanderings,
Look on this Star, and say:
We have come to the end of wanderings,—
This is the way.

We have come to that happy stretch of road
Which is the roadman's dream,
We have come to an end of stumbling steps,
Through this Star's beam.

You who have wandered far in pathless ways,
Shake free your feet from sod.
You have come to the end of wanderings. Now, Go forth to God.

—Bernita Miller.

Death the Ironclast

The sullen greeting of that sultry morn
Beat on my ears. For through a mist it came—
A message, long delayed, of life foresworn
And cast into that void of empty urns
Which we, poor mortals, deign to emphasize
As potent postscript to that earthly state
That life bestows. Sad consolation's prize—
Is such, as claimed, the errant will of Fate?

Life's insufficiency, sore manifest
By such occasion, shriv'd my very soul,
So that the tears which held my eyes oppress
Froze, and in freezing, sadness claimed its toll.

Yet, in my grief, I knew Thy life to be Assurance of Life's immortality.

HART HOUSE HOLIDAY RESIDENCE STUDENTS SCHEDULE COMPLETE DENY SANTA CLAUS

Geological Convention First at Toronto Since 1889

GRAD'S BALL AT CLOSE

The customary Hart House holiday program will get away to an early start this year. On Thursday, December the eighteenth, the annual university settlement party for men and boys in the neighbourhood of Grange Avenue, will be held in the Great Hall. An evening featuring dinner and refreshments has been arranged for the two hundred and fifty guests expected by the Settlement.

On December 22 the Warden of Hart House will act as host at the Christmas dinner given to those students whose homes are not within convenient travelling distance of Toronto. For the last three days in December the House will serve as headquarters for representative members of the Geological Society of America, who are assembling in this city for the first time since 1889. Though the actual sessions of the society will be divided between the Mining and the Physics buildings, the members will repair to the Great Hall for their meals and for their annual banquet which will take place there on December 30.

On Monday, December 29, and continuing throughout the week, A. A. Milne's play "Make Believe" will be presented in the Theatre. There will be two matinees, one on Thursday and the other on Saturday.

The Graduates' Ball on New Year's Eve will conclude the round of activities until the beginning of the Easter term.

ASPIRING EDUCATIONISTS' HOLO SUCCESSFUL PARTY

One of the most successful parties ever held at O.C.E. took place Friday evening, December 12. The dancers, over 250 in number, swayed to the music of Stan St. John's orchestra, under whirling snowflakes and Christmas festoons, illuminated by many-coloured lights. The "Animal Cracker" novelty dance was the prominent event of the evening. The guests were received by Mrs. Pakenham, Mrs. Carlisle, Mrs. Bennett, and Helen Hillard.

The committee in charge were: Rye Douglas, Gwen Wesley, Buzz Fullerton, Hal Stevens, Jack Scott, Ted Collins, Cyril Hallam.

When a Georgia Tech professor said that he gave the best grades to the best dressed men, a student came to class the next day in a tuxedo.

Plan No Celebration for Men Remaining Except Hart House Dinner

TREE AT ST. MIKE'S

"Nothing! There is no Santa Claus," was the reply made to "The Varsity" by a student, a member of a residence committee, when asked what celebration, if any, would be held for the boys that are remaining in town for the holidays.

As a result of inquiries made by "The Varsity" it would appear that Christmas Dinner is the only activity of any importance scheduled to take place during the vacation period, while campus activities will cease on Friday the 19th for an interval of almost three weeks.

The only festive occasion planned for undergraduate men will be the Christmas dinner at Hart House on Monday, 22nd December. This is the annual Christmas dinner given by the Warden for those undergraduates who live in countries other than Canada or in distant parts of the Dominion, and are thus unable to spend any part of the Christmas vacation at home.

Undergraduate women who are remaining in residence throughout the Christmas holidays will hold a Christmas dinner to-night. The women of St. Michael's College are the only group that will have a Christmas tree. Since all the girls staying at the Women's Union are going home for the holidays, the Union will be closed from the 19th until Monday, January 5th.

C.O.T.C. activities have been suspended until after the Christmas vacation.

UNION HOLDS ANNUAL YULE FETE TO-NIGHT

Undergraduate Women Present
Miracle Play and Carols

The annual Christmas party at the Women's Union is on Tuesday evening at eight o'clock, and a miracle play will be presented. The play, called "The Star", will be directed by Miss Agatha Leonard, president of the Alumnae, and will have an undergraduate cast.

The carol singing is expected to be particularly beautiful this year, as more difficult music has been studied. The party will end with a social hour.

Attempts are being made by professors at the University of California to develop a man who will be able to run the 100 yard dash in less than nine seconds.

TRITE

"What can one say about Christmas, that isn't trite?" we asked the select assemblage within the editorial sanctum.

"There's nothing you can say about Christmas, that isn't trite," was the answer. "Christmas is trite."

We had just returned from downtown . . . frantic shoppers milling in the aisles of department stores . . . haggard salespeople moving mechanically, staring fixedly at glittering tinsel things . . . jammed street-cars and squawking motors . . . discards fiddling on windy corners . . . old women selling laces . . . gaudy window displays with poinsettias and huge effigies of Santa Claus . . . fretting women . . . grumbling men . . . yelling children . . .

Christmas struck us as not as much a trite thing as a colossal sham and a degrading burlesque. Still, it is difficult not to say trite things . . . the commercialization of Christmas . . . no room for the Christ-child.

The Gloria is trite, too. It has been sung for almost two thousand years. But we need to have it sung anew for us in the midst of all this meaningless tumult. . . "Peace on earth to men of good will." . . . We have had some misconception about "good will to men". That may be why we see only the bawdiness and hear nothing but the discord. We are looking for Christmas where Christmas is not. . . The peace is in the hearts of men of good will. We needn't be disappointed if we don't find it in the soul of the howling mob or among those who are dedicated to the task of turning the most intimate thing in the world into cold cash.

Giving is the most intimate thing in life. All this buying and bargaining has nothing to do with it. It has its shrine in a world apart, of peace . . . and a sort of magic. It is a thing so fragile, so brittle, as not to bear the weight of words without snapping. But it does exist, and Christmas has no meaning without it.

. . . Trite? . . .

JUDGES' REPORT

The large percentage of really quite fine verse, and the surprising scarcity of good material in the fields of prose and humour, were the features of the judges' task in determining the prize-winners for this special Christmas Literary Issue of "The Varsity". In view of the disparity between the quantity and quality of the verse and prose selections, it was finally decided to transfer the second prize for serious prose to the poetry section as a special prize, awarding one prize only for the former.

The first prize for poetry goes to Miss Isabel Jordan of second year University College for her exquisite little poem, "In Ambush". Miss Naomi St.G. Anglin, an occasional student, is awarded second prize in this section for her "Christmas Tree". The special prize goes to Miss Dorothy Livesay of fourth year Trinity for her "In the Wood". Honourable mention is given E. R. Toll, fourth year Victoria, for his short verse, "When Christmas Comes", and to R. H. Lambert of second year St. Michael's for "Poetry".

"The Essence of a Life" by S. Gampel, second year University College, receives the first prize for serious prose, as the unanimous choice of the judges, who did not feel that the other contributions in this class were of sufficiently high standard to merit award.

In humorous verse, "Song" by W. G. Duxton of the School of Graduate Studies, is awarded the prize, while in humorous prose E. R. Toll's "When Wild Oats Die" gains first place. In the latter section, "The Losing of Claire" by F. W. Burton of the School of Graduate Studies, was so strongly favoured by one of the judges that it is given honourable mention.

The general sketch award is given S. J. Boehner, fifth year Medicine, for his "Study". The prize for the best drawing on a campus subject is taken by G. K. Masters with his line sketch of Hart House.

Prize-winners may secure their cheques by applying at the Office of the Students' Administrative Council in Hart House, or at the Office of the Women's S.A.C., Room 82, University College.

With the Theatres

For the benefit of our readers, pictures are graded as follows in this column: Average (0), below average (-1) or (-2), above average (1) or (2).

Imperial.

The Cat Creeps. (0).—Supposed to be ghostly and horrible, but is very nearly funny. Blanche Frederici takes all the honours. Not as good as The Cat and The Canary. Vaudeville O.K. Loew's.

Billy the Kid. (1).—Wild west with family feuds and Wallace Beery as the benevolent sheriff. A real old-fashioned thriller done in the modern manner. Laurel and Hardy also in town and doing nobly, thank you.

Shea's.

Top Speed. (1).—Joe E. Brown and several other legitimate stage players combine to produce a real funny farce that is half spoiled by poor direction and choppy editing. Brokers' clerks masquerading as brokers. Fast motor boats.

Tivoli.

Alf's Button. (1).—A British picture magnificently conceived, but with poor technical work. Drags a bit, too. Two Tommies and a magic button that gives them all they desire. Good acting. Pretty girls.

Uptown.

The Dancers. (1).—Drama of Canadian backwoods and English aristocracy with Lois Moran and Phillips Holmes. The name is misleading, but it is a good story, well acted. The girl should commit suicide, but the otherwise flat ending is relieved by some delicious humour!

Autumn

By T. J. Wright

The pallid sun, his summer brilliance dimmed by smoky wreaths of clouds, dimmed with veils of silk, as are the faces of the harem beauties ere they walk before the eyes of men, looks down on a dying world. For Summer's living green is gone and, in its stead, the land is garbed in russet, with here and there a glaring tint—red, yellow, gold—to flash before the eye and tell mankind that all beauty is not dead. Even the wind has lost his velvet warmth and friendliness and now mourns through ragged skeletons of trees for all the glorious beauty of the vanished summertime.

Darkness comes—a mystic cloak of mourning for the death of nature. All is strangely still, as if humans and their brother animals, stood awed before the mystery of that weird death. Then, eerily super-natural, there dance, across the northern sky, the spirits of all the lovely summer days—the Northern Lights man calls them—but spirits they are, spirits of a something that has left the earth. They're memories of laughing shadows coiled in the curl of a paddle's wake—a wake traced out in silver moonlight—a wake that is a silver road to a canoe that, like an elfin barque, glides o'er the moon-tipped wavelets. They're wistful dreams of yesterday—a yesterday of golden sunshine, azure skies, and clouds of fleece and thistledown. But they are spirits—swift elusive nymphs—and, in their fashion, soon are gone.

So Autumn rules and we poor humans, ourselves the chessmen of great Mother Nature, lament as we see the death of all the lovely plants—the death of summer dreams and summer play—whilst sorrowing breezes sound their mournful wake. Mayhap we think of the Autumn of our own lives when Winter beckons with his icy hands to call us on to die as flowers die—to wither and return to the earth from whence we rose.

O'Rourke paused to listen: "..... for every virtue will have its reward." Rat poison! Five minutes, and he'd see about that. So would the soloist, and the whole ding-blasted congregation. Well, everything set. Now to jog along. What infernal blackness! Where had that window gone? Ah! Here. Now to climb out. Horrors!

How? Short, fat O'Rourke had failed at last. Trapped! Like a rat in a hole. Three minutes. Two minutes. One. Good-bye Parson!

So strange—so quiet—so different from Gopher City! Marble steps—pearly gates—golden streets. O'Rourke blinked and gasped. This wasn't Hell! How come? What was he doing here? Through the gates he passed unquestioned. Down the golden streets he wandered. On every door-step they sat—the blessed—twanging harps, and gazing upward into space with faces sad and set. From their backs sprouted wings, dazzling white. O'Rourke's back was itching. He reached to scratch. Could it be? It was true. His downy wings were sprouting fast. And so he passed the street. Through an open window he could see a group of the elect, sadly drinking tea, and gossiping about their neighbours. The face of the hostess appeared familiar, bringing memories of a by-gone day. Impossible! Yet there she sat, slowly and sadly pouring tea—Bess, the bouncing barmaid of Gopher City fame. Amazed, O'Rourke wandered on and on, down the endless files of harping minstrels. On a sudden he stopped. Deceiving eyes for sure! But no, there in those harping ranks, sadly harping on a harp of gold, harped none other than Shifty Shaver, the crookedest old rascal that ever twirled a poke in Gopher City.

But where was the Parson? Where was innocent little Deborah Dimples, the dimpled soprano soloist? Where was all that congregation he had blown to Davy Jones' locker with dynamite that night? Ah, here was a guard. He would inquire.

"Why am I here," O'Rourke demanded, surprised to find his voice now soft and gentle as the summer breeze.

Replied the guard in stern and measured tones: "Because every virtue will have its reward. Therefore art Thou here. On earth Thou didst live fast and worldly, sowing much wild oats. Divine justice now brings Thee here for punishment well due."

"But the Parson, Deborah Dimples, and the congregation from Gopher City—tell me now, where are they? Why are they too not here?"

"Every virtue, as I have already told Thee, will have its reward. Now therefore, the Parson, Deborah Dimples, and the congregation from Gopher City, having on earth lived chaste and virtuous lives, they are not here, but at the present moment are stewed to the ears in a New Year's carousal with the hottest bevy of chorus girls in Hades."

—Reader, take heed. When tempted, have courage, my boy, to say "NO". For remember, every virtue will have its reward.

Honourable Mention.Poetry

What is this knowledge of poetic art
Whose fragile fingers play the living chimes
Upon the key-board of some writer's rhymes
The measured accents locked in every heart?
What are these secret numbers that unveil
From lowly symbols some ethereal sound
To stir the soul with harmonies profound
And melodies in some celestial scale?

Poetic art comes from the Great Beyond
And only hearts can be its golden scroll;
Poetic muse constructs a sacred bond
That binds all human hearts into a whole;
Poetic numbers are the magic wand
That moves the mystic numbers of the soul.

To Irene

There is a shade of chestnut, in the jet
Of curls, that rests so lightly round her face,
Forming for modest ears a hiding place;
And tempting tokens for a lover's theft.
Two black lace curtains curl with frank regret
Upward from eyes, startled as fawn's in chase;
Their hues of hazel lend them added grace
Leaving you silent and from words bereft.
But what description ever could array
Beauty as I alone have witnessed it,
Through eyes of love?—Thy tender mouth, Irene
Mirth bids pearl purity of teeth display.
O muse, the universe, and thou and I Can never tell her charm, can only sigh.

—Harold V. Cranfield.

Daubed On

One only mars by many words,
That picture, perfect in itself,
That often-times is seen by glance,
Without a chance to ponder it...
Just such a picture have I seen—
As slowly uphill chugged my train—
A crow, of blackest ebony sheen,
Perched in a tree of orange flame.

Car Talk

By Henry H. Noyes

"Jim, you're looking awfully pale. I guess you didn't sleep much last night. Are you very tired?"

The car was crowded. He clutched the bar above her head and looked out of the window. She held the baby.

"See how he's smiling at me, Jim! Isn't he just the greatest boy ever?"

"Yes," he agreed. There were red circles around his eyes and his cheeks were ashy.

"You know, I forgot to phone your mother as I promised you. I wonder what she'll ever think of me! I don't suppose she'll mind much. Do you think she'll mind?"

"No, dear."

"There's a seat down there now, Jim. You're looking so tired. You better go sit down."

But the vacant seat was occupied long before he looked away from the window.

"Whew, baby's getting heavy! He's just like a lump of fat. I wonder what he weighs now? D'you think it'll be fifteen pounds yet, Jim?"

He looked down at the baby and smiled.

"Jim, was your father really so mad at you just because you married—"

"No, of course not. Don't worry about that."

"Jim, I'm frightened about seeing your father. I've never seen a corpse. I know it'll keep me awake for nights and nights. Your mother wouldn't be mad at me, would she, Jim, if I didn't go into the room?"

"No, no, dear. I understand."

Desertion

My heart is cold
And still,
Like a lake, mountain-girded
It lies
Hidden from the world.
No wind of passion
Stirs its calm surface;
Nor can any sun
Warm its depths.
My heart is cold,
So cold to-day—
Last night
My love left me
For another mate.

To Keats

Soft silver haze and trees like piles of gold,
Blue skies, and blood-red leaves and mellow beams
Of autumn sun, a time for languid dreams,
And gathering of the fruits before the cold.

Futile it is to sing, for one has sung
Ere now the praise of plenteous autumn-tide,
And vain the beauty of the countryside
To paint; for Keats has given autumn tongue.

Oh singer of the autumn time, you died
Still in your spring; your sensuous song was stilled
Ere yet its lovely measure was half filled;
I do not weep, for you are deified.
Oh you, like me, who loved the autumn days,
Lend me your voice so I can sing your praise.

—C. R. Parmenter.

A Carol

Good Christian folk, the Jesu Babe
Is born this night our souls to save,
Sing Jesu, sweet Jesu!

From God in heaven He is come down,
And laid aside his golden crown,
Sing Jesu, King Jesu!

The Holy Virgin tends Him well,
And hears with joy what shepherds tell
Sing Jesu, sweet Jesu!

The shepherds stand all in a row,
And tell of angels white as snow,
Sing Jesu, King Jesu!

And by the Manger all the sheep
Do watch the Babe that is asleep,
Sing Jesu, sweet Jesu!

The wise men see an Eastern star,
And bring their gifts from lands afar
Sing Jesu, King Jesu!

Good Joseph washes all their feet,
And bids them welcome, as is meet
Sing Jesu, sweet Jesu!

So joyfully this Christmas tide,
We laud the Babe that for us died,
Sing Jesu, King Jesu!

—Selwyn H. Dewdney.

CHRISTMAS

smiled and never frowned, lest Santa Claus might see.

But now when snow begins to fall,
I feel no welcome glow at all, but only deepest gloom; for soon we all must write exams and show up as a bunch of hams—December spells our doom!

And when as last I hasten home, my worthy gov'nor pulls a bone suggesting that I work. "There's Silas Jenkins' grocery shop needs extra help," suggests my pop, "they want a soda jerk; and Miss Amanda Sarah Holmes, purveyor of the latest tomes will need a willing lad. Go down and ask her for a job, to carry volumes, dust and swab, and polish her facade."
I hid myself to Manda's store and sidling in her office door, "You need a clerk?" said I. She turned her sour yap to me and hesitated, "Let me see —well, yes, I'll let you try."

For seven days I toiled and sweat;
—I dust the humble novellette, the weighty works of Funk, but though I sweep and mind the phone, and work my fingers to the bone, my pay's one lovely plunk.

I take the berry that she gives, and list my honoured relatives beneath the midnight oil, that I may give the maximum to sisters, aunts and cousins from these fruits of awful toil.

On Christmas morn I rise betimes to hear the merry tinkling chimes of sleighbells in the street; and when I find a bright green tie is all I get I sit and sigh though joy should be complete.

Old Clipper Ship's Departed Glory

The "Melanope", once a speedy and beautiful sailing ship, now tends the Empress of Asia and Empress of Russia, present-day liners of the Canadian Pacific fleet at Vancouver in the capacity of coal hulk. Grimed, blackened and scarred by the years, there is little about this soiled hulk to suggest the glory of a clippership, yet such was the "Melanope" before an accident at the bar of the Columbia river left her abandoned to an unkind fate. It is recorded that a Liverpool apple peddler, a woman, put a terrible curse on the old ship on her maiden voyage, after she had been put off the vessel into a towing tug. Ever afterwards when the trim ship had a mishap superstitious sailors blamed the "apple woman" until the "Melanope" became associated, wherever seamen gathered, with the Liverpool peddler and her vindictive curse. In above lay-out, bottom, the "Melanope" is shown as she appears today. Centre, the artist has tried to show how she once looked in all her glory of tall masts and spreading canvas while top, the "Melanope's" hulk is shown alongside the Empress of Asia, coaling her on her visit to Vancouver.

SPURIOUS TICKETS MAR GRADS' BALL

Ten Unlucky Purchasers Are Turned From Hart House Doors

ONE VICTIM GETS REFUND

On New Year's Eve many were turned away from the portals of Hart House because they had purchased counterfeit tickets for the Graduates' Ball. Many more did not even present themselves at the door when they realized that their tickets were spurious.

The tickets were sold at $25.00 for three, the regular price being $6.00.
The printing and stationery were decidedly inferior to the real article.

When interviewed the Warden said he had been warned about it and had two plainclothesmen at the door. About ten tickets were presented. The city police are attending to the matter and up to Thursday at noon no progress had been reported. Of course, they would not make any disclosures until the guilty party had been apprehended.

The difference in the tickets was noticed by one victim who happened to compare his tickets with the genuine ones. It was so marked that he returned them to the vendor who refunded his money, fortunately.

WOMEN FORM SEPARATE COMMERCE CLUB UNIT

A women's Commerce Club has recently appeared on the campus. It has been formed at the suggestion of Professor G. E. Jackson, supervisor of studies for the course in Commerce and Finance.

The club is to correspond to the Commerce Club for men in the course in Commerce and Finance and Pass Commerce, membership in which is not open to women in these courses.
The purpose of the club is to link the work in the course more closely with the outside business world.

The meetings are to take the form of informal discussion and at times outside speakers will be procured to address it.

The first meeting is to take the form of a tea at the Women's Union on Saturday, January 10. Professor Jackson, Honorary President, and Professor E. J. Urwick, Head of the Department of Political Science and Honorary Vice-President of the club, will speak.

SIR ROBERT BELIEVES UNIVERSITY MOLDS TREND OF MODERN WORLD

Education and Religion Are Potent Creative Sources

OLD IDEALS DISPLACED

Urges Resistance to Cynicism, Often Begotten by Academic Life

In his opening address to the students, delivered in Convocation Hall on Tuesday, January 6, Sir Robert Falconer, President of the University, stressed the value of a liberal university education, properly absorbed and applied, in combating the evils and distress under which the races of the world are labouring.

"Education and religion," he said,
"are, I believe, the most potent creative sources for the ideas that go to the making of a better world. And universities are small groups, formed among the masses of men, in which a distinctive attitude of mind is fostered."

Sir Robert expressed the opinion that the mission of the university was to improve the whole state of world conditions. He stressed his belief that the present period of distress and social unrest through which we are passing consists not only of economic distress in our own country, but also of "national and international jealous-ies" and "grave discontent with the social order."

"Whether we like it or not," he

"Work for 'The Varsity'?" asked my dentist, as soon as his complete tool-chest was deposited in my mouth.
"Glug," I answered, meaning "Yes".
"You should have been there in nineteen five. That was the last year they had subscriptions. I remember
I helped persuade our men to vote for the inclusion of its price with the fees. I worked very hard for it," he said.

I congratulated my dentist on his noble enterprise and asked him why he had worked so hard for the dear old paper.

"Well," he said, "I took a subscription myself, and four out of five didn't. The other four generally sat on me to read mine."

Then came a rattle, as in my surprise I swallowed various steel drills and hammers.

BRASH FRESHMAN MOCKS DEBATORS AT OLD VICTORIA

Likens Dignified Parliament

Efforts

WILL JUSTIFY SARCASM

Promises to Speak at Monday's Debate on Subject of Pacifism

A freshman at Victoria recently made the statement that he had not yet heard one debate or speech at the university worthy of high school standards. He has therefore made the decision to speak at the Victoria College Parliament on Monday night at 7.45 in Alumni Hall and students are almost thinking of reserving seats in order to hear.

The bill to be presented is "Resolved that in the event of another war, this house will be Pacifist," and after a private interview with Miss Marion Haugh, the leader of the opposition, it was learned yesterday that the opposition were quite confident of overthrowing the government. In such case, there will be much strife and contention on this subject of pacifism, especially as a resolution was made last year in the debating society, that cadets should be maintained at all events, and there is no reason to believe that the lay students of the college have changed their minds.

Ladies' College

DARTMOUTH MAN IS LEADER

A convention of the national secretaries with the presidents of the Student Christian Associations from Toronto, Queen's, McGill, Western and
O.A.C., was held at the Ontario Ladies College, Whitby, from January 2 to January 5. Most of the afternoon sessions dealt with reports on the work of the previous term and plans for the term to come and for the next central area conference at Elgin House at Muskoka, in September. The evening sessions, in charge of Dr. Bill Rose of Dartmouth, were devoted to social and industrial problems.

All of the recreational facilities of the college were at the disposal of the delegates, including the swimming pool, gymnasium and a stable of horses.

New Year's Eve Is But A Hazy Memory To Many Male Students

The usual order of things,—play, eat, sleep and, if possible, work—prevailed among the men during the holidays.

A large number migrated to the department stores to dole out shirts, socks and ties to a clamouring public.
Several spent their time playing with construction toys for the benefit of the younger generation. One C. and F. man confessed that he assisted a downtown wholesale house in stock-taking. How much stock he managed to take he did not say.

The Pharmacy men slopped sodas and made sandwiches with their usual skill.

A number of the boys returned to

BENNETT INVITED TO HOUSE DEBATE

May Follow Example of W. L.
M. King After Imperial Conference

IMPERIAL UNITY IS TOPIC

When the Hart House debaters get into action on the 28th of this month, Premier R. B. Bennett is expected to be present in person and speak on the motion: Resolved, that in the opinion of this house, the events of the recent Imperial Conference mark the end of effective imperial co-operation.
The Prime Minister has not definitely promised to come, but members of the debates committee informed "The Varsity" last night that he had expressed a desire to come to Hart House after his return from the conference. If he is unable to be present himself it is expected that he will send a member of the new cabinet.

It will be recalled that the Hon.
W. L. Mackenzie King spoke at one of the debates after the conference of 1926. There is no doubt that, if Mr.
Bennett follows this example, the debates room will be the scene of one of the most interesting debates in its history.

The important part taken by Mr.
Bennett at the conference is well-known and it is certain that he can give an absorbing exposition of the proceedings of the conference.

Opinion in university circles is running very high on the results of the conference and it is known that many of the staff as well as undergraduates have made a study of the effects of the conference on Imperial unity.

HARVARD DECIDES TO OFFER STIPEND TO SELECTED MEN universities in the cases of distinguish-of them in Cambridge, house them, feed them and give them every oppor-graduates under twenty-five years of age, and each is to be a talented specialist in his own line of work. It is planned to have the prize-men select-that such is the case. The path to the of doctor of philosophy or science will take him three years more.

Mr. Waldron is at present a well-of his address. With such a back-of humour to enliven it, a most inter-

NINETY-EIGHT OF THEM

Writing in Saturday Night a week ago, B. K. Sandwell takes a paternal fling at the 98 students of the University of Toronto who, at a Hart House Debate, voted that they considered "all expenditure on national defence by the Dominion of Canada . . . unjustifiable".

Mr. Sandwell is delighted to be able to permit himself a ray of hope in the thought that the vote may not be a fair indication of the prevailing opinion among students on this campus. Anyway, he points out with superb subtlety, this youthful idealism "will probably change its opinions after a few years of contact with a somewhat hard-boiled world".

Pacifism is rampant in Canada and the United States, declares the writer, largely because both countries feel themselves safe from aggression by a foreign power. This, he strives to prove, is not only a false pacifism, but a false feeling of security.

"The most dangerous type of citizen that a country can possess," he thunders, "is the man who does all he can to prevent his fellow-citizens from being trained, organized, equipped and financed for defending the country by force and then demands that it be defended (usually by somebody else than himself) when some action is contemplated against it of which he disapproves. The only safe pacifist, and the only logical pacifist, is the person who is willing to carry his pacifism to its proper conclusion and endure anything that foreign non-pacifists may seek to inflict upon his country."

"If that is the measure of the pacifism of the ninety-eight Hart House students who voted against all military expenditure, then they are consistent and not wholly undesirable citizens. But if they are going to change their views and put up a fight when they find Canada in danger of being seized by the Turks or the Japanese or the people of the United States, then they are a menace and a nuisance to the Dominion and something ought to be done about them."

Exactly what the something is that ought to be done, Mr. Sandwell does not specify. In case he is at a loss for a fitting expedient we should suggest that Queen's Park officialdom—which, fortunately for the honour and glory of this great Dominion, still has a large-sized finger in shaping the destinies of the seven thousand young Canadians at this University—be prevailed upon to employ some of Signor Mussolini's castor oil as a purgative for the silly ideas that youth is heir to . . . Or perhaps Mr. Sandwell would prefer that our gallant ninety-eight be left to the tender mercies of the C.O.T.C. We have no doubt that the C.O.T.C. would be able to devise some quaint and efficient remedy.

Pacifism, to be tenable at all, in Mr. Sandwell's opinion, must be held "with the tenacity of an intense religious conviction." But, he goes on: "The trouble about it at the present time is that it is being professed by a great many people who are incapable of any such conviction. It is rather a fashionable creed among some sections of the rising generation—some of whom strangely enough manage to reconcile it with communism, a gospel which logically requires its adherents not merely to die for it, but also to impose it by force of arms wherever the imposition seems practicable. Nobody objects to the pacifism of the Quakers, because it is known to possess just this quality of religious conviction which insures that the Quaker will be faithful to his principles in all circumstances and at all costs. But how many Quakers are there among the 98 students at Hart House?"

Ah! well may you ask, indeed! How many Quakers are there among our undergraduates, do you suppose? Not many, if we are to judge from sundry sanguine engagements between faculties in the fall of the year. Not many, if we are to take our cue from the rude, corporal rites with which trembling freshmen are annually introduced into the esoteric circle of college life . . . Not many Quakers.

But we have Communists, it seems. Here is the spectre of Communism raising its ugly head again before the very eyes of Mr. Sandwell and in the presence of the cohorts of a higher education dedicated to the holy task of preserving the status quo! These are insidious methods, indeed,—beyond the jurisdiction of a Draper!

Mr. Sandwell has imputed several things to our naughty ninety-eight, but there are one or two little points he has neglected to consider. It is just barely possible that the youth of Mr. Sandwell's "somewhat hard-boiled world" are beginning to feel that this whole business of nationalism is an outmoded piece of childishness and that there is no logical justification for expenditures in behalf of its defense. There may be among the ninety-eight some few who have survived the "eye-for-an-eye-and-tooth-for-a-tooth" philosophy on which the Sandwells of the world wear their young, and are proceeding under the conviction that the money we are spending to buy pop guns and toy battleships for our jingoists might better be

"Make Believe"

Rotten music spoiled an otherwise interesting Christmas show at Hart House Theatre. Make Believe is A. A. Milne as his best. The direction, acting and settings, were all very good, but a strange collection of unmusical tunes that were hard to sing and painful to hear, almost ruined this show as first class Christmas entertainment.

In reality there are three plays all rolled into one in Make Believe. First a fairy story, then a piratical romance, then a Father Christmas tale,—each one delightfully dramatized, and all three linked together by a series of prologues. As a result there were many opportunities for doubling parts most of which were used.

George Patton was the star of the evening—first as the wood cutter, and then successively as the Pirate Chief and Father Christmas. Howard Lindsay and Agnes Muddrew also played up nobly in double roles. Elaine Wodson and Margaret Wilson, as the two children, were whimsical. Murray Bonnycastle carried affection to the nth degree and got away with it.

The scenery by Frederick Coates was quite in keeping with the mood of the play and more consistently suitable than has been the case with other recent Hart House plays. Mr. Coates is thoroughly at home in designing fantastic sets. Those for Make Believe were masterly conceived. A show that was enjoyed, but that that would have been excellent had the music been music.

What's the Use? Here we are back from Russia ever since New Year's and nobody has noticed it. We looked for the report of our homecoming in all of the downtown papers, but failed to find the great event even mentioned.

C-C
Perhaps this was on account of all the space being filled up with the election results.

C-C
"Aha," says Mayor Stewart on surveying Toronto conditions, "this is going to be a grave undertaking for me!"

C-C
But to return to important matters. We wish to bid farewell to all our friends, if any, as we are forced by busted health to give up writing the column, (note: this word is spelled correctly herein for the first time in eight years).

C-C
What broke our health? Russian conditions, my dear. Who wouldn't be a wreck after nine companionate marriages, two score free love matches, (in the modern Soviet manner), and a few weeks in the Russian prison?

C-C
Was our great effort worth it? We nearly became a martyr to the Cause, but nobody cared. Not that it martyred but we would have appreciated a few tears at least.

C-C
And the Obituary that appeared in this column? People have been panicking us, and justly so, for it. That was the work of our ad-libbed assistant who was under the influence of several signs of the Zodiac at the time. Besides he heard we were ill and couldn't wait.

C-C
And so, Good Friends, adieu. We are sorry we could not please you all with the Champus Cat. But who could?

C-C
If we printed the Ten Commandments in this column, it is a safe bet that a few would raise Blue Murder and the rest would think it was one of the funniest things they ever read in it.

C-C
And you can take that whichever way you like.

C-C
Pardon us for just a minute. These Russian lies think we are a Capitalist.

C-C
Yet we hate to leave the dear Public we have abused for so long, so we will kick in with some scandal, etc., from time to time, just to keep in form.

C-C
We are retiring (in spirit) to our country seat "Whiffletrees", to pass the remainder of our life in peace and quietness, and to repent our manifold sins.

C-C
If anyone would like to write this column in the future please come into "The Varsity" office and rub against

FOUR TEAMS IN TOURNEY

The University of Toronto senior water polo team entrains early tomorrow morning for Detroit where they will compete in a tournament at the Detroit Yacht Club for the Mark C. Hanna trophy. Three crack American water polo septets are entered: the University of Michigan, Detroit Athletic Club and the Detroit Yacht Club. These latter two clubs have captured the coveted cup twice and it is but necessary for either of them to win it a third time to make it their permanent property. There is keen competition between these two.

However, this is the first year that Varsity has been entered in the tournament and there is a good possibility that the Blue and White may prove to be the dark horse. The Michigan University seven is also reputed to be a strong contender and it is hardly likely that the two Detroit Clubs will have it all their own way.

Two games will be played Saturday

JUNIORS TACKLE DUKES TO-NIGHT IN O.H.A. SERIES

Blues Will Depend on Fast-for Victory

OPPONENTS WELL BALANCED

Canoe Clubs Tangle in Nightcap Fixture of Double-Header

To-night at Varsity-Arena the best patronized of the local amateur hockey groups hold the centre of attraction when another of the ever-popular "Big Four" double-header is scheduled with Varsity meeting Marlboros in the first game at 7.30 and T.C.C. opposing Parkdale at 9.00.

The Blues, under the able direction of Frank "Pinch-hitter" Sullivan, has an abundance of fast-skating aggressive forwards. The offensive and defensive strength of the team lies in the front line.

The defence are not strong at best, but have been working hard and of late have shown a gradual improvement. Shipp in goal has played several fine games interspersed, however, with some very mediocre performances. White and Lynch will likely form the defence. Both are fair rushers and cover up well, but are not good body checkers such as instil fear in an opposing forward line. Cunningham, a flashy stick artist, and May a heady play maker, will share centre ice. MacPherson, a fine all-round player, and Bennet, a strong defensive, but weak offensive man, will patrol the left boards. Hendry, the right wing star and consistent scorer, will play his usually fine game at right wing. Boddington or Hodgson will provide the relief.

In Marlboros Varsity meet the best balanced team in the group. A sextette with a good defence and several experienced players as Morrison, of Parry Sound; Gamble, Good, Schill, Kitchen, and Grey. Last time the Dukes defeated Varsity 7-4 and they claim they can repeat. To-morrow night will tell the story.

At 9.00 T.C.C. the group leaders, in Brown, McNeil and Davidson; a sporting a wonderful forward line pinch hitting alternate in London, and the outstanding defence man, House-ly, meet the rapidly improving, hard hitting Parkdale C.C. boys who inspired by their late victory over Varsity, hope to do big things to-night.

At three-thirty this afternoon the students of the Ontario College of Education are gathering to the January tea-dance reception in the college library.

MAN POWER AND FATIGUE

The leg-weary and travel-stained Varsity senior hockey team returned to town yesterday from their disastrous invasion of the United States colleges. One victory, a tie and two defeats were the net results of the worst showing ever made by a University of Toronto team on the annual Christmas tour. However, it must be remembered that the Blues were facing a crowded schedule and were without the services of "Red" Porter, the coach, who was unable to make the trip. Long train journeys, two games in as many nights on one occasion, and the fact that they were meeting teams which carried enough relief players to put a fresh squad on the ice every few minutes, all took their toll of the "T" players.

Nevertheless, a great improvement in the calibre of hockey played by the Americans provided the Blue and White with more opposition than they could handle under the circumstances. The Yanks play a hard body checking game with plenty of the rugby element present and the hard going wore the locals down.

The first game with Harvard in New York resulted in a 4 to 1 victory for the Americans. They showed considerable ability and there are no alibis for the defeat of the Blues. However, they redeemed themselves somewhat in the second game when they held the powerful Yale sextet to a 2 to 2 tie. The clash with Princeton last Tuesday resulted in the first and only win of the tour. The Tigers proved no match for the speed of the Varsity team and were submerged by a 4 to 1 count. The locals then boarded a train for Boston and after about three hours sleep tackled Harvard again on the latter's ice. The game was a rout, with the Blues taking a 9 to 0 pasting from the Crimson. Except for a desperate rally in the last period the Varsity men, who were almost in the final stages of exhaustion, were never in the picture.

Throughout the entire trip the playing of Freddy Murray, diminutive wingman was a standout. He proved a great favourite with the American

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

The intercollegiate and intermediate basketball teams will hold a combined workout to-night at 7 o'clock at U.T.S. There are a large number of promising candidates who will compete for places on these teams, and Coach Marion Forward will have her hands full making decisions. The intercollegiate tournament will take place this year at Kingston near the end of February, and chances for a Varsity championship look bright indeed.

The Normal School Grads of Hamilton have written to Miss A. E. M. Parkes, secretary of the Women's Athletic Association, asking for a game with a University of Toronto team, to be played in Hamilton on the 24th of January. Since the intercollegiate team already has a two-game series it seems only fair that this game be given to the intermediates, who ordinarily play in a city league with Margaret Eaton, Varsity Grads, and Varsity Seniors. The matter will be taken up with the Basketball Club and the Directorate at once, since a decision is necessary immediately.

It has been the custom for all girls who are trying out for places on both the intercollegiate and intermediate teams to practice together until within a couple of weeks of the time the intermediates make the trip away. Sometimes the final selection is deferred until a few days before the tournament. This arrangement makes it practically impossible for the intermediates to develop any plays, or organize successfully at all.

Sometimes it is, of course, hard for a coach to make final eliminations much earlier, but if the intermediate team is to make any sort of a showing in Hamilton, it will be necessary for Miss Edith Blackwell, who will probably handle the coaching assignment for the intermediates, to have her material at once.

The intercollegiate hockey team will be chosen definitely on Tuesday, it was announced to-day. Coach Jack Sinclair is having his troubles rounding out a successful team, since there are no candidates for goalie. Helen McKinley, and Dana Lumley, who were expected to compete for this position, have both dropped out, so that anyone with experience in this position would be welcomed.

The dates for the series of home and home games with Queen's have not yet been set, and it is extremely doubtful whether McGill will enter the league. The London team have written asking for a game with the intercollegiate, but whether the invitation will be accepted or not depends on the organization of the city league. At present there are two teams practicing in the city besides the Varsity outfit, and a city league may be formed with these three teams competing.

The interfaculty teams will get under way on the 16th of January, and the schedule will be announced on Monday. Competition is always keen in this interfaculty league, and most of the teams are practicing hard for the schedule.

WOMEN'S BASKETBALL

There will be a practice of the women's intercollegiate intermediate basketball team to-night at U.T.S., at 7.00 p.m. sharp.

CLOSE GAME AT ROCHESTER Show Marked Improvement In Course of Seven Games

Although the Blue basketballers lost seven games in seven starts and suffered several serious injuries during their Christmas trip through the Eastern States, they profited in experience and new ideas, improving steadily as the trip continued.

Starting off on December 13th against the University of Buffalo, who went through last year without a loss in twenty starts, they lost heavily against a clever team, the score being 44-16.

Then they met Syracuse University, the mythical all-eastern champions of last season. Again they received a setback, with Gordie Cock acquiring a slight injury, finishing on the short end of a 44-21 score.

Continuing the trip they played Colgate and suffered their worst beating to the tune of 53-17, scoring only three field goals during the game against a wonderful defensive exhibition by their opponents.

Against Long Island University they met defeat, but met disappointment in the small floor, the rough play, and the officiating. In New York against N.Y.U., they began to play better basketball although beaten 40-22. Encountering bad luck in the first five minutes when Cock was sent to the hospital, fate repeated when Captain Benny Sakler crashed into the chairs, receiving a serious head injury which required three stitches.

Although they again met defeat against Stevens Institute of Technology, they started off well, holding their opponents for the first half. Then

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By De C. H. R.

Once more Old Man Time has let his turnstile click to allow Kid 1931 past the gate. The Kid appears to have brought plenty of action with him, judging from the schedule of sport for this week-end. Our one hope is that he will bring to the University of Toronto what dear old Santa overlooked. And that, of course, is a much-needed professional rugby coach!

To-night you get your choice of exhibitions of two indoor sports, and you can be sure that both of them will provide plenty of action and your fill of thrills.

In the Big Gym the Varsity senior basketball team are entertaining the cage squad from Rochester University in a return exhibition game. Rochester just managed to put it over in the dying moments of the game to defeat the Blue and White seniors during the holidays, and Coach McCutcheon's squad are out for revenge to-night. Although they suffered seven defeats in as many games in their trip to the United States, still they showed greater improvement towards the end of the trip, and have gained in experience. The team will be out at full strength, and both coach and players are optimistic about the outcome. In the preliminary game the Varsity intermediates will engage Broadview Y.M.C.A. in a city league fixture.

The fast Varsity junior hockey team promise the followers of the ice game plenty of action when they meet Marlboro juniors in the first game of a double-header in the "Big Four" group to-night. The Blue and White junior aggregation is tied with the Dukes for second place in their group. That means that the winner of to-night's game will take second place, or in the event of T.C.C. losing to Parkdale, will move up to first place. The junior teams provide some of the best amateur hockey in the city, and there is no doubt about the style that the Varsity boys will have to show to-night.

Another hockey game is scheduled for the week-end, when the Varsity "B" O.H.A. senior entry will meet O.A.C. in a league game at the Varsity Arena on Saturday afternoon at 2.15 o'clock. This is the first game that the Senior "B" sextet has played, and they will be looking for plenty of support.

The Senior "A" team has played only two games in their group, losing one and winning one. On their trip to the States the seniors made the worst showing that a University of Toronto hockey team has ever made. This was due partially to the improvement in the brand of hockey that the southern colleges are playing, and partially to the fact that the U. of T. sextet were playing successive nights after a hard day's travelling. But the seniors are not up to the calibre of previous years, although they still have plenty of opportunity ahead of them in the intercollegiate and O.H.A. fixtures.

The senior water poloists of the University of Toronto journey to Detroit to-morrow to compete for the first time for the Hanna Trophy. With three fast American teams entered in the tournament they are sure of stiff opposition, but they may surprise us all and bring home the trophy. Here's luck to you, boys!

LOCALS FAVORED TO WIN

Toronto cage fans will be treated to a high class basketball game to-night in Hart House when Rochester University will be the visitors against coach McCutcheon's seniors.

Varsity met Rochester "U" when on their Christmas tour and from all accounts of the game the southern university stars were lucky to come out on top with a 27-20 win for with two minutes to go Toronto were in the van by one point. This game was the closest that the seniors played on the trip, and indications point to a real game when the two teams clash to-night, with the home squad favoured to come out on top.

Coach McCutcheon has the team in perfect condition and with Collins and McCallum who did not make the last trip with the team back in the line up is very optimistic of the result of the game. The whole squad played good basketball on the tour and with the experience of such a trip under their belts should go a long way in the intercollegiate race.

A strong preliminary game has been arranged bringing together Varsity intermediates and Broadview intermediates in a game which should be packed with action as each squad will be out to lower the colours of their city rivals. Broadview have been playing good basketball all season and will give Varsity a real battle until the final whistle has blown. The preliminary game starts at 7.30 sharp, with the main tussle at 9 o'clock, and a bumper attendance is expected.

COMMERCE CLUB WILL HEAR HAHN

President of De Forest Radio to Outline Opportunity

BRILLIANT WAR RECORD

At the invitation of the Commerce Club, Major James E. Hahn, D.S.C., M.C., President of the DeForest Radio Limited, Canada's largest radio manufacturer, will speak to the undergraduates of the University of Toronto in the lecture room of Hart House, at 1.20 p.m., Tuesday. His subject will be "Radio, a romance of Canadian Industry".

After a brilliant military career in the Great War, Major Hahn returned to civilian life and established an equally distinguished record. Called to the Ontario Bar in 1920, he later entered the radio industry and founded in 1923 the De Forest Corporation, now one of the largest concerns of its kind in the British Empire. He is also president of the important Amrad Corporation of Boston. He is to-day an international figure in the radio industry of Canada and the United States.

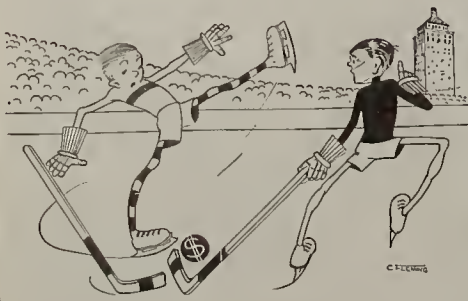

Major Hahn is also the author of a recent volume entitled, "The Intelligence Service within the Canadian Corps, 1914-1918."

Major Hahn was attending the University of Toronto when the call to arms came in August, 1914. He immediately joined the colours and went overseas with the First Canadian Contingent as a Captain in the First Canadian Infantry Battalion in the same year. From then until the cessation of hostilities in 1918 his was an eventful life which may be briefly summarized as follows: Arrived in France with the First Canadian Division in 1915; appointed Staff Captain, 8th Canadian Infantry Brigade, May, 1916; wounded at the Battle of Zillebeck, June, 1916; severely wounded at the Battle of the Somme, September, 1916; on Canadian Headquarters Staff at Argyle House, London, during period of convalescence, Spring, 1917; back to France, May, 1917; attached to Headquarters General Staff, 3rd Canadian Division; appointed to General Staff, 4th Canadian Division, promoted to Major, January, 1918; wounded, April 9, 1918; appointed Brigade Major, 11th Canadian Infantry Brigade.

Major Hahn was awarded the Military Cross in September, 1915, and made a Companion of the Distinguished Order in August, 1918. He was mentioned in despatches, May, 1915, January, 1916, and August, 1918.

years from thirty to forty. Consequently it is expected that the men who make themselves eligible for these fellowships will of necessity be prodigies along their specific lines. They will have to exhibit signs of mental capacity far above the average.

The fact that President Lowell, in presenting this plan, mentions that a student is entitled to a second term of three years if his attainments during the first three justify this step, is believed to indicate that there will be a system of supervision of the select body.

In the annual report of which this plan is a part, the president of the university recommends higher salaries for teachers, and the adoption of a fixed salary scale by all universities so that the attraction from one college to another by promise of higher salaries may cease.

President Lowell points out that there has been spirited competition among some institutions to secure the services of noted professors, while other universities have kept their professional salaries at a fixed scale. These systems cannot co-exist, he states.

The resolution is being introduced by Harold Vaughan, who represented Ontario high schools at the Peace Movement at the last world Y.M.C.A. Conference in Finland. He is supported by Miss M. With this line up, the freshman, and many other experienced debaters and thinkers who are expected to speak from the floor, this third Vic parliament promises to be the most interesting of the year. Also Dr. Wallace, Chancellor of Victoria University, is willing to speak for a few moments at the close.

The site is at present undetermined but it will probably be somewhere off North Yonge Street. Aurora is the height of land nearest to Toronto. The observatory is to be surrounded by the David Dunlap memorial park and is to be developed by the Faculty of Forestry.

When asked by "The Varsity" who was going to use the observatory, Dr. Chant stated it was not going to be used by undergraduates, but primarily for spectroscopic research.

This project has been under consideration by Mrs. Dunlap and her son for the last five years. The late David Dunlap was keenly interested in astro-

PROFESSOR ROBINS TO CONDUCT TOUR

Students' Travel Club Sponsor Fourth Annual Trip to Europe

TO OCCUPY SIX WEEKS

Europe will again be the destination of the Students' Travel Club this summer. "The Varsity" was told by Professor J. D. Robins, of Victoria College, who is conducting his fourth tour to Europe under the auspices of the Students' Travel Club and the Cunard Line.

This year the tour will follow a slightly different route than in preceding years. The young globe-trotters will sail from Montreal on June 20th, the trip proper starting from Edinburgh by motor car. Thence it will proceed through the districts famous from their Scott, Wordsworth and Coleridge associations, touching such places as Melrose Abbey, Abbotford and Dryburgh Abbey. The motor trip continues through the English Lake District and North Wales. After a week in London the group sail to Holland and the battlefields.

Mr. Robins then leads his band down the Rhine by boat and then from Heidelberg through the Black Forest to Geneva by motor, whence trips are taken through the Swiss Alps. The railway takes them to Rome for four days, to Florence for three days, and to Venice for two. The travellers proceed to Paris, visiting Monte Carlo and Nice on the way. The trip ends with a week of sight-seeing and merry-making in the French capital.

After a trip lasting six weeks, visiting all the principal places of interest in Eastern Europe, the students arrive home on August 24th.

Although the organization is called the Students' Travel Club, it is not limited to students—anyone is welcome. The cost of the full trip, including all hotel, meal, motor and baggage expenses, is $750. A shorter trip, which excludes the Italian tour, may be enjoyed for $590. The group, usually numbers from twenty to fifty, any more being considered unwieldy by those in charge.

The entire trip has been planned by Mr. Robins, from whom some very interesting highlights of the trip were obtained. To him the motor tour through the romantic Scotland of story and verse is the most enjoyable; he always attempts to get the driver to drive through the loveliest and most beautiful parts of the Scott afternoon and the winners meet at night for the Hanna trophy. Individual little gold water polo balls will be given to the members of the winning team. Little silver balls will be presented to the players of the other team that reaches the finals. A consolation game will be played Saturday night between the two teams that met defeat in the afternoon. The winners of this game will get bronze balls.

The Varsity poloists who will make the trip and who hope to return with some of the prizes are Armstrong, Culiner, Graham, Hayhoe, Sinclair, Spence, Ayers and Glass.

the U. of T. quintette weakened from lack of condition and Stevens pulled away steadily, ending the scoring at 33-11.

After the Christmas rest the team returned to Rochester and almost squeezed out a victory. With two minutes of play left Rochester only led by one point, but then they pulled away, led in their attack by their clever captain, Ike Kincaid to win by 27-20.

In the seventh and last game of the tour they were defeated by St. Bonaventure's quintette 43-27. Again they weakened in the last five minutes during which St. Bonnies netted most of their points. Those who made the trip were Coach McCutcheon, Manager Spooner, Riggs, Collins, Hynes, O'Leary, Sakler, Cook, MacCallum, Sniderman.

young and ambitious students into the ways of writing. A speaker on short stories will discuss the subject from the editor's viewpoint, rather than the writer's and informal groups will read original work and criticize for their own benefit. The object of writing, whether for creative or commercial ends, is also one of the subjects to be examined.

Formerly, the meetings were held on Tuesdays, but owing to clashes with lectures, teas, and other university functions, it was found to be advisable to change the day to Wednesday at 4.30. People who are interested in writing and have had little or no experience, will find these meetings give them a decided break into the journalistic world.

NINETY-EIGHT OF THEM

utilized in setting up an educational system which would turn out something besides potential mince meat.

No, Mr. Sandwell, they may not hold to it "with the tenacity of an intense religious conviction" in that day when the statesmen of the world in their omniscience decide that the season has come round again for shooting down some of the excess population. They may decline to go to jail and be branded as cowards while their fellows revert to the type into which nationalistic education has moulded them. Some of them may be caught in the mob hysteria, to go slithering into that gaseous chaos of rotting bodies and screaming metal to which a nuzzled press will refer vaguely as "the zone of war".

Nevertheless, we fail to see any particularly valid reason why you should have the right to term them "a menace and a nuisance". The true menace to the modern world-outlook is the otherwise good citizen who jumps at catch-phrases, shies in the dark at bogies called variously "Communism" and "Capitalism", and who pronounces the word "pacifist" with an evil stress on the sibilants.

We resent the imputation that a false feeling of security is the only explanation of the pacifist sentiment in the New World. We have put off the old Adam of Old World intrigue and dynasty jiggling, and it may be that we are making an honest effort to breathe our own clean air and attend to business. If there are as many as 98 undergraduates at the University of Toronto who feel that expenditure for national defence is both a practical and a theoretical anomaly under our peculiar conditions, we think that a certain modicum of intelligence might be granted them.

Leave us to heaven our lump, Mr. Sandwell.

UNIVERSITY CAN MOLD TRENDS OF MODERNITY

said, "the ideals of the old order have been displaced in large measure by new conceptions. Movements rather than dominant personalities are transforming the peoples. Appeal is being made to the average man."

An important function of the university be claimed as that of formulating such movements and ideals as will prove beneficial to mankind. "If," he said, "we can clarify our ideals and make them intense in small groups they will permeate society and slowly change the mass for the better."

Outlining the aims by which the members of the university must be guided, the President emphasized the importance of keeping in close contact with the world outside our walls. Stating that the university "must mingle without being conformed to it," he stressed the need of upholding the high standards of honesty and truth which are ours. "Of course," he said, "the crowd must not come tramping in and obliterate our standards by the call of the obvious and popular, standards which are our sacred trust."

Sir Robert also advised that we "fight hard against the cynicism which besets so easily the academic mind." He regretted the attitude which leads some critics of nations and individuals to show up only the darker side of the picture, pointing out only the faults, without their remedy. "Let us have more good advice from our clever people," he demanded.

Sir Robert declared that the liberal education which we seek at the university should hold up for our emulation the ideals praised two thousand years ago by Virgil, ideals of virtue, of honesty, of loyalty and of truth. He claimed that these ideals had been neglected by a world of selfishness and materialistic greed, and urged his listeners to test their value for themselves, and not to allow themselves to become ashamed of their enthusiasm.

The President closed with a plea that a university education should be viewed as more than a development of the intellect, that it be made a means whereby the spirit of truth might be encouraged to develop, that the heart as well as the mind of the student might be illuminated and that he might learn how to mingle with his fellow-men.

fans for his boring-in tactics and his persistent backchecking. Ames in goal also starred and was in no way responsible for the goal-scoring epidemic in the last game. Billy Bell came into his own to a large extent and played good hockey. The rest of the team showed flashes of their real form, Williams being particularly effective in the final game.

The Yanks play a style of hockey that is vastly different from that played on this side of the border. They show a machine-like attack, using a forward passing game with carefully mapped out plays. Their defensive tactics consist in laying on the beef and plenty of it and with sometimes as many as ten subs to keep up the pace, they usually succeed in wearing down the opposition to a frazzle and then running in enough goals to win. They could not match the Blues in stickhandling ability or individual brilliance, however.

Tush!

The Penhandler's Paradise

By P. A. Gardner

-3(H.A.W.)

Tush's Annual Christmas Literary Issue has been delayed somewhat, owing to the Editor's getting his eye caught in a keyhole in a well-known hotel on New Year's Eve. We are glad to announce, however, that it has been released on parole, and is now back on the payroll.

It is a pleasure to announce that all the contributions received were simply splendid. So magnificent, in fact, were they, that the Judges became a little hysterical, and awarded the Humorous Prose Poem Prize to the third best ethical essay, and vice versa, which really should have won, don't you think?

FIRST PRIZE—

A woman seated on a pine-stump tears
Her stocking on a twig projecting thence.
Her hands remove the corset that she wears;
A torso stands revealed that's just immense.
Lest any prowling cameraman should peek
She swiftly dons a bathing suit of pink;
A cork belt next ensures she shall not sink:
"Yoo Hoo!" to her husband swimming in the creek.

Like a pair of New Zealand muttens
They rest
On the mantelpiece.

My feet are cold,
So cold to-night—
Because
There is no fire
In the grate.

ABSONANCE OF LIFE

By S. Gamp

His origin was in a abysmal chaos of voraciferous complacency. His name was Ernest. His ego was terrific. In that obscure scroll that Moss-grows call "Acta Victoriana" he discovered that he was just a sog, and rejected him point-blank.

Even as a baby he was puerile.
Whooping cough would depress him;
after a mild convulsion he would moon about for days, quoting Hardy.
When visitors called to see him, "Cal-laghnan!" he would scream, "I Hemingway to-day."

Yet he entered University, by the one door possible, and soon he felt a sublimated sense of aversion to merriment which he would not have believed possible of achievement in his earlier days. He burst acridly into print. It became a flaming passion to him; and when at length he died, one word was found linotyped on his heart in 24-point caps—"Censored!"

his age?"

"Yes," he agreed. There were bushy patches over his eyes and red daubs on his cheeks and a great white beard hung from his lower lip.

LOWELL SCHOLARSHIP PLAN IS CRITICIZED BY UNDERGRADUATES

"Very Learned but Warped Minds One Possibility," Says Carson

EMPHASIS ON RESEARCH

Idea Would Prove Beneficial Only to Academic Men, is Opinion

Praise for the new fellowship system planned by President Lowell of Harvard University, as reported in Friday's "Varsity" was tinged with criticism of some of its clauses by the majority of the students who expressed opinion on the matter to "The Varsity". The plan provides that men who are outstanding in academic work should be given six years in which to carry on in their own work, with all expenses paid and a salary if they need it. Conditions of the award necessitate that the men be almost prodigies along purely academic lines.

"While we mustn't be too hasty to judge," said E. B. Jolliffe, IV Vic, recently awarded a Rhodes scholarship, "I suspect that it would lead to some important work in pure research, but it would produce little else, since the men chosen would be unlikely to make any other contribution to civilization, and would be likely to stick to research work all their lives. I think it's worth a trial here."

"I think the Harvard plan is a good idea," said E. H. Carson, IV Vic, "but I agree with Jolliffe that it might produce some very learned but warped minds. There aren't nearly enough scholarships given at Toronto for purely academic work, and the scholarships aren't large enough."

Gregory Mallon, IV St. Mike's, agreed that it ought to be a pretty good idea, but it might prove one-sided.

G. McGonigle, IV Trinity, saw both advantages and disadvantages in the scheme, but felt that on the whole it should be fairly successful. "Not one man in a thousand who obtains the fellowship is likely to be interested in anything but academic work," he said.

W. S. Noyes, IV C. & F., was unwilling to express an opinion, but did feel that the fellowship would be admirable from a man who was devoted to academic work, but he considered that a man who intended to enter business, or a profession such as medicine, would be too old by the time the fellowship expired to get a good start.

Professors Jackson and Urwick Give Addresses on History of Course

The inauguration meeting of the Women's Commerce Club was held as a formal tea at the Women's Union on Saturday, January the tenth.

Professor E. J. Urwick spoke on "A Lame Duck", reminiscing on a thirty year struggle with economics. Mrs. Urwick poured tea.

SOUTH AMERICA HAS MUCH HIDDEN WEALTH FOR THE ENGINEERS

Gordon Waldron Recounts His Adventures Before the Engineering Society

OPENINGS FOR ENGINEERS

Rapid Growth of Vegetation and Valuable Minerals to be Mined

A description of some of his experiences in Central America was given to the Engineering Society by Gordon Waldron, K.C., on Friday afternoon. Mr. Waldron spent several years in Nicaragua developing rubber and banana plantations, and building railroads. Because he had not received just treatment from the authorities concerning his right to transportation on a certain river, he purchased a newspaper in which to state his wrongs. Exception being taken to an article by one of those mentioned, a physical encounter resulted and when Mr. Waldron was winning, the Spanish governor tried to shoot him, but without success. After the recall of this governor, his successor used Mr. Waldron's paper as a means of stirring up revolution, just before Mr. Waldron left.

He also told of the great opportunities for adventurous engineers to assist in the development of the country, particularly in furnishing the means of transportation to the interior, and drainage. Due to the great rainfall, malaria is very common and before the district can be settled it must be amply drained. After this is done the mineral wealth may be tapped to the benefit of the first arrivals.

The growth of vegetation is very rapid, as a result of the warm climate and the abundant rainfall which sometimes amounts to one foot per day. The mineral resources consist of precious metals, diamonds and coal.

MENORAH FOLK-PLAY HAS FIRST OFFERING

"The Dybbuk" to be Presented in Hart House by Undergraduates

SUCCESS IN NEW YORK

When the Menorah Society, University of Toronto, presents Rusky's play "The Dybbuk" on the evenings of Wednesday and Thursday of this week in Hart House Theatre, Toronto will be given her first opportunity of seeing this play.

It has been suggested that too much has been undertaken in attempting to present "The Dybbuk". Miss Gelfer of the Menorah Society, however, expressed confidence in the ability of the cast of 40 persons headed by Maurice Levine, to make its presentation at Hart House so successful as it was in Moscow and New York. A great many of the players are undergraduates of the University of Toronto, a fact which gives the play a peculiar appeal to university students.

"The Dybbuk" was originally written in Yiddish and was presented first in Moscow. Since it has been translated into English, it has been presented with great success in London and New York.

"The Dybbuk" is a folk-play of Jewish-European life of a type more common 150 years ago, but in some respects true to that life to-day.

Few Positions Still Left On 'Varsity' News Staff

A few positions on the News Staff of "The Varsity" are still available. New men wishing to do reporting will call at "The Varsity" office in Hart House and see the News Editors immediately.

VARSITY STUDENTS HAVE OPINION OF 98

"Intellectual Nationalism" is Suggested by Miss J. Moore

VARSITY'S VIEW UPHELD

That the majority of the students at this university share the opinions of the ninety-eight who voted "all expenditure on national defence by the Dominion of Canada is unjustifiable", and endorse the ideas advanced in Friday's editorial was ascertained by "The Varsity" over the week-end. Writing in the "Saturday Night", B. K. Sandwell decried the intense feelings of pacifism evinced by the students in a recent Hart House debate as being the product of youthful idealism. However, a canvass of the students showed that the opinions held by the ninety-eight are shared by most of their fellow students.

Jocelyn Moore, III U.C., advocated as a solution for the knotty problem of disagreement, an intellectual nationalism in place of a political nationalism.

E. B. Jolliffe, IV Victoria, admitted himself in sympathy with the idea of the editorial in Friday's issue.

Amy Lovegrove, IV U.C. advanced the thought that if there were no preparation for war there would certainly be no war.

St. Joseph's "Sparsity" Threatens "Varsity"

A rival to the "Varsity" in the form of a four-page sheet, one-fourth the size of the undergraduate daily, has recently put in its appearance on the campus. The "Sparsity", with the sub-title, "the underhand newspaper", is the result of the efforts of four of the students at St. Joseph's College who undertook its publication "solely for our own amusement", as one of the editors stated. The newspaper appears once a month, and has met with an enthusiastic reception at the college.

Although the "Sparsity" partakes of all the features of the "Varsity", the

SEX LIFE OF FUNGI AFFORDS SCIENTISTS WORK IN RESEARCH

R. C. I. Lecture Describes Drunken Orgies of Common Fles

BULLER IS NOTED BOTANIST

Development in Mushroom Spores is Traced by Lecturer

Delivering the opening address of the year, "The Romance of Fungus Life" to the Royal Canadian Institute Dr. A. H. R. Buller, F.R.S. of the University of Manitoba, glorified the seemingly simple yet amazingly complex members of the lowest order of plants. Dr. Buller had every right to speak authoritatively on his subject, having written four volumes of "Researches on Fungi", acquired six university degrees, and having been made a Fellow of the Royal Society of London, and of the Botanical Society of America.

The tipsy conduct of flies that had sipped the juices of Amanita muscaria as they passed through the various stages of intoxication from jollity to maudlinism to when the fly passes out and sleeps the jag off on his back amused the audience. A certain tribe in Siberia share with the fly his knowledge of the mushroom and pass the winter in a glorious state of intoxication. The dry palates of the flies, however, are to the fungi's advantage. The fly brings about the union of male and female ascospores in the wheat rust by his sampling of the sweet juices of one cluster cup and then another.

It is for his work on the sex life of the fungus that the professor is noted and he did not hesitate to remove the veil of secrecy from the amours of the basidiomycetes. The development of the spore into the mycelium, the fusion of hyphal tips of mycelia of opposite sex and the subsequent development of this resulting cell with the double nucleus to an extensive spawn, the production of the fruiting bodies with their millions of basidia each with four spores, two invariably male and two invariably female, were vividly portrayed for the audience with slides, gestures and models.

Dr. Buller spoke of his studies of the trajectories, sporobolus he had named them, of the spores which are "fired" from the gills of the mushrooms. An individual mushroom may have as many as 50,000,000,000,000 spores, a number greater than that of the shells used during the Great War, and which if placed side by side would stretch from here to Montreal. Dr. Buller has been able to plot the paths of the spores after their projection from the basidia and to calculate the speed with which the spores fall which varies, in the different species, from one and one-half to four millimetres a second.

whole thing is more like the back-page feature in its more widely circulated contemporary. One of its best articles consists of a series of farcical book-reviews, while "hitherto unpublished letters" from Maria Theresa of Austria to Frederick the Great of Prussia, were the cause of no little excitement.

The "Sparsity" is an unofficial publication, and is not recognized by the Students' Council at the college. In spite of this the next issue will be a contributors' issue, and will appear at the beginning of February.

JUDGE'S DECISION ON THIRD GOAL ROBS BLUE TEAM OF O.H.A. FIXTURE

Hart House Sing-Song Proves Its Popularity

Warden Bickersteth Pays Tribute to Workman and Ross

Two hundred to three hundred voices joined lustily at noon on Friday in the singing in the East Common Room of Hart House of "Father O'Flynn", "Wrap me up in a tarpaulin jacket", "On the Road to Mandalay", and "The Blue and White".

Commenting on the sing-songs which have been a popular feature at Hart House since their inauguration, the Warden expressed his warm appreciation of the work of Mr. Ross Workman, a graduate of S.P.S., and of Mr. Angus Ross, the versatile pianist to whose untiring efforts much of the success of these sing-songs is due.

"The Varsity" was privileged to listen to the plans of the music committee. To a repertoire of 300 to 400 songs, it is hoped to add soon that epic poem, "Abdul, the Bulbul Emir". The introduction of guest artists and of members of the C.O.T.C. band is also planned.

MILITARY TRAINING IS TO BE ABOLISHED

American Colleges Launch Nation-wide Movement Against Militarism

AGAINST UNIVERSITY IDEA

A definite attempt to abolish compulsory military training in colleges throughout the United States was started last week by student groups in over a hundred universities. These colleges are all chartered under the land grant plan and military training is compulsory.

Meetings have been called for all over the country and a huge petition is to be presented in Washington on January 27th, demanding Congress to abolish the bill. The University of Washington has held over eighty debates on the question recently and other universities have all been greatly aroused by the issue.

The Harvard "Crimson" attacks the present policy of military training as opposed to the purpose of universities. Attractive uniforms, polo teams, co-ed majors, parades, bands and cadets are held out as bait according to the editorials. The system now in use is a propaganda tool, they claim.

The objections stressed in the petitions which have just been circulated are:

Military drill is a violation of academic freedom. R. O. T. C. courses are not under the administration of the college, but of the war department. They often are a prerequisite to graduation. This amounts to a strangle hold on student opinion by the military authorities.

Military drill teaches doctrines contrary to the principles of American government. In one of the manuals of the war department, democracy is defined as involving an "attitude toward property that is communistic... negative property right... results in demagogism, license, agitation, discontent, anarchy."

Military drill is an attempt to train students in the attitude of unquestioning obedience which war demands. It seeks to idealize war, and to inculcate among students the mental attitude which makes war possible.

Marlboros Break Tie in Overtime with Four Quick Goals

VARSITY DISPLAYS SPEED

Dukes' Defence and Lack of Net-Finish Fatal to Juniors

A questionable decision of the Marlboro goal judge robbed the University of Toronto juniors of a 3 to 2 win over the Dukes in a Big Four O.H.A. fixture played at the Varsity Arena on Friday night last. With the count knotted at two goals apiece and a minute and a half remaining to play in the final period, Hendry, Blue wing man, drove a fast one at Stein from close in. The puck appeared to have crossed the line, but the judge claimed it had hit the post and bounced out. Despite the protest of the Varsity team and a demonstration of violence on the part of the fans directly behind the nets, the judge stuck to his decision and the referee upheld him.

With the score remaining at 2-all the teams battled in overtime, the Dukes winning 6-3. Marlboros opened the scoring in the second period with two quick goals. Varsity added one before the period finished and in the final frame tied the score and went ahead to notch the winning goal only to have it nullified. In the overtime play the Dukes proved superior and counted four goals to the Blues' one.

Neither team displayed finished hockey. The Blues were a better aggregation individually, but lacked the necessary punch around the nets. Varsity (Continued on Page 4)

WYCLIFFE DEBATERS UPHOLD GOVERNMENT

Motion Carried Restricting Use of New Radio During Meetings

ABOUT BENNETT'S POLICY

The feature of the Wycliffe Literary Society meeting held Friday evening was a debate. First a motion was carried that the use of the new radio be restricted during the meetings of the Literary, S.S.A., and Athletic Societies. The President immediately proceeded to carry out this motion, though no influx of members was afterwards noticed.

The subject for debate was "That this House expresses its confidence in His Majesty's Government at Ottawa under the leadership of the Hon. R. B. Bennett." The motion was moved by H. R. Perkins and seconded by E. O. Lancaster. They referred to the favourable impression created by Mr. Bennett at the Imperial Conference and to his choice of capable men as cabinet ministers and as High Commissioner to London.

In opposing the motion, E. S. Otley suggested that Mr. Ferguson had been sent to London so that he would not bother Mr. Bennett. C. King stated that in his opinion this post demanded a diplomat and he feared from Mr. Ferguson's indiscreet utterances that he was not a diplomat.

The Dean of Residence, Rev. B. W. Horan spoke at the close of the meeting. He stated that though Mr. Bennett had been in power only a short time, he thought that his policy of "Canada First" was "poor imperialistic spirit". He admitted that he was a free trader and demonstrated the evils of protection. The motion was upheld by a close vote.

CLEVER PEOPLE

"Let us have more advice from our clever people," Sir Robert Falconer is reported to have said at his address to students last week.

With all due respect to our President—who admits he doesn't read "The Varsity"—we suggest that really clever people don't give advice. Sir Robert has studied long enough in life's hard school to realize that the wisdom of obtuseness is more profound and pays greater dividends than the eager counsellings of the poor fool who pours himself out on paper with some idea of reforming a society which likes to be reminded that the god-of-things-as-they-are is in his heaven and all's right with this best of all possible worlds.

The recipe for success in this day of B.A.'s and embattled alumni is: Hitch your wagon to a swivel chair and don't be any more intelligent than you should be.

We say this to illustrate that other thing of which Sir Robert spoke—that thing which he urged us to fight, . . . "the cynicism that besets so easily the academic mind".

HORSE SENSE

"Like many another ingrained pessimist," remarks the dignified North American Review (New York), "we have always regarded colleges with a cold and fishy eye, wondering whence came the notion that horse sense and a balanced mind could result from proximity with so wierd an institution."

There have been a few recent episodes, however, that journal admits, which seem to indicate that after all "students and authorities actually can and do possess a degree of sanity and intelligence". Chief among these is cited the case of Harvard which this fall "rejected a benevolent offer of one Rudy Vallee to make famous with his singing that recondite old chant, 'Fair Harvard'".

Let several hundred copies of the above remarks be struck off and circulated gratis throughout the haunts of our local sophisticates.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Under "Correspondence" we publish the latest eruption of our favourite Communist, Herr Krehm. We do not hesitate to admit that the letter is quite a blow to us . . . just when we thought we were becoming nice and red and everything!

As punishment for questioning the editorial virility, we suggest that our little proletarian be condemned to the task of reading aloud an unabridged edition of Das Kapital to an audience of fraternity men, eight hours a day until the entire work has been covered.

But with the next pacifist or Communist editorial, we are going to supply a Russian translation so that our friend may have some idea of what we are trying to say.

No—on second thought we take that back! It's more fun this way.

DALHOUSIE PROFESSORS MIMEOGRAPH LECTURES

Claim that this Assists in Concentration on the Subject

The Dalhousie Gazette displays indignant wrath against many of its professors whose ideas about giving lectures are sometimes as old as the life of the institution, taking the joy out of life by their "Please write." And then the old tongue wags furiously for the next thirty minutes and pens race madly over the pages propelled by the hand of the student whose mind is wandering, thinking of more pleasant things. He does not concentrate on what he is scribbling. The only thing he is getting out of this mad dash is a ruined handwriting. But lately some of the younger professors are giving the students the benefit of their experience. They are having mimeographed copies made, and now no longer need the pen fly, but instead one may sit down and enjoy the lecture.

A trip around the world is estimated to be worth more than a four year college education and that it can be made for less than the cost of one year in college.

CENSORSHIP RIDICULED BY BOSTON BOOKSHOP

Humorous Window Sign Depicts Horrors of Unrestrained Censoring

An interesting clip from the Vassar Miscellany News, concerning a Boston bookshop, in a protest against the strict laws concerning the censoring of books, which displayed the following sign in its window, reads: "Any person or persons under seventy-five years of age and living in Boston, who wishes to purchase any of these books, pamphlets, prints, brochures, leaflets, pages or parts or portions of such which contain, include or mention such words as ankle, leg, arm, damn, Hades, whoopee, etc., etc., and so on, must first secure an affidavit from his, her or its mother, and countersigned at the City Hall not later than the year 1601, stating that he, she or it will not be corrupted, led astray, learn immorality, birth control, sex appeal, evolution, that the earth is flat, that angels do not have wings, that all creeds, born or unborn, have a right to differ in opinion, or have opinions from Bostonians; that the Cabots and the Lowells did not descend from a cod or cods or other fish."

Art, Music and Drama

Friday Afternoon Recital

A large audience heard Gordon Hallett, pianist, assisted by Harold Sumberg, violinist, give the first Friday afternoon recital for this term.

Mr. Hallett has a good understanding of his instrument, a fine technique and very considerable playing sense.

He opened his program with the Friedman arrangement of the Ballet from Gluck's Orpheus and did very good work on this rather sugary production which was followed by the glorious G minor Tocatta and Fugue of Bach arranged for piano by Liszt. An organ number is found to suffer in transcription, but Mr. Hallett was very successful in his reading of the tocatta and in keeping the jolly fugue subject so well to the fore, even attaining a form of organ "registration" in using varied tone character.

Mr. Sumberg joined Mr. Hallett in playing Grieg's Sonata in F major. One of those grateful things which well repay the performers' labour, the sonata is tuneful, colourful and pleases almost any taste. The very considerable technical difficulties gave Mr. Sumberg no difficulty and both players should be heartily commended.

Mr. Hallett continued with three Debussy numbers and in the Gollig-wog's Cake Walk, used great moderation in emphasizing its grotesqueness. This entertaining program concluded with three Chopin numbers played with a much warmer tone than many Chopin players employ.

X Marx the Spot

Mr. Editor:—

Of late it has been the habit of many youthful idealists of the lower middle-class to indulge in the effusion of such noble sentiments as are usually dignified with the name of "pacifism". As a most eloquent expression of this tendency, an outburst bearing every ear-mark which characterizes this movements, the editorial of yesterday's "Varsity" well deserves closer examination.

That war is evil, violative of every moral tenet of an honest citizen, both the editor and his opponent tacitly assume. Here we have complete unanimity. Mr. Sandwell, however, starts with the hypothesis that Kemal Pasha's Turks suddenly acquire an esoteric urge to overthrow the liberty and moral code of Bennett and Draper. "Then," he triumphantly cries, "what will be the course of our mealy mouthed pacifists? Aristotelean logic—beyond the sphere of refutation!"

Our editor, however, knows better. A deep student of the history of this planet, he is firmly convinced that each and every war has been only the result of "outmoded pieces of childishness and dynasty juggling", and that had there been but a few persons beyond such infantile frailties (our worthy editor, for example), then the

DUKES DEFEAT JUNIORS 6-3; ROCHESTER DOWNS "T" CAGERS

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

The turnout at the intercollegiate basketball practice on Friday night was very poor, especially considering the fact that two teams must be chosen almost at once. Twelve players only put in an appearance. However, there were several notable absentees, who are expected at the next workout.

This practice will probably be at seven o'clock to-night, but the official confirmation of this hour will not reach Simcoe Hall until sometime this morning. The practices will be on Mondays at seven and Wednesdays at six, with an occasional Friday hour.

The intercollegiate hockey team will hold a practice at one o'clock to-day at the Arena, instead of Tuesday at the same time. The team will be definitely chosen at this workout. The team are still without the services of a goalie, and an experienced player in this position would be very welcome.

The schedule of the interfaculty hockey league will be printed to-morrow. The season opens with a double header between Junior Vic and Meds, and Junior U.C. and Household Science. The teams are divided into two groups, with Junior Vic, Meds, Junior U.C., Household Science, forming one group; and Senior Vic, Senior U.C. and St. Hilda's in the other.

VARSITY SENIOR "B" TEAM TRIM O.A.C. BY 13-1 SCORE

Leake and Conn Star with Five Goals Each Through Clever Combination

University of Toronto swamped the Ontario Agricultural College in the first game of the senior "B" group on Saturday afternoon by 13 goals to one. O.A.C. scored their lone tally early in the third period when Scollie pushed one past Kress, while Varsity scored two in the first, four in the second and seven in the third period.

Leake and Conn were the main scorers for Varsity, each getting five goals and Leake also provided the passes for four goals. Clute and Whitehead accounted for the other three goals.

It speaks well for the Varsity team that seven of their goals were assisted and brilliant combination used throughout the game.

For Varsity, there was no one outstanding, unless the scoring ability of Leake and Conn put them above the others.

Varsity — Goal, Kress; defence, Whitehead, Williams; centre, Clute; wings, Conn, Leake; subs, Wylie, Charlesboro, Townsend.

O.A.C. — Goal, Mitchelson; defence, Smith, S. Henry; centre, Scollie; wings, Stoddart, Stoneman; subs, B. Henry, Thompson, McLean, Haig. Referee—Gus Ryder.

BLUE POLOISTS LOSE FAST PLAYED GAMES TO DETROIT MERMEN

University of Michigan and Ellwoods Find Tough Opposition in Varsity

ONE GOAL LEADS IN GAMES

Two Matches in Same Day at Detroit Yacht Club for Hanna Trophy

By A. C. Cochrane

Detroit, Jan. 10.—Varsity water polo team lost both their games in the tournament held at the Detroit Yacht Club for the Mark Hanna trophy which the Yacht Club retained by defeating the University of Michigan 10 to 5 in the final. The Toronto septet were defeated 4 to 3 in the afternoon game with the Michigan University team. After a thrilling battle between two evenly matched teams Ellwoods downed Varsity 7 to 6 in a consolation match in the evening.

Varsity deserved to win their game with the U. of M. The Michigan players took advantage of the laxity of the referee and the game was the roughest that the Blue and White team has played in. At that they had possession of the ball the greater part of the time, but the speed and the grapevine tactics of the American poloists spelled their doom. Captain George Spence put Varsity in the lead at the outset. Schmieler, the star of the U. of M. aggregation, evened the count. Then Smith put the State College in the lead. Armstrong scored on a pass from Culiner for Varsity, but Ladd made the half time count 3-2 for the Michigan septet.

Graham tied the score shortly after the start of the second half, but a beautiful backhand shot by Valentine gave the American team the victory, 4 to 3.

The spectators were treated to a fine exhibition of water polo when Varsity met Ellwoods in the evening. The Toronto team was favoured with smart refereeing. The score see-sawed back and forth and the final verdict was always in doubt. Only the superior speed on the Detroit squad gave them the edge and the one-point win. Glass replaced Culiner in this game as the latter was suffering from cramps. The game was featured by the sensational goal-tending of Bill Ayers in the Blues' nets and the superb shooting and combination play of Graham and Armstrong.

Graham opened the scoring with a long shot and then he deflected Glass's shot past the Ellwood goalie. Gertinsan counted for the Detroiters. Spence made it 3-1. Hennigan put his team within a point of the Torontonians. The half-time score stood 4 to 2 for the Blues as a result of Armstrong's counter. Ed Mikat and Hennigan added two in rapid succession to tie it up. Armstrong scored and Hennigan retaliated in like manner. Play became terrifically fast and the spectators responded to the tenseness of the struggle. Gertinsan scored for Ellwoods. Then a beautiful combination play Spence to Graham to Armstrong resulted in a goal. The score was 6-6. The ball ranged up and down the pool until Hennigan finally beat Ayers for the winning counter, half a minute before the game was over.

Line-ups:

University of Toronto—Goal, Ayers; guards, Sinclair, Hayhoe; rover, Spence; forwards, Armstrong, Culiner, Graham; sub, Glass.

University of Michigan—Goal, Miller; guards, Kennedy, Lemack; rover, Valentine; forwards, Schmieler, Ladd, Smith.

Ellwoods — Goal, Lorenz; guards, Vinci, Fabian; rover, G. Mikat; forwards, E. Mikat, Hennigan, Gertinsan.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By A. C. Cochrane

Bert Perry, sports writer of the Globe, is evidently getting lost in his "Detours Through the Sports Maze". The following article appeared in his column Saturday:

Now that University of Toronto's senior hockey team has made such a dismal showing on its annual tour of the Eastern United States, one can expect a long article in The Varsity calling for the appointment of a new tutor. "Red" Porter, who has coached the Blue and White teams since he retired from active participation in the sport, is in almost the same position that Coach Les Blackwell was after the football season ended.

It seems strange that the coach should always be blamed for the poor showing of a team. When the team is winning, the mentor rarely is given credit for its success. It's the players then, the coach being a mere necessary attachment, so to speak. But when defeat fastens itself upon the team, there is only one place to lay the blame. The coach is the man who must bear the brunt of criticism.

On their showing in recent games here, the U. of T. team is perhaps the weakest that has represented the Blue and White for many seasons. Last year it lost the Intercollegiate title to McGill, for the first time in fifteen years—or was it fifty? This year McGill has one of the strongest teams that the Montreal students have mustered for several seasons. They expect to retain their Intercollegiate honours. They met University of Toronto in two games, the first to be played here on Jan. 24, and the second in Montreal on Feb. 12.

The Varsity can recite the same reasons for the non-success of the hockey team that it shrieked about the football team, and be just as far wide of the truth. It isn't the fault of the coach. The trouble is that one man is expected to accomplish miracles, minus co-operation, minus system, and plus the interference of every one who feels he should have a say as to how things should be done. The position of any University of Toronto coach has long been in that category that can best be described by the word "intolerable".

We hate to disappoint Mr. Perry, but we assure him that there will be no "long article" in "The Varsity" calling for the appointment of a new hockey coach and we cannot see why he should expect such an article from us. It looks as though he were going around with a chip on his shoulder that he wants knocked off. He writes: "It would seem strange that the coach should always be blamed for the poor showing of a team." Who has blamed "Red" Porter for the showing of the Blues? Yes, we are sorry that Mr. Perry's expectations will not be realized, at least from this source.

Mr. Perry infers that we put the onus of the intercollegiate football team's failure on Mr. Blackwell. As Mr. Blackwell himself knows, and as Mr. Perry should know, our criticism was not directed at the coach, but the system of coaching at the University of Toronto for the past ten years. We were concerned with the record of the teams during that period and the reasons for that record.

Mr. Perry says that it isn't the fault of the coach and goes on to speak of conditions existing under the coaching system here. It was exactly this same system which "The Varsity" advocated be changed and a proper one substituted in its place.

However, we recommend to our readers and to the Athletic Directorate the last two sentences of Mr. Perry's article. He concludes by saying: "The position of any University of Toronto coach has long been in that category which can best be described by the word 'intolerable'."

ROCHESTER DEFEATS FAST VARSITY TEAM IN BASKETBALL GAME

Americans Have Hard Time Repeating Previous Victory

BLUES BEAT BROADVIEW

First Game Shows Poor Basketball, with Varsity on Offensive

By Joku M. Chorlton

A brilliant offensive to start the second period and an air-tight defense throughout the entire game which had their opponents bewildered, enabled Rochester University to take the return game from the Blue and White seniors by a score of 35-23 on Friday night in the big gym at Hart House.

Playing a strictly defensive game for the entire first period, the American quintet were able to wear down the faster Varsity team and after being held even at 11 all in the initial frame, opened up their style in the last period and gradually pulled away from the fast tiring Canadian squad.

The game seemed to be a repetition of the first meeting of the two teams in Rochester when Toronto held the winners fairly even in the first half, only to lose out under a fast attack in the final stanza. Varsity held the lead for a few minutes in the first period when Cock and Sakler broke through the defense of their opponents to score field baskets but the ad-

DECISION ROBS BLUE TEAM

sity had the edge, however, in speed and only the checking of the Dukes' defence, and the brilliant goal tending of Stein kept the Sullivan squad from adding further goals.

Play opened cautiously in the first stanza with neither team attempting much offensive hockey. There were several good individual efforts, but Haddad and Stein were able to handle the shots. Cunningham's play, when he stickhandled through the Marlboro outfit only to lose control of the puck as he had but Stein to beat, was a tough break for the stellar Blue centre. Stiff body checks became more frequent near the end of the period as the two teams lived up to the proceedings.

Kitchen opened the scoring five minutes after the start of the final frame when he beat the Blue defence on a lone rush and gave Haddad no chance to save on his fast drive. Morrison followed in less than a minute's time on a combination rush with Turner, putting the Dukes two up. MacPherson, Lynch and Boddington showed up well on the Varsity attack. The Blues' first counter came on a smart play by Jack May. May rounded the defence and his pass was picked up by Bennett, who had little trouble in pushing it past Stein. Play became rather loose with Marlboros giving Haddad a busy session in the closing minutes of the period.

Varsity took up the offensive at the start of the final period and kept the play in the Dukes' territory. Penalties began to come more frequently as the players roughened the play. Hendry tied the game up when he scored from close in. With but three minutes to go, play quickened with each team striving for the winning goal. Varsity got it when Hendry once again fooled Stein, but the goal umpire failed to see it go in the nets.

In the ten minutes overtimes Marlboros forged ahead. Skill and Morrison scored two in a row for the Dukes. Ted Lynch added the final goal for Varsity from a scramble in front of the Dukes' nets. Just before the final bell Kitchen and Good counted the final two goals.

Ted Lynch stood out for the Blue and White. He was the Blues' strongest defensively and his speed on the attack could not be matched. Cunningham looked best on the Varsity front line, while Hendry, MacPherson, Boddington and May turned in smart efforts. Haddad was good in the nets. For the winners, Skill was outstanding, while Stein, Kitchen and Morrison were prominent.

Marlboros—Goal, Stein; defence, Morrison, Kitchen; centre, Good; wings, Skill, Hodges; subs, Gray, Turner, O'Brien.

U. of T.—Goal, Haddad; defence, Lynch, White; centre, Cunningham; wings, Hendry, MacPherson; subs, Boddington, May, Bennett and Shipp. Referee—Bill Graham.

'Onion Festivals of Joy Full of Grief, Capone Playing Hamlet,' says news in brief

By Vincent Geller

NEWS BRIEFS

Toronto—The inception this year of Canadian Onion Week should be hailed everywhere with tears of joy. We have already accustomed ourselves to celebrating such merry festivals as Empire Day, Mother's Day and Pay Day; but Canadian Onion Week promises to leave behind it the most powerful impression of all. It has long been suggested that the immortal onion should be honoured with a centenary, but advocates of the proposal were held back by the fear that the Police Commission would pass another by-law. Latest reports indicate that the commissioners will not take steps to crush the onion movement, as they believe that it will snuff itself out.

Spain—The daily revolution did not take place yesterday on account of it being the Sabbath.

Chicago—Al Capone will enter the talkies. A prominent film concern has leased him for $250,000 which he will receive and enjoy if he lives long enough. Asked if he preferred to play Faust or Hamlet, Al said, "I'll play rummy."

Reno—The town's latest proverb: "It's the woman who pays, and pays with the man's money."

Hamilton—Authorities have been considering the advisability of establishing martial law since it was discovered that there are eleven communists in the city.

vantage did not last long and Rochester took the lead which they never relinquished for the rest of the game. Kincaid and Hart started some real plays for the visitors which resulted in baskets and the Americans went ahead to lead by five points, the score being 9-4 midway through the initial period. Two fouls in succession by Don Wood and a field basket by the same player at the close of the first period, caught Rochester napping and enabled the Blue and White to tie the score at half time at 11-11.

Rochester opened up more in the next period and led on by McGuire, who made several solo rushes the length of the floor to net baskets. Jumped into a commanding lead in the first five minutes of play to forge ahead by 27-13 at one time. Wood, for Varsity, looped the net a couple of times for some smart baskets, while Cock got two foul shots which broke the monotony of the Rochester scoring.

McGuire, for the winners, was the outstanding man on the floor, while his teammate and captain, Kincaid, ran him a close second for the honours. McGuire scored a total of sixteen points, eleven of which were netted in the last period. For the losers, Don Wood and O'Leary, the clever centre of the Canadians, were outstanding, while Cock and Sakler turned in good games. Collins and Riggs were too well watched, and as a result were kept off the score sheet. The preliminary between Varsity history of this sinful race should have been from beginning to end one brotherly hug. Truly one must admit a most profound and unprecedented interpretation of history. This granted and granted in addition the fact that we have all but grown out of these puerile deviations (in this age of the Kelloggs and the Allans, even the Mestepholes Mussolini "hates" war), it follows by as irrefutable a demonstration as Euclid ever gave that war is unnecessary and the Sandwells are jingoists to be relegated to the museums with the spinning-wheel and the Egyptian mummies.

How naive is this petty Bourgeois idealism! These intellectual moles, these pygmies whose eyes are blinded by their narrow class prejudices, would also pass judgment on history.

The question of another world war is inextricably linked up with the dialectics of the economic contradictions of capitalist society. The outgrowth of the productive forces of the economic relations passed on private property, the resulting lack of markets, leading to the cycle crises and eventually to an Imperialist war, this alone is the cause of warfare. The Great War (which incidentally cost ten million lives—and these murderous thieves accused the Bolsheviks of being "blood thirsty") was caused not by the personal traits of Bismarck or Hohenzollern, as the professional liars of the ruling classes would have us believe, but by the Anglo-German rivalry for world markets. So long as the basic economic contradictions remain, a war is inevitable. The Kellogg pacts, the naval conferences, the League of Nations farce, the hypocritical whining of the "peace lovers" art but a bombastic edifice of deception erected by Finance-Capital to delude its exploited.

To treat the war danger as isolated from economic facts, to speak of the Imperialist agents as being "childish" to combat war with sermons, to shoot at Finance-Capital with a pea-shooter, this is the way of the emasculated petty bourgeois, who above all desire to preserve the existing property relations. The editorial regards Mussolini personally as a great danger to peace. My poor Editor, Mussolini is as helpless to alter anything as you bourgeois muddle-heads are incapable of seeing beyond your noses. Mussolini and his Fascist hooligans are but the henchmen of Italian Finance-Capital, of the Italian trusts, who need the colonies now being raped by France and Britain to press more surplus-value out of their wage-slaves. Politicians are but the puppets of the banks as Ramsay MacDonald, another petty bourgeois vegetarian is now finding out.

No, the "radical" element of the middle class are not the ones who will put an end to wars. These impotent, spineless beings will overnight turn into the most respectable jingoists to fight for "democracy" as our editor already admits. This task has been placed by history on the shoulders of quite another class, the proletariat. Revolutionaries scorn the cannery of the chicken-hearted petty bourgeois. For us the existing property relations form no "ne plus ultra". The next Imperialist war shall be greeted by the international working class with the revival of the immortal slogan of Lenin—"For the transformation of the Imperialist slaughter into a class-war!"

EPIC POEM WINS MEMORIAL PRIZE FOR HENRY NOYES

University College Sophomore Secures Highest Honours in English Verse

WORK IS UP TO STANOARO

"Poem is not an Historical One, but the Story of a Life"

The Senate of the University has just announced the winner of the Jardine Memorial Prize for English Verse, Mr. Henry Noyes, who is in the second year in Moderns at University College. The prize, which consists of $100 cash, is awarded annually for the best undergraduate poem or series of lyrics. The judges are the heads of the English departments in the various colleges.

Mr. Noyes won his laurels with an epic, a dramatic poem on Francois Villon. His name in poetry has not been made over night. Besides having won first prize in "The Varsity" literary supplement last year for a poem entitled "History", Mr. Noyes is represented in Nathaniel Benson's Anthology of Modern Canadian Verse.

Pelham Edgar, Professor of English literature at Victoria College, in commenting upon Mr. Noyes' prize-winning poem at the Canadian Authors' Association on Saturday, said: "Mr. Noyes' poem, 'Francois Villon', is well up to the Jardine standard."

When interviewed by "The Varsity" Mr. Noyes explained that his poem was not a historical composition, but an interpretation of Villon's fascinating life. "Francois Villon's life is shrouded in uncertainty, and I have given my interpretation of why he left Paris."

MEN OF EMMANUEL WORK AMIDST OIL

Careless Theologues Labour
Among Loose Wires

BUILDING SOON COMPLETEO

There are some students at the University of Toronto who climb over ladders, loose wires, piles of paint, and piles of lumber, to get to their lectures, which they take in a constant din of hammering and sawing.

The new Emmanuel College building seems bleak and unfinished and the public are still expecting an announcement of its completion—with the date of opening indefinitely later. But the theologians, half an hour after a brief dedication service, last Monday morning, took possession of three of the lecture rooms which had been completed, and have since been working in all the theology lectures there.

The work on the building will probably be completed at the end of the month, and it is likely that the other lecture rooms will be brought into use one by one as soon as each is ready. It will be officially opened when the residences are finished in the fall, and all will be dedicated at once. The residences are at present going up on the Victoria campus, south of Burwash Hall.

Tucked in among the professors' offices, and directly across the hall from the professors' common room is a kitchenette, practically finished and complete to the minutest detail. Its purpose has not as yet been explained.

Excerpts from "Francois Villon"

By Henry Noyes

"This is his blood, this tarnish that once drove
The fierce life through his arteries
Besmeared my clothes, my hands, my face, and cracks
With death, like paint on buried pottery.
His fist that shook at me so wildly lies
Nerveless upon the cobble-stones, unclasped
And his whole self is like an empty suit
Of armour, fit no more for battle."

Often I've watched the fishing boats at sea
Dodging to shelter from a rising storm.
Their flight is prudent and not fear, and once
The wind blows past they leave their coves and leap
The waves that earlier would have crushed them.

HART HOUSE PADRE TO QUIT POSITION

Rev. F. J. Moore to Leave

HELO POST FOUR YEARS

Rev. F. J. Moore, General Secretary of the Student Christian Association, has announced his resignation to take effect at the end of May. In an interview with "The Varsity" yesterday, Mr. Moore explained that when he accepted the post of Director of the S.C.A. in 1926, he had intended to remain for no longer than three or four years. In May he will have completed his fifth year here, and he is desirous of returning to church work.

Mr. Moore did not know exactly what position he would take, but he has two or three under consideration. Meanwhile, the Advisory Board of the S.C.A., of which Professor Wrong is chairman, is looking around for a successor to fill Mr. Moore's place on the S.C.A. and in Hart House chapel.

Mr. Moore, who was formerly at St. James' Cathedral, and was chaplain to the Canadian Overseas Forces during the Great War, is also editor (Continued on Page 4)

Lieut.-Colonel T. R. Loudon, Officer Commanding the University of Toronto Contingent, C.O.T.C., announced yesterday that arrangements had been completed for a Military Ball, for members and former members of the Corps, to be held at Hart House on Friday evening, January 30.

Colonel Loudon drew attention to the fact that in former years the university had held an annual military dance, which, with the athletic-at-home, was the outstanding event of the university year, and stated that arrangements had been made with a view to making this a dance of the same calibre.

The dance is intended primarily for present members of the corps, and the (Continued on Page 4)

At the beginning of the Fall term her place was taken by another of her kind who was christened "Maurice" in spite of all she could do or say to the contrary. However, "Maurice" became dissatisfied with conditions and handed in her resignation immediately when she found she was not the only furry inhabitant of the kitchenette. Owner of Queen Street Store

Charge

Petty thieving, rife in Burwash Hall since Friday morning, was brought to an end, it is hoped, when plainclothesmen Crawford and McKay arrested last night, Frank Merrill, alias Albert Merrill, of several spurious addresses.

One Middle House and one North House resident missed suits on Friday morning. Thursday evening a suspicious character had been seen loitering about the men's residence. He was recognized last night when he returned to the scene in an attempt to realize on a valuable token which he had removed from one of the suits. He was drawn into conversation by one of his victims while Dundas St. Station No. 2 was phoned.

Detectives exploded the ingenious alibi of Merrill when he said he was connected with a prominent clothing house. Merrill admitted his culpability and led detectives and students to the British Clothing House, 445 Queen St. West, where he had disposed of the stolen goods.

Here two suits were recognized on investigation of the premises and one other suit and a suitcase, not previously mentioned.

Hectic Debaters Can't Agree On Policy of Fight or Flee

By C. L. Coburn

The Victoria College Student Parliament in session assembled decided last night by a vote of 47 to 40: "In the event of a future war, this House will be pacifist."

Miss Marjorie Beer, moving the resolution, delivered the usual order of Riverwurst, neatly sliced into firsts, seconds and thirds. She denounced war in the accepted canons and issued a plan for "militant pacifism". She advised her pacifist followers to adopt a policy of undermining capitalism and promoting intelligent socialism to prevent future wars.

In the second frame, Earl Davison lightly sketched his patent plan for the prevention of carnage, in a scholarly but meaningless little speech. He ground out in due course the cry of "Peace at all costs, even that of war."

Harold Vaughan's solo in the third stanza was the intelligent speech of the evening. He outlined and neatly punctured the age-old militaristic illustrations of the "punched nose" and the "massacre of the innocents." He showed convincingly that the victors in warfare are often losers in the long run and that defeat is preferable to the continuance of a war, and closed by invoking Messrs. Einstein and Gandhi.

Jimmy Gibson responded in the fourth chuckle with the timely sally that the affirmative speakers were not pacifists at all, but that the creed of the negative was the only true religion.

The affair was then thrown wide open and a wild melee ensued.

9.00-9.04—An unidentified freshman jumped into the breach and delivered an unintelligible outburst of flag-waving for the negative in the fog-horn style of rhetoric.

9.05-9.10—Earl Lautenslager propounded for the affirmative in his best parliamentary style.

9.11-9.16—H. S. Day decried orations and advocated wars if possible.

9.17-9.25—Unidentified female spoke feelingly.

9.25—The Speaker left the chair in evident unease and Gibson subdued for him.

9.26-9.29—H. Roland arose with threatening mien and proved that only a major prophet could support the motion.

9.29-9.30—J. Howey advocated common sense rather than flag waving.

9.30-9.32—M. McKay preferred Christianity to pacifism.

NOTED WAR HERO TO GIVE LECTURE

Varsity Graduate Will Speak on Opportunities of Radio in Hart House

MAJOR HAHN HERE IN 1919

Through the courtesy of the Commerce Club, the men of the university are to have an opportunity to-day to listen to an address by Major J. E. Hahn, president of the De Forest Radio Co. Major Hahn, a graduate of the university, will speak on radio and its opportunities in the lecture room of Hart House at 1.20 to-day.

Major Hahn, who made a distinguished record for himself in the Great War, attracted a capacity crowd of men when he spoke about his war experiences here in 1919. Since then the Major has made an equally distinguished name for himself in the radio industry both here and in the United States. While resident in Boston a few years ago, he was invited to address the Harvard Business School of Economics, a distinction which is conferred only upon men of real importance.

"I have never been consulted about such a move and know nothing about it," stated Professor W. S. Wallace, Librarian of the University.

That such a move would help the students in history and economics and that students in McMaster, Queen's, Western, etc., have equal rights to the archives, was discovered by "The Varsity" in interviews with a few other officials, but nowhere was any single iota of proof disclosed as to where the news value of the story originated.

JUST PAPER TALK STATE OFFICIALS OF THE ARCHIVES

No Truth in Rumour Spread by Papers of Change of Present System

ARCHIVES WILL NOT MOVE

All Universities Have Equal Rights Regarding These Documents

Facts which seem to indicate that the proposed moving of the archives in the parliament buildings to university jurisdiction, is nothing but newspaper talk, was ascertained by "The Varsity" yesterday.

According to supposed news stories which appeared in "The Globe" and "The Star" recently, the legislative archives are soon to be moved from the parliament buildings upon the resignation of Colonel Alexander Foster who has been in charge of them. These records are going to be placed under the University of Toronto, either as part of the present library or as a separate department with a special provincial grant to look after the upkeep, similar to the Royal Ontario Museum. This is being done so the story claims, to give students a better chance to examine the documents.

But according to officials in charge of the departments concerned, there is not a vestige of truth to the story. "Colonel Fraser knew nothing about it until he read the story and I can definitely state that no one in the archives department has ever heard of such a move, and it is probably only newspaper talk," stated his secretary when interviewed.

Hon. E. A. Dunlop, provincial treasurer, under whose department the archives arc, was out of town, but his secretary, Mr. Irwin, said, "There is nothing in it at all and you can be assured that there has been nothing done about it. Probably some newspaperman saw Professor Martin or someone frequently in the archives department and considered it grounds for a story, but I don't know a thing about it."

"I have never been consulted about such a move and know nothing about it," stated Professor W. S. Wallace, Librarian of the University.

That such a move would help the students in history and economics and that students in McMaster, Queen's, Western, etc., have equal rights to the archives, was discovered by "The Varsity" in interviews with a few other officials, but nowhere was any single iota of proof disclosed as to where the news value of the story originated.

CHRISTMAS ESSAYS NOT ALL TO BLAME

Early Recovery is Expected of Professor Woodhouse
After Breakdown

RETURN WITHIN A MONTH

"General overwork and little rest, not marking English essays, was probably the cause of Professor A. S. P. Woodhouse's nervous breakdown," stated Professor W. H. Clawson of the English department, when interviewed by "The Varsity". "I have nothing to say concerning Professor Woodhouse's illness, but I understand that he will be back at the end of January. In the meantime the other English professors will take his periods," said Professor Clawson.

TEMERITY

The Rev. J. Lowe, Lecturer in Religious Knowledge at Trinity College, has permitted himself to be quoted by the daily press in a vigorous declaration on a subject of general public interest. So far he has not been reprimanded for his temerity. No disciplinary measures have been taken by the University authorities. This is a situation unique in the recent history of this institution.

A violent attack upon the Draperies of our Police Department constituted the Reverend gentleman's breach of the beam-and-note policy which constitutes the practical religion of our academic Solons. Screaming headlines trumpeted his indiscretion from the front page of the redoubtable Daily Star. Yet the serenity of the Simcoe Hall calm has, so far as we have been able to ascertain, remained unruffled.

The fact that any intelligent human being must agree with Mr. Lowe's remarks anent Draperism is surely not the explanation of this phenomenon. Professors have permitted themselves to be quoted in intelligent pronunciamentos ere this and have come off a decided second best in the ensuing tussle with the powers that be—so much so that it has become the wise custom of dons to nurse their wrath in silence against the eve of their voluntary departure for other spheres of activity. The night of the packing of the professorial trunks has come to be the occasion for pointed remarks on sundry subjects, as wise reporters have learned. Other dons who, in the heat of some mad moment, have permitted themselves to forget that they had a wife and family to support and have allowed themselves to speak out in meeting, have appeared on the "Leave of Absence" list with a minimum of delay. The wheels of the gods may be small, but they grind exceedingly fast.

We are given to understand that Trinity College not only proposes to take no action in the present case, but has it as a fixed policy that official cognizance of the public remarks of individual professors is under no circumstances to be taken. Whether or not this attitude has anything to do with the sudden lofty tolerance of Simcoe Hall, we cannot say.

We cannot but lament, however, the failure of the University authorities to request the heads of Trinity to discipline their bold don. Such a situation is so pregnant with dramatic possibilities that its loss to the public and the avid undergraduate is, we feel, an incalculable one.

BOGEY

At the coming session, we are told, the members of the Dominion House of Commons will be asked to take some action on the Aird Report advocating the nationalization of radio in this country.

In their consideration of the matter, the honourable gentlemen in Parliament assembled will be confronted with two illustrative cases—the case of Great Britain and that of the United States. Great Britain, they will find, having taken into consideration the fact that radio constitutes a natural monopoly, has placed it directly under governmental control with the formation of the British Broadcasting Corporation. The United States, on the other hand, with its customary Rooseveltian dread of the monopoly idea, has left this gigantic instrument in the hands of the commercial interests. The British public listens daily to programmes calculated to appeal to adult minds. The radio public of the United States listens daily to programmes calculated to appeal to the mentality of thirteen-year-olds. Canada, to date, has elected to follow the United States. The only difference has been that the Canadian programmes have been, with one or two exceptions, worse than the U.S. offerings.

One Toronto broadcasting station—maintained and supported by a leading distillery—is at present utilizing its share of the natural monopoly to hold out to its listeners the evils of government ownership. Such a campaign of deliberate falsification and misrepresentation has seldom been foisted upon an unsuspecting public. The radio fans—confronted with the awful possibility of losing Amos 'n' Andy and other such classics of the air—are urged to write their representatives at Ottawa urging them to oppose the nationalization of radio and leave the aether free to the infantile droolings of a coterie of uneducated high-pressure salesmen.

"Free! free! free! Absolutely free!" is the enticing manner in which the present programmes are described, in the language of the patent medicine vendor. Nationalization would mean that radio

NEW EXAM SYSTEM IS VERY SIMPLE

Student Merely Punches Keys and Machine Grinds Out Instant Answers

Ohio State University. — To walk into an examination room and punch keys instead of writing for two hours may seem too good to be true, but such will be the case if the examination machine invented by Dr. Stanley L. Pressey of the department of psychology comes into general use.

Two hours or more of continuous writing is a strain on the student, and the grading by the instructors is no simpler. Dr. Pressey's machine does away with all that.

The machine has the appearance of a typewriter at first glance, but there are only four keys on it. Each student is given a list of questions with each question followed by four answers. The student chooses the answer he thinks best and punches its number on the machine. This causes the carriage to turn a space and the next question is ready to be punched.

The roll of questions upon completion looks like a player-piano roll. It is kept for a permanent record.

NATIONALS AND VARSITY RENEW FEUD AT "T" ARENA TO-NIGHT

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

Coch Jack Sinclair announced the personnel of the intercollegiate hockey team at the practice yesterday at the Arena. Betsy Burrus, a newcomer to the squad will have the goal keeping assignment, with Dama Lumley as sub. The defence will be Adele Statten, and Fran Crooks, who will alternate with Naomi Slater. On the wings will be Betty Carter and Dot Starr, who will team up with Margot Thompson at centre. The sub wings will be Bliss McQuarrie and Dot James.

The team showed up very well at the practice yesterday, with Betty Carter, and Fran Crooks particularly strong on the offense. Betsy Burrus, who comes from Branksome Hall, played well in goal, and the whole team looked good defensively.

The intercollegiate and intermediate basketball teams held their last joint practice last night, and after the work out the squad was divided. The intermediate team will have a game in Hamilton on the 24th of January, and they will put in some strenuous work in the week and a half remaining before the game.

Wilma Hazlett, Louise Crouch, Eleanor Sedgewick, who formed the regular forward line last year, Jean Allen, who subbed on the defence, will of course be with the intercollegiate squad again. Sally Ballard, Betty Thomas, and Loretta McGarry, will form the rest of the team. This selection is not absolutely definite, and players may be drafted from the intermediates at any time. Of course, the system works both ways.

Bea Longley will practice with the intermediates until after the game at Hamilton and will probably return to the intercollegiate after that time. There are several players who starred in the interfaculty series, who have not yet turned out at the workouts, and who would have quite a good chance for a place on the team. Both intercollegiate and intermediate teams shape up well for a championship this year, and there is an abundance of good material.

Amherst students have a pool in which they bet on the number of the hymn to be sung at chapel.

IMPORTANT SENIOR FIXTURE TO-NIGHT

Nationals Need Win to Stay in Running after Recent Marlboro Victory

VARSITY TEAM OUT TO WIN

After absorbing a defeat at the hands of the Marlboro seniors on Saturday night, Nationals will be out fighting to the last inch in their game against Varsity senior hockeyists at the "T" arena to-night and indications point to one of the best amateur hockey games of the season when the two teams clash.

Both teams need the victory badly and the loser's chances of making the trip to Lake Placid as Canada's hockey representatives will dwindle considerably after to-night's fracas. Nationals were forced to take a lot of punishment from the Dukes in their last game, especially from Alec Leyvisky, Varsity's star junior last season, and are no doubt still suffering from the effects of that gruelling struggle, while the Blue and White seniors have had a good rest after their unsuccessful invasion of United States colleges and are in good condition for the game. Coach "Red" Porter's squad are (Continued on Page 4)

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By T. A. F.

Some of the fans who saw Marlboros defeat the Blue juniors in overtime last Friday night are still beefing about the decision of the goal judge in refusing to allow Hendry's goal in the last few minutes of the game. The decision robbed us of a 3 to 2 victory. As it was the game remained tied at two apiece and the Dukes carried off the verdict in overtime. We don't blame the fans a bit for being sore. From where we were sitting the puck certainly appeared to have crossed the line, and nearly everybody in the rink, including Stein in the Marlboro nets, expected to see the light go on. When it didn't there was a great uproar from the fans directly behind the nets. Several of the more energetic ones were all for taking the goal judge apart then and there. He was given a rough ride for a time until the police arrived and tossed out one or two of the "rioters". Far be it from us to condone any such exhibitions of violence on the part of fans who object to the decisions of officials, but nevertheless the boys can scarcely be blamed for seeing red. The decision was one of the rankest we have seen for some time. If the same thing had happened downtown with the Dukes on the short end of it, the fans there would have lifted the roof a foot or two and demanded the scalps of every one of the officials.

With less than a week's rest after their strenuous (to say the least) American trip, the senior hockey team will get into action again to-night in an O.H.A. senior fixture. The game will be played in our own Arena with our old friends the National Yacht Club Sea Fleas furnishing the opposition. Both teams are badly in need of a win to-night if they expect to stay in the hunt for the senior honours. The Blues have already been beaten once by Port Colborne and with only one win to their credit, obtained at the expense of the weakest team in the league, the Kitchener Greenshirts, they had better step out to-night with the idea that if they lose they are out of it. As for the Fleas, they are the team which at the start of the season, had a place all dusted off in the trophy room of the club for the Allan Cup and were looking forward to a trip to Lake Placid for the 1932 Olympics. They made a few miscalculations, however, and overlooked the fact that Hamilton, Port Colborne and the Marlboro seniors had similar ambitions and teams to back them up. The standing at present shows Harry Watson's Water Bugs reposing one rung from the bottom of the ladder with one victory and two defeats. They are far from out of it, however. No team with a line-up like theirs can be counted out until there is not even a mathematical chance for them.

Several familiar faces will be seen on the Flea line-up to-night. Bruce Paul, who was the mainstay of the Blue and White 1929-30 champions, is now wearing a red sweater and is paired up with Nugent on the opposition's defense. Jimmy McMullen, captain of last year's Varsity seniors, is another who will be performing against old team-mates to-night. The rest of the team is practically the same as last year, with the addition of Ross Paul, brother of the elongated defenceman, and "Mucker" Mercer. The redoubtable "Stuffy" Mueller, who had an off night against Marlboros on Saturday, will be in the nets.

VICTORIA SENIORS DEFEAT SCHOOL

Devitt Goes on Scoring Rampage and Nets Eleven Points

SECOND HALF KEEN BATTLE

Senior Vic defeated Senior School in a smartly played basketball fixture in the upper gym last night by a score of 17 to 7. Vic showed superiority in the first half when Devitt scored nine points. The score at half time was 11-2.

In the second half play tightened up and School held Vic to an almost even score. Ballachee scored twice for School in this half. In the last five minutes Vic played a tight defensive game and there was no scoring. Ballachee and Kirk showed up well for School and Devitt starred for Vic.

Sr. School (7) — Forwards, Kirk (2), Mercer (1); centre, Wilson; guards, Ireland, Ballachee (4); subs, Britnell, Alexander, Smith. Sr. Vic (17) — Forwards, Hender-shot (1), Bowles; centre, Devitt (11); guards, Vaughan (1), Cowle (2); subs, Clarke, Barr (2). Referee—A. C. Cochran.

Intermediate Blues Win Sterling Game From West End

TEAMS PLAY FINE BALL

In a slow starting game of basketball, Varsity intermediates beat West End Y.M.C.A. out of the running in the Y.M.C.A. basketball league on the latter's floor last night. Play was as close as the score of 23-20 would infer. West End had a superiority in team play which the Blue and White over-balanced by more accurate shooting.

Play started slowly in the first half and Varsity ran in seven points before the West Enders tallied. The Dovercourt St. team broke faster in this period but showed poor ball-handling under the basket and frequently missed series of shots. The Varsity team played a steady game and managed to keep in the lead so that they were on the big end of the 15-9 score at half time.

The second half was a much faster exhibition with both teams playing a fast-breaking heavy checking game. (Continued on Page 4) taking on a tough assignment, however, and it will have to be a smooth-working machine which will lower the colours of the sailors. Many critics picked the Sea Fleas as sure winners of the historic Allan Cup this year, but after absorbing a couple of unexpected defeats they dropped considerably in the standing and although the season is yet young, they need this victory to keep them in the race and Varsity are in a like situation.

A win will mean a great deal to both squads while a loss will diminish their championship hopes.

How To Write a Letter Home When You're Working Alone

By C. L. Coburn

"Dear Folks: I meant to write you earlier, but I've been too busy lately studying mathematics. . . . That's right too. It takes a long time to learn the permutations and combinations of four groups of five articles chosen from fifty-two. Especially with deuces wild and a dime to ante.

"I tried to get home for New Year's but I was busy studying psychology. . . . Psychology of alcoholism. You certainly got your material first-hand. How many hotels did you get thrown out of New Year's Eve? Then you asked that policeman for a match and told him you were trying to get lit. He should have given you a shoe horn. And when he gave you a ticket you tried to use it for a street-car transfer.

"I'm going to take an R. K. course in Biblical vocabulary. . . . You don't need to. Not after being asked to leave that animal store because you were corrupting the parrots. Anyway, a dog can't help it if he thinks you're a tree when you will wear those English tweeds.

"My professors seem to take a great interest in me. . . . Yes. Every lecture they ask where you are. Why don't you turn up once in a while? Be like John Wesley. He could even sleep on horse-back.

"I must close now, as I am due for some special tuition. It's expensive and I'm afraid I'll need. . . . And it always will be expensive till you learn the rule about two pair. But never mind. That's the price of sophistication.

One fair co-ed must have spent the holidays in her home town trying to prove an alibi. Dazed by the culmination of the grind of essays and exams at the end of the term, on Thursday afternoon she absently walked head-on into one of the pillars in the Victoria College library, and even then did not quite realize what had happened. The net result was a grazed nose, a black eye, and a mean looking bulge on her forehead. But who would believe her story?

Reserves

and Confidence . . .

Be it a nation at war, a team in sport, or just a man at work, full confidence is built upon reserves. For without reserves—something to fall back on—you invite defeat.

What have you got to meet a reverse?

There is no stouter line of defence than a fund of ready money in the bank. And the surest way to build that reserve—and your confidence with it—is by systematic saving, no matter how small the units may be.

The Y boys staged a desperate rally in the last few minutes but the Blue and White were able to hold their scant lead by superb defensive work. In this period the West Enders were superior in team work and shooting, but could not overcome the Varsity lead.

Kay, for Varsity, was by far the best man on the floor, scoring 12 points for his team. There were no individual stars on the West End team, but Cunningham was their big scorer. Humphrey and Willis played a nice defensive game for the Blue and White.

This defeat puts West End out of contention for the leadership of the group at the half way mark in the schedule.

O.C.E. ATTENDANCE EXCEEDS CAPACITY CLAIMS PAKENHAM

No Immediate Danger of Too Many Teachers in Ontario

STUDENT REGISTRATION UP

Economic Depression Causes Increase in Collegiate Attendance

Dean Pakenham of the Ontario College of Education, in an interview with a "Varsity" reporter on Tuesday made some pronouncements interesting to prospective teachers. At present the registration at O.C.E. is far beyond its capacity. For teachers with high school certificates there are 270 registrations; for the intermediate Household Science certificate, 12; there are 100 in the School of Graduate Studies, and 27 in the library school. This very large registration has led some to wonder if the schools of the province would be able to absorb the teachers turned out. On this score, Dean Pakenham answered as follows:

"Owing to the expansion in vocational education, the increase in high school demands for teachers has until now not exceeded the supply. There are very few qualified high school teachers in Ontario, however, without teaching posts. Owing to the economic depression, there has been an increase in student registration, and therefore more teachers are being required. As yet, there is no reason for anxiety about a surplus of high school teachers."

Victoria S.C.M. Groups Treat Problem at Joint Meeting

HELEN ROBERTSON SPEAKS

"Delinquent girls," was the topic of Miss Helen Robertson's talk to a joint meeting of the Victoria S.C.M. groups in Wynmwood Tuesday afternoon. "Inefficient parents and broken homes are the greatest causes of delinquency. Incurability is the main difficulty due to parents' lack of background and moral stamina. According to statistics, 57 per cent of these girl delinquents come from broken homes. Their first offence is often petty stealing which arises from a desire for popularity. Lame immorality and mental retardation are also fundamental causes of delinquency. Love of adventure, fired by lurid magazines and suggestive movies often leads to sensational escapades."

The other speaker, Miss Gertrude Hill, gave a brief talk on her work with unmarried mothers. This work is essentially constructive as they are taught useful arts and fitted to take a responsible position in society. These girls, the majority of whom are under 18, are given to understand that the basic idea of work is that God is in everything a living reality, and with that idea a fine adjustment is effected.

Wilfred Heighington, M.P. for St. David's, Toronto riding, and a new gladiator in the political arena, is to be the speaker at to-morrow's Macdonald-Cartier Club luncheon. He is the first of a series of prominent men who are to address the club this year.

W. J. Palmer, secretary of the club, told "The Varsity" yesterday that with a Conservative government in power at Ottawa the club plans to hold more meetings than formerly. They will in future take the form of luncheons rather than evening meetings.

Film Recording and Home Talks Are Expected for Future

At a record meeting of the Commerce Club yesterday, Major James E. Hahn, president of the De Forest Radio Company, delivered an interesting lecture on the achievements and the future of radio. This is the first time in ten years that Major Hahn has addressed a meeting in this university, the last occasion being when he told of his war experiences.

After pointing out that the radio trade in Canada had steadily increased, differing from that of the United States, whose trade had fluctuated, due to general depression, he passed on to the discussion of the immediate and future developments of the industry. Major Hahn stated that the modern radio receiver was "an exquisite musical instrument", and that any further improvements would be difficult. (Continued on Page 2)

Commerce Club Speaker Says Radio Advertising Should be Like Billboards

WILL ALWAYS BE POWER

"I think that the problem of advertising in radio will gradually regulate itself," said Major J. E. Hahn, Commerce Club speaker, in an interview with "The Varsity" yesterday afternoon. "Radio as an advertising medium is relatively a new thing. I believe that programmes will improve with time, and advertisers will come to realize that selling effort is a waste of time, for the public simply will not listen to it. The advertising value of radio is merely that of impressing."

Declares Youth Ready for a Fight with Blood In It

SCORES CHURCH HEADS

"What we want is not dogmatism but conviction," stated F. Noel Palmer at a meeting of the T.I.C.C.U. at Wynmwood yesterday. He expressed the object of the society to be the helping of students to a true feeling of Christianity.

Considering the question, "Christianity as the moral equivalent of war," Mr. Palmer said that there is real fighting to be done—courage is needed, and the spirit of conquest, and when the fight is over the reward will be great. He pictured the ever present battle between the forces of good and evil and expressed optimism as to the final outcome. He quoted the Literary Digest as saying that there are 30,000,000 people in Russia who have returned to Christianity. "The time is ripe for a real conquest—youth is alive, ready for a fight with some blood in it," said Mr. Palmer.

USES ARE LIMITED FOR EXAM MACHINE

Psychology Heads Agree that it Cannot Supplant the Present System

ONE ALREADY USED HERE

The examination machine, recently invented by Dr. Stanley L. Pressey of the psychology department of Ohio State University, has created some interest. This device, it is said, may cause radical changes in the present system of examinations, if adopted. The machine allows students to answer tests by punching a system of keys instead of writing papers.

Professor Line of the Department of Psychology, when approached on the subject, stated that the machine should be useful in certain types of examinations, but that its applications were limited.

Blue Seniors Upset Prophets by Forcing Nationals to Show Their Best

DROP LEAO TO LOSE 2-1

Strenuous Varsity Efforts in Final Frame Prove Unavailing

Varsity's touring Blues returned to their home ice last night and lost a hard-fought, 2-1 game to National Sea Fleas in a Senior O.H.A. fixture. Despite predictions to the contrary the game was as close as any seen here this year. The highly favoured Sea Fleas met a fighting Blue team which matched them in everything but scoring ability.

Returning to his old position at centre ice, Bill Stewart turned in one of his best games and has seldom been seen to a better advantage. In the last period he played circles around the Fleas and deserved at least a goal. His stick broke up many attacks and, flanked by his wings, gave a better display of back-checking than the Fleas' forward lines.

Freddy Murray, playing alternately at right and left wing, lacked nothing of the fight shown by Stewart. He was into every play and was a bear for work. Early in the second period, he lofted a shot from centre-ice which eluded Mueller and gave Varsity a slight lead.

The already crippled Blue team, minus the services of Harley and with Billy Bell barely recovering from his illness, received a setback before the (Continued on Page 3)

STAR-GAZERS SEEK ENDS OF UNIVERSE

Professor Chant Describes Tasks Undertaken by Astronomers

SEE THIRTY BILLION STARS

Is there a limit to the number of stars in our universe? This was the question with which Professor Chant dealt in part in his address before the Toronto Field Naturalists' Club Monday night on "The Number and Distance of the Stars."

Even 100 years ago it was estimated that there were 100,000,000 stars, Professor Chant told an amazed audience, and with the development of bigger and better telescopes this number has been constantly added to. Recently, however, it has been observed that the more remote the stars are, from the earth, the fewer they are, and consequently it is believed that the stars "fade out" and that there is a limit to the number of celestial bodies in what Professor Chant termed our own "island universe". Some astronomers are beginning to think that stars in groups 10,000,000,000,000 miles from the earth constitute other "island universes". The number of visual bodies in our own section of something that is bigger (Continued on Page 2)

U.C. VOTES DOWN BILL FOR TAXING MALE MISOGYNISTS

"Race Will Continue Even if Marriage Ceases," Says Miss Jordan

LADIES GROW OFFENSIVE

Tax Unfair to Bachelors with Broken or Repatched Hearts

Bachelors will not be taxed if the vote of 125-85, polled last night against the resolution, "Resolved that bachelors should be taxed," at a joint meeting of the U.C. Men's and Women's Literary Societies, is representative of the trend of public opinion.

"To-day is the age of woman," expostulated Miss Isabelle Jordan, if U.C. "Men must be taxed because they have become degenerate. What Helen, Cleopatra had, every shop girl has to-day," heaved Miss Jordan. "If we will not get married by fair means, we will get married by our own means. Perpetuation of the race will continue if we marry or not. However, a legitimate race is much more convenient," Miss Jordan granted. "Even university people have a half-baked idea of progress."

"The bachelor of to-day is not the bachelor of old times. To-day he is the Aldous Huxleyan young intellectual of a rather dubious type. He cannot avoid our campaign, which is being unified with alarming proportion." (Continued on Page 4)

WASHINGTON MEN PULL NEW RACKET

Architects at U. of W. Insure Everything Except Bootlaces

DOESN'T ALWAYS PAY

Here's the latest racket as worked by the students of the University of Washington, but it doesn't seem to work:

If you're an architect you can now insure everything but your shoelaces. At least that's the plan made by Alex Galitzin and Marcus Stedman, students in the architectural school, who opened a new Arch shack insurance company last week.

"Someone was always coming around wondering if he would get honorable mention on his esquisse-esquisse, which is his architectural project," Stedman said. "So we made up our minds that we might as well capitalize on their indecision. Of course we appraise drawings first, but sometimes the appraiser makes a lot of bum guesses. There isn't much profit then."

This new "insurance company" will make a bet with you that your stretchers won't split, that apple slot machines won't become stuffed with slugs, and that books won't be left on the library tables, but will be put away, Stedman stated. Rates range from fifteen cents to one dollar, according to the risk, but only architecture students are granted policies for the time being.

"So far we haven't enjoyed much profit," Stedman confessed. "It's awfully easy to guess wrong."

CO-EDUCATION?

The traditional war between men and women was renewed last night behind the screen of a friendly meeting of men and women at the University College Literary and Athletic Society, in the form of an attack on bachelors. "Bachelors should be taxed!" proclaimed the feminine affirmative, caustically opposed by the masculine negative. The women's cause may have been eugenics, women's rights, or civic budgeting; the men may have been defending individual, group or moral rights; the real subject of contention was the constant contemporary chip on the shoulder—man versus woman.

The reason for the choice of subject may be found in the state of mind which permeates the University, which makes any subject of controversy between men and women eminently amusing. The University of Toronto is officially termed co-educational; it might more accurately be described as an amalgamation of colleges, in which both sexes take lectures and engage in numerous activities together, but retain their feeling of segregation and aloofness. They may greet each other en passant, they may exchange notes and books indiscriminately, they may be registered in the same course and utter sophisticated hooey at the same groups—but they are dominated, consciously or unconsciously, by one precept with its variations:—Men are men and women are women, and never the twain shall meet as human beings.

Has anyone ever heard of any man soliciting funds for a women's building? Or of any woman agitating for better food in the men's Great Hall? Or of both campaigning for brighter student government? Not, of course, that the women deliberately form anti-male societies, nor that the men stride sternly about the campus to the slogan of "Down with women!"—but merely that there is a certain failure to regard each other open-mindedly, to co-operate wholeheartedly.

Such a failure is to some extent universal. Since so short a time, historically speaking, has passed since the fairly-widespread emancipation of women, it is only natural to expect certain antagonistic feelings to remain. More basic than this is the age-old conflict between the sexes which has always been an undercurrent even in moments of most potent mutual attraction. It is not to be expected nor desired that femininity and masculinity should be sternly cast off and an era of calm neutrality be ushered in. But it may be hoped that in an era in which rational thinking is much vaunted and occasionally practised, that the value of co-operation may be utilized.

The University of Toronto is in this respect considerably ahead of some of its contemporaries, but at the same time it by no means heads the van. As a leading intellectual centre of high academic rating, why can it not fully realize the policy of co-education?

should be based on the type of examination that is set. It would," he said, "serve satisfactorily in the case of the ordinary true-false type of questions, and should also be quite suitable as a simple device for the scoring of results. But to say that it would replace our present system in general is a distortion of fact. Its value must be judged in terms of the utility and validity of the type of examination in question, and its range of application must not be overrated."

Professor Chant of the same department said, "I am acquainted with the principle of the device, but the results of its use are unknown to me. I really couldn't say anything about it. Dr. Bott of our department has a machine of this type and his opinions may be of some value."

When asked for his views, Dr. Bott asserted that, "The machine, in my knowledge, is merely for the purpose of tabulating results, and if there are any claims as to the replacement active enough, he expressed his belief that a union of the younger generation into one unit, to work in conjunction with their elders, would be of wonderful effect as the shock troops of Christianity.

Mr. Palmer spoke of his trip to the west and the string of Bible-Study groups which he and his friend Dr. Ginnis, had left behind them among the high schools and colleges from Winnipeg to Vancouver. He told of one student who was so happy in his religious conviction that he came back three times and shook hands with him in gratitude for his help. At one high school in Winnipeg he had an attendance of 300 students at a voluntary meeting.

With a short prayer by Mr. Palmer, and a benediction, the meeting closed.

A.C. Players' Guild

The Affairs of Anatol, probably the best known work of the Austrian dramatist, Arthur Schnitzler, is opening on Broadway next Wednesday night. His one-act play, Living Hours, is being presented at the Players' Guild this afternoon. Mr. Andrew Allan is directing. Those who saw Mr. Allan's production of Schnitzler's Literature, at the Guild last year, will remember the cynical yet winsome flavour of his work.

Living Hours, is an intense study of the effect on a young writer of the sudden revelation that his invalid mother had over-dosed herself with morphine in order to free him from her hampering presence. The roles are being handled by Murray Bonnycastle, Andrew Allan and Selwyn Dewdney.

"The Dybbuk"

The Dybbuk, Ansky's famous play, in fact the best known on the Jewish stage, will be presented to-night and to-morrow night in Hart House Theatre under the auspices of the Menorah Society. The Dybbuk is a vivid portrayal of certain aspects of the mystical life of the Jewish religious Romantics. It deals with the entering of a dybbuk, the spirit of a deceased person, into the body of the maiden whom he had loved. However, the father of the girl has betrothed her to a young man in a neighbouring town. The dybbuk makes the girl rebellious and she refuses to marry her betrothed. In distraction the girl's father comes to a learned rabbi, in a nearby town, to get him to exorcise the dybbuk. It appears that the girl's father, Sender, has wronged the father of the dead student, as the girl was really betrothed to his son. The spirit of the dead father comes to a rabbinical to testify against Sender. The court pronounces judgment and the climax of the play is reached when the rabbi proceeds to exorcise the stubborn dybbuk.

The play is under the direction of Miss Sylvia Gelber, who is also taking the role of the maiden, Leah. Mr. Maurice Levine is taking the part of the student, who dies, and the aged rabbi. The production will be well handled and you are advised to attend.

"All of which goes to show, Alfonso . . . ?"

"I dunno, but I wish somea your teachers ate hear so I could ask 'em."

"No, Calixtus. Definitely no. There are various forms of torture we have considered in our weaker moments, but spare them that. Spare them that. After all, they are human. They have to live."

than our previous conception of a universe is estimated to be 30,000,000,000. Professor Chant briefly outlined the development of the science of celestial surveying, showing how the distance of the moon from the earth is calculated in much the same way as a surveyor measures the width of a river. This method enabled the determination of the distance of the nearest star, about 25,000,000,000 miles. Photography gave this science a great impetus, and finally the study of the spectra of the stars is revealing how far the light has travelled in reaching our prisms. It is this type of work which will be carried out in the great Dunlap Observatory to be erected to the north of the city. Einstein's theory of relativity has also been made use of by astronomers in these calculations of distances.

Blue and white are the school colors of 43 colleges in the United States.

SEA FLEAS DEFEAT VARSITY 2 TO 1 IN HARD FOUGHT GAME

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

A list of those players who are requested to turn out with the intercollegiate squad will be found in the bulletin board of to-day's issue. Since there have been only two practices, there is still plenty of time for prospective candidates to come out. Neither of the teams have been definitely chosen as yet.

The intermediate team will probably practice at 7 o'clock to-night, at U.T.S. This squad will make the trip to Hamilton a week from Saturday, and the Hamilton team are willing to pay expenses for the intercollegiate team to come later.

The swimming club are having a meeting very soon to decide a date for the interfaculty meet, which will probably be set for the middle of February. The meet last year was very successful, and there will likely be lots of competition.

An effort is being made to organize an interfaculty badminton club. St. Michael's have recently formed a club and if the organization at U.C. can be persuaded to enter competition, there seems to be no good reason why such a club should not meet with instant success.

VARSITY OARSMEN OUT FOR TRAINING

Senior and Olympic Crew Are on Lookout for Big Men

PROSPECTS LOOK GOOD

Training for Varsity's senior intercollegiate eight and the subsequent crew to enter the Olympic trials began Jan. 6. There has been a large turnout of heavy material and prospects look good. It is felt that the best results will be gained by having two heavy crews. Last year's senior eight is greatly depleted and there is much room for new men. All big freshmen and sophomores should realize the chances they have of representing the U. of T. even though they have no experience.

In Professor London the rowing team has one of the greatest coaches in the game and with a new shell this year the great need is big strong men, and the bigger the better. Coach London's crew went to the Olympics in 1924 and 1928. The last time with a very light crew they were only nosed out by the Argonaut crew.

stant success. There are plenty of girls at all the colleges who would be only too glad to see its organization.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By A. C. C.

No matter what kind of a showing Varsity's senior hockey team made on their Christmas tour, nor whether they are the equal of teams that have carried the Blue and White colours in previous years, they demonstrated last night in defeat that they are worthy of the support of the students of the University. A sorely weakened team played practically the entire 60 minutes with only two substitutes. Both Harley and Ferguson were bed-ridden while Billy Bell got out of a sick bed to play. And to make matters worse Dewar suffered a deep cut to his face and a nasty head bump in a collision with Smillie during the warming-up practice just before the game. Despite these serious handicaps they outplayed the Sea Fleas for nearly two-thirds of the game. They had an edge in the first period on their opponents, faded in the middle canto, but came back in the final frame to smother Mueller in the Nationals' citadel with shots. They outplayed their rivals completely in this frame and it was only the usual brilliance of the Sea Flea goalie that kept them off the score-sheet.

All of the Varsity players gave their best, but the performance of "Red" Whitehead stood out. His heady defensive playing and spectacular rushes were reminiscent of last year's O.H.A. champions. "Doc" Ames turned in a great game in the nets and looked better than the famous "Stuffy" Mueller. Bill Stewart and Freddie Murray were all fight last night and it is seldom that we have seen the former work to better effect. And Don Smillie banded out stiff body checks with an amazing generosity.

Garton, a Vic man, will replace Bill Ayers in goal when the Varsity water polo team plays Broadview in the "Y" pool to-night. The idea is to give the former experience, as Ayers, Spence and Armstrong are graduating this year. Davey, the Meds' star, will take George Glass' place on the line-up.

The Victoria College hockey team, carrying but two subs, travelled 1,000 miles and played two games in two nights with American teams during the holidays. They lost to Hamilton College 2 to 1 after 20 minutes overtime and were beaten by Clarkson Tech. 3 to 0. Bus Williams, centre star, and the goal-keeper on the Clarkson team, were picked for the All-American squad. Williams has just signed a contract with the Detroit Olympics. Last year Clarkson defeated McGill, intercollegiate champions, 6 to 2. Thus it will be seen that the Scarlet and Gold outfit made a very creditable showing. Much of the credit goes to LeBar, who played last year for the Varsity seniors. His goal-tending was sensational and his team-mates admit that had it not been for his superb work the score would have been overwhelming. Doug Farrell, from Grimsby intermediates, starred for Vic. This lad is still eligible for junior ranks.

Victoria Juniors Squeeze Out 31 to 26 Win Over Junior Meds

FIRST GAME OF SERIES

Victoria Juniors squeezed out a close victory yesterday afternoon on the upper gym at Hart House when they defeated Jr. Meds 31-26 in the first game of the Junior Interfaculty Basketball Series. After leading throughout the game, by a narrow margin and with the score tied two minutes to go, Vic pulled away with five points to win the game. Don Wood of last year's Varsity Seniors was the mainstay of the Vic team, playing right guard. Stubbs, playing right forward for Vic, was high scorer of the game with nine points. Rosenberg and Luckner turned in the best performances for Jr. Meds.

Jr. Vic—Forwards, Stubbs (9), Read (4); centre, Ford (4); guards, Clarke, R. Bates; subs, Wood (8), Meisner, J. Bates (6), McKague, Vincels. Jr. Meds—Forwards, Kohen (3), Rosenberg (6); centre, Caplan; guards, Miller (5), Kassler (2); subs, Sharfatz, Green (1), Simon (2), Vaughan, Luckner (5), Hershon (2).

DENT BAT-SWINGERS DEFEAT SCHOOLMEN

Tooth-Yankers Whitewash the Bridge-Builders by 8-0 Score

MINOR BATTLE MARS GAME

Dents took the measure of Senior S.P.S. 8 to 0 in an interfaculty baseball game played yesterday in the big gym.

Dents took the lead in the first inning when Mitchell hit a home run, sending in two runners and their lead was never threatened during the remainder of the struggle. They scored five more in the fourth to end the scoring for the game.

School tried hard, but could do nothing against the masterful pitching of Mason, who allowed only two hits during the game.

A minor outburst took place in the third inning when a Dents man hid the ball while two runners were crossing the plate, but the umpire soon separated the pugnacious ones and stopped the excitement.

of skepticism and disregard for convention. When the war came realism was in the ascendancy and with peace a high pitched provocative note was introduced.

Indian and Negro folk rhymes were discovered and a period of lyricism and experimentation to produce poetry free from the personality of the poet followed.

Miss Mew read selections from a number of the poets. "The Divorce" proved interesting, being written by a woman who married and settled down and spent the rest of her life deciding whether she liked it or not. Miss Mew concluded by reading extracts from her own work.

game started. "Skin" Dewar, hefty defence man, collided head-on with Smillie and received a cut on the lip which required four stitches and he was only on the ice for a few minutes in the second period. "Red" Whitehead replaced Dewar and was one of the stars of the game offensively, and partnered with Smillie, gave Ames, in goal, an excellent defence. In mentioning the stars of the game it is impossible to miss "Doc" Ames, who played a great game in the nets. The two goals scored on him were well earned.

The Fleas presented a smart defence in Bruce Paul and Nugent with "Stuffy" Mueller guarding the nets. The former Varsity star, though kept off the score sheet, played a fine game and was as dangerous as ever on the attack. The forwards were fast, but with the exception of Bruce and Lough, did not backcheck well.

The play in the first period was even and ranged from end to end with neither team able to score. Three minutes after the start of the second period Murray raised a high one at Mueller and the red light showed. The Fleas renewed their efforts and after ten minutes of play Beal scored on a pass from Lough. Shortly after, "Cammie" Seagram went through alone and drove the puck past Ames for the winning goal. Nationals had little advantage in the play in this period and when the teams returned for the final period the students began to press again. Several times they were through but could not score and the bell rang with the final score 2-1.

Varsity—Goal, Ames; defence, Whitehead and Smillie; centre, Stewart; wings, Bell and Murray; subs, Lenahan, Leake, Dewar.

Nationals—Goal, Mueller; defence, B. Paul and Nugent; centre, Lough; wings, R. Paul and McFullen; subs, Mercer, Beal, Seagram.

Up to December 15 more grain had been delivered to ships at West Star John than during the entire month of December, 1929, and this traffic bids fair to exceed that of last season for Mediterranean and other European ports, according to information gathered at Canadian Pacific Railway headquarters. In addition to grain at seaboard, 1,500,000 bushels were in transit at mid-December, with further orders coming in daily.

Holders already of two Dominion championships, the first aid team of the Canadian Pacific Railway's Toronto freight offices added further laurels to their crown by taking, in face of stiff opposition, the silver challenge shield of the company's eastern lines championship, and a week later journey to Winnipeg where they captured a third Dominion trophy by defeating Weston Shoppers, winners of the western lines championship, by 35 points. Winning team was: W. T. Warren, (captain), A. T. Curle, H. H. Brad, C. W. Sellen, W. J. Turk and C. W. Macey (5-pair).

By the throwing of a switch in the Saskatchewan power house of the Saskatchewan Government Power Commission a new era for many towns in central Saskatchewan was recently introduced. This act marked the energizing of the new high tension power line to Shellbrook and the lighting up of that town and of a number of intervening towns by electricity supplied from the central electric station in Saskatoon. About 100 miles of power lines will be functioning shortly and a hundred towns will be effectively lighted and supplied with power.

During the past two years 1,000 Danish families, comprising 4,500 persons, have bought farms in Nova Scotia. Twenty-five of these families made their purchase this year. These farms are situated along the Gulf Shore from Pictou West to Antigonish, in Hants County from Wagonish to Cheverie, and throughout the Annapolis Valley as far west as Bridgetown.

In the first nine months of 1930, more than 380,000 pounds of mail were carried by air mail services in Canada. One-half of the services operate out of Montreal. Two new services are projected. One will cover the route from Amos to Siscoe, newly settled districts in Northern Quebec, and the second from the Peace River to North Vermilion, in the Northwest Territories. There are 500 aircraft flying in Canada, with 717 pilots, of whom 493 are commercial. There are 72 air harbors.

teachers in Ontario." Under these conditions, no action has been considered in the line of limitation of the registration. In the past, when in the Normal Schools conditions were much worse than they show any signs of being at O.C.E., the province did not make any move in this direction, and there is no reason to think that any move is being planned now.

In the upper school of the collegiate, teachers must be specialists, with Ontario university degrees. Of these there is, indeed, an actual shortage at the present time, except in English, Latin and French, and even in these there is no grievous over-supply.

Professor Carlyle supplemented this information with some figures on the absorbing capacity of the Ontario school system.

This year the province will absorb about 300 teachers, while the graduates of the College of Education will number roughly, 380. This apparent surplus of 80 will find positions opening for them in a third type of secondary school which is operating in this province.

These schools, taking work up to, and sometimes including, senior matriculation, are at present largely staffed by teachers who hold no university degree, and these schools will welcome the chance to employ university graduates. While salaries may be slightly lower, such positions offer good opportunity for young teachers to get a very varied type of training.

DIRTY WORK AT VICTORIA WORKMEN INVADE HALLS

Expansion of College Offices is Cause of Annoyance to Students

There's dirty work going on at Victoria College these days. During the past week more than a few have suspected it—the smell of paint and sawdust is enough to knock you over.

Vic students coming back from the Christmas vacation expecting to sit in room 13 for a lecture breezed out again in a hurry when they found several workmen hammering away at partitions. The room was hardly recognizable.

The reason for this bustling activity is the need for expansion of college offices. The door leads first into a large ante-room and thence into the Chancellor's new office which will be very light and spacious. A cloakroom is also provided. Professor Auger will shortly move into the former office of the Chancellor, but Accountant Little will occupy the same quarters as before.

The work is almost complete now except for the decorating and the new offices will probably be ready in about ten days.

A 42-story skyscraper will house the University of Pittsburgh. It is said to be a forerunner of a new style of collegiate architecture.

Hither and Yawn

By E. J. Delorme

We wish to announce the establishment of a new department which will appear spasmodically in "The Varsity". It will consist of a Super News Source for Nerve-wracked News Editors and will be run along the lines of a Bureau for Weather Control. For there are times when news seems to lie dormant, when the star reporter is out looking for a tasty dog, the editors are going gray-haired over "duty copy" and the copy readers are ready to rush home, fling themselves on the bed and have a good cry. But now, with the adoption of this up-to-date system, such a crisis may be averted. A feature of the innovation will be the fact that the material to be used will not necessarily concern what has happened, but what easily might have occurred. In fact, it may not necessarily concern anything.

Fernley P. Frink, Vic freshman, wishes to take this opportunity to deny emphatically the current rumour that he is engaged to the new screen star, Marlene Dietrich. "Shimply absurd," stated Frink when interviewed this morning while brushing his teeth.

A sign recently displayed in front of a Parkdale church read: "Do you know what Hell is? Come and hear our new organist."

A debate will be held in Trinity College Library to-night: "Resolved that the incorporation of fraternities and sororities would be a direct asset to undergraduate education."

In our Poetry Section (which will be another enjoyable feature of this column) we take pardonable pride in introducing an exquisite little thing entitled "Lines to an Angry Pretzel". Intensive investigation, however, discloses the fact that there are no lines to an angry pretzel. What more is there to say?

We are also in possession of another little gem, "Thoughts on Finding a Compact in a Cornfield." But it was firmly suppressed.

In order to pick up a little money on the side, this department will accept Lost and Found Ads. Can't we help this poor fellow? Lost: "Automatic self-filling pen belonging to a Scotch theological student with black spots and a purple body. Valued as a curio."

of radio broadcasting, just as they do with all other advertising media. "We can only hope," he said, "that most of it will be done for good purposes, that is, that the right people will get hold of it."

Radio as a source of news, Major Hahn declared, will never supersede the newspaper. "People will always want to read," he said.

Regarding the possibility that radio chains will be able to control the industry in the future, the Major was unable to commit himself, but he explained that the present tendency to increase broadcasting power will eliminate the smaller stations.

tions. And, gentlemen," she concluded, "I will remind you that the female of the species is more deadly than the male."

Mr. Hermant, II U.C. cautioned the house, "I warn you that if this motion passes this house these meetings cannot continue. The rest of us," indicating those to the left of the speaker, "would have to hide behind Judge Ben Lindsey. We think it would be vain to put a tax on the bachelors," he proclaimed, "even if it would be a single tax."

Miss Norah Bowers, II U.C., felt that, "It is largely the women who are giving the men the breaks. The bachelor does not need to support anyone outside his own family, unless it is his wish." (Commotion.) "I think the bachelor—you will all agree—does a lot of harm. In a settled community when a bachelor comes in—he unsettles the whole crowd." (More commotion.) Facing the opposition, she exhorted, "I appeal to you as bachelors, yet—I hope not always."

Nathaniel Shaw, II U.C.—"Mr. Chairman: Ladies grow offensive—one might almost say nasty." (Turmoil.) Mr. Shaw dealt with bachelors who are not marriageable—whom no woman will take. He murmured, "Of course some cynics say that this is not imaginable." (Applause.) Mr. Shaw pictured the rejected bachelor.

"That he should go around the world with a broken heart—repatched in places—and then he must carry the burden of a tax." (He shivered.) As a last dexterous lashing Miss Jordan complained, "If you will not marry us, we will marry you, and heaven help you when we are driven to that extremity."

On a vote on the merits of the debate the affirmative won.

STUDENTS ABLE BUT BACKWARD IN GOVERNING

Intelligence and Ability Are

WISCONSIN DEBATES

Eighty Teams at University
Hold Discussion
Contest

Daily Cardinal, University of Wisconsin.—That University of Wisconsin students have the intelligence and ability to govern themselves, but will not take the responsibility is the prevalent point of view, if the consensus of opinion expressed by participants in the intra-mural discussion contest is representative of universal student opinion.

"Can Students Govern Themselves?" is the question under discussion and has been argued pro and con by 80 teams since the contest began. The teams may assume and uphold any attitude they wish.

The light vote at student elections, only nine per cent of the eligible students voting in the last election, is another evidence of disinterest.

The great amount of time spent on scholastic work and outside activities precludes the possibility of a student's devoting himself to problems of student government is another weighty argument used by the debaters.

MEXICO CITY LAUOEO

"We know the northern Indian to have been perfect in physique—courage and the greatest crime, and bravery the greatest virtue. The Mexican Indian, on the contrary, was peaceful, cultured; an architect and a miner," said Mr. Tansey, the Mexican consul, who addressed the Italian-Spanish Club last night in the Women's Union, on Mexico City.

Mr. Tansey went on to describe Cortez' amazing discovery of that city, already a centre of culture and skillful architecture. The city to-day, Mr. Tansey claimed to be "one of the most beautiful of modern capitals".

Professor Cono, Major Davy, and Mr. Arguden, each added a further description of the buildings and the modern life of the city.

POET WOULD USE BRICK TO STRIKE UNLUCKY WOMAN

THEORY NOT ORIGINAL

'Impressions' of Cummings Are Both Musical and Mathematical

"Would you strike a woman with a brick? No, I would strike her with a brick. This is my theory of technique, and it is not complicated and it is not original," quoted Mr. Bertram Brooker, distinguished journalist and critic, from the words of the much-discussed modern poet, E. E. Cummings, in an address to the English Society last night.

Mr. Brooker quoted a few paragraphs from his article recently published in the "Canadian Forum". "There is a certain rash assertiveness in some of Cummings' poems, and a timidity in others, and yet a certain fourth-dimensional quality that, while it repels the average reader, delights those who see in it a metaphysical touch that relates him to Donne."

"Another quality that brackets him with Donne and the metaphysicians is his obsession with 'Death and the noise of worms'. Yet the poem 'Spring' contradicts this obsession, representing Earth as warm and secret, buffeted (Continued on Page 2)

IOEA SHELVED LAST YEAR

The joint meeting of the University College Men's Literary Society and Women's Undergraduate Society that was held on Tuesday evening was an unusual departure from the time-honoured custom of both societies.

"The idea originated with the men," N. A. Shaw of the Literary Society Executive told "The Varsity". "It was suggested last year by some of the junior members of the executive, but the society was of a more serious nature last year, and the proposal was shelved. However, this year it was revived and found approval."

When asked whether this would become a permanent annual feature of the Literary Society, Mr. Shaw said, "I cannot say definitely, but the meeting was so successful that it is probable that they will want to repeat it. I do not think it is an indication that women are invading men's societies," he continued. "It was merely a courteous gesture on the part of the Literary Society to the lonesome women of U.C."

Antagonism

ACCEPTS ATHEISTS FREELY

Racial problems and their relation to group leadership is the subject of investigation of a new S.C.M. group which held its first discussion last night in Wymwood under the leadership of Miss Constance Young. It is to be a short series of discussions, open to women of all faculties.

Questionnaires were answered by members of the group, on which they marked their first reactions regarding willingness to admit certain classes to their homes, colleges, and parties, or to accept them as next door neighbours. Atheists and Roman Catholics they unanimously accepted without discrimination. Negroes they would exclude in all cases from their dances, in most cases from their homes from their country. Marked antipathies were shown to Chinese, Japanese and Hindus, though two members would accept them entirely and without discrimination. No objection was made to Russians; it was discovered afterwards that communists had not been meant in the replies.

Using the results of this investigation they discussed reasons for such attitudes among social groups and means of overcoming them. They are caused, it was decided, chiefly by early training, geographical separation, and differences in colour

Present System

A declaration of independence signed by a group of prominent citizens—some of them professors in the University of Toronto—protesting the recent drives of the Toronto Police Department against free speech, will be presented to the local evening papers for publication some time to-day, according to information which reached "The Varsity" from several of the members of the teaching staff yesterday.

Indignation at the stand of Chief Draper and Judge Coatsworth is said to have reached fever pitch as a result of the derogatory statements the police commissioners are claimed to have made about some of the prominent citizens on the Open Forum committee. Many influential men in the city who had been inclined to sympathize with the attacks made by the police force on communists, are known to have been antagonized by the suggestions from police headquarters that a number of ministers of all denominations, university officials, lawyers and other well known citizens were in sympathy with the doctrines of communism.

So strong has the feeling against the policy of Chief Draper grown that little difficulty was experienced by the backers of the manifesto that is being (Continued on Page 3)

EVERY MANUSCRIPT READ

"Never hesitate to send a rejected story to another editor," declared Miss Margaret Lawrence at the Women's Press Club meeting yesterday at the Women's Union. "They are too concerned to be guided by the opinion of another magazine."

Miss Lawrence revealed an unfamiliar phase in the production of the short story when she told of the process through which a short story passes between its completion and publication.

If it survives the critical judgment of at least one carefully selected "reader", the story is read by the Literary Editor. His verdict is based on its value as a story, on its adherence to the policy of the magazine as dictated by the financial interests, and on the available space. A conference between the art and literary editors regarding illustration ensues, followed by one with the artist selected by them. All this takes time and even after it is set up in type, a story often hangs (Continued on Page 4)

Effective

By J. M. Charlton

London, Jan. 15—Varsity took a firm hold on first place in the Senior "B" hockey series when they administered a decisive defeat to Western University by a score of 8-3 at the Arena here last night.

Although Western took the lead after five minutes of play in the first period and held it until near the end of the first session, Varsity ran in two quick goals in the second period to take the lead and from that time on, were never threatened by the Westerners. The game started out very slowly, both teams taking a long time to get warmed up, but the second frame produced fast and thrilling hockey in which both squads went at it tooth and nail in an endeavour to score.

Brown opened the scoring for Western after one of the neatest combination plays of the whole game. Breaking fast with Brown, Yeandel took the puck down past the Blue line, and flicked the puck over to Brown on the wing, who put the rubber past McCarty with a fast drive. The Blue and White machine was working like Trojans around the London goal, but missed chance after chance to score with the Western goalie lying prone on the ice. Conn knotted the count for Toronto when he skirted the defence on a lone rush late in the period and on an easy shot fooled the London net guardian.

The second frame opened like lightning and two quick goals by Herbert and Conn scored within ten seconds of each other put Varsity ahead and left Western badly disorganized. Robinson scored on a lone effort two minutes later, but Armstrong retaliated for London with a nice shot. Williams counted Varsity's other goal in this session.

The third period was slow with Varsity being content to play safe. A Herbert to Conn combination netted a well-earned counter, while Robinson (Continued on Page 3)

READING ROOM CONVERTED

"Nothing is definite yet," stated Professor W. S. Wallace, chief librarian of the university library, when asked by "The Varsity" as to how the plans on the new addition to the library were progressing. "But I have applied to Sir Robert Falconer several times regarding this question."

"The situation is becoming more acute each year, and the new addition is becoming a vital necessity. At present we are clearing out a reading-room at the back of the library to install some stacks. These stacks will contain about seventy-five thousand books, which is about three-quarters of the yearly income."

There is a great need for a new wing, but no architect has been chosen as yet to draw up the official plans.

DEMOCRACY

A news story appearing on the first page of this issue, and dated at the University of Wisconsin, informs us that the consensus of opinion among student debaters there is that undergraduates of the present day have no interest in their own so-called student government. This view seems to have emerged as the prevailing one in a series of debates on the general subject, "Can Students Govern Themselves?"

No one who has attempted to arouse campus interest in matters pertaining to our own Students' Administrative Council can possibly suffer from any illusions regarding the extent of the enthusiasm with which students view the workings of the practical political machinery under which they live and move and have their being. It is extremely doubtful whether as many as seventy of the seven thousand undergraduates here have even the remotest appreciation of the constitutional structure of the S.A.C. In this regard, the pointed editorial comment appearing from time to time in "The Varsity"—unwelcome though it may be in some quarters—is not to be regarded, we feel, as so much misdirected energy, even if it has no greater result than a vague quickening of student interest in matters of campus government.

We feel that it would be infinitely better to resign ourselves to the paternal autocracy of Governors, Senate, and Caput than to continue the bastard Democracy which has been the student government on this campus for the past half dozen years or more.

DESTINY

He stood (1) unmoving, statuesque, like a symbol of Eternity in all that crowd of rushing, hurrying little figures. His profile was a rugged line of relentless strength, heavy, inflexible, with the beetling darkness of some granite cliff disdaining the puny efforts of a stormy sea. Arms crossed, feet apart, he braced himself to stem their impatient pressing forward, looming over their heads like a Rhodian Colossus (2) facing the unruly barbarian horde. Upon his immobile countenance was a strange appearance of detachment (3), an enigmatic far-awayness, as though his thoughts had fled away to some long-forgotten incident (4) of the centuries for which he must have stood there. Waves of incoherent protest from the crowding rabble, prayers, supplications, impatient questionings, beat unnoticed upon him. Then suddenly from afar was heard a faint, piercing, screaming, shrieking cry, gaining in intensity till the whole world seemed about to dissolve into an overwhelming, roaring vibration. The crowd was still in sudden wonder as the very earth shook fearfully beneath their feet. Then all was still, the devastating silence of the empty void. The central figure moved. Not a muscle twitched, not an eye was turned away in all the mob as majestically, ponderously, that stately lower jaw dropped down. The moistening tongue-tipped touched his lips, then from that brazen throat poured forth the torrent of sound that was to pronounce their destination. TRINITY COLLEGE FOUNDERS' DAY

To-day marks a historical event in the history of Trinity College as the anniversary of Founders' Day is to be celebrated. It was exactly 79 years ago, on Thursday, January 15th, 1852, that the original building of Trinity College on Queen Street West was opened for instruction. The first sod was turned on March 17th, 1851, and the corner stone laid

Art, Music and Drama

"The Dybbuk"

Occasionally one sees a play that is so great intrinsically that no amount of weak playing by inexperienced actors can spoil it, providing only that direction and players enter fully into the spirit of the piece with sympathetic understanding.

Such a play is The Dybbuk, by S. Anski, presented last night in Hart House Theatre by the Menorah Society. An almost epic picture of the superstitious inner lives of simple folk in a Jewish community in the middle ages—the story of the lost and disembodied spirit who seeks refuge in the body of his predestined bride, is told in the rude poetic idiom of people "to whom the tale was just as true as the harsh reality of the world in which they lived."

The chief fault to be found with the local production is the frequent failure of the younger actors to simulate realistically the aged voices and gestures of the old men of the synagogue. Yet their failure to do so is seldom annoying due to the admirable manner in which each player subordinated his own personality into the whole picture.

The direction throughout was admirable. Sylva Gelber proved herself capable of interpreting a difficult play, and Mr. Chaim Ostrowski undoubtedly deserves credit for the assistance he gave.

The players all seemed to know what they were doing. The lines dragged at times and once or twice the promptress was kept busy, but each member of the cast was obviously in sympathy with the mood of the play. The most finished actor was, probably, Maurice Levine, in the dual roles of Channon, the young lover of Leah, and of Rabbi Azrael. But Israel Levine and Maxwell Brown were both quite excellent.

Sylva Gelber, as Leah, played an exceptionally difficult part with conviction and restraint.

The play is a world classic. It is presented acceptably by an inexperienced group. It is a success.

Sketch Room

This week's offering in the Hart House Sketch Room is an exhibition of water colours by R. V. Howard of Sarnia. His work is extremely impressionistic in style, but his vigorous use of the brush produces pleasing effects in many cases. His paintings of trees are not particularly good but those pictures in which he depicts a sweep of fields are in most cases pleasant. He seems to be at his best when painting the reflection of objects in the water. The best example in the exhibition is the painting of a bridge on the South wall of the Sketch Room. There is also a painting of a copse of trees on the North wall that is quite delightful. His use of the pen in some of his paintings seems to us to give too harsh an outline, and renders these too conventional for landscapes. On the whole, however, the exhibition is well worth seeing.

In the little Sketch Room, Messrs. Reed and Hazland have provided an exceptionally good exhibition of European painting in the seventeenth century including work by the following: Watteau, Boucher, Fragonard, Chardin, Reynolds, Gainsborough, Hopper, and Constable.

SUMMER POSITIONS PROVING POPULAR

Bureau Secures Many Unusual Jobs for Co-eds Who Want Experience

ADVISED TO APPLY EARLY

"University women are beginning to look for summer jobs and for permanent ones too. They are showing less and less the tendency to leave everything to the luck of the last moment," said Miss True Davidson of the Vocational Bureau when interviewed by "The Varsity".

This employment bureau, operated by the Canadian Federation of University Women, offers unusual services. Now is the time to take advantage of them. Individual cases are considered thoroughly; you are advised as to the kind of vocation you are best suited for and when University closes you are placed where you will receive valuable experience.

"The ideal way," says Miss Davidson, "is to have the student register with us when she first comes to college. Then we have three summers and three Christmas holidays in which to try her out in different positions and find her true vocation. Of course with senior women this isn't possible, but we nevertheless have been very successful in placing them."

Many of the positions which the Bureau have secured for their applicants are unusual. There was one for radio work and several for selling advertising. Those who wish to write for magazines or papers should be sending work in now. We are told the Bureau often succeeds in having such poetry and articles accepted by publishing houses.

Miss Lovell of the Alumni Employment Bureau has already received many applications for summer work. She too advises everyone interested to apply early. These positions are generally of the clerical or summer hotel kind.

On April 30th, so that this day this year will be an 80th anniversary, Bishop Strachan was the founder and instigator of the movement to expand the Diocesan Theological Institute, the predecessor of Trinity, into a real university offering faculties in law, medicine, music and arts, as well as in divinity.

Cost $4,000,000 to produce and contains some of the most stupendous photographic sequences ever shown on the screen. The scenes showing the Zeppelin, the bombardment of the ammunition dump and the great aerial battle between sixteen planes of von Richthofen and an even larger British force, are so spectacular and so convincing that this picture ranks high among good pictures, and is unique in many respects.

There was also once a plot to the film—a rather fine one, as plots go these days. But the maiden ladies on the local board of censors got all excited as they watched the picture and ripped the narrative scenes to pieces. In spite of the licentious scissors of some evidence of superlative acting by almost every member of the cast—especially by Ben Lyon, James Hall, and above all, Jean Marlow.

The picture took three years to produce. In three more years it will be forgotten. But to-day it is comparable to great works of art. See it.

"Cummings is a curious combination of many elements and capabilities. He has, for instance, a remarkable sense of pictorializing, and a remarkable sense of simile, and a remarkable sense of pattern, emotional, intellectual and musical. The fact that he relates his work closely to music and painting, and has indeed turned in the last few years exclusively to painting, is proof that he is in sympathy with the modern movement, with patterns and with experiment."

The meeting closed with a discussion of E. E. Cummings, his work and his place in the modern movement, which was entered into by several members.

VARSITY JUNIORS MEET T.C.C. AT THE ARENA GARDENS TO-NIGHT

Blue and White Victory Might Place Squad in Second Position

FAST GAME EXPECTED

Varsity to Meet Best Team in Big Four Group

The Blue juniors will get a chance to redeem themselves and get back in the running in the Big Four group when they meet Toronto Canoe Club in the second game of the usual double-header at the Arena Gardens to-night. Marlboros and Parkdale Canoe Club clash in the first game.

In T.C.C. Varsity are meeting the best team in the league. The Red Ringers have demonstrated that they are the team to beat for the title. However, their only defeat of the season was administered at the hands of Frank Sullivan's team and the locals are convinced that they can repeat the performance to-night. They will have to show better form than they did against Marlboros last Friday to do it, though. A Blue and White victory will bunch the teams, and if P. C. C. can also defeat the Dukes the "T" squad will once more be tied for second place. It is unlikely that the Parkdale boys can down Marlboros though.

So far this season Varsity have proved to be in-and-outers, defeating T.C.C. in one game and then turning around and losing a 7 to 4 decision to the tail-end Parkdale crew. Against Marlboros last Friday the Blues looked the better team for the regulation period and then went all to pieces in the overtime. However, they have the material for a great team. The forwards are all fast skaters and smooth stickhandlers, with two great goalkeepers in the persons of Hendry and May. Lynch on the rearguard is a dynamic rusher and a great defender who takes the eye of the fans.

To-night's game should be a great struggle from start to finish. If the Sullivanites play the hockey they are capable of they are quite likely to take the Red Ringers for a ride.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By De C. H. R.

To-night at the Arena Gardens the University of Toronto O.H.A. junior aggregation runs up against some strong opposition when the Blue and White boys meet with the Toronto Canoe Club team. The game to-night means a lot to Coach Frank Sullivan's outfit, for they have a chance to prove that they are equal to the task of setting the T.C.C. back a notch, and incidentally of stepping up one themselves. In the S.P.A. finals Varsity looked better on the ice than the Canoeists, and have handed them their only defeat of the season. The Blue and White team is out for another victory to-night. They haven't quite recovered from the mean way in which Lady Luck treated them last Friday night, when she snatched a victory out of their hands and turned it into disaster. So the Blue and White juniors will be in the game with a will to win, and that means hockey, hockey of the calibre that they play in the Big Four group.

You can do worse things than to go down to Mutual Street to-night. To watch performers like Cunningham, May and Hendry is a thrill in itself. You can be sure too, that the Paddlers will not be there merely for exercise, as they have demonstrated in the past.

Now that the basketball and indoor baseball interfaculty competition has gotten a start, interfaculty hockey comes to life. All week the various faculty teams have been taking advantage of the facilities for practice offered on the hockey cushions, and by next Monday should be in shape to make things interesting along that line. Seventeen teams are entering the contest for interfaculty hockey honours this season.

The U. of T. junior basketball team started the second part of the city league schedule nicely last night when they handed the Danforth Y.M.C.A. juniors a trouncing. Several of the junior players are of high calibre, and should prove an asset to Coach McCutcheon in senior company next season.

The U. of T. O.H.A. senior "B" team took their second straight victory in that group when they defeated the University of Western Ontario hockey hope last night by 8 goals to 3. From the way they are starting the season the "B" team look like a strong aggregation, and may prove that real form can be shown in second-rate senior hockey circles before the snow all melts.

Even professors whose discretion in such matters is considered inevitable, have come forward and asked to be allowed to sign. At last reports there were about forty-five signatures coming from men in all walks of life. Many more are understood to be waiting only an opportunity to sign also.

The moving spirit behind this protest emphasized last night that indignation was general, and that all sections of the community were uniting to fight a reputed obnoxious condition of affairs in the civic life of Toronto.

First Interfaculty Baseball Game Lasts Three Innings Only

SCORE 10-9

Jr. School out-hit Jr. Meds to win 10-9 in their first interfaculty baseball game yesterday afternoon in the big gym at Hart House.

The game went only three innings, but was fast, with plenty of heavy hitting by both teams. In the first, Meds and School both got three runs in, but in the second School got five to Meds' three. In the first half of the third Meds got three, putting them one up. Then in the second half, School were still down one with two gone when Shapiro sneaked in to tie the score. Then a minute later Hewitt, who went south to the Maple Leafs training camp last spring, hit out a two bagger, putting A. Howe across the plate to win.

Jr. Meds—Noble, Steen, Rundell, Sniderman, Levine, Dawes, Sharfatz, Stibbeney, Steer.

BLUE BASKETEERS DOWN DANFORTH Y

Junior Squad Displays Good Combination in Close Play

SCORE 32-25.

Varsity junior basketball squad vanquished the Danforth Y boys 32-25 in a scheduled game last night in the Gledhill Avenue gym. From the opening whistle, the game was exciting and closely fought. The Varsity team, however, displayed too much class for the opposition, and except for the first few minutes, were always on top.

The Thirds showed some very pretty combination and always worked their way in close under the basket before shooting. The Danforth team, on the other hand, were content to take long shots, and most of their points were registered in this way.

Huhn and Dennis combined for several spectacular baskets. Shuger also starred, scoring eight points, and making plays for many more.

Danforth started out fast, and registered two baskets before Varsity retaliated. Varsity took the lead through Dennis, Douglass and Huhn, and from then on held complete control. The score at half time was 16-8.

Varsity—Shuger 8, Rooke, Black, Himel 2, Carroll 4, Dennis 6, Huhn 10, Douglass 2, Jaimett.

Danforths—Robinson 8, Gibson 8, Northey 7, Harris 2, Wallace, Coyle, Legg, Oldfield, Pate, Havelock.

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

Contrary to expectations, the intercollegiate and intermediate basketball teams held another joint practice last night. The intermediates were unable to get U.T.S. gym for 7 o'clock as they had intended. It's just the old, old story of not enough gymnasium accommodation.

There were half a dozen new faces at the practice last night, and in the absence of Miss Marion Forward, Miss Edith Blackwell, coach of the intermediates, was in charge. All the candidates were put through a strenuous workout, and after the usual routine work, there was a peppy scrimmage.

The intercollegiate hockey team will entertain Queen's here on the 7th of February, and the game will be played as a preliminary to the game between Red Porter's senior squad and Hamilton. Miss A. E. M. Parkes, secretary of the Women's Athletic Association, received the official confirmation from Kingston late last night. This means that the Blue team will probably travel to Queen's around the 18th of February.

mix much with the opposite sex." He expressed the opinion that this tendency might be remedied by the formation of more clubs in which men and women might mix freely.

Mr. Felix Walter of Trinity College, felt that he could not speak for Toronto students, but he admitted that "among the staff there is certainly unnecessary segregation between men and women. For this I think Hart House is responsible. If there were a building where men and women could have club meetings and debates together there would be no problem. Among Paris students, for instance, this discussion would not arise; and there also, a certain attitude of adolescent sex-antagonism is quite absent. If co-education exists, there should be no half-measures about it."

"The fact that the ladies have had to form a special Commerce Club of their own surely proves that co-education is a mockery and a dream at Toronto," was the opinion of one other professor who refused to give his name.

around the office for a long time before it is published. "Hence a story for publication next December should be sent out now," pointed out Miss Lawrence.

"Is it advisable to give a story a definite location?" it was asked. "For Canadian magazines, yes," was the answer, "but American magazines do not want stories about Canada. And no matter what they say to the contrary the eyes of every writer are always across the line."

According to Miss Lawrence, unknown writers have an equal chance with those already in print.

METHOD OF PREPARING POULTRY

"Prepare to eat thy bacon!"—John Bunyan, in "Gentlemen. Prefer Bones", 1492.

1. Weigh; remove pin-feathers; singe over a flame to remove hairs. No chicken can put on hairs around here and get away with it!

2. Cut along skin over leg joint; pick up tendons with a wire skewer; pull out tendons (Ten or eleven of them, it doesn't matter.)

3. Twist wing towards breast to dislocate shoulder joint. (A little trick of Zbysko's.)

4. Cut off head; turn back skin and cut neck close to body. Better have a surgeon handy to carry on in case you faint.

5. Remove windpipe and crop. If the crop has failed through drought, write us for advice; if it has failed through any other agency, we refuse to handle it—let them do their own dirty work!

6. Remove oil-bag from tail. This, of course, is for old-style carcasses—in the new chassis you will find instead an oil-can in the chest.

7. Take out internal organs—cut through skin over intestines and around vent, draw from behind the gizzard, and gizzard, liver and intestines may be taken out. Though as a matter of fact, if you're so hard up that you have to take out an organ, you might as well go to the House of Refuge now as later. And, by the way, if you find difficulty in drawing from behind the gizzard, just try sketching from behind the barn on a rainy day.

8. Remove lungs, kidney and heart. If the chicken is still able to struggle after this it has the privilege of going home for a year longer. (Ya wouldn't have the heart to kidney, would ya? Sure, as lungs I could.)

9. Wash foul inside and out with luke-warm salted water. (After you have washed it inside, if it's raining out you may wash it down cellar if you prefer.)

Note—The outside of poultry should be cleaned with a brush and warm soapy water. We usually combine it with our bath, to save time.

10. Prepare Giblets. (a) Heart—cut away arteries and veins; press to extract blood; wash in cold salted water. (Perhaps you haven't seen the new cutaway arteries—all the young bloods are wearing them. Adv.)

(b) Liver—cut away gall-bladder carefully, wash liver in salted water. And remember our warning against loose livers—a young girl cannot be too careful these days, or she's out of luck.

(c) Gizzard—remove fat; cut in through the thick part to the sac; remove outer part from sac. (If Lucky Strikes don't work, try a Gillette. Adv.)

(d) Cut away the thick white lining; wash gizzard in salted water. (Remember the old song, "There's a Thick White Lining Through the Gizzard Shining.")

11. Cook Giblets. (Well, let her! But mind she doesn't sublet.)

Cut gizzard in small pieces; cover gizzard and heart with cold water; cook below boiling point until tender. The neck may be cooked with the giblets. . . . But here the question arises: Is it done? You know what Canon Cody urges: Neck her nothing, my boy; marry her! (Please turn to p. 4 of next Thursday's issue.)

OVERTIME BATTLE RESULTS IN DRAW IN T.C.C. MATCH

Varsity Juniors Earn 2-2 Tie Against Big Four Leaders

SIXTY SCORELESS MINUTES

Defenceman White Nets First Blue Goal; Cunningham Gets Second

University of Toronto juniors battled through thirty minutes of overtime hockey last night at the Arena Gardens to a 2-all verdict with the league leading Toronto Canoe Club sextet in the second game of a scheduled O.H.A. Big Four double-header.

The Red Ringers opened the scoring in the first period, the Blues tied it up and before the end of the period the T.C.C. added a second goal. Varsity evened the count early in the middle frame and the two teams remained on an even footing.

There was little to choose between the two teams on the night's play. Both have displayed better hockey in previous games, but the close matching of the teams kept the game at an ordinary encounter. Outside of the scoring of three well-earned goals in the first period of play the game was rather slow. Varsity stepped into gear in the second stanza and for the majority of the period the play was kept in the Canoe Club territory. The Sullivan's evened the count in the second and appeared to be headed for a second victory over the Red Ringers.

Dunning opened the scoring half way through the first frame when he picked up a pass from Housley inside the Blue defence line and drilled it past the Blue goalie. Canoe Club appeared to be headed for a second victory over the Red Ringers.

MORE COLLEGIANS ON OLYMPIC TEAM

Should Watch Frosh Athletes for 1932 Olympiad Material

CANADIANS OUTSTANDING

That Canada is going to send a larger representation than ever to the 1932 Olympics at Los Angeles, and that the bulk of the team must be college men, was driven home to those enthusiasts of track and field who heard J. S. Murray, B.A., organizing secretary of the Ontario Athletic Commission, speak at Hart House yesterday evening.

Mr. Murray stressed the importance of taking care of high school athletes in their freshman year at university.

"It is the duty of every track follower," he said, "to round up promising material for college competition. Many athletes are lost in their first year at college because of neglect in checking up on them."

With the 1932 Olympiad looming ahead, Canada is placing a lot of confidence in college material to bolster up her Olympic squad and make it even a greater factor in the world's premier athletic event than ever before.

Mr. Murray was introduced by Coach Frank Halbus. Ralph Adams, the new track captain, thanked the audience briefly for the honour accorded him and urged a little extra effort on the part of Olympic aspirants to measure up to a higher calibre.

Slides of the 1928 Olympiad and of the recent British Empire Games were projected, bringing home realistically Canada's particularly fine efforts in the recent Olympiad.

U.C. DISAPPROVES RACE DISTINCTION

Women Oppose Inter-marriage; Find Negroes Least Acceptable

OPPOSE HASTY JUDGMENTS

The feeling at University College on the ticklish question of race relations which was brought up first in a Victoria College women's S.C.M. group on Wednesday is, on the whole, not one of antipathy to foreign races.

Although the sentiment of all the women approached by "The Varsity" was opposed to the inter-marriage of such races as Negro, Chinese, Japanese and Hindu with the white race, the idea that they should have an even footing with the white race prevailed. In most opinions, the Negro race was the least acceptable because it is the least adaptable to our type of civilization.

Winifred Hughes, IV Classics, advanced the idea that judgment should not be passed too quickly on races just because they do not measure up to our standards of living, for how do we know that our standard is better than theirs?

Bessie Lowry, II U.C., claimed that in Canada as much as in any country of the world, all men are born free and equal, and if this fact is accepted wholeheartedly, there should be no horror of people of other races.

Aims at Leading Position in Modern Canadian Literature

G. K. MASTERS IS EDITOR

Definite Financial Support is Assured to Latest Venture

After several years of existence, during which many attempts have been made to gain for it the support of the undergraduate body of the college, the University College Magazine has finally passed out of existence. A new organ has taken its place, to be called the "Undergraduate." Radical changes in form and policy mark the new venture. Literary efforts at University College, according to the editor, Gordon K. Masters, will now have a first class outlet.

Approximately fifty pages of printed matter will make the new publication the largest undergraduate literary magazine. These and other changes in form and policy have been adopted by the Literary and Athletic Society, upon the recommendation of the Editor-in-Chief and the editorial board of the former University College Magazine. The most interesting changes are in the general make-up of the magazine; it will be double column throughout, except in the poetry section; there will be more cuts and varying type sizes; and a new cover and a slightly larger page will complete the metamorphosis.

"The result of the Literary Society's action in this matter is highly satisfactory to me," Mr. Masters told "The Varsity" last night. "It will mean the creation of a really efficient medium for developing latent talent among the undergraduates of our college. We are definitely working towards the point when the 'Undergraduate' will be one of the outstanding factors in the development of a distinctive Canadian literature. We expect to have the work of outstanding faculty members and distinguished

Varsity Women Should Be Home Peeling Onions, Declares Male

Why do university men take out non-university women? Do men think university women expensive? Are they more expensive when more attractive? Are they worth the expense?

Such were the questions asked by "The Varsity" in an effort to ascertain the general opinion amongst the students pursuant to the charges made in yesterday's "Varsity" that university men cannot afford to take out university women because they have more expensive tastes and that often the women are better supplied with money than are the men.

A few of the answers to the above questions as given to "The Varsity" are given herewith:

V. Geller, II U.C.: "I seldom take out a university woman for that very reason—they're too expensive. Naturally a fellow has to spend more money when he takes out a more attractive woman because they are accustomed to going places and doing things. And they are not worth it! They shouldn't be at the university. Their place is in the home peeling onions and washing dishes and trying to make themselves look beautiful in between times."

Another undergraduate, when interviewed, asked that his name be withheld and added: "Not only do they like men to spend money on them, and lots of it, but furthermore they expect it. For example, I took a university woman to a certain party, and after the party some of the couples

A. G. Burns Suggests Device to Increase the Popular Interest

DISTINCT APATHY EXISTS

"Why the general student body at the university are not interested in their Students' Administrative Council is hard to understand," stated A. Gordon Burns, secretary-treasurer of the S.A.C., when questioned as to the facts in yesterday's editorial.

"Last fall we advertised the meetings in 'The Varsity', but even that did not increase attendance. About ten students would put in an appearance. It might be that each student is so occupied in the affairs of his college that he does not find business that is university-wide, interesting."

"Even the representatives themselves do not show any great enthusiasm. One reason for this is that as there is a council for men and one for women and, on top of those, a Joint Executive, the business that each one of these bodies attend to is confined in the main to routine matters. To remedy this, there is a movement on foot to combine these three bodies in order that a really interesting agenda could be drawn up. As to the meetings, next year it is hoped that they will be on fixed dates which will be made public."

The consensus of student opinion was that the doings of the S.A.C. and the fact that the meetings are open were not generally known.

J. M. Patrick, U.C., said: "Student government is allowed by the authority" (Continued on Page 2)

ST. DAVID'S MAN ON WARD POLITICS

Should Enter Politics Young, Then Benefit Socially, Financially

DEMAND EDUCATED MEN

"The system of having ward political associations is the best system that has yet been devised, and must be maintained until a better appears," said Wilfred Heighington, member of the Provincial House for St. David's riding, at the Macdonald-Cartier Club luncheon in Hart House yesterday.

Heighington dealt with two questions in his speech. He defended vigorously the ward politics system. The ward associations aroused political enthusiasm, presented the issues to the people, and provided political workers. They were responsible for the extent to which the suffrage was used. Though they were subjected to much criticism, he had found that ward political workers were just as anxious to do the right thing as anybody else. He admitted that the system could be improved. He said that it was the duty of people of superior educational attainments to come down to the ward associations and provide leadership. "I have never found," he said, "that such men have not received the support of the rank and file."

The speaker then dealt with the question of the age at which a man should enter politics. Many men felt that only people whose positions were assured should enter the public field. "Don't let anybody be too positive on the subject," he said. A young man (Continued on Page 2)

L. T. Morgan Condemns Police Commission's Recent Edict

COMMUNISTS NOT ILLEGAL

"Professors are not Afraid to Speak," Iterates Walters

"Is Canada, or isn't she, a democracy? It seems that if she is, free speech—literal free speech—can hardly be denied. If she isn't, the absence of free speech is quite consistent. But I do condemn hypocrisy."

In these few words, Professor L. T. Morgan of the Department of Political Science and Economics, expressed his opinion of the recent banning of meetings by the Board of Police Commissioners, when interviewed by "The Varsity" yesterday.

Professor F. H. Walters of the French Department of Trinity College, also expressed himself in unequivocal terms.

"In the first place," he said, "there is no reason except a purely arbitrary decision to prevent Communists from speaking. The Communist party is not illegal. That doesn't concern me, however. I don't happen to be a Communist" (Continued on Page 2)

Dr. T. C. Routledge Advocates Long Term Immigration Policy

SUPPORTED BY PRIMROSE

General agreement with the stand of Dr. T. C. Routledge, general secretary of the Canadian Medical Association, in advocating the establishment of a board of scientific men to supervise immigration into Canada, was expressed by members of the faculty of medicine and the department of economics, yesterday.

Dr. Routledge, in a speech before the Electric Club of Toronto, supported a plan for the creation of a board of four or five men, versed in particular aspects of Canadian life, to map out and oversee a system of immigration for the next 25 years along scientific lines.

Dr. A. Primrose, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, expressed himself in entire agreement with the views laid down by Dr. Routledge. The stand was not only sane but obvious. He regarded immigration as one of the most important problems in our national life.

Dr. E. S. Ryerson, secretary of the Faculty, claimed that it was too early to express entire disapproval of the existing system. Medical examination of immigrants had only been introduced since the war and had brought

SINGLE BLESSEDNESS

Some two hundred undergraduates of this University recently sat in open convale and heard speakers, male and female, discuss what finally and definitely resolved itself into the subject—should we abolish the state of bachelorhood.

Apart from the more humorous and debatable points, the question fairly bristles forth, why bachelors exist. It cannot be a question of supply and demand; nature has provided against that; the annual influx into this world includes more females than males. Nor does the matter resolve itself into the fact that women are averse to marriage. Those women most preferable in the eyes of men do marry. Yet, at the same time, how many of our leaders in industry, the professions' and politics have retained their single state? The so-called shackles of marriage would seem to have the effect of subduing the instinct to marry that presumably fires the ardor of the male.

If, then, the onus of the blame for an unmarried state of society lies with the male, what are the reasons governing his unnatural conduct? Disregarding conditions of moral laxity alleged to exist, and the continual relaxation of divorce laws, some powerful influences must be at work.

Emotionally, the race has changed but little. Men are still moved by the same natural impulses, fired by the same ideals and ambitions, external appearances and conventionalities to the contrary.

The economic question perhaps provides the missing link. By nature predestined for marriage, the average young man finds it quite impossible until his income has reached a sizeable figure. This has become increasingly true as higher education causes more and more of the youth of the country to spend years of their early life in preparation for a career.

Standards of living have risen, and the postponement of marriage becomes inevitable. Having once resigned himself to single life in the earlier years, when he might marry if economic conditions allowed, the potential bachelor becomes, in many cases, the confirmed bachelor. At first he finds it necessary to direct his highest energies towards his life's career, in order that he may place himself in a position to marry; having done so, he frequently prefers to continue in the pursuit of greater success, hence he becomes a bachelor.

With the present condition as outlined, Malthus would be eminently satisfied. Yet, the result of observations made upon one thousand and graduates of Harvard University, male and female in equal numbers, shows that with their present rate of increase the descendants of those under observation will be extinct in three generations.

Whether the shadow of race extinction hovers on the horizon remains to be seen. Although affording possibilities of lengthy discussion, the question will be settled, in the final analysis, as it should be, by individual desire and action.

ties as long as everything is running smoothly, but as soon as something of consequence arises self-government ceases and the university authorities step in."

could make many valuable contacts in political life. He remarked that his own business had increased to a large extent since he went into politics.

Many people think that ward politics ruin one's social contacts. In answer to this Heighington said, "I have not yet put my dress clothes in moth balls."

about much improvement. Dr. V. E. Henderson was strongly in agreement with Dr. Routledge. The idea of a commission seemed to him a sound one, not only for medical reasons but also for economic ones. He believed that the commission, if established, should seek out the right type of immigrant and place him on his feet in a steady situation in Canada. On the whole, medical supervision of immigrants, at present, was satisfactory.

Professor Gilbert E. Jackson of the Economics Department, declared that it was obvious that immigration had been imperfect in the past and he believed that some such plan as that of Dr. Routledge would be a distinct improvement.

minist. But—the police commissioners have a tendency to brand everyone as Communists, who disagrees with them on this subject. This is the danger—the thing is progressive. First, the Communists couldn't hold meetings; then the Labour people couldn't gather to discuss this question. And now an ordinary group of liberals like the Fellowship of Reconciliation couldn't meet. If you once make a distinction the whole principle of free speech is overthrown.

"The mere excuse that the Communists talk nonsense or are wrong is no reason for the action. No doubt Draper or Coatsworth at times talk nonsense—but I am willing to let all the Coatsworths and Drapers get up on soap-boxes and speak."

Referring to the petition signed by members of the faculty, Professor Walter said:

"We didn't act as professors, we acted as citizens." Professor Walter pointed out that the petition disproved the common charge that the professors are "afraid to speak."

style of Philippe Aubert de Gaspé, the French-Canadian writer, whose distinction mainly lies in the two books, "Les Anciens Canadiens" and "Les Mémoires". The speaker outlined the principal events of the writer's life and the important literary influences under which he came in Quebec and on his travels.

Mr. Laffamme spoke with regard to the style of Philippe Aubert de Gaspé from the standpoint that he is the representative of the two chief characteristics of the French-Canadian, "sensibility" and "vivacité". These two qualities of style, coupled with an element of humour, penetrating observation and acuteness of mind, give his work "une charme mystérieux et captivant".

BISS GROUP ASKS FOUR HOURS WORK

Kill Off One-Third of People in Order to Return to Middle Ages

NO WORK, THUS NO WORRY

"It might be better for us if we were to go back to the time when there was no machinery and each man did his own work," stated Miss L. M. Biss, at her study group on the Machine Age. She also said that to do this we would have to kill about one third of the population. What position the "Robot" will have in the life of man, was one of the many subjects discussed at the group.

Miss E. G. Farwell suggested that four hours work should be required of each man and he should do as he wished with the rest of his time. Miss Biss took this suggestion a step farther and asked, "Would we be satisfied and happy if no one had to work for a living or worry about money?" The majority of those present decided that this life would be very pleasant and that more creative work would be produced.

Miss Biss told of the industrial centres she had been in where the only recreation the day labourer took was at the movies, and she wondered why they did not indulge in singing, dancing and games, as the people did in the time of the village green.

JUNIORS AND T.C.C. BATTLE TO 2-ALL DEADLOCK IN OVERTIME

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

The interfaculty hockey teams get under way to-day, with a double-header on the bill. Meds, who were last year's champions, meet Junior Vic at the Blue Arena at 6 o'clock, while Junior U.C. take on Household Science at the Vic rink at 5. Although the calibre of hockey displayed in this league is not very high at times, competition is very great, and the games are usually peppy.

A complication has arisen to disturb the calm of the hockey club, in the form of an entry in the hockey league after the schedule has been drawn up. Through a mistake on the part of the hockey representatives at St. Michael's College, their entry was delayed. As one of the groups has only three teams, it should not be a difficult task to alter the schedule to accommodate the new team.

On the other hand, such lateness in making application is not to be condoned. Naturally the first duty of any manager is to see that her team is properly entered in the correct league, and there seems to be no good reason for delay.

The intermediate basketball team are certainly going to put in lots of work before their game with Hamilton, which is now just a week away. A two-hour practice is on the program for to-night, with a workout every night next week. At any rate, any lack of condition should be eliminated.

The managers of the intercollegiate and intermediate basketball teams are having a meeting with the Margaret Eaton representative immediately to arrange a schedule for the city league. This league should, if not entirely completed, be at least nearly over before the intercollegiate team journeys to Kingston. It is rarely satisfactory for many games to be left till after this time, for there are always some girls who prefer to stop playing early in March.

In a letter to Miss A. E. M. Parkes, from the secretary of the Levens Society of Queen's, it was stated that the

SAILORS WILL FIND STUBBORN DEFENCE

Varsity Firsts Seek Revenge for Two Counter Drubbing

A CRITICAL ENCOUNTER

To-night the hockey fans will see another stirring senior A battle when the Port Colborne Sailors tangle with the Blue seniors at the Varsity Arena.

Port Colborne, as the standing indicates, have a well balanced line-up, the members of which know what to do with the puck. Moore, in goal, is a consistent, spectacular net-minder who wears a pair of first basemen's mitts as gloves. The defence, Horne and Hudson, are clean checkers and good rushers, but are rather weak in stopping a man circling them. The first line, with Morrill at centre, flanked by Shannon and Mountain, is heady and makes the most of its chances. The second line have a fine play-maker in Cuthbert, and a good wing man in Heximer. Wade, the other winger, is only average.

The Blues this season have run in tough luck with injuries and illness coming at inopportune times. However, they renewed their supporters' hopes when, after a disastrous U.S. trip, they held the Sea Flea flyers to a 2-1 count. Varsity are not as strong offensively as in previous years, but they can certainly check and the wings stick to their men like leeches. Ames will likely start in goal, with Don Smilie, who has been a stand-out, and Skin Dewar on defence. Harley is ready to start at right wing, and will be supported by the pesky Murray and the stick artist, Stewart. Bell, Lenahan and Whitehead will form the alternate workers and will, as before, keep up the fighting spirit.

Varsity, due to superior condition, defeated the Sailors 3-2 in the S.P.A., but met with a 3-1 reverse at the lake town. A defeat at this point puts the Blues in a precarious position, while it would give the Ports the whip hand. Thus, one of those 'do or die' and 'up and at 'em' struggles is assured.

OVERTIME BATTLE RESULTS IN DRAW

peared to be the better team, but a pretty play by Jack May and Jack White placed the teams on an even score rating. May carried the puck to the Red Ringers' defence and then passed across to the Blue defenceman who slipped around Housley and then scored on House. Before the period ended the T.C.C. defence combined on a smart rush to break the tie. Davidson carried the puck to the Blue defence, drew them to one side, and then slapped a pass across to his teammate Housley, who had little trouble in scoring.

Varsity's front line came into action in the second period and for a great part of the period they had everything in their favour. Cunningham placed the teams on an even playing floor in Queen's new gymnasium is 75 feet by 48. Since the floor at U.T.S., where the intercollegiates hold practically all their practices, is about 65 by 35, the Blue team will be under a considerable handicap when forced to play on such a large floor. It would seem that an effort should be made to get at least a few practices in a gym which more closely approximated the size of the one in Kingston.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By T. A. F.

The junior puckchasers appear to be an aggregation of in and outers. Last night they held the league-leading Toronto Canoe Club sextette to a two-all tie in thirty minutes overtime, and they already have one decision to their credit over the Red Ringers. And yet they let Parkdale, the weakest squad in the group, hand them a 7 to 4 lacing a week or so ago. However, they may come through yet. They meet P.C.C. here next Tuesday; Marlboros a week later; and then try conclusions with T.C.C. in the final game on the 29th of this month. At present they are in third place, three points behind the Dukes, and with three games to play they can make sure of a place in the playoffs by winning all of them. On paper and sometimes on the ice, the Sullivanites look as good as any of them, and if they play the hockey which they are capable of they should come out pretty close to the top.

After the great showing the senior hockey team made against the highly-touted Sea Fleas the other night anyone who passes up the game with the league-leading Port Colborne squad to-night has no interest whatsoever in the ice sport. All reports to the contrary we have a real hockey team this year. Admittedly they may not be the best in the league when it comes to sheer ability, but when it comes to fighting spirits we back them against any man's team. Despite the fact that the squad was weakened by injuries and sickness they went right in against Nationals and played a slam-bang game, and they are out to do the same to-night. The brand of hockey dished up should be the real old time O.H.A. variety. The Blues will be at full strength this time and the Sailors are going to have their hands full for the sixty minutes.

All this is not saying that we are going to win the game. We may, but it will be a tough job. Port Colborne are at present on top of the heap and they deserve to be up there, having shown great form against the best teams in the league. So far this season they have dropped only one game, a close one in Hamilton against the Tigers, and have beaten us once, Kitchener once, and reversed the decision in the second game with the team from the Ambitious city. They have a smooth skating team with plenty of scoring punch and all kinds of speed. However, they won't win to-night without a battle if the Blues continue to play as they did earlier in the week. Harley will be back at right wing, and "Skin" Dewar has recovered enough from his accident the other night to take his regular place on the defence. Better cancel some of those pressing social engagements and come out and see a real hockey game.

Those who like to see some first-class boxing are advised to drop into the boxing room in Hart House this afternoon and take in the show the boys in the B.W. and F. Club are putting on. Some of the best mittmen in the university, and that is saying plenty, are slated to perform.

KNOX RALLY IN LAST HALF

Emmanuel College defeated Knox in an interfaculty basketball fixture by a score of 24-22 yesterday. If all the games in this series are as fast, furious and exciting as this one they will give great impetus to the game. Half time showed Emmanuel to be leading 13-6, but Knox soon overcame the lead and from then on neither team was leading by more than three points.

For Knox, Burnett, McKeggan and Cochrane were outstanding, with the latter showing a wonderful fighting spirit. Beacons, Morrow and Searle were the best for Emmanuel.

Knox—Burnett, McKeggan, Stevenson, Cochrane, Day, Robertson, Anderson, Smith, Davidson, Neilson. Emmanuel—Beacons, Shepley, Morrow, Ashton, Searle, Harris, Organ.

The Table Round

RADIO BROADCASTING

Following its usual policy of obstructionism, which it has consistently followed whenever a development arises which promises to be a real benefit to the community, The Evening Telegram takes up its cudgel in defence of the present state of Radio Broadcasting against the horrible innovations of the Aird Report. And, following its usual tactics, it proceeds to give tongue against the dictation of Radio affairs by such people as Sir Robert Falconer.

How infinitely better, thinks The Telegram, would it be for our eminent distillery-broadcaster to be allowed to continue to retail American propaganda and advertising to our benighted Canadian population. The cultural influence of Amos and Andy is needed to improve our crude and ignorant minds.

We hope The Telegram is proud of itself. It usually is.

BAD TASTE

It is some time now since the announcement that Sinclair Lewis had received the Nobel award for 1930, and in the interim there has been considerable discussion of the justice of the award. An eminent clergyman and author has spoken his mind freely, critics have made comments in every paper on the continent, and Sinclair Lewis himself states that it should have gone elsewhere.

In truth, the award seems to be somewhat of an international insult. If Lewis had gone over to Sweden and written about the Swedish people as he writes about his own, he would probably have been deported quite promptly. But because he bitterly satirizes the "great American people," which has so few friends in Europe, he is rewarded with the Nobel prize for literature.

The United States tolerates a great deal of criticism from within, even though it may show little disposition to be guided by it. It tolerates Sinclair Lewis, reads him, and laughs at itself, showing thereby a certain maturity of mind. But it is one thing for Americans to tolerate Lewis, and another for a body of foreign critics to award him a prize. His style is not particularly good. He is forceful in what he says, not in how he says it. And such an award seems to indicate a certain pleasure in the criticism on the part of the committee.

Altogether, it was a case of international bad taste.

CANADIAN MOVIES AGAIN

Undergraduates of this University will be interested in "Under Suspicion", which is now playing in Toronto. This picture was filmed almost entirely in Jasper National Park and largely in the immediate neighbourhood of Jasper Park Lodge. A number of Toronto students, of whom your writer was one, were employed at the Lodge and witnessed the taking of a number of the scenes.

It is rather a pity that the story is weak and the direction poor, for this picture might have been really great. The scenic background provided by the Rockies is unsurpassed anywhere, and the opportunity for good sound production is very great. In "Under Suspicion" the photography is fair and the recording excellent in tonal quality and control, and the pictures are quite as clear as any taken in "Sunny California". Despite the weaknesses of the picture which makes it distinctly second class, the possibilities for movie production in Canada are made quite evident.

Why not build a Canadian Hollywood in the Rockies? The heavy, misty climate of Eastern Canada may be unsuitable for moving picture photography, but that objection cannot be urged against the West. Go and see "Under Suspicion", forget the technical and dramatic imperfections, watch the mountain scenery, and you'll find it well worth while.

ALONG THE SPORT TRAIL IN ONTARIO

With the coming of January, sport lovers turn to the out-of-doors and the thrill of exercise in the crisp open air. Ontario does not have to travel far for its winter recreation. It boasts as picturesque country as can be found at the much-heralded foreign resorts. The beautiful Muskoka area has a number of year-round hostilities and they accommodate numbers of week-end parties. Muskoka possesses every natural facility for sport and is regarded as highly in winter as in summer. The above picture shows two ski-ing enthusiasts at Linbrook Lodge, near Huntsville, Ont. C.N.R. THREE SHOTS FIRED THROUGH PEACEFUL T.T.C. STREET CAR

MYSTERY Baffles Police

T.T.C. Officials Also Can Offer Little Information to
"Varsity"

Has racketeering broken out in Toronto? Will the T.T.C. be forced to stop its service? Thursday at 9:20 p.m. at the corner of College and St. George Street, three bullets whistled into the driving compartment of "Sailor" Burns, as he eased his car along College St. at the usual T.T.C. speed. But no one either heard the bullets or wished to hear them.

Sergeant Hunt of the C.O.T.C., when interviewed by "The Varsity", was greatly indignant at the suggestion offered by a certain morning paper that the bullets which had shattered the glass of the street car had been fired from the School of Military Studies. Sergeant Hunt pointed out that all shooting in connection with the corps was done at Hart House. Moreover the car was struck from in front while at a point west of the School of Military Studies. A member of the C.O.T.C. Band pointed out that no one in connection with the C.O.T.C. could hit anything as small as a street car at that distance. Sgt. Hunt established his alibi in the statement that his wife and he were listening to the Neilson Hour of Music and were among those interviewed by "The Varsity" who did not hear the shots.

No one at the Royal Canadian Institute or the Salmc Garage, two contiguous buildings to the scene of the shooting, heard the shots.

"The Varsity" got in touch with Police Headquarters with a view to clearing up this mystery and removing the stigma which is involved in the suggestion that a Varsity student had fired on a street car during a closed season. Police were genuinely interested and listened to "The Varsity" sleuth's description of the affair and acknowledged that they had seen something of it in the papers. The T.T.C. had no information to supply, but they thought something should be done about people shooting at street cars.

DOROTHY KILPATRICK LEADS INDIA GROUP

Missionaries Unpopular Because of Disregard for Tradition

RECOUNTS LIFE INCIDENTS

"When Hinduism and Christianity meet, something fine will result," said Miss Dorothy Kilpatrick in her talk to the India Group. "The Arians dislike the Christians because the missionaries do not appreciate their heritage. Although some movements in India are anti-Christian they are aiming at the good of the country. There are three groups of reformers in central India whose objective is the abolition of such customs as child marriage."

Miss Kilpatrick recounted some incidents of her life in India, including the time she was in danger of being killed for taking a picture of a certain temple. Another interesting experience was the time when she crossed a flooded river on a raft constructed of oil cans.

VARSITY SENIORS MEET DEFEAT 3-1 IN HARD GAME WITH PORT COLBORNE

STARS IN GOAL

The great goal tending of "Doc" Ames in the Varsity nets was one of the big reasons why Friday night's game with Port Colborne went 30 minutes overtime before the Sailors emerged on the happy end of a 3 to 1 count.

DISAPPROVE PRIZE FOR FAIR ORATORS

"We Know What Women Can Do Without Encouragement"
Says Gammell

General disapproval of a proposed public speaking contest for University College women, with a prize of $25 for the winner, was expressed by men interviewed by "The Varsity" over the week-end.

"I think a contest should be held to see how long they could keep still under intense excitement. Women seem to have more money than men at this university. Anyhow, this $25 will only be spent on gas or cigarettes," said R. D. Alexander, II U.C.

J. B. Gammell, III Victoria, thought men were hampered by women's indulgence in speaking. "Men know what women can do without encouragement," he said, "but when some club starts giving them encouragement we might as well sign off altogether."

"Well, if women do improve their speaking we are all assured of not being bored by 'How to Make a Cake' for few know how," said one third year Engineer who refused to divulge his name for publication, but claimed he knew whereof he spoke, as he had tasted university women's victuals.

"Women nowadays that need to be paid to speak are few and far between. Very little encouragement is all a woman needs. I think $25 is altogether too much," said F. M. Cass, U.C.

Only one student of those interviewed thought women should be paid to speak according to their qualifications.

MILITARY BALL WILL BE A BRILLIANT FUNCTION

On January 30 in Hart House will be held the first annual Military Ball of the C.O.T.C. This is not the first Military Ball ever held in the university, for in the distant days before the war, it was the most important of all the year's functions. And this revival, will in no way let down the tradition for brilliance and enjoyment held by the pre-war affairs.

The list is being limited to 300 couples, made up of present and past members of the Corps. Tickets may be obtained by present members at Corps Headquarters until January 23 at 5 p.m. That is—if the supply lasts that long.

90 MINUTES OF PLAY

Blue and White Defence Puts Up Strenuous Battle

By A. C. Cochrane

Port Colborne strengthened their position at the top of the O.H.A. senior "A" group Friday night, but not until they had played 90 minutes of hockey to down the Varsity sextet 3 to 1 at the U. of T. Arena. The Ports deserved their win, but they met a sorely crippled team that offered a stubborn resistance. The local wing lines checked back relentlessly and broke up many of the Port Colborne plays before they could get fairly underway, while Smillie and Williams on the defence, turned in stellar performances all evening. It was the defensive hockey of the Varsity squad that prevented the speedy, tricky Sailor front lines from scoring an easy win. On the attack, Shannon, Heximer, Mountain and Morrill, outshone the Varsity wingmen and it was only the fighting spirit of the Blue-clad puck-chasers and the fine work of Williams and Smillie, and Ames in goal, that carried the battle into overtime.

Coach "Red" Porter has run into a spell of misfortune. Against the Sea Fleas he played with only two substitutes and Friday night "Red" Whitehead, the star of the National Fracas, (Continued on Page 3)

RUMOURS OF S. P. S. MOVING TO GUELPH DISCOVERED FALSE

Members of Faculty Treat Alleged Proposal as Joke

WOULD COST TOO MUCH

Also Would Mean Great Loss to Our University
as a Whole

Vigorous denials were received from all those interviewed by "The Varsity" regarding an article in the Guelph Mercury which stated that S.P.S. might be transferred to Guelph. Dean Mitchell treated the whole matter as a joke and stated that there was no foundation for the story as the question had never even been considered. He pointed out that such a move would be impractical financially, as it would render useless most of the present buildings and equipment. He also said that the loss of a faculty prominent in university activities would seriously affect the university.

Sir Robert Falconer was not available, but no one at his office had heard anything regarding the change. The same answer to "The Varsity's" question was secured at the Registrar's office.

Prof. J. W. Bain of the Department of Chemical Engineering, termed the rumor as "absolute bunk". In reply to the suggestion that lack of grounds might force such an action he said (Continued on Page 4)

Following charges made in Friday's "Varsity" by undergraduates that university women were too expensive and not worth the expense, reports received by "The Varsity" indicated that the statements made in Friday's issue were not representative of the student body in general.

As a result, a reporter was detailed to investigate the problem and in doing so, interviewed students from as great a field as possible and asked each one the same questions as were asked those interviewed previous to Friday's issue: Why do university men take out non-university women? Do men think university women expensive? Are they more expensive when more attractive? Are they worth the expense?

In most cases the men undergraduates approached verified the charges made in the earlier issue.

A. J. Elder, IV C. & F.: "In general university women come from wealthier families and so expect more, therefore it costs more to take them out than it does to take out non-university women. As a rule their tastes are more extravagant. The non-university girls that university men take out are usually those met through business or through college have known previous to entering college. Hence the non-university women they take out are business girls and they realize the value of money more than the co-eds. In most cases the men work their way through college and the university (Continued on Page 2)

Victoria Girl Thankfully Says

Gentleman from Dents Declares
Women Naturally Conservative

Women undergraduates at this university refuse to submit unheeded to the opinion expressed by men students in Friday's "Varsity" that university women are more expensive and demand more from a man than non-university women.

Scouting around over the week-end, this is what was heard:

Gertrude McIntosh, IV Vic: "Why should women expect more money spent on them — they go to college, realize financial difficulties, and are too intelligent to be purely mercenary or merely peel onions."

Leslie Leitch, V Dents: "Women naturally are not gold diggers. Yet some men make them mercenary. Often when the girl tries to economize and save his money by not going out, the man drops her like a hot cake and seeks the company of some other girl, who will spend his money for him."

Mary Palmer, I St. Mike's: "If the women spent their time peeling onions, it would tend to lessen any beauty they had."

Adelle Statten, IV U.C.: "Onion peeling and such feminine accomplishments are unnecessary evils of the past, thank goodness! Now that there are such lovely things as co-eds should not our bachelor friends be glad to rise to their level?"

Mary Trainer, IV Household Science: "What has become of modern youth? Have we only old fashioned gentlemen at Varsity? After all, some of us are learning to peel onions without shedding tears."

Mouse Fails to Frighten Brave Wymilwood Girls

A "wee sleekit cowering timorous beastie" made his debut from the fireplace in the runroom of Wymilwood recently, at a meeting of the Victoria Women's Literary Society. Mr. Boris Berlin, who was speaking on Schubert and Mozart, was suddenly interrupted by a baby mouse, the "little runner" as he called it, most unconcernedly pursuing his way across the room, like some clockwork masterpiece. Wonderful to tell, the young ladies suppressed their squealing admirably.

MODERN HUMANISM DISCUSSION TOPIC

Philosophical Society Has Four Papers Read on New Thought

DREAMS, IDEALS, DECORUM

The Philosophical Society met in Wycliffe College Thursday night. The subject under discussion was "The New Humanism". Four papers were read. The "manifesto of modern humanism" as set forth in "Humanism in America", representing the views of Babbitt et al, was taken as the text.

Professor E. W. MacDonald read a paper on the general position of the new humanism. He considered the humanism of to-day very like that of Socrates, in that, in a time of change, it was necessary to establish and live up to new traditions. According to Professor MacDonald, humanism attacks mechanical science and romanticism, especially that of Rousseau. The romantic doctrine of "intensity rather than quality of living" as exemplified by "the cocktails and kisses of Aldous Huxley" is quite at variance with the humanitarian viewpoint.

Professor E. T. Owen's paper was on "Humanism and Morals". He censured the "failure of romanticism to uphold shattered standards", especially since the war, and stated that "romanticism had produced the Broadway night clubs and Rotary". He set forth the principles of humanism in connection with morality as, first, the right use of illusion; secondly, the "imitation of nature", a return to the Aristotelian conception of things not as they are, but as they ought to be; thirdly, decorum, not formalism, but the inward law of measure, self-restraint.

A lively general discussion followed which was brought to a close by the arrival of refreshments.

RESEARCH ON GEYSERS PROVES NEW THEORY

Professor Pours Cold Water on the Hot Water
Explanation

The theory that geysers are simply fountains of water heated by hot rocks beneath the surface of the earth, was refuted by Dr. Arthur L. Day in Convocation Hall Saturday night. Dr. Day, who is the director of the Geophysical Laboratory in Washington, addressed what is estimated to be the largest audience which has attended a Royal Canadian Institute lecture for several years.

The former idea of a geyser was a tube leading from the interior of the earth where water was heated to an extremely high temperature by the hot rock below. According to Dr. Day's observations, geysers are simply pools of water at normal temperature into which gases at a very high temperature are forced. This sudden entrance of the gases into the water causes it to boil and to spout high into the air.

SAY BALDWIN HOUSE ILL-SUITED TO MEET PRESENT DEMANDS

Too Small for Requirements of Budding Historians and Economists

SMOKING-ROOM NEEDED

Professors Would Also Prefer Building with More Room for Thought

"In Baldwin House there is not sufficient room for the students to put their hats and coats, or to wash, no place for them to smoke or to telephone, and the faculty have no place to think." Such are the conditions of Baldwin House as stated by Professor McGregor of the Economics Department to "The Varsity" on Friday afternoon.

The conditions in Baldwin House are not what could be called good. There are only three lecture rooms in the building in which 1200 students per week take lectures. The combined seating capacity of the three rooms is only 243 students, the largest room seating about 110 students. The only rooms available for groups are the offices of the professors, and these are small and unsuited for this kind of class.

Professor Martin, head of the History Department: "We certainly are very overcrowded, but we are making the best of the situation. All the history lectures, with the exception of four, are held outside of Baldwin House."

Professor Glazebrook: "The trouble is not in overcrowding, but in finding a room large enough in which to hold the lecture." The departments of history and economics find it necessary to give their lectures in the Medical Building and in University College where the rooms are large enough to accommodate the large number of students.

Professor Drummond: "It is not that the lecture rooms are overcrowded, but that there is not enough of them."

Professor Crombie: "The unity of the class is broken by having the lectures held in the various buildings about the campus. Owing to the shortage of lecture rooms in Baldwin House we must hold the lectures in other buildings, and in some cases split the classes up into two groups."

There is also a shortage of office space in Baldwin House which made it necessary for some of the professors to have their offices at 47 St. George Street. Thus even the professors are not all in the same building.

BISHOP STRACHAN GRADS AT TEA IN WOMEN'S UNION

Former pupils of Bishop Strachan School who are now attending the University of Toronto, were entertained at tea on Friday by Miss Dorothy Kilpatrick at the University College Women's Union. Over seventy students were present and ten teachers from the school, including the new principal, Miss Lowe, former Dean of Women at Dalhousie University, who is a Bishop Strachan graduate.

Miss Lowe gave a short talk in which she stressed the affectionate ties binding them together and expressed the hope that they would live up to their old ideals.

The tea was the third "Old Girls' Tea", Branksome Hall and Haverhill girls having been entertained in a similar manner. The next one will be for University College girls from Harbord, North Toronto, Riverdale and Humberdale Collegiates.

FACE THE MUSIC

It is very easy for the men to blame all miscellaneous vices and shortcomings on the poor woman. They have been doing it ever since Adam and Eve's time. Can we expect them to stop now? The women of the University have risen in revolt against the dictatorial attitude of the men as expressed in Friday's "Varsity". In fact, many of them seem to have spent their time over the week-end in cudgelling their brains for apt and scathing retorts with which to denounce the criticisms of the men that "University women are more expensive, and demand more from a man than non-University women." And few, if any, of them have shown the properly humble and submissive spirit which should have been engendered by the outbursts of "the poor but honest" males. They are right! We shall never get anywhere by looking back on what has been. The hard bachelors may as well face the music now as never.

THE LETTER OR THE SPIRIT

If ever some learned jurist should advance as his opinion that in a law, the spirit was more important than the letter we should be inclined to exclaim with Shylock, "Oh most just and upright judge." The lack of imagination and intelligence displayed by our executive officers and bodies is, to say the least, deplorable. Most of them can see no farther than the actual wording of their regulations and statutes, thus causing a great amount of inconvenience and actual harm to the rest of us.

Our own University is one place where the letter of the law is enshrined in a sacred place. Officials are absurdly proud of our honour courses, their standards and requirements. There can be none to equal them, they think, or so it would appear by their actions. There is the case of a man who came here from another Canadian university with an M.A. in Mathematics in Physics. He had been doing work for his doctor's degree in an American university, and also teaching these subjects there, when for various reasons he had to return to Canada and enter the Ontario College of Education. Though he had passed examinations of a higher standard than those set in our honour course, he was refused a specialist's standing at O.C.E. To all his explanations and certificates, the Department of Education would only vouchsafe the stupid reply, "Yes, we see all that, but we can't do anything for you; the rule is there, we can't change it; all you can do is try our examinations." Other cases as glaring and drastic occur every year.

To get down to lesser absurdities, there is the rule that at a Hart House dance, one cannot enter the building again after leaving it. The principle is excellent, but at the last masquerade, a man went out during the last dance to warm up his car, and on returning to the door could see his partner ready to leave, seated on the Hall Porter's desk waiting for him. Hundreds were leaving, but there was a rule that he could not enter the house after leaving it, and it was only after ardent persuasion at intervals for fifteen minutes or so that he was allowed to re-enter and get his partner.

Ontario movie censorship is a different example of the same thing. Here the harm is done by enforcement stopping at the letter, while the spirit is being missed. Whether by ignorance or design, our censors invariably delete the obvious leaving quite blatantly displayed, ambiguous situations and wise-cracks, which if one meaning is taken from them, are much more harmful. The current show at Loew's is an instance.

The Liquor Control Act is another example. Here the letter is strictly observed with a wiser and more broadminded interpretation conspicuously lacking. We are allowed, but with a very bad grace, to have our liquor, but no one must show the least signs of enjoying it in public. Obtaining it is made as expensive and inconvenient as possible. Stores are closed earlier on the eves of Sundays and holidays because that is when early closing will cause the most inconvenience. Of course in our liquor laws there is also the hypocritical element, always present in Ontario officialdom.

We are essentially law-abiding. In the small hours of the morning we tarry for red lights at lonely and deserted intersections. But when the letter of the law is so rigidly enforced in places, where the spirit is already being obeyed, so that said law becomes a nuisance, we are inclined to join the vast army, no,—not of the unemployed, but of the law-breakers.

Art, Music and Drama

Sunday Evening Concert

The combination of Madame Hornyansky, 'cellist, and Dr. MacMillan, naturally makes an interesting program. Madame Hornyansky has an excellent musical taste and very considerable understanding of her art. There is a vigour and dynamic power in her playing which reminds one of modern painting with its stress on form and colour rather than on detail, and which is now considered the more fruitful conception in artistic creation. Dr. MacMillan at the piano was as usual a very fine assistant.

The program opened with a charming and forceful sonata by Samartini. A suite by Bach for cello alone is introduced by a prelude which is followed by four jovial, rollicking dances which revealed Bach at his happiest and most facile moments.

The program ended with a magnificent sonata in F major by Brahms. The allegro vivace successfully retains a certain majesty and the adagio affettuoso has a sombre, deep beauty which is almost erotic. The sonata ends with two violent and strenuous allegros in which both artists did excellent work.

The fact that a program of such weight is offered to an undergraduate body is indicative of the high opinion Toronto musicians have of the musical taste at this university. That it was appreciated is indicative of the success of the policy of Mr. Bickert and his long succession of music committees.

—R.A.McE.

Organ Recital

After playing approximately 175 recitals in Convocation Hall, Dr. Moore, has been forced, by reasons of health, to cancel his usual series of this season. For the majority of undergraduates Dr. Moore's recitals have been their introduction to legitimate organ music and organ playing, and one cannot too highly commend the faithfulness with which Dr. Moore has eschewed the tricks of the theatre organist and maintained the discipline of the best school of concert organ playing.

To-morrow evening at 5, Dr. MacMillan will commence a new series which prominent Toronto organists have consented to provide.

The first program is one of the most attractive and representative which Toronto organ recital audiences have been offered for some years. There are three tremendous numbers, including Mendelssohn, Franck and Bach with Handel, Vidor and Vieme providing melodic and colourful relief.

Dr. MacMillan is recognized not only as one of the finest living organ technicians, but as an artist whose orchestral point of view makes organ playing intensely interesting to practically every taste.

—R.A.McE.

Friday Afternoon Recital

Murray Adaskin, violinist, and Leo Barkin, pianist, provided the Friday afternoon recital audience with an excellent and intellectual sonata program, and the example of both announcer and artists in their informal presentation of facts about the music to be played is one which their successors would do well to follow since it is an essential in the idea motivating these concerts.

A Tartini sonata opened the program. A pleasing old world grace which is scarcely Italian, blends with pleasing charm and the general effect is good.

An early Hindemith sonata was offered, not as Mr. Adaskin explained, for our pleasure, but for our enlightenment. The number is very patchy and discursive with the suggestion of an idea in the second movement which Mr. Hindemith hastens to strangle at birth. The artists are to be heartily commended for their skill and point of view in offering this number, the product of our own generation.

This interesting program ended with a Beethoven sonata. An early composition when he was under the influence of Mozart, as we were told, the number is rather insipid and save for a few technical characteristics has little resemblance to the great Beethoven. The effect is that of Mozart in his duller moments.

Mr. Adaskin has a fine artistic sense and finds quite a good tone. Mr. Barkin also did a good job at the piano, particularly in the bewildering Hindemith.

I was deeply engrossed in a study of The Calgary Eye-Opener (issue of March, 1920), in search of new material for this column.

Suddenly the phone rang. I lifted the receiver and said in my best English, "If it's a blonde I'm listening, if it's a brunette what the hell do you want?"

A cool, cynical voice whispered, "It's a Red!"

C—C

My Rosedale sense of propriety was shocked. Need I describe the feeling of repulsion and horror that crept up and down my spine at the mention of the word "Red"? After a great deal of scratching and wiggling I located a cockroach near the armpit.

C—C

I repressed my apprehension and spoke up like a trained scal. "Vote as you like," I declared, "but vote."

C—C

"This is our final ultimatum," said my mysterious caller. "We're coming down to-night to burn your house. A British subject you were born, and a British subject you shall die. Harrrr!"

"Go ahead," I laughed. "Who cares? I'm not insured anyway."

"And besides, I can give that house-warming I've planned for such a long time."

sity women don't realize this fact sufficiently. They don't realize as do the business girls that university men never have too much money."

A. M. Keith, II Vic: "University men take out non-university women because they don't know enough university women and because they are less expensive than university women. It usually works out that they are more expensive when more attractive. The more attractive girls are rushed by the wealthier men and so when any one else takes them out they expect the same thing. About eighty per cent. of the university women are worth the expense, although the university women have more expensive tastes. I think they have much nicer tastes. They seem to have 'it'—that very something that is common to both men and women."

Another undergraduate, when interviewed, asked that his name be withheld and added: "I think that the university women are more expensive and I would rather take out non-university women because they don't have to be in early and when you do take them home there is a parlour waiting."

PORTS DEFEAT VARSITY 3 TO 1 AFTER 30 MINUTES OVERTIME

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

A revision in the schedule of Group 2 of the interfaculty hockey was necessitated by the entry of St. Mike's late last week. The rearranged schedule appears in to-day's "Varsity". This is the first time in several years that the Double Blue have entered a team; in former years lack of funds has been the main cause of non-entry, but a compulsory athletic fee has eliminated this difficulty.

Household Science got away to a good start in the hockey league, when they took the first game by a count of 2 to 0 from Junior U.C. The other game between Junior Vic and Meds resulted in a scoreless tie which is not exactly a satisfactory result. However, the teams will doubtless improve in strength as the season progresses.

The intermediate basketball team is going to have quite a hard job on its hands when they travel to Hamilton to meet the Normal School Grads. According to reports, this Normal outfit is an aggregation of stars, who have played together for years, and as the intermediates seldom play with one another more than one season in succession, they are bound to be under a considerable handicap.

There is also a slight difference in the rules under which the two teams play. Under the Hamilton ruling, the jumping centre is a forward with the privilege of shooting, which necessarily makes the side-centre a guard. As Varsity play, both in the interfaculty and intercollegiate tournament, the side-centre is a forward, with the jumping centre in a defence position. This will, of course, be confusing, but not more so to one team than to the other.

JR. VIC AND MEDS IN SCORELESS GAME

Victoria Has Slight Advantage on Play in Slow Game

TEAMS LACK PRACTICE

Junior Vic and Meds played to a scoreless tie in the first game of the women's interfaculty hockey series at Varsity Arena on Friday night. Although neither team scored, Vic had the edge on the play. Both teams showed lack of practice, and the game was fairly slow and quite sloppy. The definite line-ups have not yet been decided on, and the combination did not work very well as yet.

Junior Vic—Goal, Kay Eaton; defence, Kay Pirie, Suzanne Cornelli; centre, Mabel Curiston; wings, Joe Harley, Grace Hayden.

Meds—Goal Anna Haugh; defence, Thelma Thorpe, Margaret Bryant; centre, Jean Mustard; wings, Vera Peters, Betty Stuart.

WYCLIFFE IN 22-21 WIN OVER GRADUATE STUDIES

Strong Defence of Clergymen Give Them 22-21 Victory in Strenuous Game

WINNING TALLY AT END

Wycliffe College defeated Graduate Studies by the score of 22 to 21 in a strenuous and close-checking interfaculty basketball series game, played in the Upper Gym on Friday. There was little to choose between either team and the result of the game was always in doubt. Graduate Studies were leading 21 to 18 with two minutes to go when Wycliffe scored two baskets on a frenzied attack, to win the game.

Graduate Studies appeared to have the faster team, but they could make no headway against the sound defensive game of the Clergymen. All their baskets were well earned. For Wycliffe, Perkins and Ruch were the best of the forwards, the former being the high scorer of the game, while Morisset stood out on the defence. Macomachie, Barrett and Crawford were best for Graduate Studies.

Wycliffe (22)—Hunt, Ruch, Perkins, Lancaster, Geary, Morisset, Kirk. Graduate Studies (21)—Macomachie, Barrett, Mueller, Thompson, Musgrave, Crawford.

FORESTRY BATSMEN BEAT KNOX IN HECTIC BATTLE

Both Teams Hit Freely in Game that is Won by 10-8 Score

Coming from behind in the last inning, Forestry opened their season with a victory over Knox College by 10-8, in an interfaculty baseball game played Friday afternoon in the Hart House gym. The team played three innings of hectic baseball and the result was not assured until the last man was retired.

Forestry was held scoreless in the first inning, while the Knox batsmen knocked out two runs. A barrage of hits in the second inning netted Forestry seven runs, while they held their opponents to six. Entering the third

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By A. C. C.

Coach "Red" Porter's puck-chasers have certainly run upon evil days. They have lost their last two starts at home and on neither night have they been able to place on the ice a complete line-up. "Skin" Dewar and Ferguson have been out for both games. Harley was sick for the tilt with the Fleas. Friday night "Red" Whitehead was laid up with quinsy and Williams fitted into the breach. Despite this lack of man-power the Blues have dished up sterling exhibitions and gave both the Sea Fleas and the Ports stiff arguments. Both of these teams were fully expected to administer a regular pasting to the luckless students. Instead, however, they met a team that doggedly stuck to their guns and played smart hockey. Unfortunately, slim crowds have attended these matches. The team deserves a better fate.

There is no denying the fact that Bill Stewart, centre and right winger with the seniors, has few equals in stick-handling and skating. And yet he has a tendency to overdo his stick-work to the detriment of his goal-scoring. Several times on Friday night he worked his way through the opposing wing line and continued to stick-handle his way through a powerful two-man defence. Frequently he was in a position for a good shot on goal, but he passed them up in an attempt to weave his way through the entire team to push the rubber past Moore in the Port Colborne citadel.

Freddie Murray has scored both of Varsity's goals in the last two games. The one against the Sea Fleas was a long lob from near centre ice which caught "Stuffy" Mueller napping. His tally against the Ports was a pretty effort. Despite the fact that the Blues have been unfortunate in their lack of relief men for the last two games, the present wing lines cannot be regarded as strong. "Midget" Lenahan, Bill Leake, Billy Bell and Bill Stewart are not of the robust type. They have to make up in speed and combination what they lack in weight. It is to the credit of these players that they stuck to their guns and never ceased to bore in on the Port Colborne net. And one of the pleasing features of their play was their back-checking.

The seniors are well supplied with capable defencemen in Dewar, Smillie, Whitehead and Williams. Dewar and Whitehead were out of Friday's game and when they return to the line-up either Whitehead or Smillie will probably be moved up to the forward line. At present Don Smillie is playing the best hockey of his career. He packs a wicked shot, rushes fast and plays a heady defensive game.

DIETITIANS DEFEAT JUNIOR U.C. 2-0

Opening Game of Women's Interfaculty Hockey Series

STICK-HANDLING IS WEAK

The women's interfaculty hockey series opened at Little Vic rink on Friday with a game between Household Science and Junior U.C. The score was 2-0 for Household Science despite the fact that they had held only one practice prior to the game. The first goal was scored in the beginning of the second period by Jessie Martin and at the end of the period Eleanor Sanson added the second tally for Household Science. Several off-sides slowed up the game and the stick-handling was poor, but was made up for by the enthusiasm of the players. U.C. put up a determined fight, but lacked the ability to get around the H.S. defencemen. Helen Gillies on the U.C. defence, turned in a good game and Eleanor Sanson at left wing played a fast game for the winners. Household Science—Goal, Helen Crosby; defence, Eleanor Sanson; subs, Jessie Martin, Shirley Scott. Jr. U.C.—Goal, Margaret Goodman; defence, Helen Gillies, Winnie Hughes; centre, Madeline Woollard; wings, Eva Crawford, Eca Crocker; subs, Helen McGibbon, Florence Rorke, Jean MacLeod.

inning one run down, Forestry went ahead by scoring three times on five hits, and Knox, although three men reached first base, were unable to score in their half.

Forestry—Howard, Townson, Uren, Choates, Patterson, Sewell, Acheson, Brisley, Jackson.

Knox College—Cuthbertson, Caslor, Weir, McGinn, Heddon, Wilson, MacDiarmid, Adie, Knowles.

VARSAITY SENIORS LOSE GAME TO PORT COLBORNE

was abed with quinsy, Dewar had not recovered from the injury he had received prior to Tuesday night's game, while Ferguson was still on the sick list. Harley returned to the line-up from a sick bed and played a nice game.

After two periods of goalless hockey Freddie Murray found the corner of the net for the initial counter of the game. The Ports weren't long in evening it up and two minutes later Mountain tallied on a neat pass from Horne. It was a tame game until these goals were scored, but the fans were treated to feverish hockey in the overtime periods. After 25 minutes of strenuous play Varsity weakened and Heximer found the twine after a pass from Wade. A minute later Morrill took a strange hold on the game when he beat Ames on a pretty play with Shannon. The Collegians battled desperately until the final gong, but Moore in the Port Colborne nets was unbeatable.

For the first two sessions the Varsity forwards failed to click and the passing and shooting was away off colour. Billy Bell missed a full quota of passes and shots on goal, but never stopped trying. Both teams tried many "hope" shots that were easily blocked by Ames and Moore. Don Smillie had the visitors worried every time he sallied down the boards to let drive his bullet-like shot. Near the close of the second frame Lenahan's stick caught Horne on the forehead and blood flowed from the wound. The Port Colborne defenceman was patched up during the intermission and returned to the fray the next period.

In the third act Freddie Murray lobbed the puck in the direction of the Ports' goal. Horne knocked the puck down and the Varsity forward came in fast and recovered. His shot found the upper corner of the cage. Play speeded up and Williams and Stewart were outguessed by the Sailor goalie. Mountain gave Ames a hot one to handle before he finally evened the count on a pass from Horne.

Varsity took the offensive at the start of the overtime session, but the efforts of Leake, Stewart, Harley, Williams and Smillie were not reward-

HART HOUSE SING-SONG A SPLENDID SUCCESS

Packing the East Common Room last Friday to sing such classics as "On the Road to Mandalay", "Among My Souvenirs", "The Presbyterian Cat" (to the tune of "Auld Lang Syne"), and "Kemo Kimo", two or three hundred vocalists demonstrated the increasing popularity of the weekly sing-songs at Hart House. "On the Road to Mandalay", by popular request was repeated, due to the desire of many of the singers to sing about a little girl whose "petticoat was yellow and whose little cap was green". The mellow voice of Mr. Ross Workman was heard at all times above the din as he enthusiastically led the singing. As usual a reverent rendition of the Blue and White ended the singing.

In Restoring Silk Pyjamas Found Hand In Quickly--Turn Around

By M. S. Stark

Dear Professor Knowitall:

I am considering the possibility of trying for a scholarship this year. What, in your opinion, should a Rhodes Scholar be?

—Thomas L., III Trinity.

Dear Thomas:

Anything but what one would imagine! If you wish to apply for a Rhodes Scholarship keep away from athletics. Don't go out with women. Smoke only in private. Wear a black tie and a size six hat. By some means let your professors know that you agree with them on the Draper-Coatsworth vs. Communism question.

—Professor Knowitall.

Dear Professor Knowitall:

I read the following ad. in a copy of "The Varsity": LOST—Silk nightgown on St. George Street, between Sussex and College Streets or in circulating library on St. George Street yesterday. Reward.

I found a silk nightgown behind a parked automobile on St. George St. the other night. What shall I do with it?

—Howard S.

Tie the nightgown in a neat parcel. Phone the advertiser. Ask her to what address she would like you to deliver the found article of foundation. When she opens the door hand it to her very gently. Don't smile. Turn around. Run!

I'm sorry I can't explain the circulating part of it.

—Professor Knowitall.

Dear Professor Knowitall: When I was standing in line at the Great Hall yesterday I heard someone behind me say, "He thinks he's a bargain because they call him Half-pint". He didn't mean me, did he?

—Frank T., I C & F

Dear Frank:

Oh no! Of course he didn't mean you. He meant your uncle.

—Professor Knowitall.

Dear Professor Knowitall:

In a recent issue of "The Varsity", I read the following advertisement: WANTED—One student, double front room, bathroom floor, hot water heating, two single beds, $2.50 per week. I don't understand what the advertiser wants. Will you please tell me?

—Barney H., IV U.C.

Dear Barney:

I must admit this is a complicated advertisement, especially for the student paper to publish. I really don't think the advertiser wants a student with all the specifications mentioned. I've never heard of anyone, student or otherwise, who has hot water heating. I've heard of someone having a vacant top story but not a double front room.

If I were you I wouldn't take the chance. Don't apply.

—Professor Knowitall.

Dear Professor Knowitall:

Last night I was sitting in the chessterfield with John and when conversation failed us, I began to sing the Stein Song. He looked at me with a grin from ear to ear and said I should have my voice trained.

Do you think he meant it or was he trying to be sarcastic?

—Margaret B., II Vie.

Dear Margaret:

Don't be alarmed. His intentions were good. He probably meant you should take your voice down to the depot and let a train run over it.

—Professor Knowitall.

If you have any question to which you seek an answer, in danger or doubt, do not hesitate to address your enquiries to Professor Knowitall, care of "The Varsity", Hart House.

KEDROFF QUARTET ACCLAIMED FROM COAST TO COAST

The Kedroff Quartet, the distinguished ensemble of Russian singers, which will appear here in concert on Saturday, January 24 at Massey Hall under the auspices of Russian Orthodox Church, is making its fourth triumphant tour of the United States and Canada this season. This unique organization, composed of Professor N. N. Kedroff, its leader and founder, formerly of the Imperial Conservatory of Petrograd; Professor C. N. Kedroff, formerly of the School of Musical Technique of Petrograd; and I. K. Denisoff and T. F. Kasakoff, both of the former Imperial Opera of Petrograd, came to America for the first time in January, 1928. In three seasons before the American public, filling over 190 concert engagements, the Kedroff Quartet has won a triumph which rivals their conquest of the music world of Europe.

"They sang in a way to justify Chalapin in calling them 'a miracle' and Koussevitzky in describing them as 'the most wonderful phenomenon of the vocal world to-day,'" wrote the New York Post after the debut in New York. On March 4th, 1928, by special invitation from Walter Damrosch, the Kedroffs appeared at Mecca Temple, New York, as soloists with the New York Symphony Orchestra. "They created nothing less than a furor," wrote the critic of the N.Y. World.

In March, 1929, the Kedroffs made their first tour of the Pacific Coast. "The Kedroff Quartet came to San Francisco unknown; they go away famous," exclaimed Redfern Mason in the San Francisco Examiner. High praise indeed! And such has been the reaction from each of the music critics from Coast to Coast.

New C.P.R. Station at Montreal

Costing well over $500,000, with a frontage of 234 feet, a depth of 87 and maximum height of 55 feet in three stories, the new Canadian Pacific Park Avenue station in the north end of Montreal, contract for which has just been let, is slated for completion by October of this year. It will be of combined classical and modern architecture of stone and marble construction and will be a very handsome addition to a part of the city which of late years has grown into one of the finest residential sections of any city in the Dominion. The new station will be approached through an ornamental garden which will be circled, anti-clockwise, by vehicular traffic and there will also be a side entrance from a new north-and-south street for passengers arriving or leaving by tramcars. It will afford additional service to residents of the northern sections of Montreal and is evidence of the ever-growing traffic on the railway from and to the city into the Place Viger station and to the Laurentian district. Photograph shows architect's drawing of the new station as it will appear when completed.

The executive of the Engineering Society are quite in favour of the idea, provided that a six-inch pipe line is installed between the new university and at least two of the principle Toronto breweries for the use of their president.

"I think that Varsity men are more broad-minded," said Miss D. M. Crawford, IV U.C. '.

NOTES ON THE PREVAILING INTELLIGENCE

"To what extent," demands the erudite Mail and Empire, "does the position of men employed on the staff of a state-supported university differ from that of civil servants? Yet the community would be staggered were a group of deputy ministers or other prominent employees at the Parliament Buildings to interfere in the present contest between the police and the free-speech advocates."

This striking analogy from the editorial columns of our renowned morning contemporary is one of the most naive comments on the prevailing intelligence that we have encountered to date. For a journalistic organ, supposedly catering to the thinking section of the second largest city in a theoretically civilized democracy, to come out in full daylight with a statement of this kind, is a phenomenon so fraught with éric possibilities that one is at first tempted to forget the potentialities for tragedy wrapped up in a public containing a leading element whose minds can reason thus.

If the professors of the University of Toronto are to be considered as a group of lesser satellites of the party machine which happens to have the moment's ascendancy in Queen's Park, then the sooner this institution drops the term "university" the better. If the community has reached the point where it can be "staggered" by the spectacle of a group of citizens in the act of reaffirming rights for opposing which kings were beheaded centuries ago, then the sooner the Dominion of Canada ceases to pose as a democracy, the better in the interests of accuracy and common honesty.

The brilliant Sir John Aird has advised the professors to "stick to their work instead of getting mixed up" in what the Mail refers to as "the so-called free speech controversy".

If the gentleman had wished to impress upon the public that he is possessed of a high-school mind incapable of grasping the historical position of a university in the community, he could not have chosen a more direct or more effective way.

Both of our morning contemporaries choose to belittle the importance of the free speech issue. The Globe smugly speaks of the "undue importance" being "attached to the cause". When it has become necessary for a body of leading citizens to protest against abuses which have grown up in the face of certain inalienable rights won by the bloodshed of generations, and when leading newspapers of the community feel themselves justified in telling these citizens to mind their own business, the term "undue importance" as applied to the case becomes an anomaly which only a prostituted intellect could tolerate.

Any newspaper that could permit to appear in its editorial columns an allusion to the recent free-speech protest of the sixty-eight as "manifestly a brief for the Communists", is not only perpetrating a gross libel, but has constituted itself a serious menace to the well-being of the community.

The oft-repeated accusation that the opinion of university professors is not to be taken seriously because the thinking of professors "is likely to be academic and theoretical rather than practical" is too patently the verdict passed upon our first-class minds by a coterie of time-serving nonentities to be worthy of considered comment.

Correspondence

Thieves!

"The Varsity" has received the following letter from N. H. Shaw, President of 3T3, U.C.:

The Editor, "The Varsity".
Dear Sir:

This letter is to give notice that the authorities at the Women's Union have informed our executive that during the University College second year class party of Thursday, Jan. 11, several articles disappeared. These were prized by the Union not so much for their actual value as for the associations attached to them and their immediate return by those who took them would be appreciated.

Apart from the awkward position in which this occurrence puts the University College second year as a whole, a position which they may not deserve since persons of other years and faculties were also present, it is an unpleasant thought that functions cannot be held at a University institution without this sort of thing taking place.

It is to be hoped that an immediate return of the articles in question will be forthcoming so that an unsavoury memory may be at least partially wiped out. Yours very sincerely,

N. H. SHAW,
Pres. 3T3 U.C.

The merits and demerits of the modern press will come up for examination in a debate between the Oratorical and Iconoclast Clubs in St. Michael's College to-morrow night.

The Iconoclast Club will be represented by E. J. O'Hara and W. J. O'Meara and the Oratorical by T. P. O'Connor and R. Miller.

With the Theatres

For the benefit of our readers, pictures are graded as follows in this column: Average (0), below average (-1) or (-2), above average (1) or (2).

NOTE—Playing time indicated by second bracket.

Loew's.

The New Moon. — (1) (-1.40). The songs of the original production in an entirely new production, more or less an adaptation of the Rogue Song. Good cast with Tibbett and Grace Moore for voice, Roland Young for comedy, and Adolfe Menjou for contrast. Cut obviously in one place and sometimes the music is too loud, but a good picture if you haven't seen the original. The shorts are poor.

Note—Two songs and the name of this picture are taken from the stage success of two years ago. Otherwise there is no connection at all between the two.

Imperial.

Sin Takes a Holiday.—(0) (1.15). This picture is not about sin, but about a marriage of convenience that turns out to be a real romance after all. Constance Bennett is the secretary who marries her boss to save him from female wolves. Basil Rathbone is the perfect gentleman whom she unconsciously attracts when her husband is blind to her charms. It is all very smooth and quite interesting. The two players above mentioned are the stars, though of course Zasu Pitts is excellent.

Shea's.

Renegades.—(1-) (1.34). The French Foreign Legion back again only the costumes are dirtier than in Morocco. A real tragedy melodrama, with the four heroes, the heroine, and lots of others all dying. Many appear to be in the throes of death, and treachery is rife on all sides. Warner Baxter makes a convincing legionnaire; Myrna Loy, an objectionable and tempting heroine; and Noah Beery alternates between high comedy and heavy dramatics. The w.k. Mister Shean is here in the vaudeville show, but has nothing new to offer.

Tivoli.

Charley's Aunt.—(1) (1.24). This is very funny because Charles Ruggles is very funny. No one else in the cast is particularly good. Most of them are unknown. But Mr. Ruggles as Charley's Aunt—from Brazil—where the nuts come from—is almost as good as anyone who has ever played the part on stage or screen during the fifty years that this English comedy classic has been going the rounds.

Uptown.

Madam Satan.—(0) (1.30). Daring, Startling, Amazing—stupid, illogical, cheap. A storm hits a dirigible where-in at a wild modern party a husband is unwittingly making love to his own despised wife. (Reminders of Hell's Angels). A bedroom scene, a bathroom (shower) scene, a compromised wife scene, and several other well-known incidents. Costumes are suggestive. Direction by the ever lavish Cecil B. de Mille. Roland Young is the star of the show though he is not billed as such. Lillian Roth and Kay Johnson are also present.

SCIENCE ABANDONED BY PASS STUDENTS

A change has been made in the requirements of the curriculum for students who, this year, entered second year pass with senior matriculation standing. In previous years, students who have not obtained standing in a science in Upper School, have been required to carry a condition in General Science.

However, with the new regulations decided upon for the pass course of next year, the Senate resolved that the regulation could be put into force immediately and so relieve a number of poor unfortunate from carrying an extra subject throughout this term. Fifty-nine students of the Faculty of Arts are the grateful beneficiaries of the change.

The Fraxellano of the University of Toronto held a meeting Wednesday in their club rooms. Many interesting suggestions were made regarding the social activities for this season. It was decided that a supper and dance be held at the Royal York Hotel.

GIRLS STUCK UP SAYS ADOLESCENT

By telling an ingenious fable, Mr. Ketchum has been able to find out the names of all the boys' associates, and to grade them in popularity, according to the exacting social standards of the street. Up to the ages of nine or ten girls' names are often present on the lists, but then they are suddenly dropped. The only explanation to this that Mr. Ketchum could draw from the fidgeting youths was very evasive. One boy said, "Aw, they're too stuck up."

JUNIOR HOCKEYISTS MEET PARKDALE C.C. AT THE ARENA TO-NIGHT

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

Fran Crooks, III St. Hilda's, was elected captain of the intercollegiate hockey team at the practice held yesterday. Miss Crooks is one of the outstanding players on the team, and her work on defence is a feature of almost all the games. She is one of the fastest skaters on the squad, and with her to lead them the team should go very far.

A meeting will be held to-day to arrange the schedule for the city league basketball. Ruth Harrison, manager of the intercollegiate, and Pat Palmer, manager of the intermediate outfit, will represent Varsity at this meeting. Miss Kaubach, of Margaret Eaton, will look after the M.E.S. end of it.

Usually the city league is composed of four teams: Varsity intercollegiate, Varsity intermediates, Varsity Grads and Margaret Eaton School. This term it is rather doubtful whether the Grads will enter a team or not, since for the last couple of years they have had considerable difficulty in fielding a team.

Group 2 of the interfaculty hockey schedule will swing into action to-day when Senior Vic take on Senior U.C. at 6 o'clock at the arena. Both these teams are reputed to have strong squads and the result should be an interesting struggle.

When interviewed yesterday at the Lillian Massey pool, Mr. Cochrane, the swimming instructor, was very enthusiastic over prospects for an exciting and keenly contested meet. There is not a wealth of new material as yet, but on the other hand, there may be girls who prefer to practice at other pools in the city. After all, the L.M. pool is scarcely suitable for a large number, it being without doubt one of the smallest pools in the city.

The diving seems to be showing a remarkable improvement in the last couple of years. Last year was the first time that Varsity produced much in the way of class in this department, and this term promises to be a repetition of last.

Betty Edwards is showing particularly good form in practices as well as actual meets. She takes part in a great many meets in Ontario and Dominion competition, and already has a number of records and medals. Margot MacDonald and Bea Symons are both showing up well in practice.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By De C. H. R.

The University of Toronto O.H.A. junior hockey team faces to-night their "crucial contest", as sporting editors for generations back have been known to say.

Not that there is any doubt about the strength of the Blue team as compared to the aggregation from Parkdale. Last week Coach Sullivan's boys fought the group leaders in a battle royal that stretched to thirty minutes of overtime before it was called as a tie game. The juniors have recovered from that gruelling contest, and what they intend to do to the Parkdale Canoe Club hockeyists in the tilt to-night is nobody's business!

The Blue and White team will be out for blood, and no mistake! In the first place they have to win from now on in order to stay in the running, and in the second place Parkdale's only win of the season has been over Varsity, so they have that feud to settle.

The preceding performance involves the teams on the first and second rounds, namely, T.C.C. and Marlboros, so we need say no more. Action in capital letters is to be found in the U. of T. Arena to-night. Take heed then!

The first Jennings Cup contest was played yesterday afternoon, when Pharmacy blanked Forestry in a close game. Thanks to the capable direction of Ross Workman, the hockey cushions are in good shape, despite the mild spell and heavy fall of snow. With decent weather the end of the week should see the schedule running full swing. Lack of space prevented the printing of the lengthy hockey schedule previously, but it appears in to-day's issue. Team managers should make sure that games are played as nearly as possible on schedule, as the open-air hockey season is none too long.

U.C. BASKETEERS DOUBLE SCORE ON TRINITY FIVE

University College senior basketeers secured a 12 to 6 win from Trinity in yesterday's interfaculty fixture in Hart House. The game was a slow, low-scoring affair, both teams playing a tight defensive game. The unique feature of the game was the 2 to 1 score at half time in favour of the Anglians. In the second half the U.C. eaglers had an edge, McDonnell Broughton, Mayor, Garden and Uppeche, netting baskets. McDonnell was the best of the U.C. forwards, U.C.—Forwards, Keith (1), McDonnell (2); centre, Broughton (2); guards, Fillmore, Mayor (2); spares, Garden (2), Sobel (1), Uppeche (2). Trinity—Forwards, Barker, Rapsey (2); centre, Scott; guards, Berwick, Ingram (4); spares, Bell, Wilkinson, Armstrong, Skey.

RETURNED FROM FRANCE, RELATES EXPERIENCES

In lieu of the guest speaker, who was unable to address the Victoria College French Club at Wymillwood last night, Miss Connie Lewis, a club member, gave an amusing account of her adventures as an exchange student in France three years ago. After two vocal solos in French by Mrs. Dow, the meeting broke up into groups for conversation and discussion.

WODDMEN GD SCORELESS IN TILT WITH DRUGGISTS

Pharmacy downed Forestry 2 to 0 last night in the first game of the interfaculty hockey series. Good hockey was impossible on account of the poor ice conditions. The game early developed into a real shiny match with all kinds of excitement. The gladiators put everything they had into the game and it was nip and tuck all the way.

The first two periods were scoreless. Reynolds and Platt displayed some neat stickhandling but could not bulge the twine. About half way through the last period McQuillan opened the scoring by batting in a rebound during a scrimmage in front of the net. A few seconds later Ward duplicated making the score 2-0. Forestry pressed hard for the rest of the game, but Pharmacy managed to protect their lead.

Leslie and Platt were the pick of the Forestry squad, while Reynolds, Robinson and McQuillan shone for Pharmacy.

Forestry—Patterson, Simpson, Leslie, Platt, Walkom, Acheson, Choate, Beatty, Young.

Pharmacy—Peacock, Carreau, Munroe, McQuillan, Robinson, Reynolds, Ward, Alderson, Moore, Lyons.

Juniors Must Win Remaining Encounters to Enter Playoffs

STAND THIRD IN GROUP

Varsity enter the last round of the Big Four junior hockey series to-night at the "T" Arena when they tackle Parkdale Canoe Club in the second game of a double header, involving T.C.C. and Marlboros in the initial contest.

Varsity are up against the feat of winning practically every remaining game in order to get into the playoffs and to-night's game affords an opportunity of gaining two points on the pace-setting Toronto Canoe Club. Varsity's last effort was a thirty-minute tie game against the group leaders and after a good rest since then should provide a thrilling battle to-night. Parkdale and Varsity have met twice before this season, each team coming off with one victory. The students won the opener by 9-1, but lost the second game by 7-4, so to-night's fracas will definitely settle matters between the teams. The Blue and White will put up a good fight before relinquishing the group honours they won last year.

The standing of the clubs is as follows:

	PWLT FAPts
T.C.C.	6 4 1 1 25 12 9
Marlboros	6 4 2 0 27 19 8
Varsity	6 2 3 1 23 21 5
Parkdale C. C.	6 1 5 0 13 36 2

PHARMACY SWATSTERS DROP GAME TO DENTS

Dents downed Pharmacy by 13-8 in a fast interfaculty baseball game last night in the big gym at Hart House. Due to the late arrival of the Dents' team the game lasted only three innings, and Pharmacy is considering a protest on this account.

Dents went on the rampage in the first of the third innings, tallying eight runs in that period. The struggle was featured by the splendid pitching of Mason for Dents.

Dents—Mason, Horton, Gardiner, Mitchell, Walden, Backus, Golden, Dore, Hackett, Bancroft.

Pharmacy—Walton, Cuthbert, Craw, Wilcox, Helmer, Allen, Johnston, Garinger, Johnson.

FACULTY THEORISTS, SAYS HONOURABLE E. A. DUNLOP

 the official government viewpoint of the editorial.

"In England professors certainly take an interest and an important part in political affairs," stated Professor E. J. Urwick, head of Political Science.

"At the London School of Economics, part of the University of London, four of my colleagues took a very active part in politics. Lee Smith was a member of parliament, one was a frequent contributor to the Manchester Guardian on political events, and it is quite common for professors to take part in any political issue. No one ever sees any reason why they shouldn't and there has never been any complaint."

"A professor has an outlook and an interest in the world at large and the article in the Mail and Empire is not right on that account. As head of the department I don't know whether my staff are free traders or not, and it would not be right for them to be political advocates of it. From a social and theoretical standpoint it is quite logical."

"I think it wise for men of the university to refrain from opinions on a great controversial issue, but some are too important to keep quiet and just about the most important is free speech," said Dr. H. M. Cassidy of the economics department.

Miss I. M. Biss and Dr. D. M. McGregor, of the staff in economics, also considered that professors had duties as citizens and had a right to express their viewpoint.

COEDS CONSIDER MEN SELFISH AND STINGY THINK THEM PUPPETS

Are Young and Inexperienced, but Are More Ambitious Than Other Men

THRILLING CONVERSATION

Men Should be Supporting Their Parents Instead of Taking Girls Out

What is the matter with men? The co-eds are not afraid to explain, although many of them are afraid to have their names quoted—"for fear of being dropped".

"In the first place," Isabel Jordan, II U.C., told "The Varsity", "men show a surprising lack of originality. If they are so half-witted as only to take girls to dances no wonder co-eds cost them money. There are lots of other inexpensive ways a man can find to entertain a girl. It is the unintelligent coupling that is costly, because such people have no ability to do anything but spend money. It follows, therefore, that the most attractive women are not the most expensive, because they are not the most dumb."

Miss Jordan's feeling was that women are tired of boring, well-dressed young men who only want a woman for decorative purposes. "Women," she said, "appreciate a man for his character and achievements, but there are darn few men who regard women in that light. They are selfish and they are tight-wads," she concluded.

S.P.S. SHOULD MOVE MED STUDENTS THINK

One Student Thought it Good if They Moved to Africa or South America

REFORMATORY UPLIFTING

"I really have nothing against Guelph, but I would suggest that S.P.S. be moved there soon," said Arthur Watt, III Meds, when questioned by "The Varsity" as to his feelings in the matter of the rumored removal of S.P.S. to Guelph.

H. Sniderman, III Meds, suggested that it would be better if S.P.S. moved to South America—or better, to Africa.

Among other Med students there were plenty of opinions, including: "If they left it might be good for the windows around here." "Well, it would be all right if they would take their buildings with them." "Yes, they should move. The morals of this university are too bad entirely."

While on the subject of morals, another embryo doctor remarked: "Have a heart. I know some nice girls in Guelph. Anyway, what grudge has S.P.S. got against Guelph?"

One suggestion was that the reformatory in Guelph might have an uplifting influence on the Engineers.

When the reporter made some inquiries as to the absence of a snowball fight this year the explanation given was: "Well, we hate to walk over these fellows like that. It's much nicer when we have some opposition."

The only Medette interviewed admitted that such a move would be rather hard on the girls in Guelph. "I suppose there would be a demoralizing influence," she said.

CONNOR CALLS CIVIL LIBERTY ONLY FARCE

Speaker Amazes Audience with Accounts of Denial of Justice

PLEAS FOR JUDGMENT

Claiming that civil liberty as far as Toronto is concerned is a thing of the past, Tom Connor, Secretary of the Ontario Labour Party, recounted incidents of what he terms "denial of justice" in the courts of this city which left an audience of Political Science and Commerce and Finance in incredulous amazement yesterday afternoon. He scorned the present censorship and lack of freedom of discussion which he claims prevails here as defeating its own ends.

Mr. Connor had been invited to speak to the third year students in the Labour Problems course some time ago, it was learned, and it was stated to be mere coincidence that he came at a time when the subject of free speech is on everybody's tongue. He went as far back as the beginning of the century and the days of Robert Goulay and from there recounted the grievances of the working classes in Ontario and the agitation which led to their partial removal.

Since the Great War he claims that a strict censorship and arbitrary actions on the part of the police commissioners have made civil liberty a farce. He stated that at one time, so strict a censorship prevailed, that Plato's "Republic" was barred from Ontario. He recounted another instance when a man was saved from three months' imprisonment for sedition when the court realized that his alleged "crime" consisted of quoting passages from Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg address!

The speaker claimed it is impossible for the Labour Party to hold political meetings in Toronto save in the Labour temple.

Mr. Connor pleaded for a real study on the part of the audience in the present case of the Fellowship of Reconciliation before they formed judgment.

Son of the Late Provincial Secretary in Whitney and Hearst Governments

CAUSED BY GAS FUMES

Graduate of U.T.S. and R.M.C.; Came to Varsity in 1922

Ronald (Ronnie) B. McPherson, one of the greatest football players and coaches Varsity ever produced, was found dead in his car in his garage yesterday morning. Chief Coroner Dr. M. M. Crawford, who conducted the autopsy yesterday afternoon, declared that his death was the result of carbon monoxide poisoning by the fumes from the exhaust of the car. The body was found shortly after 8 o'clock yesterday morning when a maid of the house entered the garage. The garage doors were open, and although the motor was cold, the ignition had not been turned off. His death comes as a great shock not only to his immediate family, but a vast circle of university and business friends.

Ronnie McPherson was the son of the late Hon. W. D. McPherson, provincial secretary in the Whitney and Hearst governments and sometime Grand Master of the Orange Order. The deceased was in his 30th year, and is survived by his wife, his daughter Edith, aged two years, four brothers and two sisters. He was educated at the University of Toronto Schools and graduated from the Royal Military College. He attended St. Paul's Anglican Church and was a member of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club and the University Club.

Ronnie came from R.M.C. in 1922. He tried out with the Orphans and his great ability on the gridiron earned him a place on the intercollegiate team under Dr. Jack Maynard. That year Les Blackwell was manager of the team. The following year he left Varsity and went into business. However, he continued to play football and starred with the Argonauts of 1923. During a game in Hamilton he suffered a fractured skull. Despite this most serious injury he finished the game. However, the injury forced him to conclude a brilliant career as a player. In 1924 he coached the Varsity juniors and led the team to an intercollegiate title. The following season (Continued on page 3)

BLUE JUNIORS LOSE TO PARKDALE 5 TO 4 IN HECTIC STRUGGLE

ROUGH GAME

Varsity Stages Sensational Rally in Third Period and Scores Four

By A. A. Brant

After being on the short end of a 5 to 0 score, and with but minutes to play the Varsity juniors staged one of the most sensational and sustained rallies in the history of the group to draw within one counter of the desperately fighting Canoeists.

Five minutes to go and one goal down, Lynch grabbed the puck, rushed down the ice, circled wide of the defence and got caught in behind the Parkdale goal. A scramble followed in front of the Parkdale nets, out of which McPherson got away a clear shot which went out in front of the nets. To all appearances McPherson had driven the rubber past Carey, but the goal umpire did not press the button and then some tense moments took place. Players swarmed about the goal ump. Students surrounded him, the referee questioned him, but he was adamant. Goal umpires were changed and the game went on as before, the Blue team rushing on mass to be met by flying bodies and deft sticks. And thus for the second time this season the Blue juniors have met defeat through questionable decisions. But though defeated their desperate fight will long be remembered by hockey fans.

The game started off listlessly with Parkdale having much the better of the play and outskating the Blue team. Farrant tallied for the P.C.C. when he picked up a loose puck and scored 3 minutes after the game began.

In the second period P.C.C. started right to work and walked through a demoralized Varsity front line backed by a poor defence who were continually outguessed. Farrant tallied a few minutes after the period began when he shot from a seemingly impossible angle. Three minutes later McDonald split the defence to score and Johnston repeated on a similar (Continued on Page 3)

The sixty-eight professors who last week publicly protested against the recent stand of the police department on the subject of free speech received the overwhelming support of the majority of their colleagues who had any opinion at all on the subject in yesterday's personal poll of the faculty and staff of the University conducted by "The Varsity".

Working on a list of the 754 professors, lecturers, research assistants and administrative officials listed in the official directory of the University, "The Varsity" succeeded in reaching all but 234 by telephone, or personal visit. Of those who could not be located yesterday, seventy-nine were in the faculties of Medicine or Dentistry. Most of these are city doctors and part-time assistants at the University. A considerable percentage of the missing ninety-two in the arts faculties are on leave of absence.

A feature of the poll was the refusal of 219 members of the staff to give any opinion at all, though each one was assured that no names were to be used. The common excuses were lack of interest, lack of knowledge of the subject, or disapproval of the action of "The Varsity" in conducting the poll.

To-morrow every student in the University will have an opportunity to answer for himself the same question which the faculty answered yesterday. Ballot boxes will be in each college from 11.30 a.m. until 2.30 p.m. and an effort will be made to secure an expression of opinion from every student. Full details will appear in to-morrow's issue of "The Varsity".

LAW CLUB WILL HEAR CECIL WRIGHT SPEAK

Subject of the Next Meeting to be "Present Tendencies in Law"

CHARLES MORSE SPOKE

Interesting sidelights on developments within the past few years in the law governing civilized nations are expected to-night at the meeting of the University Law Club. Dr. Cecil Wright of Osgoode Hall is coming up to address the club on the subject, "Present Tendencies in Law".

The recently formed club got off to a flying start over the holidays when Dr. Chas. Morse, acting-judge of the Exchequer Court, spoke on "The Profession of Law". Marked enthusiasm is being shown by the seventy-odd members ever since the club was formed and this was heightened yesterday by the announcement that Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., one of the most prominent of Canadian counsel, has consented to act as Honorary President.

Weary Reporters Garner Grains of Wit From Chaff of Dons' Remarks by Phone

Heard at a busy telephone during the professional poll:

"Free speech includes the right of silence." Heard frequently.

"Yes, I believe in free speech as long as it is controlled."

O—O

Another popular number: "I haven't read the articles about it. I don't know anything about it. I have no opinion."

One bright lad gains fleeting fame with, "I've read the headlines but I'm against free speech."

A canny interviewee took one reporter's name and address with an eye to prosecution if her name were dragged out into the public view.

The Physics Department was for the most part preoccupied or enigmatic.

and in one case a bit ungrateful, hinting that "The Varsity" would hear a bit of free speech if it lingered much longer.

O—O

Meds were emphatic and caustic, even when they had no opinion to air.

O—O

The classic undoubtedly was: "I am in favour of free speech, but not here."

O—O

"If you asked a lawyer that question he would charge you $500. Have you $500?"

O—O

"I am busy—having my lunch—don't bother me—please!"

"Are you sure you're not using names?"

"THE MUTE INGLORIOUS"

The most striking fact which emerges from "The Varsity's" poll of the Staff of the University of Toronto on the question of agreement with the original sixty-eight free-speech advocates, is that—despite the definite assurance given to all those interviewed that no names would be quoted in connection with the poll—219 dons definitely refused to commit themselves to any opinion on the subject.

To insist that these eleven-score mutes remained in the secure shades of silence through lack of knowledge of the case, or lack-of interest, or through disapprobation of the entire idea of the poll, is merely to reintroduce upon the scene the much abused and bedraggled red herring. If any one of these 219 is sincere in claiming one, or all, of these grounds for his silence, our only comment is that he is constituting himself a sorry example of the vitiating effects which the higher learning can have upon a creature endowed by nature for a minor clerkship or a position as assistant soda-jerker.

The interpretation which is going to be put upon the silence of these 219 members of the University Staff is simply that the persons who refused to give a straightforward answer to a straightforward question did so because they did not have the moral courage to back up their convictions with an unequivocal statement. It may be argued that years of association with the academic atmosphere unsuits the individual for the voicing of an unequivocal reply to any question. But such a defence as this cannot be urged for the persons who banged down the receiver the moment they discovered that at the other end of the wire was a press representative with an interrogation point. Nor can it be urged for those who talked at length to the press representative, either pro or con on the subject, only to take flight before the conversation was over and insist that under no circumstances did they wish to be considered as having any possible opinion on the matter. And these two groups constitute all but a handful of the 219.

It looks strangely as if the 219 were thinking of their jobs, their bread and butter. They have heard ominous rumblings from the direction of Board of Trade dinners and the columns of the morning press. They are scuttling for shelter.

The mildew of discretion still lies heavy upon us.

POLL

Well over a thousand telephone calls were necessary to complete "The Varsity's" poll of the University Staff. This was done by students within the space of twelve hours. The Editor believes he is justified in feeling an element of pride in this performance of his editorial and reportorial staff. He takes this occasion of voicing his appreciation.

At the same time, the job is still but half finished. To-morrow the students of this University are to be given their chance to express their views on the subject at issue. There is no denying that the results of this dual poll are being watched with the keenest interest by people outside the University. We are appealing to all students to lend their co-operation to make to-morrow's balloting as complete and authentic an expression of opinion as it is possible to obtain in a poll of this type.

INTELLIGENTSIA

Anyone who is still labouring under the delusion that the human animal is a rational being is advised to disabuse himself by a careful perusal of the correspondence columns of The Globe, where, under such headings as "Hot Shots for Professors", the intelligent readers of this holy journal indulge themselves in some of the finest examples of congenial bonheadedness that ever turned an editorial stomach.

PEROLD REFUSES PETITION NINETY STUDENTS SIGNED

A petition signed by ninety members of the third year Pass Economics class was laid aside by Mr. Perold yesterday afternoon. The gist of the document was that the notes which the class spends forty-five minutes of class time, twice a week, copying, be mimeographed, so as to leave the hour for discussion.

"We could learn in ten minutes the amount we get from copying dictated notes for an hour. Why waste time so?" was one co-ed's remark.

Art, Music and Drama

Organ Recital

The university fortnightly organ recitals in Convocation Hall were resumed yesterday, when Dr. E. C. MacMillan, Dean of the Faculty of Music, delivered a splendid program to a large audience.

Bach's "Passacaglia and Fugue in C Minor", a complex musical structure of varying moods in twenty variations, was given admirable treatment. Dr. MacMillan played the piece with its bewildering interweavings of subordinate and principal themes through to a conclusion in which the thought ended broadly, victoriously, simply. Mendelssohn's "Sonata No. 1 in F Minor" opened the program. Commencing with an expressive air on somewhat classic lines, there followed the Lutheran Chorale. The adagio movement was especially fine, in which a mystic recitative was alternated with broad and sonorous chords and a prominent pedal. Then, the organist developed the themes to an imposing climax of tonal avalanches in F major.

Dr. MacMillan treated Cesar Franck's "Chorale" with unusual technical ability and complete sympathy. In the A major section, there is a seriousness, typical of Franck, that occasionally inclines towards monotony. Dr. MacMillan kept a progression in the development of the chorale melody, that prevented this. An air from Handel's "Water Music" was evidence of what a popular appeal this suite has. Daquin's "Le Coucou" was delightful. The organist gave this compact, definite, embellished, tuneful movement a significant contrapuntal character.

Vierne's "Cradle Song" and a movement from Widor's "Fourth Symphony" completed the program. A clear-cut, well-balanced modernism was cleverly shown in the latter number by Dr. MacMillan.

Undergraduate Manifesto

The Editor, "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:

It has always been the habit of undergraduates at this university to sit back and laugh heartily and healthily at the peculiar antics of the pettifogging politicians of the city of Toronto. It is rather refreshing to listen to the nasty remarks that the "leaders" of the community bandy around during a municipal election. Political tactics in this city give the lie to that uninformed man who imagines that the political invective of an earlier school has passed away.

Nevertheless, it evidently was an unfortunate accident that placed this university in a city which, though adult in stature, is still pre-eminently juvenile in mentality. We undergraduates accept our geographical position, in all ordinary circumstances with a gesture of resignation. But in our minds is a definitely formed feeling that we merely tolerate the city of Toronto.

We are under no obligation to that city, and will not accept from it interference in a sphere which is, intellectually, beyond the scope of the city intelligence. Among the few citizens of this city whom we respect our professors figure in the most prominent place. And when a large section of the professional body take part in a discussion of a principle, and when the aforementioned "leaders" of the community, assisted by a group of daily newspapers who ought to know better, direct their aforementioned "nasty remarks" at that section, we, the undergraduates of the University of Toronto, resent it in the highest degree.

The whole matter sprang from the city policy of the suppression of Communist propaganda. A group of prominent men publicly objected to this policy on principle. Finally, the discussion reached the ranks of the professional body. Now to accuse such men of being Communists is manifestly puerile. Knowing the city of Toronto, as we do from disinterested observation, we look for a deeper cause.

This is the conclusion to which we must come. The hierarchy of the city of Toronto could not stand the continuous criticism of a group of well-informed, influential and high-minded men. The present outcry is merely intended to prevent any further cogent criticism of city politics from men whose knowledge and principles are feared. It is a municipal agitation with this end in view: namely, to make it so hot for the "68" that Queen's Park will be forced to prevent any further manifestations of disapproval regarding city policy, in the future. It is a test case and we accept the challenge.

The city "Fathers" called this discussion of freedom of speech "Communism under a very thin veil". But we suspect that, lurking in the background of their zealous maintenance

TYING GOAL DISALLOWED AND P.C.C. DEFEATS VARSITY 5 TO 4

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

At a meeting between representatives of both Varsity basketball teams and Margaret Eaton last night, a tentative schedule for the city league was drawn up. It appears in to-day's issue. All the games will be over by the time the intercollegiate take their trip to Queen's during the last week in February.

The seniors will practice to-day at 6 o'clock, and the intermediates at 5. Because of some function at U.T.S. on Friday night, neither team will be able to have their customary practice. It is too bad for them to have to miss any workouts, because neither team is in such good shape that they can afford to miss any.

The intermediates will leave on the one o'clock train on Saturday for Hamilton, where they are scheduled to play the Normal Grads at 4.30. The game will be one of a tripe-header.

A meeting of the representatives of the three hockey teams which plan to enter teams in the city league will be held to-day at 5.30. This meeting was supposed to have convened last week at the same time, but the Varsity representative was the only one who showed up, so it had to be postponed. It is to be hoped that the others take the trouble to remember this week.

I think that those of the student body that have shown by recent activities in the university, that they are quite able to think for themselves, owe a voicing of support to the petition in which those members of the University's staff so courageously made known their disapproval of the policy of the Toronto Police Commission. Would it not be proper to suggest that the students take some action and prove to those who have carried the protest till now, that the students of the university are willing to openly support them?

SR. MEDS OVERCOME PHARMACY IN CAGE FIXTURE YESTERDAY

Due to Good Defence Pharmacy Held Their Opponents in First Half

HOFFMAN, VINCENT STAR

Meds Started Scoring Early but Lead Disappeared at Half Time

Showing fine scoring ability and good team play, Sr. Meds overcame Pharmacy, 23-15, in an interfaculty basketball game yesterday afternoon in Hart House gym. Due to a good defence, Pharmacy were able to hold their opponents even during the first half, although most of the play was in their territory.

Meds started the scoring early, but their slight lead disappeared when Vincent and Hoffman of Pharmacy scored three fine baskets, two by the first mentioned and one by the latter. When the half-time whistle blew the score stood at 8 points each.

For the winners, Garbe with eight points, and Hurwitz with six, were the high scorers. Hoffman and Vincent were the best of the Pharmacy men and Molst played a good game on defence.

Sr. Meds—Garbe, Jessel, Hurwitz, Hiller, Alpert, Sinclair.

Pharmacy—Molst, Hoffman, Vincent, Walsh, Skunks, Fox, Cameron, Russell, Brawnd.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By A. C. C.

The untimely death of Ronnie McPherson, coach of Varsity football teams in 1926, 1927 and 1929, comes as a great shock to his family and to the host of friends he made during his only two brief stints. Cut off in the very prime of his life, his passing is most sad and to the many friends with whom he came in contact, those who knew him as "Ronnie", it is a distinct loss. Quick to make friends, he was affectionately looked up to by his team-mates and those who played under his leadership. He lent his unique knowledge of his favourite sport in unstinted service to the university which will ever be grateful to him for taking over the coaching duties following the death of Jimmie Douglas in 1929. One incident in his career as a player reveals the sterling qualities which have endeared him to his friends. During a game in Hamilton in 1923 he fractured his skull. In spite of an injury which is most serious, he finished the game!

We feel that we are voicing the sentiments of all when we extend our sincere sympathy to his family in this hour of bereavement.

Staging one of the most thrilling comebacks ever witnessed at the Varsity Arena, Frank Sullivan's juniors came within a goal of tying Parkdale Canoe Club. The Blues went into the third period holding the goose-egg of a 5-0 score. Then they tallied four goals which had to be counted because the puck stayed in the net. Then came the disputed counter. This is how we saw it from the Press box. McPherson secured the puck in front of the Parkdale nets, a little to his right. His shot found the upper left hand corner of the twine. The rubber bounced out about six feet directly in front of the net. McPherson who took it for granted that it was a goal and the rest of the U. of T. players, immediately stopped playing. The goal judge didn't turn on the red light. The students protested and Referee Ernie Wortley had a conference with the judge. He insisted that the puck did not go in. After a few minutes of squabbling Referee Wortley faced the puck off to the side of the Parkdale nets.

Late last night Coach Frank Sullivan stated that it would be necessary to see T. A. Reed, secretary of the Athletic Association, before it could be decided whether a protest would be submitted to the O.H.A. Ross Workman and several others who were behind the P.C.C. goal emphatically declare that the puck did go in, and they are unanimous in their description of the play. The goal judge had no right to his position. He is handicapped by heavy glasses which means poor eye-sight. It is high time that the O.H.A. appoints the goal umpires instead of having mere youths handling this responsible job and chosen by the respective teams. We feel that Varsity should protest the decision whether it can be won or not. A similar decision was handed to the locals in the game with Marlboros. It is time that the university rebelled against the discriminations against her teams.

The game last night was one of the dirtiest we have seen in some years. And the blame can be laid at the door of the referee. He was altogether too lax. When a player hacks an opponent with his stick and gets off with a minor penalty, it is time that the O.H.A. used discretion in its appointment of referees. It is not our policy to criticize referees because we do some of it ourselves. But such glaring mistakes as were made last night are unwarranted. Even Parkdale supporters admitted that their players were getting away with "murder".

The interfaculty swimming meet and the probable finals of the City League water polo schedule will take place in the Hart House Natatorium to-night. West End and Varsity are tied for the league leadership and will battle for the supremacy.

TRINITY COLLEGE LOSE TO ST. MIKE'S

St. Michael's Scored One in First and the Rest in Fifth

SCORE WAS 4 TO 3

St. Michael's College squeezed out a victory over Trinity by the narrow margin of 4 to 3 in an interfaculty baseball game played in the big gym at Hart House yesterday.

St. Mike's tallied once in the first inning and garnered the remainder in the fifth. Trinity scored all their runs in the fifth. All the other innings were scoreless.

Kehoe, Fullerton and O'Connor were best for St. Mike's, while Simmers, Perrin and Nicholls stood out on the Trinity line-up.

St. Mike's—J. Ryan, Hannah, Kehoe, Fullerton, O'Connor, Finnigan, F. Ryan, Mallon, Johnston, Dore, Robert.

Trinity—Low, Mann, Simmers, Perrin, Cuttill, MacIntosh, Hamilton, Little, Nicholls, Coleman.

University College women who attended Harbord, North Toronto, Riverdale or Humberdale Collegiate institutions, were entertained at tea yesterday by Miss Kilpatrick at the University College Women's Union.

Principal Glassey of Harbord Collegiate, Principal Kennedy from Riverdale, and several teachers who are University College graduates, were among those present.

play 2 minutes later. Parkdale repeatedly walked by the Blue defence and Haddad had to make some fine stops. Late in the period Varsity began to press and McPherson twice on passes from May, and May on an assist from Cunningham, were through the Parkdale defence only to be turned aside by spectacular stops on the part of Carey, who played a remarkable game throughout.

The final canto started off as a repetition of the others. Varsity were looking at each other as Parkdale men went by. Early in this session Farrant scored when Kitson passed to him from a mix-up behind the Blue net.

And then the deluge started. Varsity threw caution to the winds and for a time with every man for himself they battled Parkdale in their defence area. But goals would not come. Then B. Cowling and Pipher took an enforced rest for a little strenuous checking, and the Blue attack became organized. A scramble ensued, the puck going from Hendry to Cunningham to McPherson, who back handed it in. Another rush, a long pass to the odd man, and McPherson had scored again on a pass from May. Ten minutes left. May swooped down, two Parkdale men checked him and he lifted the puck clear across to Hendry, who lost no time in netting. Then Cunningham and Kitson sought to settle a little disagreement with their fists and only a few cooler heads kept the fire from spreading. Things quieted down and the Blue attack appeared to have burnt itself out. But

SMITH WINS FAST HALF MILE EVENT ON INDOOR TRACK

Eaton Made it Interesting for Smith, but Faded in Last Portion

ADAMS WINS SPRINT

Three Men Tied for Second Place in the 50-Yard Sprinting Event

Don Smith ran away from his field in the half mile yesterday afternoon when he won the event in the fast time of 2 minutes and 4 1-5 seconds at the indoor track meet at Hart House. However, Russell Eaton made it very interesting for Don in the early part of the race, but faded in the latter portion and was only able to stave off Fred Peart's sprint by a small margin.

In the 50 yard sprint Ralph Adams won in the creditable time of 5 3-5 while three men tied for second place. Eddie Dore, Brooke, and MacLaren. In the race to break this tie Dore ran a very nice sprint to tie Adams' mark of 5.6 with MacLaren coming third and Brooke fourth. The results were:

Half-mile—Don Smith, U.C.; Russ Eaton, School; Fred Peart, U.C. Time 2:04.2.

50 yards—Ralph Adams, School; Eddie Dore, Dents; R. D. MacLaren, Meds. Time .05.6.

son he assisted Mr. Barr as coach of the seniors. He was appointed honorary coach 1926-7. He had the satisfaction of leading the team to a championship in 1926, one of the two intercollegiate titles Varsity has held in the last ten years. Again in 1929 he took over the arduous duties as coach after the untimely death of Jimmie Douglas.

He established a partnership in a mining brokerage business several ago, but sold his interest and afterwards continued in business for himself. The funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon from his residence, 280 Oriole Parkway. The pallbearers will be his three brothers, Messrs. W. B. G. B., and N. B. McPherson, and his brother-in-law, W. L. Beatty.

Boddington sped down the left boards and scored on a quick fast shot to the net and the Blues came to life again. Neither team asked for quarter; it was a battle to the last ditch, but the disputed goal took the heart out of the Blues and Parkdale, as a result, gained a questionable win.

Parkdale—Goal, Carey; defence, B. Cowling, A. Cowling; centre, Johnston; wings, Farrant, Kitson; subs, Pipher, Doyle, McDonald.

Varsity—Goal, Haddad; defence, White, Lynch; centre, Cunningham; wings, Hendry, McPherson; subs, Boddington, May, Bennett.

Sniffleblister Intends Leaving For Pole Expects to Get as Far as Richmond Hill

By E. J. Delorme

Under the bombardment of modern advertising we are led to suspect that the seat of all this trouble regarding student government, free speech, free love, the racketeering wave and the devastating storms over the English channel lies in the vital region of the large bowel or, possibly, pink tooth-brush.

A private interview with E. C. Sniffleblister, President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Students, disclosed the fact that he is proposing a daring expedition into the North next time his wife goes away and leaves him with the children.

"I hope to get as far as Richmond Hill," stated Mr. Sniffleblister, smiling optimistically. "In fact," he added, "I expect to be away anywhere from two weeks to six months, depending entirely on how long I remain away."

And here is a lovely letter from little Angus MacDonald, aged ten. Angus asks: "Will you please help me find the woman who pays and pays?" Sorry, Angus, we'd all like to find her.

Overheard at the checkroom of a downtown hotel New Year's Eve: "Oh I know you boys. You just go to college to play around." "Girls, you've certainly got us all wrong. We don't play around."

Well, as the scientific men tell us, In a Cigarette, it's Taste, In an Austin, it's Impossible. We refuse to enter into correspondence over this.

Extract from my letter seeking advice: "I have only just entered this here university and am wondering where is a good place to stop at." Just before the "at", brother, if you don't mind.

"Well," as the biology student said, peering through his exaggerating machine, "this is getting cilia and cilia."

Wanted: A man to take the rats out of the traps at the women's residences, with the exception of St. Hilda's and the Abbey, where automatic rat ejectors have been installed. A nominal fee will be paid to the right man.

There may be something in that, too, as the burglar said as he put his hand in the cuspidor.

A tempting offer of the job of spreading dirt over the icy sidewalks in our spare time has been turned down by this department. We claim, with the great Androcles himself: commercialism is the prostitution of all true art.

STUDENTS BALLOT ON FREE SPEECH QUESTION TODAY

Though undergraduates may enjoy the sporting columns of the Mail and Empire, representative opinion of the student body definitely disagrees with the stand taken in yesterday's editorial, claiming that university professors as public servants should not allow themselves to be dragged into public questions.

Gord Bradshaw, ff Law—As citizens of Canada, they should be allowed to speak as they please.

Hub Hendershott, Ifi Vic—Certainly they should have the right to express themselves on private opinions just as anyone else has.

There will be two orchestras, one of which will play the a dances, the other the b dances. An interval of about a minute between dances will be allowed to clear the floor. The pool has been secured as a sitting out room, but as usual there will be no smoking allowed there. It is confidently expected that the employment of two orchestras will do a great deal to keep the floor clear during most of the dance.

Alice is Bored in Plunderland; Dormouse Drools, Hatter Struts

By an Intelligent Person in Toronto

"Well, well, well," said Alice, "Well, yourself," said the Dormouse, suddenly waking up. The Dormouse awakened at the most unexpected moments and made a remark just as if he had listened to the whole conversation.

"As for me," said the Mad Hatter, "I am firmly convinced that this is a communist meeting under a very thin disguise."

"You talk like an alderman," said the March Hare, in complete disgust. "I always thought that aldermen were very fine men," said Alice, not quite sure what they were talking about. "I knew one who used to call on cook." That didn't sound quite right, but she realized that she was in a very strange place.

"The farces of Law and Order," said the Dormouse suddenly waking up with a start.

The Mad Hatter's hat fell off. Alice was startled to see that it was a very large policeman's helmet, which puzzled her because she had been sure

REPORTED BLAZE TURNS OUT TORONTO FIRE DEPT.

It was reported that there was a fire in the new University College women's residence early yesterday morning. However, on making enquiries yesterday afternoon "The Varsity" discovered that a workman, being chilled by the early morning frost, had lit a fire in a bucket to warm himself. The smoke of the fire alarmed a resident of Trinity House, who immediately summoned the fire department, and about a dozen reels responded.

PREMIER BENNETT WILL NOT ARGUE

Members of the Staff to Attend Debate on Imperial Conference

STEVENS ALSO DECLINES

"There will be no guest speakers at the next Hart House debate," J. L. Stewart of the Debates Committee, told "The Varsity" over the phone.

"We got in touch with Premier Bennett, and the Hon. H. H. Stevens, but they both stated that they were too busy to consider coming," he said.

"We have asked several members of the staff of the university to attend, and have been assured of the attendance of one or two," stated C. L. M. Douglas of the Debates Committee.

The motion up for consideration by the house is "That this house approves of the part played by Canada in the recent Imperial Conference." This will be moved by V. C. Webb of the Faculty of Medicine. He will be opposed by W. P. Walker of University College. The third speaker will be N. D. H. Evans of Victoria and the fourth, J. L. Stewart of Trinity College. The Speaker of the House will be E. B. Joffe. The Tellers for the evening are, for the Ayes: W. L. Biltbrough of Trinity College and H. L. Wolfson of University College. For the Noes, only one Teller has as yet been chosen, J. G. Gibson of Victoria College. The Clerk of the House will be C. L. M. Douglas. The Chairman of the Committee is G. W. Brown.

URGE STUDENTS TO VOTE SERIOUSLY ON IMPORTANT ISSUE OF THE "68" WHICH STAFF HAS GIVEN MAJORITY

EIGHT POLLS ON CAMPUS OPEN FROM 11.30 TO 2.30 BALLOTS TO BEAR NAME, YEAR, AND FACULTY OF VOTER

To-day from the hours of 11.30 to 2.30, undergraduates of the University of Toronto are given an opportunity to express themselves as to whether their opinion is in agreement with that of sixty-eight professors of the University, who recently signed a letter regarding the free public expression of opinion and forwarded it to the evening press of the city.

The question asked is:

Do you agree with the sentiments expressed in the letter on the subject of free speech, drawn up and signed last week by citizens who were members of the University of Toronto, and published in the press of this city?

Eight ballot boxes will be stationed at strategic points about the campus. They will be located as follows:

Hart House, at the south-west entrance.

University College, in the main rotunda.

Women's Union, at the St. George Street Entrance.

Trinity College, at the main entrance.

Victoria College, in the main rotunda.

Engineering Building, at the main entrance.

Medical Building, at the main entrance.

Dental College, at the College Street entrance.

Ballots must be signed with the name of the undergraduate, and year and faculty or college must be indicated. This is not done with any intention of publishing names, but to ensure that the results of the poll will be authentic. No ballots will be counted which are not signed and marked in this way.

Exactly how each year and faculty votes on the question will be shown in the tabulated results as they appear in "The Varsity" to-morrow.

The official ballot will be found in the lower right hand corner of the first page of this issue of "The Varsity". For the convenience of those unable to procure copies, additional supplies of ballots will be available at the polling places. These two forms of the ballot will be the only ones considered in the count. An appeal is made to the student body to show their intelligent interest in an important question of the hour by co-operating in making this poll as complete as possible.

INTEREST RAMPANT IN FREE SPEECH

Argumentative Croup Debate for an Hour in Music Room

VIC STUDENTS ACTIVE

Interest in the subject of free speech, centering more recently about the poll of "The Varsity" is rife in undergraduate circles, as indicated to "The Varsity" yesterday.

In Victoria College, senior students are contemplating action, it is rumored, to express their opinion on the subject which was brought to the limelight in university circles, when sixty-eight professors broke their academic restraint and divulged their views on the subject.

The prevailing topic of conversation in the Great Hall of Hart House, and in the Common Rooms yesterday, indicates that undergraduates have interested themselves in the subject. In the Music Room, an ardent group discussed the pro and con of the subject for an hour.

S.P.S. BARBAROUS AND UNREFINED

Technical Training Should be Partly of Cultural Character

POOR ENGLISH IN SCHOOL

Are the engineers of S.P.S. barbarous and unrefined? Are they in dire need of cultural education? Is it true that an engineer cannot write a letter in decent English? In a very close and interesting debate held by the S.P.S. debating club Tuesday night in Room A, Hart House, these questions were heatedly discussed by four able speakers: C. A. Osborne and H. C. Herr for the affirmative, and A. C. King and A. W. Troup, who supported the negative side of the contention.

The subject of the issue was: Resolved that the training of a student in the Faculty of Applied Science and Engineering some technical training should be sacrificed to produce a stimulus to cultural interests.

The judges awarded their decision in favour of the affirmative side.

TWO M'GILL DONS CRITICIZE HIGH TARIFF POLICY

Wealthy Members of Board
Seek to Curb Rid of Two Men Who Disagree with Them

NO PRESSURE IN TORONTO

Prof. Jackson Heard Nothing of Controversy While in Montreal

Opposition to the expression of professorial opinion upon questions affecting influential business interests is not confined to Toronto. A recent despatch from Montreal states that students at McGill University have been aroused by efforts put forth last term by wealthy members of the board of governors of that university to get rid of two professors whose economic views do not agree with the interests of the officials in question.

The dons attacked, Professors D. J. Day and J. C. Hemmison, have had the temerity to criticize the high tariff policy, and as a result have been in danger of dismissal from the staff of the university, according to information received.

Professor G. E. Jackson, of the Economics staff of the University of Toronto, who has just returned from Montreal, informed "The Varsity" last night that he had heard nothing of the controversy while away. "I wasn't actually visiting McGill," he said, "but I lectured in one of the buildings, and heard nothing of it. On my way to the lecture I met one of the professors mentioned in the re-

The Letter

In order that all students taking part in to-day's poll may be clear as to the issue on which the question is asked, the letter of the sixty-eight is reproduced again here:

"The attitude which the Toronto Police Commission has assumed towards the public discussion on social and political problems makes it clear that the right of free speech and free assembly is in danger of suppression in this city. The right has for generations been considered one of the proudest heritages of the British peoples, and to restrict or nullify it in an arbitrary manner, as has been the tendency in Toronto for the last two years, is short-sighted, inexpedient, and intolerable.

"It is the plain duty of the citizen to protest publicly against any such curtailment of his rights, and, in so doing, we wish to affirm our belief in the free public expression of opinions, however unpopular or erroneous."

"BABES AND SUCKLINGS"

Again we are compelled to drag into our columns the name of the mighty Mail and Empire, which—together with certain other sections of the local daily press—is at present engaged in a campaign calculated criminally to befog an otherwise perfectly straightforward issue and deliberately to mislead an all-too-gullible public.

One hundred and sixty million propagandizing Russian communists are thundering at our doors, if we are to believe this august journal. A repetition in Toronto of "the reign of terror perpetrated against the City of Winnipeg for some weeks during the hot Summer season of 1919" is reported as imminent. . . . "These are exceptional times . . . The very existence of democracy is at stake."

Only the most drastic measures on the part of the police can save us, we are told. . . . "The representatives of decent elements in the population should not ally themselves with any movement to aggrandize the very limited Communist minority in our midst and to facilitate their propaganda."

Surely the columns of an allegedly intelligent publication were never prostituted to receive such a display of spurious reasoning! These are the sophistries of that section of the community which is breathing dire vengeance against a group of University of Toronto professors for daring to suggest that the present muzzling tactics of the Toronto police commissioners are not in keeping with British tradition, and—far from gaining the end desired—tend rather to aggravate certain unpleasant conditions which exist to-day.

It seems physically impossible to get through the thick skull of the ultra-conservative section of our community that a radical, shooting off steam from a soap box, may easily be ludicrous; but that the same radical, hounded by police and put behind lock and key, is transferred into a hero and a martyr to a great cause. If anything has been done to aggrandize any limited and downtrodden minority in this city, it has been done by the blundering, arbitrary tactics of the police commissioners and by the rampant myopia of an hysterical press.

The existence of democracy is not at stake unless we permit the present un-British, un-Christian, and undemocratic regime to continue its system of a cudgel-wielding which can only lead to open revolt—particularly in a year of grace when our sacred economic system looks as worm-eaten as a Balkan monarchy. These are exceptional times, forsooth! . . . exceptional, indeed, when a leading daily refers back to an incident in the inevitable world-wide labour upheaval of the months following the armistice of 1918 as a fitting analogy to the present situation!

The Mail and Empire has some cutting things to say about the straw vote which is being held on the campus to-day. "We shall doubtless be told," smiles the learned editorial writer paternally, "that wisdom proceedeth from the mouths of babes and sucklings."

We rise to remark that, while we do not know a great many babes and sucklings personally, there is scarcely one babe or one suckling of our immediate acquaintance whose mouth could not yield sufficient wisdom to make The Mail and Empire's editorial writer look like the mental dotard he undoubtedly is.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

On November the twenty-fourth last, this paper made a suggestion regarding the University Organ Recitals in Convocation Hall. It was felt at the time that, unfortunate though the illness of Dr. Moure was, it was hardly fair that the organ should remain idle for the rest of the year with so many organists of international repute connected with this University.

Last Tuesday, Dr. E. C. MacMillan gave the first of a new series, in line with our suggestions, and it was gratifying to see the enthusiastic reception which was accorded him by students and faculty alike. The attendance was the largest within our recollection for the past six years and amply justified the action taken.

Police Cart Before Horse

Editor, "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:
"It is an indictable offence punishable with two years imprisonment to speak any seditious words or any seditious libel or be a party to any seditious conspiracy," writes George Staunton in an article on the editorial page of one of our downtown papers, an article which in its naivety is worthy of a 10 year old.

Of course it is an indictable offence. And who denies it? Certainly not our professors whom this new champion of our unlawful "law makers" deigns to criticize. Perchance he is on speaking terms with the Commissioners. He might bring this section of the Criminal Code to their attention. It certainly seems to have given them the slip.

To a person with any sense of justice, to any law abiding citizen, it is most disconcerting, to say the least, to see those "in the high places" not only abuse the trust reposed in them, but actually act contrary to the spirit of the law.

There is no law on the statute books that says a man must get the prior consent of the police, or anyone else, before he can speak. To speak his mind is the right of every man, provided he does not do what is prohibited by our laws. The offence is not in failing to obtain the consent of self-appointed dictators who are acting contrary to law, but in being guilty of sedition or blasphemy.

When a man is guilty of sedition or blasphemy it is our law that he should be punished therefor. Until he has committed either of these offences he can speak as he will, provided also that he does not disturb the peace or be a party of an unlawful assembly.

Our police commissioners and many of those with large interests, are too prone to put the cart before the horse. Just think of it! Judgment is passed before any crime is committed and there are two judges on the board that thus acts without regard to law.

O Temporal O Mores!

This is persecution of those whose ideas differ. The law permits prosecution, but not this.

One of the countless students that commands our professors for their stand in face of such formidable though ignorant opposition.

Plato

Editor, "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:

Much is being said about freedom—freedom of speech, movie censorship, narrowness of liquor laws, etc. Much of it consists of "flag waving" with that over-used catch word "British liberty"—so much so that British liberty is diluted, and true freedom in all its sacredness is flippantly passed by.

I am not objecting to the action of the Fellowship of Reconciliation. Action was necessary to protect the good name of its many fine members. But I do object to the cheap publicity it has received. One begins to wonder if there may not be an element of anarchist blood in it. You know we are still, to some extent, our brother's keeper; and when the best of our citizens glaringly throw our police force into a poor light, how is it going to affect the many who do not understand the motives for so doing?

We find those who object to our movie censors, and the limited freedom of our liquor laws. I do not say they are beyond reproach. But I do object to one who flouts true freedom, and even suggests (as in the editorial of the 19th re. the liquor law), a freedom of physical desire. True freedom cannot be so found. True freedom allows the development of our best self—not the mere satisfaction of our appetites and desires.

There are those who say our higher selves can only be developed in presence of absolute freedom of choice. True, but what about the vast majority so weak as not to be able to resist the temptations of an evil environment? You advocates of unrestricted free choice—would you allow your young sister to grow up in a slum en-

DENTS ARE DOWNED BY VIC SENIORS

Victoria Rips Twine on First Half to Lead 8-7 Over Dents

FINAL SCORE 18-14

Victoria seniors won their second interfaculty basketball fixture when they defeated Dents 18-14 on the upper gym in Hart House yesterday.

Vic started out well, ripping the twine three times on fast combination from the tip-off in the first few minutes. After scoring another hope shot from the corner, Vic trailed and Dents caught up with seven points scored from all angles to end the half 8-7 for Vic.

Devitt, the high scorer of the previous game, failed to score. Lautenslager, playing guard for Vic, was high scorer and was outstanding in his play, with seven points. Ruddell was best for Dents with six points. With two minutes to go and Vic holding a four point lead, Dents were unable to come through, only gaining possession once. Stafford, a valuable guard, was pulled in the middle of the second half with four personal fouls.

Senior Vic—Davison, Bowles, Devitt, Lautenslager, Vaughan, Barr, Henderson, Clarke, Cowie.

Dents—Buchanan, Busley, Oliver, Horwitz, Stafford, Ruddell, Stewart.

WATER POLO GAME CONCLUDES IN TIE

U. of T. and West End Struggle Through Rough Game

LOOSE REFEREEING

Varsity and West End Y.M.C.A. struggled through a rough game of water polo to a 5-all tie at Hart House last night. This necessitates playoffs for the championship of the city league as these two teams are now tied for first place.

West End had everything their own way in the first period and ran in four goals while they kept Varsity scoreless.

Varsity came to life in the second period and equalized before the West Enders tallied. Within the first minute of play Sinclair scored on a pass from Hayhoe and Graham made it two for the Blue and White on a solo effort. Law put the Purple and Yellow in the lead but Spence evened it up with only a few seconds to go.

The game was rough due to loose refereeing and was a poor exhibition of water polo.

Varsity—Ayers, Sinclair, Hayhoe, Spence, Culiner, Armstrong, Graham. West End—Goble, Baker, Bratton, Newton, Sellers, Law, Lansitie.

TRINITY COLLEGE PARTY

Trinity College seniors held their second class party last night at the women's University Club. The girls entertained the men of the year and Miss M. Cartwright, Dean of Women at Trinity College, and Miss Margaret Tamblin, Head Girl at St. Hilda's, received the guests.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By T. A. F.

We have always classed football, hockey and boxing as just about the most strenuous forms of sport, but after seeing last night's water polo game in which West End and Leo Latchford's Varsity team tied with five goals apiece, we find we may have to revise our ideas. There was plenty of strenuous work going on above the water, and as for underneath the surface we will have to use our imagination, but are willing to bet that none of the tricks of the trade were left out. The West Enders believe in subduing the opposition by main force and the Blues were not slow in retaliating.

The tie game means that the teams are now deadlocked for first place, and home-and-home games will be necessary to decide the holder of the Daily Star Trophy for another year. When and where the contests will be staged will be announced later. In any case some real struggles will take place before the winner is declared. The locals failed to play up to their usual form in the first half last night, but they are confident they can take the Y boys in the play-offs.

It seems that this year we are fated to be finding fault continually with the decisions of officials in hockey games. Last week it was the goal judge in the game between Varsity juniors and Marlboros who flched a win from us with a questionable decision. This not being enough the light-flasher behind the Parkdale nets on Tuesday night became suddenly stricken with astigmatism and repeated the performance. The latest outbreak of inefficiency was by far the worst of the two. If ever a puck went in a net the one from McPherson's stick in the last few minutes of Tuesday's game did. Several people directly behind the nets are willing to take affidavits to that effect. The referee, standing a few feet away "didn't see it", and as a result the goal which would have tied the game, was not allowed. There is talk of a protest, but this would be practically useless, like most actions of the sort. The O.H.A. is bound to stick by the decisions of its officials in such cases. One thing is certain, however, and that is that the important position of goal judge should be filled with a great deal more regard for ability. This business of selecting a man simply because he is willing to take the job should be stopped.

KNOX DEFEATS EMMANUEL 4-3 IN HOCKEY GAME

Knox took first place in their group last night when they defeated Emmanuel 4-3 in a hectic interfaculty hockey game. In the first two periods the Presbyterians showed complete mastery and at two thirds time, were leading 4-1. However, Emmanuel showed a complete reversal of form in the last period and scored twice within a few minutes to make it 4-3. In the dying moments of the game Emmanuel scored a goal according to the goal umpire, but Referee Keith overruled him and it was disallowed.

SWIMMING TROPHY ACQUIRED BY U.C.

Relay Race is the Deciding Factor; School Second, Dents Third

GLASS HIGH SCORER

University College won the Fitzgerald Trophy emblematic of the Interfaculty Swimming Championship for the second successive year in Hart House pool last night. The relay race the last event on the card, decided the issue in favour of U.C.

Glass of Victoria was the high individual scorer of the evening with two firsts, a total of ten points. Sinclair of Dents was close behind with a first and second worth 8 points.

There were no records broken, but Tedman tied the record of 26 1-5 seconds in the 50 yards free style. The most interesting race of the meet was the 200 yards free style in which Glass of Victoria just nosed out Armstrong of U.C. for first place. The results were as follows:

50 yards free style—1, Tedman, U.C.; 2, Sinclair, Dents; 3, M. Henderson U.C. Time, 26 1-5. (Equals record.)

200 yards free style—1, Glass, Vic; 2, Armstrong, U.C.; 3, Hayhoe, S.P.S. Time, 2:32 4-5.

Fancy diving—1, Doyle, Meds; 2, M. Henderson, U.C.; 3, Seace, S.P.S.

100 yards back stroke—1, Towers, S.P.S.; 2, H. Henderson, Meds; 3, Smith, U.C. Time, 1:23 4-5.

100 yards free style—1, March, Dents; 2, H. Henderson, Meds; 3, M. Henderson, U.C. Time, 63.

200 yards breast stroke—1, Sinclair, Dents; 2, Withrow, S.P.S.; 3, Clute, U.C. Time, 3:2 3-5.

440 yards free style—1, Glass, Vic; 2, Bell, S.P.S.; 3, Crocker, S.P.S. Time, 6:33 4-5.

300 yards relay—1, U.C. (M. Henderson, Smith, Armstrong, Tedman); 2, S.P.S.; 3, Meds.

WEST END Y WINS IN BASKETBALL TILT

Juniors Lose 34-13; During Second Half U. of T. Dead on its Feet

INTERMEDIATES WIN

West End "Y", winners of the first half of the Y.M.C.A. basketball league defeated Varsity juniors 34 to 13 in the first half of the double header last night. The "Y" team passed up few opportunities to score and they found the Hart House baskets to their liking. On the other hand the Blues had ill-fortune with their shooting and made little headway against an impenetrable West End defence. Seldom were they able to break through for a good shot and when they did they were forced to hurry their attempts at scoring.

The game started out slowly, both teams playing a canny, close-checking game. After nine minutes of play West End called a two-minute rest when they were leading 4-0. The Blue and White defence continued to play a strong game, but by the end of the first half the visitors had rung in 14 points by some long loops. The most that the Varsity players could muster was a field basket by Douglas and a foul shot by Rook.

In the second half Varsity appeared dead on their feet and the West Enders broke through for several pretty baskets. In the final session the visitors doubled the score on the Blues 20 to 10.

Cockburn and McMillan, West End forwards, were the high scorers of the game with 10 and 8 points respectively. Douglas and Shugar were the best for the losers.

West End (34)—Forwards, Cockburn (10), McMillan (8); centre, O'Hara (6); guards, Paterson (2), Murchie (4); spares, Drummond (4), Brownlee, Cameron, Lansitie.

Varsity (13)—Forwards, Shugar (1), Dennis; centre, Huhn (2); guards, Carroll, Himel; spares, Douglas (5), Black, Magwood, Rook (5). Referee—J. E. Hutchison.

In the intermediate fixture the locals staged a rally in the last three minutes of the game with Y.M.H.A. which netted them seven points and a 25-19 victory. Prior to the Blue and White rally the score stood 19-18. The visitors being on the long end. Loblaw "knew his groceries" and ran wild in the second half, scoring eight points. Humphrey was another man whose work marks him as the most improved man at Varsity. The defensive work of McIsaac was excellent.

The count at half time was 7-6 for the Hebrews. The score see-sawed

SAINTS DEFEATED ST. MIKE'S 2 TO 1

Good Combination on Saints' Part; St. Mike's Depend on Solo Rushes

MARY MORRIS SHINES

St. Hilda's hockey sextet defeated St. Michael's women by a score of 2 to 1 in an interfaculty game played last night at the Stadium. The Saints' had the best of the play all through, and their combination was working very well. The Double Blue were not able to combine properly and depended mostly on individual rushes. At the end of the second period the count was tied at one-all. About half way through the third period the St. Hilda's team went into the lead on a nice shot by Mary Morris, and were able to hold their lead until the bell.

St. Hilda's—Goal, Letty Wilson; defence, Enid Palmer, Helen James; centre, Frances Brigstock; wings, Mary Morris, Laura Wilson; subs, Ruth Rouse, Ailthy McLaren, Helen Groom, Rosamond Berry.

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

The intermediate team which will represent University of Toronto in Hamilton on Saturday will be chosen by the coach, Miss Edith Blackwell, at the practice to-night at Little Vic at 6 o'clock. The team is shaping up fairly well on the forward especially, although the defence is by far the weakest part as yet.

The intermediates are to the richer to the extent of nine uniforms which were, for the past two years, the sole property of the seniors, while the intercollegiate outfit will glory in new ones for their trip to Queen's. It seems that the intermediates are getting a break.

The representatives of the three teams in the city hockey league were unable to come to a definite decision regarding most of the schedule, owing to the fact that it is not yet certain when the Arena will be available. However, the dates for two of Varsity's games were settled. On January 28, Varsity will be at home to Silverwoods, the new team, and on February 4, Aura Lee will entertain Varsity. Both games will be played at the Arena.

In the two interfaculty hockey games played last night, Household Science and St. Hilda's were victorious. In the first, the Dietitians defeated Junior Vic by a 2 to 0 score, and thus increased their string of victories to two. St. Hilda's and St. Michael's met in the first game of the season for both of them, and although the Saints came out on top by 2 goals to 1, the Double Blue put up a much stronger fight than was expected.

1. Dress, clean and stuff chicken—and for goodness' sake keep her from playing in the mud, or you'll have to change her dress every five minutes!

2. Truss for roasting by turning tips of wings under back; press legs close back against body; hold in place with a skewer; tie a cord around ends of skewer and across back. This is the complete first position for the third method of Life Saving.

3. Place on back on a rack in a roasting pan. She ought to confess now; if not, apply the thumb-screw—if she is very small use a Tom Thumb-screw.

4. Place strips of bacon over breast or cover with a paste of 3 lb. butter and 2 lb. flour. (This is necessary only in Toronto, Kansas City, and Boston: everywhere else you can let 'er rip.)

5. Place in hot oven to start the cooking quickly, then reduce heat. (If you haven't got an oven, put it in the furnace and the Frigidaire, alternately.)

6. Baste every 10 minutes with fat in pan. (Lamb—baste more frequently.)

7. Turn during cooking to brown evenly. (If the kitchen is too small to turn in just reverse the chicken.)

8. Roast 15 to 20 mins. to 1 lb. and 20 mins. extra. (If it's more than 1 lb. write in for our special heavy-weight method.)

9. Serve with brown gravy and bread sauce. If you are extremely aesthetic you may prefer cerise gravy with beige bread crumbs.

Dressing. (You will find the chicken very sensitive about this.)

2 1-2 cups bread crumbs; 2 1-2 lb. melted butter; 1 tp. thyme; salt; pepper; 1 lb. chopped parsley (if you haven't thyme, don't bother.)

1. Add crumbs to melted butter; mix with a fork. (A cement mixer is really much quicker, but it takes up so much room in a kitchenette.)

2. Add seasonings—Vanilla, mustard and Eau de Cologne. If a moist dressing is preferred, add 1-4 cup hot milk. (If this is too moist, try Canada Dry. advnt.)

Note If fowl is not very young, it may be dressed as above; place in roasting pan; add 1 c. boiling water; cover tightly. Roast, allowing 25 to 35 minutes to 1 lb. Uncover during last 45 minutes, to brown. (This is what happens when we are all at home; when I am alone, however, I usually boil the fowl three days, then give it to the neighbour's dog, and Sauce with Roast Chicken have chicken dinner at a restaurant.) (Tune: Strolling with My Sweetie)

1. Pierce sausage in several places with a fork. (The places should be at least a mile apart, and one of them should be the City Hall.)

2. Place over legs and breast of chicken during last half hour of roasting. (You may leave the legs uncovered in classical dancing only.)

3. Serve around chicken. (Of course, if you absolutely can't get a round one, an oval one will do—but never a square one!)

Giblet Gravy

(Thick and wavy, I love you!)
2 lb. dripping; 2 1-2 lb. flour; 1-4 lb. salt; f.g. pepper; 1 c. giblet stock; cooked giblets. (If you don't know what giblets are by now, you're in the same boat we're in.)

1. Cook the giblets, drain, put them through the mincer; reverse stock (If you have much reserve stock you had better have a bargain sale or a fire.)

Chicken Leftovers

(Advice to girls whom men forget)
Creamed Chicken. 1 1-2 c. cooked chicken; 2 lb. flour; salt; cayenne; 2 lb. butter; 1 lb. finely chopped parsley. (Don't waste your day window-shopping—put the thyme on the parsley.)

Serve in Swedish timbales, patty shells, or in potato border, (or, if you prefer, in crepe de chine bloomers and a corduroy blouse.

(Further Leftovers next week.)

NEW CATHEDRAL WILL OVERTOP ALL CHRISTENDOM

Considered the Greatest Gothic Memorial Since the Reformation

INSPIRATION IN STONE

Young Architect Spent All His Genius in Designing the Building

Liverpool Cathedral, "An Inspiration in Stone", was the subject of an address by Philip J. Turner, Esq., F.R.A.I.C., of McGill University, in the common room of Wyldcliffe College last night. This building, stated the speaker, is considered to be the greatest Gothic monument since the Reformation. The Cathedral when completed, will be the fifth largest in the world in area; and will be the highest church building in Christendom. In length it is surpassed only by St. Peter's at Rome.

More size, however, is not the most striking feature of this building. The simplicity and grandeur of its structure, the judicious and pleasure use of detail sculpture and the use of colour have been continued to form a structure, colossal, yet perfectly proportioned, with the grandeur of stern simplicity, and perfect in every detail.

The Cathedral is situated on St. James' Mount, which rises out of the heart of Liverpool to a height of 150 feet. The Cathedral thus dominates the whole city.

The plan of the Cathedral was chosen from a large number of competitive designs. The architect whose work was awarded the prize was a young man of twenty-one, Giles Gilbert Scott. Scott had had no experience in the designing of buildings, but his genius has made Liverpool Cathedral, his life work, one of the world's finest buildings. Practically all detail was designed by the architect himself, and the Cathedral is a monument to his industry and genius.

Work on the Cathedral was begun in 1904 and the building will probably be completed by 1945.

GAS USED FIRST BY GERMAN ARMY

Mustard Gas Found to be Most Effective Type

CANADIANS STOOD ATTACK

A description of gas warfare was given by Dr. Kay to the joint meeting of the Industrial Chemical Club and the University Chemical Club held last night. Dr. Kay's typical English humour, coupled with an extensive experience, made the meeting very interesting.

The first use of gas was by the Germans in 1915 and Dr. Kay showed that but for the Canadians withstanding this attack the result of the war might have been reversed. He gave an outline of the properties of the many compounds which are used to produce sneezing, coughing, blisters and tears. The most effective material finally used was mustard gas, which produces both coughing and blisters, so that no one can remain in contact with it.

COLLEGE WOMEN ARE NOT SNOBS

Snobbishness Does Not Exist in the University St. Mike's Contend

NEGATIVE WINS DEBATE

College women are not considered snobbish, in the opinion of 48 university women, as expressed in a vote on the debate held in Loretto College last evening. This was the first of what is planned to be a series of interfaculty debates between university women.

"A snob is a vulgar upstart and should be banished from society," declared Elizabeth Inkster, of second year University College, who led the affirmative in upholding the subject, "Resolved that this house deprecates the snobbishness of college women", which was won by the negative on a vote of 26-22.

Snobbishness does not exist in the university, and therefore it cannot be deplored, Evelyn Scully of second year St. Michael's contended, in attacking the resolution. The average college woman appears snobbish in the eyes of business men, Ida Clair, second year Victoria, declared. "The purpose of a university education is to learn to live admirably with others," she said, in quoting Sir Robert Falconer on the subject.

That indefinite something, peculiar to college women, is merely a consciousness of class difference, Helen Groom of second year St. Hilda's maintained. "Snobbishness is merely a confusion of terms," she said.

EMBRYO WAITERS SHOULD APPLY NOW

"Summer hotels have to be staffed, depression or no depression," explained Miss Lavell, of the Bureau of Appointments the other day. "Applications for such positions should be filed early in February." The influx of canvassing recruits also begins then. Hence summer job hunters should count their talents now if they want to make them count in June.

'Varsity' Staff Meeting

A combined staff meeting of "The Varsity" will be held at 4.00 o'clock to-day in the Women's Union. All members of staff are required to be present, including probationers.

WESTERN AND VICTORIA ARE VICTORS AT O.C.E.

Victoria College divided the honors with the University of Western Ontario when the Ontario College of Education elected yesterday its executive for the Spring term. H. D. Hager, the new president, and Miss Agnes L. Vanstone, the new vice-president, are both graduates of Victoria, while the other two major offices went to Western with W. E. Newham elected treasurer and Miss Frances E. Tape, secretary.

Queen's, the University of Ottawa, Ontario Agricultural College, University College and St. Michael's College all have representation with Victoria in the minor offices.

Famed Politicians Take a Hand Votes for Red on Every Stand

O—O
The vote in the Medical Building was carried on under police supervision. Exercise of the franchise was encouraged by the presence of two young ladies as returning officers. Whether the police were present to protect the returning officers or the returning officers to protect the police, could not be ascertained. A number of Meds voted several times—which caused one of the girls to remark:

O—O
"They thought they were so smart—I was so mad I could have lined them up and biffed every one of them."

O—O
Apparently the police were there to protect the Medical boys.

O—O
Down at the Dental College a representative of "The Varsity" was received with generous offers of physical violence. The bone-drillers even threatened to deposit the ballot-box under a street car. A damper was put on free speech when the visitor was anointed with a pail of cold water thoughtfully poured from the balcony above. We understand that dentists sterilize everything before handling, but this is carrying the theory too far.

PLAYFUL STUDENTS ENGAGE OPPONENTS IN WATERY COMBAT

East House Knox Wins Decisive Battle Over Other Houses

BASKETS DECIOE ISSUE

Dean in Dripping Pajamas Tries to Subdue Hostilities

Shortly after midnight last night the beautiful quadrangle of Knox College witnessed a battle royal as East House successfully repelled the onslaughts of West House and Centre House.

"We won. Three to ten," the East men in every stage of soaked undress told "The Varsity" reporter who waded to the scene of hostilities at one o'clock last night. "We tapped ten and they only got three of our men," they explained their method of scoring.

One of the deans of residence in dripping pajamas explained to "The Varsity", "for publication" that he had done everything in his power to maintain discipline. "This is my third change of clothing. Got soaked trying to stop the row," he said.

Apricots buried from the windows of East House the night previous had caused it all. The other two houses raided with water in retaliation.

A good supply of waste-paper-basket buckets handled by a well organized crew of East House men gave their house the victory while flooding the basement.

Shortage of ammunition stopped the row. The janitor turned off the water at the main.

However, the Dental students voted—the cool reception was merely a display of their tender regard for "The Varsity".

O—O
Returning officer at Trinity: "Aren't you going to vote on the free speech question?"

Trinity co-ed: "Oh —; I don't give a — about it."

O—O
We didn't print the missing words because we knew you wouldn't believe it anyway.

O—O
We are sorry to disappoint General Draper, but we found it entirely impossible to print this issue in red.

O—O

Sir Robert took such a deep interest in the proceedings that he voted early and often—if the ballots are to be believed.

Among others who exercised the franchise were: Judge Coatsworth, Andy Gump, Stanley Stasiak, Albert Einstein, Daisy Devoe, Dean DeLury, Al Capone (2), Napoleon, Antony and Cleopatra (School of Graduate Studies), George V, Prince of Wales, Howie Ferguson, Draper beat Trotsky by 6-3.

O—O
Heroes of the day:

The man who shouldered the noon-hour rush at the Women's Union to look for extra ballots.

O—O
Good-bye. Goodbye goodby goodby. What's wrong! That's three times fewer than Mr. Ferguson said it.

POLLING QUIET WITH STUDENTS TAKING VOTE SERIOUSLY

Eighteen hundred students of the University yesterday registered signed ballots in "The Varsity" poll to determine the undergraduate opinion on the recent action of 68 members of the faculty who protested publicly against the stand of the Toronto Police Commissioners against free speech. 1491 supported the views of the "68" and 308 registered disapproval.

From 11.30 a.m. until 2.30 p.m., at eight polling booths stationed at strategic points throughout the university, the ballots rolled in. Polling proceeded without excitement and with a seriousness that is considered remarkable in view of the general levity amid which last year's "Beer Poll" was conducted.

The poll officers had little to do except to constantly insist that the ballot must be signed and the year and faculty indicated.

At 2.30 the poll was declared closed and from then until a late hour last night four senior members of "The Varsity" staff were busy counting the vote and checking the names. As a result of their examination one hundred and one ballots were rejected.

Some of these were spoiled because they were unsigned, others because obviously fictitious names were used, and still others because of doubt as to their authenticity. From the first it was obvious that very few attempts had been made to pack the boxes. But in order to secure an absolutely correct result, each name was double checked.

In last year's poll there were over three hundred rejected ballots, and in some quarters it is considered probable that many others voted more than once and got away undetected. This year's vote is about three hundred lighter but every ballot counted is known to be genuine. No unsigned ballots were considered at all.

GOVERNING BOARD TAKES NO ACTION

Free Speech Discussed in Longest Meeting in Years

NO UNANIMOUS DECISION

"We have discussed it, but have reached no conclusion. We have no statement to make. We have nothing as yet. Mr. Dunlop may make a statement later." These were the words of Dr. Cody when asked by "The Varsity" what action on the present free speech controversy the Board of Governors took at their meeting yesterday afternoon.

The meeting was one of the longest in years, lasting from about four o'clock to half past six o'clock. The free speech controversy and the stand of the professors and "The Varsity" were discussed at length. The Board was not unanimously in favour of any one point of view.

Those present were: Dr. Cody, (chairman of the board), Sir Robert Falconer, The Hon. Vincent Massey, Dr. H. B. Anderson, Dr. F. W. Merchant, Dr. Bruce Macdonald, Angus McMurphy, F. G. Osler, N. W. Rowell, K.C., Sir William Mulock, Eric Armour, K.C., Col. A. E. Gooderham and J. J. Gibson.

THE STUDENT SPEAKS

Yesterday the "babes and sucklings" of the University of Toronto—a group of young men and women, most of them well above the legal age—cast their ballots in a straw vote to determine whether or not the students of this University approved the recent action of sixty-eight of their professors in protesting against the "short-sighted, inexpedient, and intolerable" arbitrary muzzling of free speech and free assembly in this city by the Toronto Police Commission. Not only did 1800 students cast their ballots, but they also signed them. And by an overwhelming majority of five to one, they supported the gallant sixty-eight.

This gives the reactionary section of the press and citizens of this city and province the right to apply contemptuous epithets to youth in general and the students of this University in particular. It gives them the right to belittle the importance of the poll by pointing out that seventy-four per cent of the students did not take the trouble to vote at all. It also gives them a perfect right to assert that straw votes do not mean anything, anyway; and that the result only goes to show how far the influence of the vicious free-thinking professors has gone to corrupt the pure, ingenuous young people of our great Dominion—especially in view of the fact that, while the majority for the "yes" column in the junior years figured at a mere four to one, the majority for the same column in the senior years blazed a fiery red seven to one.

If the vote had gone the other way—if the students had decided in a five to one vote that the sixty-eight were wrong and that free speech is undesirable for those with whom we do not agree,—the same reactionary forces would have had an entirely different song to sing. Our splendid young people in such a case, would have shown conclusively that no amount of exposure to professorial sophistries could seduce them from the path of good, old-fashioned, honest stupidity. It would be pointed out, and truly, that six faculties composed of graduate and part-time students, cast a total of only fifty-nine out of a possible 1806 votes; and that the major faculties, comprising the great body of the full-time students of the University turned out in almost fifty per cent force to register their ballots. It would be pointed out that each one of the 1800 voters had vital enough interest in the issue and sufficient of the courage of their convictions to sign name, year, and faculty to each ballot cast.

The significance of this poll is not to be minimized. If it means nothing more, it at least means that—counting in the 229 concurring professors who emerged from Tuesday's poll—the letter of protest now has, not sixty-eight signatures, but 1720 from the keenest element among the staff and students of this University.

C. C. THOMPSON THANKS STUDENTS FOR CLOTHES

On behalf of Mr. C. C. Thompson a graduate of this University and a worker for the relief of unemployment in the city, and on behalf of the Students' Council, I wish to take this means of thanking all those, who in any way contributed to the supply of clothing which was received at this office for the unemployed veterans.

The response to our appeal which was made just before Christmas, was most gratifying indeed, and exceeded considerably our expectations. Mr. Thompson reports that the clothing has been particularly helpful and has been the means of adding a great deal of comfort to a large number of unemployed men.

Again thanking you for your thoughtfulness and generosity, I am,

Yours very truly,

A. Gordon Burns,
General Secretary Treasurer.

Trinity Dramatics

A delightful play, "La Main Leste", by Eugene Labiche, was presented by Miss Dorothy Ryerson at the Trinity French Dramatics yesterday evening. The comedy opens with a lively quarrel at the breakfast table of a milliner, M. de Pont-Mele, and concerns the fate of his wife, who unwisely sat in a bus when the lights went out. A strange young man stroked her fur boot, thinking it was his dog. He received a slap for it, but madame in a rage left her purse with him. Several complicating and unravelling scenes follow, all lively and amusing. Mr. John Gilmore as the fussy little bourgeois father, did some excellent characterization. Mr. Frank Grimley, though inclined to be self-conscious, was conventionally bohemian and gay as the hero. As for the three women, Misses Rosamond Berry, Dorothy Ryerson and Mary Cassidy, they played uniformly well. The accents, moreover, were really French. Professor Hicks was responsible for a good part of the direction.

GAS USED FIRST BY GERMAN ARMY

Dr. Kay discussed the various ways in which the gas is discharged on the enemies' lines and also the respirators used as a protection against it. In his opinion Germany surrendered because she lacked materials with which to make respirators for those gases which the Allies were preparing to use.

M.C. Players' Guild

"The Evil Kettle", by Lord Dunsany, the production offered this week at the Players' Guild, a very brief drama of raw character, was particularly disappointing owing entirely to lack of finish on the part of the cast, and a complete failure to capture the spirit or force of the work.

Mr. Colin Jarvis, who was the director, took the part of the youthful James Watt, but so over-repeated his lines that it was difficult to catch the thread of the play, while Miss Jocelyn Moore as the mother, was too vague and casual. Sidney Hermant, as Satan, did the only creditable work of the cast, and we were sorry his role was so brief.

McGILL HERE FOR INTERCOLLEGIATE HOCKEY OPENER TO-MORROW

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

The intermediate team was chosen for the trip to Hamilton after the practice last night. Those who will make the trip are: Beth Jenking, Bea Langley, Mary Stewart, Vic Quinlan, Grace Gristwood, Hilda Layman, Marjorie Wright, Bessie Lowry, Pat Palmer. This selection is not by any means a final selection of those who will be with the intermediates all season, since after this game, several of the players are returning to the intercollegiate.

The intermediates will leave for Hamilton at one o'clock on Saturday afternoon. All those making the trip are asked to be at the station at 12.45. The game is scheduled for 4.30, and the team will come back some time during the evening.

Medettes and Junior U.C. played to a tie in their interfaculty hockey game last night. The game was fairly slow, although exciting at times. Meds were last year's champions, but they will have to go some to retain their title for another season.

MEDETTESS AND U.C. TIE 1-1

Last night at the Stadium, Medettes and U.C. Juniors played to a one all tie in an interfaculty league game. Both goals were scored in the first period, and after that play was so close that neither was able to take the lead. Vera Peters, Meds, and Eva Crawford, U.C., were the fastest players on the ice and backchecked in great style all through. Betty Stewart on the Meds' line-up is not particularly fast, but she stick-handles effectively, and has a very good shot.

HOCKEY CLASSIC OPENS SEASON

McGill Opens Intercollegiate Games at Arena To-morrow

TEAMS WELL MATCHED

Varsity students can expect to witness a real classic in college hockey to-morrow afternoon when McGill opens the intercollegiate hockey season with the University of Toronto at Varsity Arena. McGill won the title last year from the Blue and White, breaking a winning streak that had given ten successive championships to the Blues.

McGill is reported to have a much stronger hockey aggregation this year, probably the strongest that has represented the Red and White in the past decade. Playing in the Montreal senior city league with four other teams that comprise the cream of the amateur hockey world in the Quebec metropolis, McGill, by their prowess, are but two points behind the leaders, M.A.A.A., present holders of the Allan Cup and emblematic of the Canadian championship.

Red Porter's squad, however, are not the least bit worried over the successful showing of the Redmen. Varsity may be weaker this year by comparison to other years, but in the games played so far in the O.H.A. the Blue and White have forced Ontario's best senior teams to the limit before losing.

There will be little change in the personnel of the Blue team. Disappointing, however, is the announcement made last night by the mentor of the team that Red Whitehead will not be in the game. Stew Ferguson has recovered and he will be among the substitutes. Doc Ames will guard the twine, with Don Smillie and "Skin" Dewar on defence, Bill Stewart is at the pivot position, with Freddie Murray and Mel Harley on the wings. Billy Bell, Ferguson and Leake are the remainder who will be in uniform.

Two of the Redmen's stars, Jack McGill, stellar left winger, and Nelson Crutchfield, are not included in the line-up for to-morrow's game. With the Red and White are several gridiron stars, especially McTeer, who are equally at home on the frozen surface. D'Arcy Doherty, captain of the rugby team, performs at centre ice.

The coming game will be watched with interest since it will furnish Toronto fans with first hand information as to the relative strength of the Montreal city league teams. While McGill are favoured by many to win, yet a Varsity victory would not be surprising since the Blues have had little of the breaks in their O.H.A. games.

The personnel of the teams and their playing numbers are as follows:

1. Ames
2. Funston
3. Dewar
4. Whitehead
5. Smillie
6. Murray
7. Harley
8. Stewart

PUBLIC SPEAKING CONTEST WON BY SYDNEY HERMANT

The Women's Liberal Club of Toronto held their annual public speaking contest for university students yesterday. Sydney Hermant, 1 U.C., speaking on "The New Liberal Policy in Ontario," was judged the winner. Keith Armstrong, IV Victoria, was second with a speech on "Why I am a Liberal," and Miss H. C. Toll, III Vic, speaking on "The Unemployment Situation," was third.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By T. A. F.

What should prove to be the hockey classic of the season is slated for the "T" Arena to-morrow afternoon when the much-heralded McGill team meets Coach "Red" Porter's Blue seniors in the first of the home-and-home games for the intercollegiate title. We haven't had the opportunity of seeing the Redmen in action this year yet, but their record speaks for itself. At the beginning of the season the Montreal group of the Q.A.H.A. was dubious about allowing the McGillmen to enter a team, claiming that they were not up to the standard of the league which supplied the Allan Cup winners last year. It was a sad error on the part of the heads of the Association because Coach Bobby Bell's boys stepped in and are now right on the heels of the league leading M.A.A.A. sextet. They have practically the same team which won the intercollegiate honours from the strong U. of T. squad last year. With an additional season of playing together they are stronger than ever.

With McGill presenting the strongest squad they have had in the past ten years and the Blues not at full strength, prospects for the return of the title don't look any too rosy. However, we can count on one thing and that is that the men of Porter will put up a rare old battle. They have proved in all their O.H.A. games this season that they are a bunch of fighters. Their main weakness is lack of scoring punch, but when it comes to back-checking they are the equals of any team. Red Whitehead is still out of the game unfortunately. The presence of the sore-top would make a big difference. However, as we said during the football season, it's a hopeless job trying to pick winners in any sporting event. The only thing we are sure of is that the game will be worth travelling several miles to see.

The senior "B" team which seems to be our best bet for a hockey championship this year, is scheduled to meet McMaster at Ross Workman's Ice Palace Saturday night. The squad has two victories to its credit already this season and have yet to taste defeat. A win to-morrow will put them solidly in first place in their group and Coach Dr. "Red" Smylie is placing a strong line-up on the ice. The Baptists have also rounded out a real team this year and it will be the first big test for the locals.

The cage teams, senior and intermediate "A", open the intercollegiate season with a trip to London where they hook up with Western to-morrow. The men of McCutcheon are in fine shape after their United States trip and they expect to get off to a flying start in the senior race with a win over the Londoners. They will have to improve in their shooting over some of their recent performances, however, if they are counting on bringing back the intercollegiate trophy to Hart House. The result of the game to-morrow will give some idea of how much the work of the last few weeks has accomplished.

U.C. AND MEDS PLAY TIE GAME

Meds' Pitcher Weakens in the Last Inning to Make Tie Possible

GAME WAS WELL PLAYED

Jr. U.C. scored two runs in a last inning rally to tie Jr. Meds 3-3 in an interfaculty baseball game last night. The game was close all the way although Jr. Meds had a margin in the first half of the game. Levine, star Meds pitcher, weakened slightly in the last inning and before he could get his bearings again, the score was tied.

Meds scored two runs in the first innings to take the lead. In the second U.C. scored one. Trailing at the beginning of the last inning U.C. filled the bases with one out. Gibson doubled, sending in two runs to tie up the game. Levine struck the next man out. U.C. again filled the bases and with the count three and two on the batter, Levine put over the third one to save the game.

Levine started, striking out 7 men out of a possible 9. The game was a thrilling one and exciting from start to finish.

DENTAL HOCKEYISTS DOWN SENIOR SCHOOL

Dents defeated Senior School in a closely contested hockey game yesterday afternoon by a score of 4-3. Play was very even and only the superior combination work of the Dents enabled them to defeat the Enginners.

Dents—Goal, Connor; defence, Henry, Moore; wings, Dupuis, Kaufman; centre, Herron; subs, McCartney, Beaud, Shillington.

Senior School—Goal, Withrow; defence, Reid, Walkom; wings, Martin, Mooney; centre, Bates; subs, Anderson, Griffin, Porter.

VIC BASKETEERS WIN CLOSE GAME

U. C. Make Impressive Start but Vic Forwards are too Effective

VIC COMBINATION GOOD

Junior Vic basketballers after a slow start, came from behind to defeat Jr. U.C. 25 to 14 in an interfaculty contest last night. The Red and White got off to a flying start and swept the Victorians off their feet for the first few minutes of the game. They used a powerful five man defensive system to hold the clever Vic forwards in check. The latter began to get going before the end of the first half, however, and the score at the end of the session was 10-8.

The superior combination of the Victorians began to tell in the second frame and with Don Wood leading their attack, they ran away with the game, scoring 17 points to their opponents' 6. For the winners the work of Wood and Ford featured, while Agnew, Fowell and McDonnell were outstanding for U.C.

Junior Vic—Stubbs, Morrow, Ford, Wood, Clarke, Read, Ferguson, J. Bates, R. Bates, McKague.

Jr. U.C.—Agnew, Scott, Schud, Dyer, Fowell, McDonnell, R. Agnew, McLean, Tyndale.

GEN. DRAPER CONSENTS TO BE GUEST SPEAKER

In spite of his present annoyance at the attitude of the university towards his stand on free speech, Brigadier General D. C. Draper, chief of the Toronto Police Force, has consented to be the speaker at a dinner in Hart House on Monday, February 16.

The dinner is one of several given for senior graduates in the university at which there will be guest speakers. General Draper will speak on "Co-operation between the Police Force and the Public".

PICKED WRESTLERS LEAVE TO-NIGHT

Series of Elimination Matches Held During Past Few Weeks

MATCH SKILL WITH U.S.

A picked team of wrestlers representing the university, leaves for Annapolis to-night to match their skill against the cadets of the United States Naval Academy on Saturday. Coach Cliff Chilcott, who is accompanying the squad, announces that while the men are not yet in intercollegiate shape, he is confident that they will come through with a good percentage of wins.

A series of elimination matches were held during the past few weeks and the winners of these were selected to make the trip. Every weight will be represented, the list of grapplers in the various classes being as follows: 118 lbs. Brownlee; 126 lbs. Bannister; 135 lbs. McKinney; 145 lbs. Walker; 155 lbs. Doug Smith; 165 lbs. Shute; 175 lbs. Watt; Heavyweight, Longley.

Bannister and Doug Smith, intercollegiate champions in their divisions, are among those expected to bring in victories. They will encounter plenty of stiff opposition, though the Navy boys are the pick of the United States athletes when it comes to physical condition. However, Coach Chilcott's men look good enough to put up a great showing and they are determined to carry off a majority of the bouts.

The team will return to the city in time to take part in the senior interfaculty assault which is scheduled for February 4th and 5th.

ARNOLD'S FRENCH REPUTE IS SLIGHT

English Author Very Esteemed

"The French reputation of Matthew Arnold is slight, but sound, and its soundness depends to a very large extent upon how slight it is," stated E. K. Brown of the English staff of University College, in a lecture on this subject in the West Hall yesterday.

He described Arnold as being disliked by certain of the English people on account of his cosmopolitan tastes and sympathies, mentioning Arnold's great esteem and sympathy for the French trying to build a mental bridge across the channel.

Arnold's first French review by Dudley, at a time when most of his work was in verse, linked him with Shelley, but suggested that Mr. Arnold's greatest talent was prose. Louis Etienne, his next critic, compared him with Coleridge, and said that his poetry was similar to Keats more than to Wordsworth.

The Table Round

Movie Titles

We notice that Will Hays has decided that moving picture titles must be reformed.

It is a fact that a great many moving pictures are given totally irrelevant titles solely because of the box-office possibilities of a suggestion of immorality. A notable example is "The Call of the Flesh". There is nothing in the title to give any reasonable suggestion of the nature of the picture, which is a beautiful bit of romance. For once Canadian censorship justified itself by changing the title to "The Singer of Seville", an infinitely more attractive title, and one that is much truer to the picture.

A casual glance over the theatre advertisements will serve to illustrate how common the tendency is. The most noticeable in this week's list is "Sin Takes a Holiday", which is assuredly not what it pretends to be.

Keep trying, Will!

Propaganda

The Telegram continues its diatribes against government control of Radio, and propaganda continues over the air. Probably the proposal will be dropped.

at the present time, but we take comfort in suggesting to The Telegram that it will be like the City Plan-shelved, but inevitably on the way to realization.

Still, it is possible that the government will have enough sense to disregard factious opposition to intelligent measures, and frame legislation accordingly.

An Adviser of Studies

A great number of people who are entering the Faculty of Arts would appreciate the appointment of an adviser of studies. The purpose and method of an Arts Course is almost completely misunderstood by the average senior high school student. The names of the courses are practically all he has to go on, for the interpretation of the Calendar is decidedly difficult for the uninitiated. For those who intend to become teachers such an official would, of course, be unnecessary, but the great majority desire simply to enter the course best suited to their mentality, and in this respect a qualified adviser would be a godsend.

New Policy

Strong appreciation of the influence exerted by the staff and students of the university and by "The Varsity" in bringing to a head the question of free speech in Toronto was expressed last night by G. Raymond Booth, Secretary of the Fellowship of Reconciliation in a statement to "The Varsity".

"I honestly think," he said, "that the turning point came when the sixty-eight professors published their letter in defence of free speech. The weight of the letter from the sixty-eight was not fully realized, however, till 'The' (Continued on Page 5)

STUDENT ALWAYS HUB OF FERMENT

F.O.R. Speaker Deplores Lack

NEWSPAPERS BIASED

The youth section of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, which has been in disagreement with the police commission of the city of Toronto on the matter of securing a meeting place and on the matter of Free Speech during the past week, held its meeting Sunday evening. J. Woodrington of Pickering College was the speaker.

The address of the evening was on, "Youth Movements throughout the World", and led to lively discussions on pacifism, and a plea for thinking individuals who will weigh the pros and cons of facts themselves, and not accept, wholesale, biased newspaper versions.

Mr. Woodrington in the course of his address amusingly declared that student youth has always been the nucleus of ferment, simply because it generally has nothing else to do; continuing in this vein he said youth needed someone to cheer for it, and to obtain this encouragement it is likely to take the bit in its teeth and go galloping down the street with a great clatter, waking up the people who were sleeping and who wish to continue to sleep, and did not wish to be seized into thought.

Fotheringham Vents Disgust With University In Scathing Diatribe

On being approached by a representative of "The Varsity", General J. T. Fotheringham, C.M.G., B.A., M.B., M.D., C.M., LL.D., Q.C., Tor., Professor of the History of Medicine in the University of Toronto, had the following to say in reply to a respectfully couched query as to his views on the free speech controversy:

"I refuse to speak to anyone from the university except an authorized commission."

"The Varsity" has come to such a state that we older graduates are ashamed of it. What young people have done to it! As far as I'm concerned 'The Varsity' should have been dead and buried under a dung-bill long ago.

VOTE A FAIR INDICATION

Student opinion on the results of the balloting held on Friday was so conflicting and confusing that it was impossible to analyze it and reach any definite conclusion as to what the student vote really indicated. The statements of some of the students are submitted:

W. J. Lawson, IV U.C.: "This vote indicates that the students feel that their professors should be at liberty to express an opinion not only on the question of freedom of speech, but on any matter which is before the public. I think the senior years had a larger majority than the junior years because the 'fresh', being just out of high school, still regard it as smart (Continued on Page 5)

BEATON A BIG FACTOR

Intermediate Squad Are Losers
in Low-scoring Game,
13 to 10

Special to "The Varsity" by Jack Stubbs, Staff Reporter
London, Ont., Jan. 24—Varsity's intermediate and senior intercollegiate basketball quintets got off to a bad start when University of Western Ontario took both games of a double-header here to-night. The seniors lost 27 to 25 while the seconds were downed 13 to 10.

Senior Game

Varsity seniors lost their first game in the intercollegiate series when they bowed to the University of Western Ontario 27 to 25 here to-night in a close, hard fought battle.

After becoming a big threat in football at the expense of the U. of T. the Mustangs demonstrated Saturday night that basketball is their next victim. Led by Beaton, a new addition to their ranks, the Purple and White directed a very determined attack on the Varsity basket, continually boring in in such a manner that to stop them was to block them.

Although Western won, Varsity certainly did not deserve to lose as they did. During the game Varsity continually held an edge on the play, but the score repeatedly failed to show it. Western, with four regulars over six feet all, took advantage of their reach and often clearly blocked the ball between the hands of the shooter and the hoop. Varsity's ball handling and general form was much better than that of the Mustangs' but the close (Continued on Page 4)

"APING THE PROFESSORS"

The results of the straw vote yesterday on the question are just what the women expected. The majority of them were pleased but Jessie Gray, U. C., was annoyed. "Yes, I'm mad about it," she told "The Varsity".

"Free Speech is bunk. Most people don't think anyway, and the more they talk the less they think. They don't need free speech. All they have to do is read the Telegram."

Margaret Barnes, II U. C.: "I'm not surprised. There is always a tendency to ape the professors and think ourselves wise. The three hundred and eight who voted against free speech are probably afraid of the extremists. We have to take that risk."

Mattie Clark, I U. C.: "The whole issue is unfortunate. It lowers the University to a level with the City of Toronto. However, I'm glad of the results."

Dorothy Porter, III U. C.: "I was surprised that so many voted against free speech. Especially the men in S. P. S., they are usually more radical than that."

H. B. Boddy

"There are no more snobs in a representative group of university girls than any other kind, but from what I have seen there are a great many snobs among the Frat girls," said one U.C. co-ed to "The Varsity" when asked if there were more snobs among college women than there are among other classes.

"Certainly not," chorused three co-eds when accosted in U.C. lobby. They declined to give their names for publication.

One fourth year Household Economics girl who did not wish to give her name said, "I think a great many girls in their first year become snobbish when they begin to think they know it all. However, it wears off sooner or later when they find it does not get them anywhere."

The opinion of A. G. Wallingford, III U.C., was that "Women lack the physical ability of men for intensive (Continued on Page 5)

WRITERS' CLUB HEAR JARDINE PRIZE POEM

At a meeting of the Writers' Club held over the week-end at the Old Elm, Henry Noyes, winner of the coveted Jardine Prize, read his winning drama, "Francois Villon". Written in blank verse, "Francois Villon" was greeted as a work of art by members.

Mr. Noyes introduced his play by reading a snatch of background from Lytton Strachey's "Landmarks of French Literature", a study in which Mr. Noyes is keenly interested. True to details of the life of Francois Villon, interest is maintained at a high pitch throughout the three acts of Mr. Noyes' creation. "Francois Villon" is full of delicate imagery by which the author attempts to convey the atmosphere of Villon's poetic mind. Mr. Noyes succeeds in a masterful way. Virile and colourful, pungent with fifteenth century atmosphere, "Francois Villon" catches the spirit of the times and undoubtedly conveys its author to the realm of the best Canadian poets.

Men Deny Snobbishness in Selves, Attributing That Quality To Women

Do you think college men are snobs compared with other men and how do the coeds compare with the Varsity men in this respect, were the questions put to a number of Varsity students. The general opinion received was that the men are not snobbish but the women undergraduates are more snobbish. The following are some of the replies given:

T. Henry, IV S.P.S.: "The fellows in S.P.S. are not at all snobbish but I don't know how they compare with the women."

S. H. W. Fyfe, III C. & F.: "It depends on the person but as a group they are not more snobbish than others. I have had much experience regarding the second question but I think the men are less so the women."

A. D. Pollock, VI Meds.: "I believe there is more tendency to snobbishness among the men due to their greater education but I have not noticed it among the women."

"Skin" Dewar, burly Blue defence star, played the hero in the last seconds of the intercollegiate senior battle with McGill at the Varsity Arena Saturday afternoon when he drove the rubber past Powers in the McGill net for the tying counter. The final count was 2-2. As a result of this Frank Merriwell effort by Dewar, the locals will engage the Redmen on even terms in the return game at Montreal Feb. 12th. But Dewar is not the only one to receive credit for the sensational goal. The play on which Dewar scored was the smartest of the game. Harley secured the puck in the enemy's territory and snapped it to Stewart who handed it to Dewar in front of the McGill cage. The last named wasted no time in uncorking his fast one to give the Varsity crowd the cue to get up on their high heels and yell.

From a Varsity standpoint this was the bright spot of the entire game. The McGillmen were always in the driver's seat from the first period when they secured a one goal lead, Farquharson drawing the Blue defence aside and passing to Doherty who walked right in on Ames to score. They looked the better team from every angle in this session and only Doc Ames stood between them and one or two more goals. The Blue and White attack was not functioning at its best and they had difficulty in passing the McTeer-McGillivray rearguard. When they did get through they found Powers in the McGill nets a big stumbling block.

NOTHING FOR PUBLICATION

"I have no time to discuss the subject of our research work in physics," declared Professor J. C. McLennan of the department of physics, to "The Varsity". Having stated in one of the downtown newspapers last week that "we are doing research, important research. We have no time to bother about free speech or papers signed by other professors", Dr. McLennan continued that there was nothing official ready for publication as yet regarding the work of the department. "It would take some time to prepare a report like that; naturally such a report would have to come from me," he said.

"Why not feature excerpts from the President's annual report?" suggested Dr. McLennan, proffering a 1925 report as an indication of what the research department in physics was doing.

E. G. Wyckoff, of the department of mechanical engineering is of the opinion that "although the police commission is sadly lacking in any knowledge of psychology as exemplified by their treatment of the Communists, it wouldn't be any good to give a course in psychology to policemen because they would not know what to do with it."

WHAT WILL THEY DO?

Are you going to high school next year?—Yes! would chorus various first year students of the University of Toronto, could they foretell future events.

A great deal has been said about the changes to be made next year in the general course. But no regulations can produce the same ominous effect on the student mind that those who fail must return to high school to obtain matriculation. Only future events can show how many will be affected by this ruling.

High school is a pleasant place; many University graduates have reflected on the joys of early youth, on the carefree happiness of spoon-fed collegiate days compared to the bitter responsibilities of undergraduate life. Yet few first year pass students seem to hail a possible return to idyllic innocence with whole-hearted delight. A belief is prevalent that a certain loss of caste would attend such a demotion. The same certificates may be given for work covered in first year pass and fifth form collegiate; but, unfortunately or otherwise, the same prestige does not attend a high school student and a college man.

The question arises: whether the failures? They may be accepted at high school; but will they accept high school? Will the college student of a year, Greek-lettered, sophisticated, blasé—half-baked in some one of the moulds into which undergraduates cast themselves with abandon—will this individual, male or female, submit to such degradation and return to nominally adolescent ranks? After a year of complacent boredom with the courteous "Ladies and gentlemen", will they obediently accept detentions for bad behaviour? Or will these pseudo-sophisticates enter the frigid world?

What of the fate of the miserable failures?

RETORT COURTEOUS

Employing the most withering sarcasm and descending to the most depraved form of misappropriation of text, The Mail and Empire editorially scores this publication for its "great good temper" in comparing "the first class minds" to be found at the university with the "coterie of time-serving nonentities" in banks and newspapers who dare to criticize them.

"This," says the eminent Conservative organ, "is clearly a retort courteous. We stagger under the rebuke. The professors are right and everybody else is wrong."

Humbly—since we are fully aware with what great good temper and undoubted justice the impeccable Mail has referred to the students of this University as "babes and sucklings"—we venture to suggest that if the newspaper in question insists on being staggered, it had much better be staggered by the storm of protest with which its corresponding readers have met the unfair branding of Toronto's "68" as Communists, reds, perverters of youth, and enemies of the nation's safety, merely because they had the courage to protest against abuses of power and short-sighted suppressions which men of our race outlawed centuries ago.

The reactionary section of our press may feel a certain self-righteous satisfaction in the thought that the professors are wrong and everybody else is right. Yet, somehow we do not feel that that section has so far proved by its own superior wisdom and insight that it has the right to demand for the professors in question the traditional cup of hemlock.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

General Fotheringham states that the trouble with the young people of the present day is that they did not have all their heads knocked together in their more tender years. Whether the General speaks in his capacity as Professor of the History of Medicine or from experiential data of his own, we do not know.

We have, it would appear, outdone even the wildest dreams of the drunken undergraduates of General Fotheringham's day, and we'd better be careful, because something's going to be cleaned up.

Such demoralization! Such filth!

Egad, sir!

Art, Music and Drama

Major Barbara

Major Barbara by George Bernard Shaw will be presented to-night and every night this week in Hart House Theatre at half past eight o'clock under the direction of Mr. Edgar Stone.

He who takes a play by Shaw and declares that therein he finds the ultimate Shavian philosophy is treading on dangerous ground. For of all modern prophets, Bernard Shaw is the least consistent in what he preaches. In the forty odd years that he has been a brilliant figure in English drama and philosophy, he has wavered from one point of view to another and on occasion has shown a complete reversal of opinion. The key-note of his thought has varied as Irish, Puritan or Progressive elements became dominant in his character; and as Plato, Ibsen or Nietzsche supplied the chief stimulus for his creative faculty.

Major Barbara is a play that seems quite out of sympathy with others of Shaw's later plays. It is a drama of pure worldly criticism. There is in it a certain religious element, but the religious element is totally defeated. Shaw's latest faith emphasizes the sanctity of human will and in the divine capacity for creation and choice that rises above environment and doom.

Major Barbara is an account of environment victorious over heroic will. The fervour of the girl who becomes a Salvation Army officer is killed by the power of her capitalistic father's wealth.

In the Hart House production the leading role of Major Barbara is being played by Freda Lloyd. Others in the cast are J. D. Jeffries, Roland Eves, Margaret Tyler, Percy Shuttie, Ann Hickson, Victor Lange, Erica Mundy, H. E. Hitchman, John Patton, John Goss, Horatio Purdy, Constance Vernon and Ruth Tanton.

M.A. Musicale

On Sunday afternoon at the Women's Union a large and happy audience heard Signor Alberto Guerrero in a very fine piano program. Well fortified with a tremendous technique, his aesthetic sensibility makes his playing authoritative and delightful.

The recital opened with a Sonata by Scarlatti, a dainty number which lost little of the clavichord effect in Signor Guerrero's rendition. Two magnificent sonatas by Padre Soler, a Spanish composer of the 18th century, involved a wide range of colour and technique, and in harmonies and pianism they are closely akin to middle 19th century writing.

Three Debussy numbers, Fire Works, Claire de Lune, and L'Isle Joyeuse, become intelligible and very pleasing in this artist's hands. The program ended with two rather exotic numbers by the Spanish composer Albeniz.

The university should be singularly grateful that artists of Signor Guerrero's calibre should so freely expend their time and energy for our benefit.

Answers "X.Y.Z."

"The Varsity",

Dear Sir,
In reply to X-Y-Z, Social Science, whose letter was printed in the Letter Box of the Varsity, I begin to wonder why those who claim that they are authorities on current problems, yet are too lazy mentally to take the trouble to weigh both sides of an issue before forming their judgment, do not sit down and ask themselves the question: Are they being fair to their mental development by taking for granted biased press reports without investigating the truth of these statements?

I believe that too many of Toronto's citizens let others make up their minds for them, as it must be an effort for them to think.

May I reply to this intelligent person that if they had taken the trouble to find out just what the Fellowship of Reconciliation stands for, they would have found that one of the main purposes of this group is to try and have presented both sides of issues that may come up of public interest to the citizens of Toronto, by outstanding authorities on each side, so that intelligent people who are anxious to know the truth may have an opportunity to weigh the evidence on both sides of these questions and thus be in a position to form a fair opinion on the matter before them, based on facts.

To the assertion that the Fellowship of Reconciliation stood for license, may I say that as far as I am able to ascertain the Fellowship of Reconciliation stands for nothing else but common sense.

For X-Y-Z to say, "That the Fellowship of Reconciliation was seeking cheap publicity" and "that he wonders if there is not an element of anarchist blood in it," simply goes to prove that some people speak best when least disturbed by the facts.

The statement that the Fellowship of Reconciliation is trying to throw the Toronto Police Force in a bad light, is talking plain nonsense. The Fellowship of Reconciliation on Armistice Day last November, decorated a grave of a Toronto Policeman as a tribute to the Toronto Police force as a body.

When X-Y-Z claims to believe in philosophers being kings, I agree with

A Graduate Writer

Brantford, Jan. 22, 31.

The Editor,
"The Varsity",
University of Toronto,
Sir:

May I be permitted to congratulate you unreservedly on the editorial entitled "Notes on the Prevailing Intelligence" which appeared in your issue of the 20th? In the midst of the torrent of unreasoning criticism and abuse which the action of the sixty-eight members of the Faculty in taking issue with the policy of the Police Commission has evoked it is refreshing to encounter an article which so ably sums up the point at issue.

It is a lamentable commentary, not only on the general level of intelligence among average citizens, but also upon the mental attitude of many of those in high places, that the protest of the professors was justified, and a still more disheartening reflection upon present day tendencies that it has called forth such nonsensical opposition from those who might reasonably be expected to know better. Our much vaunted democracy has reached a strange development indeed if outstanding members of the community are to be accused of fostering subversive doctrines because they advocate freedom for the expression of opinions with which less intelligent citizens, and quite possibly they themselves, do not agree.

In protesting against any curtailment of the liberty of free speech the professors concerned have only reaffirmed a fundamental and inalienable right and I consider that they have placed the community under a debt of gratitude to them for the leadership thus shown.

LAST MINUTE GOAL GIVES VARSITY 2-2 TIE WITH MCGILL

THE SPORTSWOMAN

Varsity's intermediate basketball team displayed much better form against Normal Grads in Hamilton than was expected. This intermediate outfit has been practicing together for only a week and a half, and that is scarcely long enough to get any sort of team play working. They show remarkable promise, however, and with another couple of weeks in which to work out some plays they should give the seniors and Margaret Eaton some hard struggles.

The showing of Bea Longley, who has been switched from forward to defence, was especially encouraging. She has a remarkable turn of speed, and with a little coaching should become one of Varsity's most effective defence players, besides being able to fill a forward position creditably.

The Normal team will come to Toronto on the 6th of February to play the intercollegiate and on their showing Saturday should give the Blues a stiff fight. At any rate the result should be interesting.

There have been two postponed games already in the intercollegiate hockey league, although on both occasions lack of ice could scarcely be pleaded as an excuse. The season for outdoor hockey is short enough at all events, and if there are many postponed games it means some wild speculation to get the schedule completed.

The intercollegiate hockey team will face their first test on Wednesday, and they are confident that they will make an excellent showing. Under the efficient coaching of Jack Sinclair, the team is fast rounding into shape and should make a much better showing in the city league than they did last year.

VIC TEAM VICTORS WIN CLEAN GAME

Teams Play No-penalty Game in Intercollegiate Fixture Friday

TRINITY SHUT OUT 5-0

Victoria blanked Trinity 5 goals to 0 Friday afternoon in a Jennings' Cup Hockey fixture. The red and white scored two in the first, one in the second and two goals in the third period. The game was very clean and was not marred by a single penalty.

Victoria had their combination working much better than Trinity and broke faster. Inch and Hodgetts each scored two counters and Seal collected the other.

For Victoria, Seal and Inch on the forward line, and Hodgetts on the defence were the standouts, while Young played a great game in goal. Trinity's best were F. Rea on the forward, and Minett on the defence.

Victoria (5)—Goal, Young; Defence, Truelove, Hodgetts; Wings, Seal, Inch; Centre, Farrell; Subs, Walls, Laverty, Grandia.

Trinity (0)—Goal, Bell; Defence, Lennon, Minett; Wings, Dennison, F. Rea; Centre, Edwards; Subs, D. Rea, McIntosh, Roberts, Ambrose.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By A. C. C.

It is to be hoped that we may be pardoned for exhibiting a certain amount of pride in this issue of "The Varsity". In it there are fifteen sport stories amounting to over 6000 words of copy. The average sport quota of the paper is 1500. Of the fifteen stories, eight of them deal with intercollegiate sport. Obviously, had we not published a six page edition, the accounts of the intercollegiate events would not have appeared. We strive to give space to all branches of athletics at the University of Toronto, but on occasions when the advertising is particularly heavy it is impossible to print all that we might like to.

"Skin" Dewar has got the habit of finishing games with thrilling last-minute goals. In the S.P.A. series he scored the winning tally when the Blues defeated Port Colborne 3 to 2. Again he comes through with the decisive counter against Kitchener when his team won 2 to 1. And last Saturday afternoon in the final 30 seconds of play he notched the goal which made it 2-2 with the Redmen. Dewar possesses one of the hardest shots of any player in the O.H.A. which he lets drive by a powerful wrist movement. Incidentally, the play which resulted in the goal was a Harley to Stewart to Dewar combination and was one of the prettiest we have seen. It was a pleasing conclusion to an otherwise dull game.

When "Mucker" Mercer crashed Freddie Murray into the boards in the game with the Sea Fleas he possibly put the hard-working Varsity left winger out of the game for the season. Murray suffered a serious internal injury. Although he performed against Port Colborne he did not start against McGill and it is doubtful whether he will be seen in action again this year. His absence from the line-up will be felt by the team. He is a relentless back-checker who travelled at top speed all the time he was on the ice.

The Blues were handicapped by the absence of "Red" Whitehead who is still confined to his bed. There are few players in the game more colourful than "Red" (no pun intended), and it is to be hoped that he will be able to make an early return to the line-up. The seniors have a very slim chance of getting into the playoffs in the O.H.A. series so it is to be hoped that they will be able to retrieve the intercollegiate title which McGill captured last year for the first time in 15 years.

Varsity basketball teams lack scoring punch. They seem to possess everything else but the ability to get baskets when they want to. Last week the juniors were superior to West End "Y" in ball-handling, passing and dribbling. They had possession of the ball much more than their opponents. Yet they were beaten 34 to 13. And the same story comes from London where the intermediates and seniors lost both games of a double header Saturday night. Reports of the games state that both Varsity teams outplayed the Londoners but failed miserably to work the ball inside the defence. Collins, who was the high scorer for the seniors, garnered his baskets from outside the defensive area.

WOMEN COURTSTERS LOSE IN HAMILTON

Normal School Grads Take T. Five into Camp by 20 Point Margin
VIC QUINLAN GETS 14

University of Toronto women's intermediate basketball team went down to defeat at the hands of Hamilton's Normal School Grads on Saturday afternoon in Hamilton by a count of 42 to 26. The game was one of the fastest played this year and the shooting on both sides was extremely accurate and at times spectacular. Varsity ruined several good chances by passing too quickly, and in the last period especially, by a series of ineffective long passes.

Varsity opened the scoring on some nice combination play and a shot by Vic Quinlan, but for the first period the teams scored basket for basket with Normal forging ahead to lead at quarter time by 10 to 8. Play was fairly even for the rest of the first half, with Normal having the edge all through. Some nice defensive work by Bea Longley and some accurate shooting by Vic Quinlan kept the Normal score down, however, and the half ended with Hamilton on the long end of a 19 to 14 count.

After the interval Normal came back strong, and some spectacular shooting by Fran Dunkin gave the Normalites a commanding lead, which Varsity were not able to overcome. The Varsity defence weakened considerably in this half to allow the Normal forwards to go in for shots repeatedly. A change of the defence line and the shifting of Bea Longley to a forward position gave Varsity new impetus and for the last few minutes of the game, play was fairly even.

Normal—Florence Hodgson (2), Fran Dunkin (23), forwards; Aileen Brodie (17), jumping centre; Mayme Rowe, side centre; Florence Nichol, Marion Morris, defence; subs, Hazel Curry, Ida Laree.

Varsity—Beth Jenkin, Mary Stewart (4), forwards; Vic Quinlan (14), side centre; Pat Palmer, jumping centre; Bea Longley (6), Hilda Layman, defence; subs, Grace Gristwood, Bessie Lowry (2), Marjorie Wright.

'B' SQUAD ENSURE PLAYOFF STANDING WITH 8-1 VICTORY

Swamp McMaster O.H.A. Outfit with Avalanche of Goals

CONN LEADING SCORER

Clute, at Centre, Plays Useful Game and Secures Final Goal

Varsity's entry in the O.H.A. Senior "B" Group virtually made certain of entering the play-offs by a well-earned victory over McMaster University by the decisive score of 8-1, Saturday night at Varsity Arena. The Blues displayed speed, stamina and flashes of real brilliance to beat the fast-skating McMaster sextette, and will be a real threat when the O.H.A. title is being settled.

The first few minutes of play were very even, each team being satisfied with rushes to the blue line and a shot on goal. Four minutes after the start, Conn, on the Varsity right wing, broke away and let one drive which beat Stibbards in the McMaster goal. Some minutes later, Lawson put the teams on even terms again on a shot from the blue line. The Varsity relief line came on and within one minute Bunt and Poupore scored successively, the former on a pass from Robinson and the latter on a brilliant individual play which beat the whole McMaster team.

Robinson, on the Blue defence, scored the only goal of the second period on a nice solo effort, which beat Stibbards completely. The Red-head had made several previous rushes, but until then had been unsuccessful.

Play in the third session was fairly even although the Collegians scored three times, while holding the Red-shirts scoreless. Lebar, in the Varsity goal, was kept busy and made some wonderful saves. He was afforded excellent support by Williams and Robinson, who stepped into every McMaster thrust.

The Varsity regular forward line were effective throughout in breaking up attacks and seemed tireless in their efforts. Clute, at centre, played a fine game and his goal late in the last period was well deserved. Conn, on right wing, was the best scoring threat and Charlebois proved a fine partner for the other two. The second string line were not less deserving and did excellent work while on the ice. Few better defences have been seen here than that provided by Williams and Robinson with Lebar in the nets. The work of the latter in the last two periods was particularly good.

For the losers, Dick, on defence, was the best. His rushes were always dangerous and he deserved at least a goal in the last period, but Lebar was unbeatable. Archie Stewart and Lawson were the best of the forwards with Hale showing flashes of good hockey.

With three victories and no losses to their credit, the Blue entry can hardly be kept from the group title and the right to enter the playoffs.

Varsity—Goal, Lebar; defence, Williams, Robinson; centre, Clute; wings, Conn, Charlebois; subs, Bunt, Poupore and Mulverhill.

McMaster—Goal, Stibbards; defence, H. Stewart, Dick; centre, Smith; wings, Lawson, Hale; subs, A. Stewart, Adams and Walther.

Referee—Norman Albert.

AGGIES DEFEATED BY U.C. SENIORS

Red and White Outclass Their Opposition in 23-11 Victory

POINTS WELL DIVIDED

University College Seniors opened their intercollegiate basketball season on Saturday afternoon in Hart House by defeating O.A.C. 23-11 in an interesting, if slightly one sided, game. At half time U.C. led 12-7 and they added 11 more points in the second session, while holding their opponents scoreless until, with one minute to go, successive baskets by Jensen and Men-shall netted O.A.C. 4 points.

Play in the first half was very even although U.C. had the advantage on the score sheet. The "Aggies" started the scoring when Malken sunk a nice one from the corner, but this slight lead disappeared quickly, when Uspreche, McDonnell and Mayor scored in succession. From then on U.C. were never headed.

After the rest the U.C. quint started in strong and soon had a commanding lead. They broke fast and after each rush, spread out a defence which was too strong for O.A.C. to penetrate. On several occasions O. A. C. missed what seemed like sure baskets, but poor shooting and ragged team work spoiled their chances.

Mayor and Fillmore, with 4 points each, were prominent for U.C., with Uspreche showing flashes of brilliance while Jensen was the best for the losers.

He netted 5 of his team's points and played a good game defensively.

Senior U.C.—Uspreche (4), McDonnell (3), Broughton (4), Fillmore (4), Mayor (4), Keith, Garden (1), Foote (3).

O.A.C.—Malken (2), Fofina, Hales, Slater (2), Totten, Aitkin, Jensen (5), Menhall (2).

checking done by the Purple and White kept the men of McCutcheon at bay throughout the game.

On Western's line-up, Beaton, Manners, Gunn and Ward all featured with their team play while Beaton especially displayed great floor leadership.

Hal Collins, high scorer with nine points, was by far the most effective of the Varsity sharp shooters, sinking four field goals from outside the guard line and one free throw. Gordie Cook turned in a fine performance at left guard, permitting his check to add only two points to the Western total. MacCallum coming on for Sakler, at left guard for the last three minutes, was very effective in helping to bring the Blues from behind when the score stood 23-17 for Western.

Collins, for Varsity, opened the scoring with a clean shot from outside, followed shortly by a Western basket. A free throw by Western and another basket by Collins left the Blues one up, but Munro, for the Purples, tied it up with a point in the charity lane.

Western immediately gained a three point lead on an unguarded close in shot and another free shot, but O'Leary came through with a beautiful effort from centre and ripped the twine on a tricky fake and close in shot. Riggs, although outwitted by a six footer, continually outwitted him and after O'Leary's score, he sent Gordie Cook in on a beautiful pass to score just as he lost his balance at the side line and fell out. This put Varsity in the lead by one point with the score 8 to 7. Captain Benny Sakler, racing in fast, took Riggs' pass in the air and scored from underneath

INDIVIDUAL RUSHES GOOD

Senior Meds and Senior U.C. played to a 2-all tie in their interfaculty hockey fixture Friday. Although the Arts team lacked pep in the opening stanza they came through later with more punch in their attacks. The game was featured by sparkling individual rushes by both teams, combination being a minus quantity for the most part.

Carroll opened the scoring for Meds in the first period, but Evans evened it up a few minutes later. The second period saw some listless hockey with some nice saves by Loffree in the Red and White nets on long shots from outside the defence. In the last ten minutes of the struggle Durrill counted but the Meds were unable to head the lead, Allen being beaten by a long shot from the wing.

Senior U.C.—Goal, Loffree; defence, Banwell, Ward; centre, VanDuser; wings, Evans, Robinette; subs, Anderson, Cook, Drury.

Senior Meds—Goal, Allen; defence, Graham, Carroll; centre, Yoerger; wings, Burell, Zinkann; subs, Scott, Williams, Thompson.

the hoop as he headed for the wall, putting Varsity three points up. Beaton, leading the Western attack, sent his team mates, Manners and Munro, in for four points although unable to score himself with Cook sticking to him like a leech. These four points coming in quick succession put Western one point up at half time with the score 11-10 for the Mustangs.

Shortly after the second half opened Varsity secured five points by O'Leary and Cook followed immediately by two Western baskets to tie it. Then Western got away, boring into the left corner for eight points. Collins came back on and got another long shot through, following it with a successful free throw. Then MacCallum came on for the last three minutes, immediately scored a field shot, passed to Sakler for another basket and tied the game up at 23-all. Collins, on a pass from Cook, scored from outside with a minute of play left, making it look like a win for the Blues. MacCallum running back to centre from the Western basket, accidentally picked up the wrong man for check, leaving his own man wide open for a pass and the shot which again tied the score. Taking a Varsity rebound Western took the ball to centre with eight seconds to go and Ward sank a long hope shot to win the game. On the next toss up, Western displayed poor sportsmanship when their centre purposely delayed in entering the circle to jump, but Referee Miller tossed the ball just before the gun was fired to end the game 27-25 in favour of Western.

Varsity Seniors—Riggs, Collins (9), Sniderman, Hynes, O'Leary (4), Sakler (4), Cook (5), MacCallum (3).
Western Seniors—Beaton, Munro, Barbour, Farquharson, Manners, Lee, Gunn, Young, Ward.

Intermediate Game

The intermediates suffered their first cage defeat at the hands of the University of Western Ontario when the intercollegiate squad bowed to the Purple and White basketeers to the tune of 13 to 10 in the first game of the double header.

Playing their third game of the season after practicing steadily since the first of November the Blue and White turned stale, lacking scoring punch and condition. In the last five minutes of the game Varsity had chances enough and to spare to obtain and hold a fifteen point lead. In the last two minutes of play the Blues heaved the ball down the charity lane six times when they were on the short end of a 13-10 score, but their shots all fell short.

Western led all the way in the first period and finished ahead 9-5 at half time. Although Varsity outscored

MEDICAL JUNIORS TRIM U.C. HOCKEY SEXTETTE

A hotly contested interfaculty hockey game on Friday resulted in a win for Junior Meds 2-1. There was little to choose between the teams in the first period, although Meds drew first blood in the opening minutes of the game.

With a one goal lead they were content to play defensive hockey and wait for the breaks so that U.C. were much more aggressive. The cautious playing of the leaders eventually gave them a break to bring them once more into the scoring column late in the second period. U.C. pressed with increasing vigour and were rewarded in the third frame with a goal. Both defences were exceptionally strong with the back checking of the Meds forwards superior to their opponents.

Junior Meds—Whitehead, J. Carroll, F. Carroll, Coxon, Preston, Lowery, Davey, Robinson, Nugent.

Junior U.C.—Daly, Malcolm, Calvert, Turner, Doner, Keith, Cameron, Twatles, Spritt.

CAPABLE ADVISER NOT EASY TO FIND

inclinations and desires instead of entering a course which was advertised as having a splendid future, but for which the student was ill equipped.

Dr. John Satterly had advocated the appointment of a student adviser for students in the science courses four years ago. If the colleges were each to employ a graduate in science to spend fifteen minutes with everyone who wished to enter a science course studying the applicant's past records, his ability and aspirations, fewer failures would result. Such a gentleman was employed four years ago by University College, who gave one night a week to science students. It was a "downright swindle", he stated, that the colleges collected $75.00 from each student and were responsible in many cases only for German.

Principal M. W. Wallace stated that every instructor at the university was a student advisor. However, one of the difficulties of the professor was breaking down the barrier between the student and himself. In the case of the pass course there was a committee of three to whom the student might come with his problems, but in the honour courses the case was almost hopeless.

Rev. R. H. Cosgrave, the Provost of Trinity, stated that his students were personally interviewed by the Registrar and himself and thus no student advisor was needed for those entering Varsity. It would be splendid if an advisor could be appointed in each high school to prepare the student for his course at university, but this was a matter for the high schools themselves to decide.

Mr. G. Glazebrook, Baldwin House: "I see no reason for more machinery. The calendar may be hard to interpret, but the student wanting any subject in Law, Modern History or Political Science, can at least make use of the notice in that calendar stating that 'an advisor of studies will be present in Baldwin House', with the dates. And where could one find a man who is familiar with all courses, and competent to advise all sorts of students?"

their opponents by one point in the second half they failed to overcome the lead and the game ended with Western leading 13-10.

Although the intermediates lost it may be said that their play was far below par. A decided lack of condition throughout the line-up was a big factor in their defeat. In the first half both teams settled down to the same type of play, checking closely, man for man, but in the last period Varsity had possession for the most part, carrying the ball repeatedly into the Mustangs' territory, only to fail on their shots.

Pasternak and Scott led the attack of the Blue and White, with Gughino, Evans and Hauch as the most effective for their opponents.

Western—Evans, Vatz, Ruskin, Gughino, P. Hauch, A. Hauch, Morris, Seymour.

Varsity—Pasternak, Newman, Scott, Sullivan, Carr, Burns, Forsyth.

Intermediates and Juniors
Victors in Basketball Games

JUNIORS HAVE EASY GAME

Varsity's junior and intermediate basketball squads took both ends of a double header from Broadway "Y" on the latter's home floor on Saturday night.

The juniors walked away from their opponents in the first game, and easily won by the score of 38-13 after leading all the way and winning as they pleased, while the intermediates were forced to the limit in their game and only eked out a 32-31 victory after an exceptionally close battle in which the lead changed hands no less than eleven times. The intermediate fracas was as close as the score would indicate and the final result was always in doubt until the whistle blew to end matters with the Blue and White on top by the odd point. At half time Varsity were trailing the east enders by one point, the score then being 15-14, but they jumped into a good lead to start the last half and appeared to have the issue on ice with the score-board reading 28-19. But then something started the Broadway sharpshooters on a rampage and in no time at all the Varsity advantage had fallen from a fat nine points down to absolutely nothing at all and things looked pretty dark for the students. However, the defence bucked up in the last couple of minutes and managed to keep the east enders out of the defence zone while Humphrey for Varsity netted a timely basket in the last minute of play to finally snuff the verdict.

During the whole of the first period there was never more than three points separating the two teams and the lead see-sawed back and forth with neither squad holding their advantage for long. One basket would give Varsity a lead but in a second Broadway would again be in the van by a point or two and this continued on into the second half until Varsity jumped into a commanding lead only to have it slowly diminish. For Varsity, Humphrey, Grant and Hutcheon were very effective, scoring a total of twenty-six points, while Willis and Melsaak played good games on the rear guard. Henderson was the only alternate available and turned in a stellar performance. Broadway's best men were Wolf, Cadenhead and Carmichael.

The juniors had no trouble disposing of their opponents in the initial game and after leading by 24-4 at half time, were able to coast through the final period and come out on top by 38-13. Varsity showed their superiority from the start and quickly ran in ten points before Broadway could register a single tally and were never threatened by the east enders. Broadway made a spirited rally in the closing minutes but Varsity held tight and won easily. Varsity's points were very evenly divided and it would be impossible to single out one or two who starred for every man turned in a high class performance both offensively and defensively.

Varsity Juniors—Forwards, Rooke (7) and Dennis (7); centre, Huhn (6); defence, Hume (3) and Carroll (3); subs, Douglas (6), Sugar (4) and Black (2).

Broadview Juniors—Forwards, Appleby (2) and Weldon (2); centre, Horton (4); defence, McLeod and Grimmer; subs, Monaghan, Butler, Cowan, Fordy and Reed.

Varsity Intermediates—Forwards, Hutcheon (7) and Grant (10); centre, Humphrey (9); defence, Willis (4) and Melsaak (2); sub, Henderson.

Broadview—Forwards, McNay (1) and Bronstein (2); centre, Webster (4); defence, Wolf (7) and Carmichael (4); subs, Cadenhead (7), McDugall (6), Potts and Elliott.

The men of the junior year at Trinity College held at class banquet at the Royal York Hotel on Saturday night. About thirty members of the year were present.

LITTNER WINS HOT BOUT WITH THIRD ROUND K.O.

Littner and Magnier in the 135 pound class provided the feature bout of the boxing matches held Friday afternoon in the boxing room, Hart House. Littner won the bout on a technical knockout in the third round, but only after nearly three torrid sessions. Up until the last few minutes when Littner floored Magnier three times the latter had been leading on points. It was the superior condition of the winner which gave him the edge on his opponent.

Elson was much too fast and experienced for Strachan and won by a clear cut majority in points in the middleweight division. All the bouts were interesting and provided some smart boxing for the spectators.

SUMMARY

112 lb.—McKay defeated Field.
135 lb.—Stone defeated McCarty.
135 lb.—Littner defeated Magnier, technical K.O. in the third.
145 lb.—Deeks defeated Rapsey.
160 lb.—Elson defeated Strachan.

DEWAR HERO OF THE GAME WITH MCGILL

what looked like a commanding lead when Doherty beat Ames from the wing singlehanded one minute from the start. Two goals up, the Redmen began taking their time and relied on one and two man rushes for their attacks. The Blues opened up more and their efforts were finally rewarded when Smillie bounced a hard drive off the board after one of his sensational rushes. Stew Ferguson lost no time in following in fast and securing the puck, let fly a back handler which Powers had no chance to stop. This counter gave Varsity a lease on life and the improvement in their attack was noticeable from then on. In the final period they launched rush after rush and gave the opposing defence a busy time of it. Powers contributed some sensational work in turing aside shots in this frame. With the McGill men holding onto their slim lead it began to look like a victory for them, and the fans were beginning to file out the exits. Then with but twenty seconds left to play Referee Ernie Parks sent McGillivray, Red and White defence man to the penalty box for tripping. It was Varsity's opportunity for a Garrison finish. A great four man attack wound up in a scramble around the McGill nets and Harley shot a pass over to Bill Stewart. The Blue centre had no chance to get a shot away and flipped the disc to Dewar in front of the nets. The big defence man with the bullet shot came through. He drove the puck past Powers to tie it up. It was a great finish to a great game and gives the Blues a royal chance to regain the intercollegiate title when they play the return game in Montreal. Goals on the round will count.

Both teams failed to put their strongest teams on the ice. The Blues were without the services of both Freddy Murray and Harry Whitehead. The former is suffering from the effects of an injury he received in the game with the Sea Fleas two weeks ago and was unable to start. He may be out for the remainder of the season. Whitehead is still on the sick list and will be greatly missed. Don Smillie was the pick of the team in Saturday's game. The big fellow was a tower of strength on the defence, using his body to good effect. His rushes down the ice were dynamic and almost invariably ended up with a shot on the nets. Ames, in the nets, played a sterling game throughout and both of the shots that beat him were labelled sure goals. Of the front line men Ferguson, Stewart and Bell stood out. The latter played the best hockey he has shown here this season and never stopped trying.

The McGill team was also not at full strength in that several of the players composing the team as it stands in the Q.H.A. are ineligible for intercollegiate hockey owing to the freshman rule. Jack McGill and Crutchfield who have starred consistently for the Redmen this season were among the absentees. Of the remainder McTeer and McGillivray on the defence featured with some strong work in front of the smart goal keeping of Powers. Doherty, Ward and Farquharson on the regular front line showed a smooth attack but did not appear to be trying all the time.

ers of newspapers of the importance of the Mail and Empire who ignore that the students of the University of Toronto and its Staff are the thinking class of the City of Toronto, and that they carry the voice and sentiments of true citizens, always looking straight forward for the truth, and enjoying all the time a real spirit of democracy. With this environment, we students, cannot help but stand for one of the rights that free democracy give us, that is "free speech." We are here in one of the most important centres of culture of the Empire. University atmosphere lends itself as a searching lantern looking for the truth wherever it may be. We students are not narrow minded and egotistic creatures, and it is our duty to help with our grain of sand to build up the mighty structure of democracy. With that spirit and with these noble sentiments, sixty-eight of our professors have signed a letter protesting against intolerance.

We are called "babes and sucklings" by a Mail and Empire editorial writer, just because we have convictions and we express our opinions. He certainly is a poor spokesman of the newspaper that he represents. He should know that the history of mankind is divided in three stages. The first was the supreme individualism, the second when political and ecclesiastical organizations were in continuous conflict, and the third, which we are now entering upon, is that of discussion. The universities which have been trained for discussion are the ones that will lead the world. But true intelligent discussion is impossible when the truth is hidden and the most important of the rights of mankind is suppressed, that is Free Speech.

I firmly believe that to-day the world needs new social orientations that may sketch the way to sane humanity, and this cannot be done without the diffusion of ideas and the search for Truth.

Co-eds Are Human Beings

Editor, "The Varsity",
Dear Sir:

Appropos of co-education, university women, onions, etc., which played so important a role in your news and editorial columns last week, this is my unsolicited and humble opinion.

Someone in an interview with one of your reporters, generalized to this effect: "University women are more expensive." Ah, a corking head line!—and the statement goes down as a more or less general viewpoint among U. of T. men. Now in the first place the word expensive is here misused. It brings to mind things, rather than people, and the buying and selling of things. Co-eds are people. Secondly, any enlightened male knows that he doesn't spend any more money in his efforts to entertain a girl than he himself wants to spend. If once, hardly a second time, at any rate. If he spends more in entertaining an "attractive" girl he has only himself to blame—no fault of Eve.

I am aware that there are still men in this University who associate "women" with wine, song, love, laughter, dance, and by implication, expense. But there are many too who find women, especially co-eds, fellow human beings, just as willing to go for a walk, skate, attend a musicale, talk shop, and even study, as to spend a lot of cash. The man who is willing to experiment will find that an intelligent co-ed is far more capable of being entertained in this way than non-university women. Naturally, by reason of common interests and superior intelligence. The issue is really between being entertained by professionals and paying for it, and entertaining oneself. "How to Entertain on 25c. or Less, in five parts. . ."

Perhaps I presume, Mr. Editor. Perhaps some of Paul Gardiner's "Tush" column found its way into the front page. Or this may be a dead issue. I should like to see an opinion from someone else in the correspondence column.

Yours for co-education,
A. E. S. D.

ART, MUSIC AND DRAMA

Friday Afternoon Recital

Randolph Crowe is a well trained young baritone who has done good work on the Hart House stage and with the Conservatory Opera Company. His diction is excellent and he has very considerable dramatic ability.

Mr. Crowe's German group was probably the most successful. Two Brahms numbers, "I'm Lonely in the Fields," and "He Came in Vain," have great charm and Schubert's "O God Look Upon Me" has a reverential beauty which closely approaches Bach in effectiveness.

In the opera group a song by Peri, "The Invocation of Orpheus," originally sung at the wedding of Henry IV of France in 1600 and an aria from Mozart's Massiage Figaro were very pleasing.

The remainder of the program included a graceful song by Haydn, a number of Saint-Saens' picturing a mediaeval joust in which the "hand-some knight beloved of the fair lady" is killed, Fouldrain's jolly "Carnival" with the usual scintillating piano accompaniment and several "art" folk-songs.

VICTOR LANGE

Victor Lange is playing an important role in "Major Barbara" appearing at Hart House Theatre in the near future. He has done considerable acting in Germany and is interested as to how theatrical problems are solved in this country.

Mr. Victor Lange is the first student to take advantage of the Davis Exchange Scholarship. Mr. Lange attended the Universities of Munich and Leipzig. He says that there is a great difference between the systems of study in the two universities. In Germany there is no set curriculum. Students may attend any lecture they wish on any subject, and at the end of three or four years they may present themselves for the Doctor's degree. The students are their own judges whether they are qualified for this degree. There are no set examinations.

Mr. Lange believes in "Free Speech" and heartily upholds the "68." He says that the students are not lacking in bravery for their stand in the matter; they could not do that in Germany. As for Communism, he believes that it is a dangerous thing.

study, and so have been considered mentally inferior. When at college, in an attempt to make men realize that they are equals, they are likely to become snobbish."

"I think all college women are snobs. I never go out with college women," said H. B. Boddy, II U.C.

"College women may be sophisticated, but they are not snobs," was the opinion of C. Rogers, I U.C.

J. F. Lang, I U.C., told "The Varsity," "College women have nothing to be snobbish about. Personally I find them rather dumb."

A. E. Lyons, III Dents, said that although college women might not be snobs some at least seemed to him to be snobs in that they demanded the best in the line of dances and so on. He thought that one reason for this might be because they wished to be able to talk a lot in their residences and sororities. He also expressed the belief that if the students mixed up more there would be less snobbishness.

Byram at the piano demands particular notice. She provided some of the cleverest and most artistic accompaniments one has heard this season.

M.C. Musicate

The junior common room of University College with little save tradition to recommend it is, oddly enough, excellent for a piano recital and Miss Margaret Brown's brilliant and thoughtful playing was most enjoyable.

The List transcription of the Bach G Minor Fantasy and Fugue was the feature of the evening. Miss Brown's imagination made the fantasy very successful and her treatment of the fugue reminded one of a Respighi orchestration. A piano arrangement of a "melodie" by Gluck, was very lovely and Chopin's Ballade in F, one of his less "frilly" things, was well played. List's Tarantella, a minuet by the American pianist, Harold Bauer, more Chopin and a pianistic thing by Handel completed this very good program.

UNIVERSITY POLL DECIDING FACTOR

Varsity's" poll of professors and students came out in affirmative of their stand. The letter and the poll together were of the greatest importance in determining the result of the struggle."

Mr. Booth also issued for publication an official statement from the Fellowship outlining its present position and future program in the issue for freedom of speech and of assembly:

Official Statement

"The executive of the Fellowship of Reconciliation, meeting on the evening of Saturday, January 23rd, having heard the report of its committee dealing with matters in respect to free speech, and freedom of assemblage in Toronto, and having heard the announcement of the Board of Police Commissioners, expresses its satisfaction with the new policy adopted by the Board of Police Commissioners reserving the practice of restricting and interfering with the rights of citizens in engaging of halls and in the conducting of public meetings.

"The executive of the Fellowship regards this announcement by the new Police Board as a vindication of the action of the Fellowship of Reconciliation in bringing to the attention of the public the practices and policy that had previously prevailed.

In loyalty to its own fundamental aims, and by reason of the active part it played in the recent events which brought about this change of policy the Fellowship deems it a public duty to pledge its continued support and aid in securing and maintaining for the public of Toronto the free exercise of its elementary rights of freedom of speech and freedom of assemblage."

to disagree with their teachers." W. P. Markle, IV Vic, viewed the larger majority of the senior years as an indication that the seniors were more determined to have their own way than the juniors, who had possibly put more thought on the subject. Mr. Markle was of the opinion that unlimited freedom of speech would be dangerous in a country as cosmopolitan as Canada.

Miss M. B. Clark, III Household Science: "The vote indicates the determination of the students to maintain traditional British freedom of speech."

C. L. M. Douglas, III Trinity, viewed the outcome of the voting as only to be expected. He considered that the students had rendered an unbiased opinion on the question of free speech rather than given the professors a mandate to express themselves on

Quebec Sets Pace In Winter Sports

Winter sports, in the most historic city of the American continent—Old Quebec, cradle of New World civilization, with the Canadian Pacific Railway's beautiful Chateau Frontenac Hotel as headquarters, are again proving a drawing card for devotees from all parts of Eastern Canada and the United States.

The great hotel, with its long, fast toboggan-slide on Dufferin Terrace and its spacious skating-rink just outside its doors, offers something unique in the way of comfort for sports-lovers. Quebec, too, boasts a fine ski-jump and plentiful opportunities for cross-country work either on skis or snowshoes. Curling, hockey and sleighing are also staples of the winter's program, most events being rounded off with dancing in the evening.

The season is now in full swing; the International Snowshoe Convention and the ice-canoe race across the St. Lawrence on January 31 and February 1; the famous Eastern Dog-Sled Derby on February 19, 20, and 21, followed by the traditional Masquerade Ball in the Chateau Frontenac's gracious ball-room, being among the high-lights.

For picturesqueness, Canada's Ancient Capital can hold its own with any city in the world and the surrounding countryside offers a host of opportunities for excursions. Snow conditions, following the great January storm, are reported excellent and those who have visited the Chateau Frontenac, either in winter or in summer, have learned that its name for hospitality, accommodation and cuisine is indeed well-earned.

The pictures show: above, a typical dog-team and, right, the majestic Chateau Frontenac, towering over Quebec's Lower Town; upper centre and lower-left: ski-jumpers and, below: visitors out for a run in the Chateau Frontenac's dog-sled. The very youthful skiers shown middle-left are typical of how young Quebec takes to winter sports, which have become famous throughout the American continent and bring visitors and competitors over Canadian Pacific lines from most of the larger centres of Eastern Canada and the United States.

We Did Not Disappoint Them All But Tipped Them Into The Canal

By R. L. Evans

With Algie I arrived in Venice, (where no one plays at golf or tennis) and off we went to our hotel by certain means of which I'll tell: Outside the busy railway terminus we met a beggar who looked verminous. He put us in a little ship and gathered an enormous tip. This craft was called a "Vaporetta", and, in comfort, was much better than certain street cars that I know at home in dear old Toronto. It landed us right at the door of our hotel—what would you wish more?

Next morn we woke in dawning dim and Algie wished to have a swim, so out our window wide he hopped and into the canal he dropped. He made a splash and disappeared, and for his safety I quite feared, but up he came, and in his arms, Oh say! Hath Venice not her charms?—reposed a cat, extremely dead, and half a grapefruit crowned his head! A funnier sight I've never seen, but doubt if that canal was clean!

Our breakfast o'er, we went outside and in a gondola took a ride to see the sights as tourists do, and have a little boating too. I said, "Look! There's the Bridge of Sighs!" and Algie at it cast his eyes. Said he, "It is so short and small it isn't a real bridge at all, and so I really can't surmise why they call it the Bridge of Sighs!"

We drifted past the cemetery which is an island in the sea, but now so crowded is the place the dead can scarcely find a space, and so they bury them upright, which must be a peculiar sight. Thus, as the graveyard is so packed, there's STANDING ROOM ONLY, in fact!

We passed beneath the Rialto and I recalled that long ago at school I learned that Shylock said, on this same bridge above my head, his famous words, renowned for years: "Friends, countrymen, lend me your cars!"

Said Algernon to me one day as we went floating on our way, "When time has come for us to work, a job at home we'll surely shirk, but here in Venice will we meet and get a job sweeping the street!"

And when at last we had to leave, upon the quay we did perceive the numerous staff of our hotel, each waiting to be tipped right well. We did not disappoint them all, but tipped them into the canal.

CAMPUS SCORNS ANY SUGGESTION OF DEMORALIZATION

Norwood Justifies Student of
To-day in Lack of Repression

PURPOSE DEFEATED

Fevered Imagination Blamed for Extreme Accusation of Filth

The student body shows little interest in the fact that General J. T. Fotheringham considers that "they ought to have had their heads knocked together when they were young". Their opinions on his statement that the university has sorely demoralized since he was a hard-working undergraduate is that they consider such views "rot", but had little to say in the way of refuting the objectionable statements. The professors are mostly too busy to be bothered on such a frivolous subject.

Professor Gilbert Norwood: "Oh, this is the stuff! Why, you don't want to interfere with this? ... What's this about 'demoralization and filth'? What have you been up to?"

"It's no use abusing the student paper for not having the same ideas as people 50 years ago. If they do something very awful, they pay for it in the opinion of their fellow students. I think the student's paper should go its own way."

"But I feel that 'The Varsity' makes a big mistake in trying to be like ordinary commercial newspapers. It's a bit too professional."

"As far as my regrettably limited experience with the students goes they are more outspoken and socially freer, which results in some bad features, but is much better than the artificial repression of the students of 30 years ago when I was an undergraduate. They go in, to-day, more for social and spiritual things rather than intellectual, they are more matured human beings. The general movement has been towards casting off traditions and throwing over the traces; that in itself has become a tradition."

TWO-THIRDS PASS FIRST YEAR DOOMED

Four Hundred Students Take Chance of Failure in May

HIGH SCHOOL AHEAD

Students in the first year pass this year are facing a situation which their predecessors in the first year of that course never had to face before. They are up against an issue of the necessity of getting their year or taking French leave from the ancient and honoured institution of the University of Toronto.

If it is true that history repeats itself, there is going to be a large number of students returning to their native heath. If figures do not lie, that will be the situation next September.

In the year 1928-29, of the three hundred and fifty-two students who registered in the course, only one hundred and thirty-eight emerged successfully, which is a reduction of more than one-third. In the year 1929-30, four hundred and forty-one students entered the course and one hundred and seventy-two were lucky enough to make the grade.

This year, in spite of the fact that they were warned when they applied for admission that if they failed to pass the examination they could not return to the university until they had an honour matriculation standing, four hundred and thirteen took the venture. What the end will be, alas, time alone will tell.

TWO ORCHESTRAS MUSIC AT BALL

Energetic people who like to dance and have no use for sitting out intervals found their tastes catered to at the Arts Ball of University College Friday evening.

There were two orchestras, both playing in the Big Gym. As soon as one finished a selection the other started and there was no break in the music all evening.

Decorations were in the conventional Blue and White. Programs with an attractive cover were a feature.

WRIGHT DECLARES SCHOOL DISGRACED BY 'THE VARSITY'

Scores "Silly Professor" Who Got into Trouble Crossing Park

"68 SHOULD BE TARREO"

Professor Would Expel Editor
Because of Disgraceful
Editorials

"The Varsity" has brought disgrace on the school on our staff and on the undergraduate body," claimed Professor C. H. C. Wright, professor of architecture, who devoted two whole lecture periods of the first and second year architecture respectively, in a scathing attack on "The Varsity", and the recent Free Speech issue.

"I do not want this for the press," the professor stated at the start of his lecture, but he did not refrain from vigorously telling the class his views. All this rumpus started because some silly professor of Orientals could not get out of trouble crossing a park and a few underworld characters wished to make trouble and the police commission was quite capable of looking after it, was the idea of Professor Wright.

The 68 professors should have left it to the commission and several of them deserved to be tarred and feathered and put on a rail, was part of the idea advanced during the lecture.

The editor of "The Varsity", he holds, is worse than the Algie case and if he had his way Mr. Allan should be expelled immediately. He explained he had not read "The Varsity" until recently when so much attention was drawn to the matter, and he considered its editorials a disgrace.

Fotheringham Corrects Interview and Urges Military Discipline

Protesting that he had not authorized the publication of the interview that appeared in "The Varsity" yesterday General J. T. Fotheringham said that he had spoken with the definite understanding from the girl reporter that he was not to be quoted.

Objection was particularly raised to the misquotation, "... a lot of young people like you should have their heads knocked together. ..."

"I would never speak like that to a lady," he insisted. "I said that there were a lot of young people around the university who should have been so treated. But I made no personal reference."

Another bone of contention in the article was the paragraph to the effect that Governor Angus McMurphy was going to "do something" about "The Varsity". "How am I going to explain that to my friend Mr. McMurphy?" he said.

The reporter assured him that there was no breach of confidence as Mr. McMurphy had for some years made no secret of his plan to "do something" about "The Varsity".

The "undisciplined" attitude of the students and "The Varsity" is objectionable to the General who, as a military man, has seen what discipline can accomplish. He told "The Varsity" something of his work in France and in Canada after he had been brought back from the front to take command of the medical service in Canada. He has faith in discipline. "Discipline is no yoke," he said.

"There is a lack of discipline shown in the fact that my remarks, not given for publication, should have appeared," he said. "The Varsity" evidently takes its standard from the downtown press and is therefore unacademic and distasteful to a com-

ALL-INDIAN GOVERNMENT

Communism Opposed to Genius of Indian People, Says Miss Kilpatrick

"I believe that it is one of the best moves made yet," said Miss D. H. Kilpatrick, B.A., acting Dean of Women in University College when questioned by "The Varsity" concerning the release of Ghandi and other members of the Nationalist Party as announced in the papers yesterday morning. "It is doubtful whether he will avail himself of his freedom though, unless all his followers are released."

"The Round Table Conference," Miss Kilpatrick continued, "has done much to solve India's constitutional difficulties. All that is necessary now is the man with the personality, wisdom and foresight to win over the support of the extremists and to establish a system of fairly equal representation. If Ghandi were not an extremist there is no doubt in my mind but that he would be the required man."

When asked if Russia and Communism were a source of trouble and danger, the reply was, "I don't think so. When one has a collection of so many peoples of different nationality and races blended together there is always unrest and no matter what is done it is always adverse to the beliefs or traditions of some caste or race. Communist propaganda might be the

The patrons and patronesses were Rev. E. J. McCorkell, Rev. J. E. Burke, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Palmer and Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Costello.

The committee were the Misses Catharine Smyth, Marybel Quinn, Isabel O'Rourke, Kathrine Gleeson, Mary Palmer and Marion Darte.

PROFESSORS WANT PAPER DELIVERY

Several Members of Medical Faculty Never Read
"The Varsity"

COPIES GO FAST

"A dollar a year is not too much to pay to have 'The Varsity' delivered to one's door," was the opinion of several professors, when questioned by "The Varsity" yesterday.

"I never miss a single copy of 'The Varsity'," said Professor John Satterly of the Physics Department. "Even if I wanted to, I would be unable, because there are so many copies brought home every day. Bachelors on the faculty aren't nearly so interested in 'The Varsity', or for that matter, so much in touch with campus affairs as some of the rest of us are."

Professor F. B. Kenrick of the Department of Chemistry, lamented the fact that he never got a chance to read "The Varsity", and believed the method suggested of paying a dollar would insure delivery. "All the copies are gone in ten minutes. I wish there was a delivery system that would assure me of a copy regularly."

Several members of the Faculty of Medicine said that they never read the undergraduate newspaper.

Mr. D. G. Creighton of Baldwin House also said that he seldom saw "The Varsity". When questioned concerning his reasons for this, Mr. Creighton was silent.

BRITISH POLICY JUST

"The transformation of general living conditions that has taken place in Palestine in the last ten years has been the most marvellous recorded in many years," said Professor Taylor of the Department of Oriental Languages, in an address to University of Toronto graduates following a supper in Hart House last evening.

In his lecture on the principles of the British policy in regard to the Near East, with special reference to Palestine, Professor Taylor pointed out the strife and struggle preceding the British conquest of Palestine. The antagonism between the British, Germans and French over the possession of Palestine was a strong factor in bringing matters to a head, resulting in the Great War being finally declared.

STUDENT ADVISOR CONCEDED AN AID BY UNDERGRADS

Opinion Divided on Question; Advice Needed Mostly in Collegiate

ADVICE ALWAYS GOOD

Individual Professors Apt to Boost Their Own Department

Opinion of the male portion of students as to the usefulness of a student advisor of studies seems to be pretty well divided. The majority of those approached favoured the idea, but the opposition was more outspoken in its denial of the scheme.

F. C. Vallat, III Law: "A student advisor would be a help; too many students go wrong because the Calendar does not supply full information and then a professor when approached is too apt to boost his own department."

L. Lewis, II B. and M.: "Advice is always good and it does not have to be taken."

L. Clavir, II C. and F.: "The idea is fine, but it should go farther than that. An advisor in the high schools for honour matriculation students would be more practical."

M. Sandler, Architecture: "Anyone capable enough does not have to be advised; one who cannot decide is not worth bothering about."

A fourth year classics man, who refused to divulge his name, said: "The student advisor stuff is the bunk. A student of university age should know his own mind. Anyone attempting to advise an uncertain student might do him more harm than good. Such a student should either take a general course or not go to university at all."

REVIEW OF THE NEW CITY WATERWORKS

New Developments Will Cost Approximately $143,000,000

THREE MAIN PUMPS

At a general meeting of the Engineering Society held yesterday afternoon in the Mining Building, Mr. William Gore spoke on "The Recent Waterworks Developments in Toronto." Mr. Gore made his lecture a most interesting one by illustrating it with about 50 slides. These slides depicted scenes from the different phases in the construction of the local improved waterworks.

Mr. Gore, who is an eminent consulting engineer, is one of those who are designing the new scheme.

The new developments when completed will cost approximately $14,300,000. There will be three main pumping stations, one at Sunnyside, one at Victoria Park and one on John Street. At each pumping station is an intake pipe, each of which run out about 3,000 feet under the bottom of the lake. There are two reasons for this: the water further out is considerably purer and the bottom of the lake is not so unsettled.

A tea in honour of the graduating year at St. Hilda's College was given by Miss Cartwright on Saturday last. Friends and relatives of the girls were present and the men of JTI were also invited. The juniors of the college served tea.

THE NEW PUERILIA

Following hard upon the working agreement arrived at between the Police Commission and the Fellowship of Reconciliation, putting at least a temporary quietus on the free speech controversy, the weekend just past has witnessed some of the most noteworthy manifestations of the New Puerilia we have had to date.

In the first place, we have a clergyman of a prominent sect yelping from his Riverdale pulpit in this wise: "It would seem that 68 professors of the University of Toronto have seen fit to offer a new covenant of communism on the old cart of education. If that is so, the sooner the proper authorities line up the men who would poison the minds of the young men and women who are to lead this country in the coming years, the better it will be for this country. The sooner the back door is opened to the man, or men, who would bring into this fair land a system of government that has brought bloodshed and misery; that laughs at virtue and religion; that sneers at family life, and has trampled the most treasured traditions of humanity in the dust—I say the sooner such men or such a system is given the back door, the better for our country."

This bit of rhetoric was deemed worthy of a place three columns wide, in heavy type, at the top of the front page of The Globe yesterday morning.

By the way of fathering the second outburst of Puerilia, this same morning newspaper published on the same page of the same issue an editorial headed "The Tumult Dies"—to which we direct the attention of our readers as an example of misrepresentation of facts as deliberate and criminal as anything which has been perpetrated by a once powerful and dignified daily now fallen upon lean years. The Globe likes to refer to the "68" as "professors". In view of recent developments, we reserve the right to refer to The Globe as a "newspaper".

We hesitate to nominate so eminent a gentleman as Major General Fotheringham to the realm of the New Puerilia. We cannot help feeling, however, that his remarks, both of yesterday and to-day, are unworthy a soldier and a scholar of his distinction. He accuses "The Varsity" of printing an interview on which there was a "definite understanding" that he would not be quoted. The editor of this paper did not feel, we may say, any obligation to refrain from publishing certain remarks made to a woman reporter by the gentleman in question, merely because the gentleman—during a comparatively lucid interlude in his series of angry and irresponsible protestations—assured his interviewer that what he had to say was not to appear in print. The gentleman worships at the feet of the Great God Discipline, which, we supposed, is to be actualized as Major General Fotheringham knocking together undergraduate heads. This paper is a glaring example of commercialism, and ought to be suppressed because it dares to quote people and to make, editorially, positive statements for which the editor is personally responsible to a far greater degree than are such people as the gentleman in question for the extreme statements made in camera, "not for publication".

Professor C. H. C. Wright of the Department of Architecture is another candidate for the New Puerilia. He appears to be another person who feels he can make remarks—in public this time—and escape quotation merely by uttering the magic words, "I do not want this for the press". He believes the editor should be expelled from the University because his editorials are "a disgrace" to something or other—probably the learned professor's sense of discretion. Since he likens us to the Algic case, we feel justified in remarking that if we are to be sent to the block, we sincerely hope our "case" will not be handled in as unjust and bungling a manner as was the previous case by the Council of the learned professor's own faculty.

Professor Wright made certain statements anent the constitution of the undergraduate newspaper which, we may say, are absolutely untrue. The editor-in-chief is not elected by the editorial staff, but is appointed by the Students' Administrative Council. To state that no control is exercised over the paper is to prove that the professor is venturing to sit in judgment without having the most elementary knowledge of the written Constitution of "The Varsity" under the S.A.C., or with the resolutions approved by the Joint Executive and a committee of the Board of Governors last fall. To view with alarm the fact that the editor appoints his own staff—he

I AM INTERVIEWED BY THE VARSITY

By Gen. O. L. Frothingham
I was seated in my armchair fondling a copy of The Ladies' Home Journal, and recalling to mind the noble achievements of the drunken undergraduates of my day. In my day, let me remind you, they did not drink. They drank.

Whether it was my respectable intuition that warned me, or whether it was my memory of past experiences I cannot say, but I suddenly perceived the figure of a dangerous woman entering my study by the window. I arose cautiously and brandished a bag of onions, crying all the while, "Que la hell! Que la hell!"

My guest drew a flask from her stocking which she proceeded to digest with all the skill and grace of a drunken undergraduate of my day. "Isn't on the onions, big boy," she smirked, "I'm from The Varsity and I want you to gimme the low-down on free speech."

My ire was aroused. Let me say that when my ire is aroused, my ire is aroused. I folded my hands in pious astonishment and exclaimed, "Such demoralization! Such filth!"

My words must have affected her deeply for she extracted another flask from her stocking and bashfully held it out to me. My heart was moved, and as I drained the flask of its contents my head, too, was moved. "There there, my child," I sobbed, "I did not mean to offend you, but whenever I think of the drunken undergraduates of my day I pray for the return of the saloon. There are a few things around this university that need cleaning up and it is my intention to start in with this flask."

It should not be necessary to add that this article is not recommended for children under sixteen.

No doubt the unemployed of New York have adopted as their theme song, "Who Weel Buy My Apples?"

"Do you belong to the Chisellers' Club?"

"Yeah."

"Well, do lemme see your chisel."

With the Theatres

For the benefit of our readers, pictures are graded as follows in this column: Average (0), below average (-1) or (-2), above average (1) or (2).

NOTE—Playing time indicated by second bracket.

Not in many months has there been such a week as this in the local theatres. If you are for the moment disgusted with the offerings of film-dom, see any first run show in town and probably your faith will be re-established. All of them are above average. There may not be another such week for years and years; so make time during the next four days to see for yourself just how far the talking picture has developed.

Will some one please find a good excuse for the Ontario Board of Censors. This time it is a sin of omission. Down at the Tivoli there is an animated cartoon that is silly, dirty and cheap. Several persons with ditto minds laughed at it. Of course the censors cut The Blue Angel, one of the greatest pictures of time.

We welcome Ted Reeves to the ranks of the Toronto movie critics. His first effort is o.k. too, though we did not agree with it. There are now 3 1-2 movie critics in Toronto.

BLUE BASKETEERS TAKE DOUBLE VICTORY OVER "Y" TEAMS

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

Bea Longley of basketball fame, proved herself no sluggard at other sports when she won the individual championship at the Vic swimming meet held last night. She garnered a large number of her points in the diving, and also took first place in the Breast Stroke and Back Stroke speed events.

Grace Cook and Dot Bishop displayed great form to take second and third honours respectively. On the whole the swimming was very good, and Vic bids fair to have a real entry in the interfaculty meet which comes off about the middle of February.

The intercollegiate basketball outfit will take on Margaret Eaton in the first game of the city basketball league on Thursday afternoon at 5 o'clock. For the past two years M.E.S. have been city champions, and it is just about time the city trophy came to Varsity. The Varsity outfit will be as strong or stronger than the ones which have worn the Blue in the past, and this season it looks as if M.E.S. are at last due for a fall.

Vic senior hockey team trounced St. Hilda's to the tune of 3 goals to nil in an interfaculty league game last night. The game was very slow, and most of the play centred around the St. Hilda's goal. This win gives Vic undisputed possession of first place since they have won one game and lost none, and the Saints have won and lost one.

The intercollegiate hockey team will entertain Queen's here on the 7th of February and they are practicing hard in preparation for this event. The Blues won the intercollegiate trophy last year, and hope to repeat. They play the first game in the city league on Wednesday night and it will give Coach Jack Sinclair a chance to see how they work out in an actual game.

SENIOR S.P.S. WIN IN BASEBALL SET

Senior S.P.S. trounced Pharmacy yesterday by 14-3 in an interfaculty baseball fixture. Play was even until the third inning when School ran up ten tallies. Adams, Campbell and Davey starred for the winners; Walton, Crow and Helmer for Pharmacy. S.P.S. — Adams, Wilson, Mosser, Davy, Campbell, Edmonds, Proudfoot, Carmichael, Jewett, Jansen.

INTERMEDIATE 'B' IS BEST FIXTURE OF DOUBLE ROUND

Junior Game Rather Listless, but Second Game Proves Fast and Close

HUTCHEON STARS

Varsity Juniors Exhibit Fast Passing and Smooth Combination

The intermediate "B" and the junior basketball team of the University of Toronto won both games of a double header in the big gym at Hart House last night, when the intermediates defeated Central "Y" by 27-25 and the juniors trounced Broadview "Y" by 41-21.

In the first game, which was a rather listless exhibition of basketball the Blue and White juniors led the Broadview cage team all the way, the score at half time being 23-14. The fast passing and smooth working combination of the Varsity juniors enabled them to have repeated shot at the Broadview basket, and the steady work of the guards kept the "Y" men from being dangerous at the Blue end of the floor.

For the U. of T. team Black at centre was the outstanding man and engineered most of the team's plays. Himel, Douglass and Shugar performed well for the junior team. For the losers Applebaum was the best, scoring 8 of his team's points.

The second game of the double header between the Varsity intermediate team and Central Y.M.C.A., was a faster and closer match. Two pretty shots by Hutcheon and Willis in the last two minutes of play brought the Varsity basketeers from behind to finish up 2 points ahead, winning by the score of 27-25. As shown by the half time score of 17-17 the game was close all the way with the play running from one end of the floor to the other, and at no time did either team have a lead of more than 4 points.

Hutcheon was the star of the Blue and White team, scoring 12 points for the winners. Grant and Willis worked hard to help earn the victory. For the losers Marriott was the outstanding man, scoring 16 points, 12 of which he registered in the first period.

Varsity Juniors (41) — Douglass (6), Shugar (2), Black (8), Himel (9), Carroll (4), Dennis, Huhn (6), Jajnet, Rooke (6).

Broadview Y.M.C.A. Juniors (21) — Fordie (3), Monaghan (4), Horton (4), Weldon (2), McLeod, Corvan, Applebaum (8), Reed, Marty, Butler.

Varsity Intermediate "B" (27) — Hutcheon (12), Grant (6), Humphrey, Willis (4), MacIsaac (1), Loblaw (1), Foxe, Henderson, Latimer (3).

Central Y.M.C.A. Intermediates — Marriott (16), Kent, Haebelin, Digby (5), Collins (4), Mein, Scott, Cole. Referee — Jack Hutchison.

ST. MIKE'S WIN BASEBALL FIXTURE

O.C.E. Fail to Hold Double Blues in Interfaculty Game

SCORE 31-23

St. Mike's needed five minutes overtime to down O.C.E. 31-23 in an interfaculty basketball game at Hart House last night. Except for the overtime period, the game was rather listless.

The Double Blue were leading 11-6 at half time, but the teachers came back strong in the second half and ran in 15 points when they held St. Mike's to 10.

After scoring 9 points for his team Burns, of St. Mike's, twisted his trick knee and was out for the rest of the game. O'Brien, who replaced Burns,

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By De C. H. R.

The University of Toronto intermediate "B" team rallied in the last two minutes of the basketball double-header at Hart House last night in the fact of what looked like certain defeat to take a two-point victory from Central "Y" intermediates. The final baskets were made by as pretty shots as one could wish to see, and were made by the two players who had been working hardest all evening, Hutcheon and Willis, so they were well-deserved. The victory places the intermediates at the top of their group in the city Y.M.C.A. league, as they were tied with Central "Y" previous to the game. They have been working splendidly in the second series, having three wins and one loss as their record.

The junior basketball team had no difficulty in taking their second successive win from the juniors from Broadview Y.M.C.A. when they defeated them by a margin of twenty points last night. The juniors, run by Don Wood, have one of the smoothest working collections of forwards to be seen in the city, and it was largely their combination play that gave them the victory last night.

The University of Toronto O.H.A. senior "B" team journeys to Guelph to-night to meet the O.A.C. entry in the O.H.A. group for the second time. This so-called intermediate hockey outfit has been winning games in no uncertain way this season. In three starts the team has three victories to its credit, and all of them were won by a good margin. The senior "B" team looks just now like the only hope that the Blue and White hockey fans have for play-off chances, and they certainly are deserving of all the support that the student body can give them. They have a good goalie, a stonewall defence, and an aggressive forward line that never pauses at its work. So you can count on that same "B" team to give plenty of opportunity for exercising the vocal apparatus later in the winter.

The juniors meet Marlboros in the Mutual Street emporium this evening. The Blue and White junior hockeyists have been playing by fits and starts in the Big Four group this season, and it is hard to say what they will do next. They can be counted on to give an interesting performance at all times, however, and may trim the Dukes to come out ahead of the critics to-night.

The second part of the interfaculty indoor track meet is being run off at the track in Hart House this afternoon. The events have drawn plenty of competitors, and are giving the track men a chance to keep in trim as well as to provide some interfaculty excitement along that line during the winter.

University of Saskatchewan Only Canadian College to Do So

NO CREDIT AT OTHERS

The University of Saskatchewan is the only one of nine Canadian universities which allows its women students credit for physical training equal to those which may be obtained in any other subject according to a census of the universities taken by Dr. Edith Gordon, Medical Adviser for women at Toronto. All the other colleges, McGill included, either provide no physical training at all, or a one or two-year compulsory course for which no credit is given. At McGill, where the course in physical training is recognized as one of the best on the Continent, no credit at all is given, although four years of gym work is required from all before graduation.

Some of the universities have a much more fully developed health and infirmity service than is in practice at Toronto. Each student pays a small yearly fee, in return for which they receive medical and hospital attention up to a cost of $150 to $200. Besides this, many schools have an infirmary to be used in the case of minor illnesses, with a trained nurse in constant attendance. All require a health

Professor G. S. Brett, Head of the Department of Philosophy, in his article "Concerning India," which appeared in the January issue of the University of Toronto Monthly, points out how India was given a certain amount of self-government in the Montagu-Chelmsford arrangement that resulted in disorders, riots, atrocities and international complications being recklessly induced as if the idea of a stable government had been thrown to the winds. This was due to the non-co-operation of the Indian princes, but now as a result of their co-operation being obtained through "The Round Table Conference," we can look forward to the possibility of an all-Indian government.

Caviar For The General

By C. L. Coburn

The painted sackcloth rises to disclose a dusty closet on the top floor of the Medical Building. General Demoralization Frothingmouth, A.B., C.D., I.M.N.S., is crouched down over a filthy desk covered with cobwebs and beer-bottle-tops, reading a copy of the Mourning Globe for April 1, 1880. He mutters constantly to himself in a low voice.

General—Drunken undergraduates riot in downtown theatre. Fifteen buggies park on campus after nine p.m. Ah, those were the good old days!

He takes a bottle of beer from under the desk and pours it into a shaving-mug. As he turns the yellowed pages of his journal he sips his drink.

Enter three dentists, carrying a "Varsity."

First Dentist—We are an authorized commission . . .

Frothingmouth (startled)—Hic?

Second Dentist—We want to ask your opinion about the university.

Frothingmouth—Take it away. Bury it under a dung-heap. Let's all go live in a dung-heap. Such filth! Hic!

Third Dentist—What do you think about modern conditions?

Frothingmouth—Lousy! Why, in my day, no drunken undergraduate—and let me tell you we knew how to get drunk in those days—no drunken undergraduate could have conceived—hic—what was I saying?

First Dentist—What about the professors?

Frothingmouth—Communists! Atheists! Should have their heads knocked together. Now, when I was a youngster, our nurse used to drop us head-down on the floor once in a while. That's the way to make university professors. What do you think has preserved me to guide the destinies of this university for fifty years?

Second Dentist—Alcohol?

Frothingmouth—No. A Special Providence, that's what!

Third Dentist—Were you ever a sailor?

Frothingmouth—No, but I used to know a lot about schooners. I remember the time a bunch of us took a cow up into the tower of U.C. and couldn't get it down. It stayed there for days, filthy beast! Such demoralization! The place has been corrupt ever since.

First Dentist—What are you going to do about it?

Frothingmouth—We'll fix it. My friend Agnes McTurkey and me are going to go right up there with shovels and clean things up. Gosh all dung-hills! Such filth! What's that?

Enter a waiter.

Waiter—Just some caviar for the General.

there were a number of the students who used to delight in bulldozing the police. There was one man—a first class student in classics and mathematics, who was quite a leader in this bulldozing of the police.

"He would start with a party at a certain level on Yonge Street and they would undertake to take a drink at every saloon to the northward. As they got closer to Bloor Street and got more noisy, it used to be quite a problem to have a drink at each saloon and yet get across Bloor before the police interfered," he laughed.

MODERN BIOGRAPHIES INCREASINGLY POPULAR

Modern biographies are increasing in popularity because ordinary men are replacing giants in the main characters," stated Miss Jean McConachie in her paper on "Modern Biographies," read at the U.C. Women's Literary Society at the Women's Union, last night.

Miss McConachie pointed out that the historical background is sketched lightly, and that the modern biographies furnish real enjoyment and leave out lesser figures, thus shortening the story.

Marlene Dietrich is the best of the supporting cast, though the school boys are excellently played.

Young Woodley. (2)—A very peculiar story of a young student falling in love with the headmaster's wife at a boys' school in England. Madeline Carroll does fairly good work as the school master's wife.

ALONG THE SPORT TRAIL
IN ONTARIO

With the coming of January, sport lovers turn to the out-of-doors and the thrill of exercise in the crisp open air. Ontario does not have to travel far for its winter recreation. It boasts as picturesque country as can be found at the much-heralded foreign resorts. The beautiful Muskoka area has a number of year-round hostilities and they accommodate numbers of week-end parties. Muskoka possesses every natural facility for sport and is regarded as highly in winter as in summer. The above picture shows two skidding enthusiasts at Timberlost Lodge, near Huntsville, Ont. C.N.R. DUKES ELIMINATE VARSITY JUNIORS FROM PLAY-OFFS

Marlboros Defeat Blue Team
2-1 in Stirring
Puck-Fest

HEART-BREAKING GAME

Blue Pucksters Outplay Opponents at Finish, but Cannot Score

By Bill Fleming

Varsity's Junior Blues were definitely eliminated from entering the play-offs in the Big Four Junior Hockey Group last night, when they dropped a heart-breaking game to Marlboros, 2-1, at the Mutual Street Arena. The collegians were outscored but not outplayed, and in the last two periods had much the better of the play, but were unable to provide the equalizer. They kept Marlboros hemmed in for almost the entire last session, and Stein, in the Marlboro net, was called upon to make some brilliant saves.

The first ten minutes of play were close but uninteresting, until Gamble, husky Marlboro defence man, circled the Blue defence to beat Shipp, in goal. Play opened up then and five minutes later Gamble broke again and let one go from the blue line to put the Dukes two up. Bennett and Lynch on the Blue defence, were handing out some heavy bodychecks, which seemed to slow the Dukes down. They were content with one and two man rushes for the remainder of the period, while the students were fighting for a goal.

After the rest, the Blues came back stronger than ever, and began to show some unexpected teamwork. Time and time again, the forwards were right in on Stein, but were unable to beat him. Finally with two Marlboro men in the penalty box, McPherson broke through the defence and passed to May in front of the net. The diminutive centre player made sure of this (Continued on Page 3)

Rabid Redlings Rudely Wrangle Communism Calmly Quenched

A heated debate as to the relative merits and demerits of Communism attracted a crowd of thirty or forty men in Hart House yesterday afternoon, and eventually grew so vociferous that the Warden intervened and requested the participants to make less noise or else remove to a more secluded stamping ground. The chief speakers are believed to have been W. Krehm, I.U.C., opposed to J. D. W. Cumberland, III Pol. Econ., and D. Douglas, I.C. & F. Cumberland told "The Varsity" last night just what had happened.

"I went into the reading room about 1.45," he said, "and there were these two chaps in there having a most gorgeous argument, one pro-commun-

INDIGNATION RUNS HIGH AT SCHOOL

Engineers Loyal to Professor Wright, Though Many Say He Went too Far

Indignation is running high at the Little Red School House; but the general opinion of the School men is that Professor C. H. C. Wright went too far when he suggested that the "68" should be tarred and feathered.

In the draughting rooms of the Department of Architecture, the men all thought that Professor Wright's statements to his classes should have been hushed up. They are all loyal to their professor, who is one of the most popular professors at S.P.S. All refused to give interviews.

"He's a peach of a fellow," said one of the leading School executives, "and I would not want to say anything about him."

SPURIOUS TICKETS TRACED TO SOURCE

Keen Investigation Clears Up Mystery of Forged Tickets

COUNTERFEITERS CAUGHT

The mystery surrounding the sale of counterfeit tickets to the Graduates' Ball has been cleared up, according to statements made by J. B. Bickert, Warden of Hart House, to "The Varsity":

"A few days before the Graduates' Ball, held in Hart House on New Year's Eve," he said, "information reached my office that spurious tickets for the Ball were on sale. Definite measures were taken to check the tickets at the door, two detectives being present throughout the evening. When they were presented the false tickets were immediately recognized as such and the holders of these tickets with their guests, having been questioned by the detectives, were not allowed to attend the dance, and were required to leave the building immediately."

"The detectives worked on the case during the next few days and the result of their investigations was reported both to the Warden and to the Board of Stewards of Hart House. After the most careful consideration the Board ruled that the man who was responsible for the forgery be permanently expelled from Hart House and not allowed ever to set foot in the building again, and that another member who knowingly made use of some of the spurious tickets be expelled from Hart House for the remainder of his academic career."

"A gratifying fact in an otherwise extremely unsavoury occurrence was the number of persons who, whether or not they were connected with the university, spared no effort to help in the detection of the forgeries."

ist and the other anti-communist. After a while I joined in myself. There were quite a lot of fellows there and the crowd kept getting bigger and bigger till finally Warden Bickert came in and told them not to make so much noise, but to continue the argument some place else if they wished.

"The argument lasted till three o'clock, but it didn't get anywhere. It finally broke up when they started to move the chairs and tables out."

Other undergraduates present reported that a good deal of humorous heckling was carried on by the listeners. At a late hour last night "The Varsity" was unable to get in touch with Krehm and Douglas, the originators of the argument.

CROWDS ATTEND TO DANCE, DINE AT SCHOOL NITE

Some See Skits and Many Try Clandestine Nooking Popular

WATER POLO FEATURE

"Sixty-Eight Professors Can't Be Wrong." Sing Skitsters

School Nite: Crowds going out and coming both ways, pass and repassing, sitting, standing; skits in the music room, east common room, reading room, which some see, but which more try to see, water polo and the dance itself with a constant change between the four dancing floors. People enjoying themselves in clandestine nooks, people enjoying themselves in public; School spirit and a little otherwise. Dancing to the tune of splendid orchestras with a slight congestion which only added to the spirit. Dinner in the usual cafeteria style with a line-up which at times nearly reached the hall porter's desk, but which disappeared remarkably fast.

The three skits upheld the ancient S.P.S. traditions of wise-cracks and some wit. All the issues brought up by "The Varsity" were treated and one skit closed to the tune of "68 professors can't be wrong." A refreshment stand near the Great Hall elaborately fixed up like a chemical lab, supplied real lemonade, Eskimo pies, etc., to those who wished. And it all ended in a rousing "Toke Oike" in which the reporter's Uni-Uni-University passed unnoticed.

PEROLD PROTESTS ABOUT PERSECUTION

Economics Professors Claims His Lecture System Justifiable

DID NOT REFUSE PETITION

"I did not refuse the petition," said Professor J. G. Perold yesterday to a class in third year economics in reference to an article appearing in the "Varsity" of Wednesday, January 21. A petition had been presented to Mr. Perold signed by ninety students of the class to have his notes printed and distributed among the class. "It is not true that I take forty-five minutes as 'The Varsity' says."

"The implication is that what I am giving you is junk, from what the cod says about getting the material in ten minutes. It is a matter of method for each professor to decide. Others on the economics staff agree with my method. I am not a novice at this. I have taught these courses for two summers and not a single one failed. I am not giving you junk."

"I want to protest about this persecution," Mr. Perold continued, after cancelling the lecture for the day, "to which I have been subjected in the past. I have been told that I am incompetent and that I am wasting your time. I have been told that I am so pig-headed that I would not listen. If that is so of the majority of the class as it is of the ninety who signed the petition, my career is wrecked at the university. It means that I am to be thrown to the junk-heap," Mr. Perold said.

Professor Perold finished by saying that the class would have to do something before the next lecture. When Mr. Perold had left, L. S. Davis asked the class to sign their names to a letter which will be presented to Professor Perold at to-day's lecture.

FEARLESS FRESHIES FLOUT FOUL FOE

In the Cold World They Must Go, if They Fail to Make a Show

FIRST MAN FLUNKED IS "IT"

Students of the first year pass course in Arts, prophesy an early repeal for the old law of averages. The law indicates that only one out of every three students in the first year will continue to attend the University of Toronto while the remaining two will call their scholastic career finished or return to collegiate.

All students interviewed by "The Varsity" feel certain that they would successfully pull through in the final examinations. Most of them thought that recent publicity by "The Varsity" would result in increased study by the students.

Following are the opinions as expressed to "The Varsity" of several students in the first year pass course: F. Wilson—From my Christmas marks I think I can go through the finals with flying colours.

A. C. Fussell—All I can say is that I am hoping. I think the possibility of a return to collegiate should result in a great deal of serious thought and hard study among the first year (Continued on Page 4)

The Advisory Committee of University College for the students in Pass and General courses, appointed by the Council of that college to advise students in those courses on their choice of subjects or on any other problems which they might be unable to solve themselves, has been appointed for this year. The names of the men appointed to the committee are as follows: The Registrar, Professor McKellar, Professor G. O. Smith, Professor Hamilton and Professor Clawson.

In spite of the fact that the committee is more or less of an institution in University College, the majority of students do not seem to know of the opportunities it offers. How- (Continued on Page 4)

Embryo Trinity Hero Defies Tradition Worm Does Not Choose To Answer Phone

Has the worm turned at Trinity? There have been fantastic rumours to the effect that an upstart frosh has set the house of the gowned men by the ears.

It seems that this embryo hero decided that in this land of tolerance and free speech he, a man of dignity and discretion, should not have to answer the telephone.

Accordingly he retreated from his appointed station, stalked to his room and barricaded the door.

Soon outside were heard the blood-curdling shrieks of the angry sophomores and frantic pummelings on the door.

DEBATERS ADOPT NEW POLICIES

Lack of Interest and Preparation Cause Change in Method

AWARD SHIELDS ON MERIT

The preliminaries of the inter-year debates at University College will be held on Thursday, Jan. 29th at 5 p.m. At that time first and third year representatives will meet and the second and fourth will follow.

This meeting is open to all who are interested in debating and in hearing the arguments on the two questions which are to be discussed. The freshman and junior teams will debate the subject, "Resolved that free State education should be continued throughout the university", and the sophomore and senior teams, the subject, "Resolved that the 68 professors were justified in signing the recent 'Free Speech Manifesto'".

This year, the preliminary debates are being held at five o'clock, on Thursday afternoon, the 29th of January, in the Junior Common Room. The merits of the debaters will be decided by a committee of judges, consisting of Professors G. O. Smith, G. S. Brett and J. F. Macdonald.

STUDENTS URGED TO GO TO HART HOUSE CHAPEL

For the past five years, a daily prayer service has been held in Hart House Chapel at 12.30 noon. It is under the auspices of the Student Christian Movement. "I do feel that the men don't realize the opportunity afforded for a quiet time at mid-day. It is not a formal service, but it is intended really to be a period of prayer and meditation," said Rev. F. J. Moore, chaplain of Hart House. Besides the mid-day services and occasional addresses by prominent speakers, the Chapel is at all times open to students. "A visit to the Chapel will return in full value for the time spent there, and any men who have been at all reticent about entering are cordially invited to go at any time."

Next the transom gave way and through it came water, but to the surprise of the onlookers out came bottles (not milk, and empty), forcing the avenging sophs to beat a hasty retreat.

When next they gathered for assault they succeeded in bursting open the door only to be greeted by an empty room and a flown bird.

It is rumoured that the mystic inner circle that sway to the destinies of the mighty college are entirely at a loss as to the correct manner of procedure, there being no precedent in this case.

Varsity Team Dominates Play More Than Score Shows

HOLD EARLY LEAD

Desperate Rally in Final Period Comes Too Late for Aggies

Special to "The Varsity" by Norman Dickson, "Varsity" Sports Writer

Guelph, January 27th—University of Toronto senior Bees had little trouble in annexing their fourth straight win in the O.H.A. senior "B" group here to-night when they defeated the Guelph Aggies 3 to 2 in an exciting contest. Despite the closeness of the score, Varsity were much the better team and dominated the play throughout.

O.A.C. have improved considerably since their game with Varsity in Toronto and put up a good argument against the superior Blue and White squad. Varsity took a two goal lead in the first period when Clute and Williams scored on solo chances. The middle session remained scoreless with the final period witnessing a desperate rally on the part of the Aggies following the scoring of their first goal. Varsity added a third and in the dying moments the budding Agriculturists notched their second goal.

Varsity Bees missed several chances to score due to the heavy going of the natural ice, which was quite soft. However, the team showed its superiority in team play and individual rushes. The forward line flashed some smooth checking, while the rear-guard gave good support to goalie Kress, who gave a smart exhibition of goal tending.

The Aggies had a hard hitting defence man in Sid Henry, who blocked well. The forward line was breaking faster and the play ranged continually the length of the ice.

Roger Clute, stellar centre ice star, and with the ability that is deserving of a place on the senior "A" team, accounted for the Blues' first goal, banging a roller that eluded the O.A.C. net minder. Hal Williams added the second on a neat solo rush, stickhandling his way through the entire Aggie team.

Economist Outlines Development of Movement Since 1840

SPEAKS TO FABIUS CLUB

"The most contemptible type of working man is the one who can put up with drudgery, despair and poor conditions and still stand on a soap box and preach about the land of the free and the home of the brave," stated Dr. Morgan of the Economics staff at last night's meeting of the Fabius Club.

"American false conception of individualism is carried to ridiculous lengths. There is no well defined socialism in the United States at present, nor are there any signs of a Labour Party. Trade unions are tolerated, but under the constitution they are illegal."

Dr. Morgan traced the development of Socialism in regard to the United States since 1840 when the first movement began, owing to the political and economic situations and outside influence. WHAT WOULD THEY DO?

In a mood of calm reasonability we would like to discuss the matter of reform of "The Varsity" with those who attack it. "The Varsity" evidently takes its standard from the downtown press; "Sordid commercialism . . . has no place in an institution of higher learning," states General J. T. Fotheringham. "I feel that 'The Varsity' makes a big mistake in trying to be like ordinary commercial newspapers," suggests Professor Gilbert Norwood. The editor of "The Varsity" should be expelled, in the opinion of Professor C. H. C. Wright.

Of these people, and of the many members of the staff, student body and extra-University citizenry, who frequently give expression, officially or non-officially, to similar views, we would like to ask two straightforward questions. The first is: Are you aware of the conditions under which "The Varsity", as a daily paper, necessarily is produced? The second is: Just how would you edit the undergraduate newspaper?

For the sake of clarity, it may be wise to summarize briefly the system by which "The Varsity" is now brought out. Each morning the men's and women's news editors, or their assistants, write the day's assignments in the men's and women's books respectively. Towards noon the reporters look at the book for assignments, and start out for stories which can be obtained immediately. At eight p.m. the night editor and his—or her—assistant go on the job at the press. For the next nine or ten hours they rewrite copy, read proofs, write heads and superintend make-up—always under the pressure of time. In the event of a crisis the decision rests with them entirely, since it is hardly practicable to drag university and civic authorities out of bed for advice. At about six the night editors read the stone-proof, and "The Varsity" for that day then goes on the press ready for the morning operators, to be distributed to its readers at ten a.m. It may be recalled that members of "The Varsity" staff, including its night editors, may regard their positions only as "part-time" jobs, and are not immune from nine o'clock lectures.

Regarding our second question, we would welcome thoughtful answers, made in view of the facts just stated. How would our detractors ensure accuracy and academic style? How would they deal with a story breaking at something after midnight, which would certainly rouse wide student interest? How would they produce each day the oft-recommended literary paper? Or would they prefer a single sheet of bulletin board style, perhaps supplemented by a literary weekly?

Destructive criticism arises from annoyance, produces self-defensive indignation, and improves nothing. We suggest mutual constructive criticism given in a spirit of co-operation.

NO MALICE

It has been drawn to the attention of the editor of this paper that a back page feature appearing in yesterday's "Varsity" has been construed as a personal attack upon a member of the faculty of this University. We take this opportunity of assuring certain of our readers who express themselves as feeling strongly on the matter, that the feature in question was written from a humorous point of view and was not intended as having derogatory reference to any living person or persons. The writer took the occasion of a news story of the previous day as the text of his feature, it is true, but did so with no personal malice and with no thought of disrespect. This statement is made by the editor in an attempt to rectify an unfortunate misconception which has arisen in the minds of persons whose good will he values.

NO TRUE SOCIALISM IN STATES—MORGAN

say, they all failed. Conditions are far from favourable at present. Child welfare was actually condemned by women's clubs. Wage legislation for either men or women is considered unconstitutional. There was no radical national movement, although there were radical societies throughout the country which did not co-operate. Both under the constitution and by court decisions the worker has not a fair chance. Dr. Morgan answered numerous questions on the subject.

The next meeting of the club will be held February 24th at the Women's Union. Dr. Blatz, lately returned from Russia, will speak on "Russia and the Five-Year Plan."

Art, Music and Drama

A.C. Players' Guild

"To search for God and to find the devil; that is what happened to me." These words from Strindberg's novel, Inferno, have been taken by critics as the epitome of the great Swedish dramatist's literary, as well as personal life. Inferno is "a record of wretchedness and superstition and squalor, told by a maniac who is a positive Lucifer of the intellect."

In his dreams, Strindberg's misogynistic tendencies are subbed to a certain extent, but they lend a bitter intensity and cynical power to all of his work. His lyric pessimism and his gift of distilling his bitter experiences into a play do not exclude a neat and clever humour, tinged though it is with characteristic acidity.

Signs of Autumn, which is to be presented before the Players' Guild this afternoon, is one of Strindberg's lighter plays, a comedy which spins along at a quick and entertaining pace and yet dips subtly into the bitter depths of human nature as the dramatist has found it.

Signs of Autumn is being produced by Mr. Sydney Hermant. The cast is as follows: Axel Brunner, Mr. Arthur Marron, Mrs. Brunner, Miss Helen Anderson, The Baroness, Miss Jocelyn Moore, Rose, Miss Sylvia Cohen (not Miss Ruth Haldenby as formerly announced). —J.M.

Major Barbara

Major Barbara by George Bernard Shaw, is being presented each evening this week in Hart House Theatre at half-past eight o'clock.

Major Barbara being of Shaw is of course dramatized propaganda rather than dramatized life; though some psychological interest is aroused at the sight of one set of fine principles after another falling before the deadly thrusts of power and material comfort.

Andrew Undershaft is a wealthy, intelligent and unrefined munition maker—a successful capitalist rotarian—and a man whose broadcast theories mask his hidden ideals. Percy Schutte plays the part and does so in a thoroughly aggressive and convincing style.

He has the task of defending the virtues of power and comfort against others of his own family who stand by the good old doctrines maintaining the virtues of respectability, humility, poverty, aristocratic patriotism, and vague pagan socialism.

Ann Hickson, as Lady Britomart, stands up for respectability with studied poise, but is tempted and falls before the super-respectability of Undershaft's model villages.

Her son Stephen—played by Horatio Purdy with too-accented skill—is the British aristocrat who succumbs to the lure of the organized officialdom in a modern factory.

Barbara Undershaft—Major Barbara of the Salvation Army—sees all her hopes and ideals dashed down as her father proves that the Army in the choice between salvation and wealth, takes the latter. Freda Lloyd has this rather thankless role, and though she lacks the high spirituality that seems to be required, makes an acceptable heroine.

Finally there is Adolphus Cusins—france of Barbara and a Greek professor—played by Victor Lange. Shaw has not acted fairly by this part. With unusual meanness he has deliberately weakened the most powerful arguments opposed to his hero, first by putting them in the mouth of a fool, and secondly by ignoring obvious answers to the smart shots of Undershaft. But even though the part is weak, it was not necessary for Mr. Lange to deliberately make a low-comedy laughing stock out of the professor. As a farcical character he was excellent, but such an interpretation seems unnecessary and un-Shavian.

The remainder of the actors are quite satisfactory—especially those who play Cockney roles in the second act, though J. D. Jeffers might have been more successful with a less involved characterization of Bill. Erica Mundy, as Jenny Hill, is good.

The chief fault common to the whole cast except Percy Schutte is unfamiliarity with the polished force of manner with which the lines of a Shaw play must be read.

The lighting was simple, but uniformly satisfactory. The direction is adequate with a minimum of movement as is right and proper.

Major Barbara is not a great play play—nor does this production reach as high a standard as some former Shaw productions—for instance, Heartbreak House. But the play is sufficiently interesting and the production adequate enough to please all but the most censorious.

Sketch Room

The best collection of photographs ever hung on the walls of the Sketch Room by the Camera Committee of Hart House is also one of the most generally interesting exhibitions of the year, if the number of those who have come to view it, almost filling the rooms at times, is any criterion. The committee this year had a larger selection of prints to choose from than ever before and so by eliminating some 35 per cent of them, were able to improve the average standard of the show. The awards were made by S. Harrod of the Toronto Camera Club and K. B. Jackson of S.P.S.

SENIOR "B" TEAM WINS WHILE JUNIORS LOSE IN HOCKEY GAMES

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

The intercollegiate hockey game which was scheduled for to-morrow night has been postponed till Saturday on account of some difficulty over getting the Arena. It will be played definitely on Saturday, however, against Silverwoods, the new team.

Due to an error it was stated in this column yesterday that Margaret Eaton had won the city basketball championship last year. Varsity seniors, on the contrary, were the city champions, and did not lose a game last season.

The University of Western Ontario girls' basketball team have been invited to St. Lawrence College, Can-ton, New York, to play an exhibition game on the Monday following the intercollegiate tournament at Queen's. It will be extremely interesting to see how one of the best teams in Canadian college basketball will fare, when matching their skill with the Americans.

Western are extremely lucky to have five of their last year's players back with them again this season. They gave Varsity a tough battle for the intercollegiate title last year, and will probably be even better this year.

O.C.E. DEFEATS KNOX 9-4 IN INTERFACULTY BASEBALL

Scotchmen Rally in the Last Inning Too Late to Win

O.C.E. defeated Knox by 9 runs to 4 yesterday afternoon in an inter-faculty baseball tourney in Hart House gym. O.C.E. was well in the lead the first three innings, after getting seven runs in the first. It was not until the last inning that Knox staged their rally, but it came too late.

Both teams played well and the game produced no stars unless it was Moles of O.C.E., who was the only man to cross the plate twice.

O.C.E. (9) — Townsend, Davies, Medd, O'Donoghue, Moles, Foyer, O'Leary, Newham, Copp.

Knox (4) — Caslor, Robertson, Weir, Davidson, Taylor, Heddon Bush, McDiarmid, Wilson.

Tests made at the New Jersey College for Women indicated that sophomores are less liable to believe untruths than juniors are.

DON SMITH WINS INDOOR MILE RUN

Races Eight Furlongs in 4.40 Without Meeting Any Competition

EDDIE DORE TAKES 220

Don Smith ran one of the nicest miles in his career when he won that event at the Indoor Track Meet last night at Hart House. He was not pressed at any time or undoubtedly the track record for the distance would have been broken. K. L. Reid, a dark horse in the event, ran a very nice race to win second place from Fred Peart, who came third. In the 220 yard dash Eddie Dore did some nice stepping to place first with Ralph Standish second and Brooke third. Dore's time for the event was 24 1-5 seconds, which was considered quite good, and it is expected that he will be giving Ralph Adams a merry run in the 100 yard dash. Jim Watson, Windsor flash, was out last night, but did not run, and he also is to be counted in the running for the century.

Some of the finest running of the year is going on in Hart House in these Indoor Meets and the times made are all remarkable. For some time now Smith has been only a few seconds off the record and if he does not lower one or more than one in this season it is expected that he will do so next fall.

The shot putt was postponed until a later meet, which will be announced in this paper. Results:

One mile—Don Smith, U.C.; K. L. Reid, U.C.; Fred Peart, U.C. Time, 4.40.

220 yards—Eddie Dore, Dents; Ralph Standish, U.C.; G. K. Brooke, U.C. Time, 24 1-5 secs.

hung is good almost without exception. This year there are four or five present done in the very difficult but exceedingly effective special processes of "palladium", "Bromoil" and "Carbro". Details of the exhibit are interesting. The junior members (those who have never won awards in this annual exhibition) equaled the seniors in number, but the seniors had an average of six prints hung to the juniors' three. Most of the prize-winning prints bear names familiar to those who have seen the last two or three Camera shows here.

The "genre" group (the word refers to pictures that tell a story), while somewhat smaller than previously, contains some excellent prints of widely different subjects. The first award

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By J. M. Chorlton

Varsity's senior "B" team are going great guns in their group this year and are the only Blue and White squad which seems to be getting anywhere in hockey circles this season. The Smylie-coached men have won their four league games to date defeating O.A.C. in Guelph last night for the second time this year. This senior "B" team appear to be every bit as strong as the senior "A" squad, if not better, and should go a long way in the play-offs for O.H.A. senior honours.

From all accounts the indoor track meet at Hart House is providing some exceptionally fine competition. In yesterday's events Don Smith, Varsity's miler, won that event in close to record time, while Eddie Dore did the 220 yds. in 24 1-5 seconds and should give Adams a close race in the century.

Marlboros and Toronto Canoe Club will fight it out for the championship of the Big Four O.H.A. junior hockey group as a result of last night's battle between the Dukes and Varsity, in which the former conquered by 2-1 after one of the best hockey games seen at the Arena this year.

To say the least Varsity deserved to win that gruelling battle, for they put up a game fight for the full sixty minutes, and were nothing more than out-lucked in the matter of scoring. In the third period the puck was only out of the Marlboro defence area on three occasions, Varsity sending four men up practically the whole twenty minutes, but were unable to register a score. The forwards swarmed around the Duke goal until a goal seemed inevitable, but Stein rose to the occasion on every shot and made some sensational saves.

The senior game on Friday night at the "T" arena should be both exciting and fast as Marlboros and Varsity will both be fighting hard for a chance to get into the play-offs. Nationals' defeat at the hands of Port Colborne last night tightens the race up for second place, and the Dukes and Varsity both have a chance yet to enter the post-season series.

was gained by D. A. MacLulich with a picture of some forestry survey members sitting around their campfire outside their tents; the second by a soft-focus print of an interesting group from the Hart House Theatre production of Peer Gynt, taken in F. A. Sangster's best mood. "Dirt", by W. E. K. Middleton is a very vigorous interpretation of mechanized work and "Well?" by G. R. E. Pitts, won the Smithsonian Cup for the best junior print.

One of the most gratifying groups, "Design and Still Life", which was inaugurated as an experiment last year contains 15 pictures this year, three at least being among the finest prints on the walls. The bizarre "Men and Shadows" of Alan Sangster, becomes more enticing the oftener seen, whereas Colley Foster's two designs are noteworthy for their technical excellence and interesting grouping. Two highly "moderne" prints appear in this group, "Pencil Patterns" by J. L. Lehman, and "Springs" by W. E. Smithson.

WOODMEN SWAMP PARSONS BY POOR BASKETBALL 21-4

Rough and Ready Game Makes Refereeing Almost Impossible

Forestry completely swamped Emmanuel College in a rough and ready tussle called basketball yesterday afternoon in the upper gym at Hart House. The score was 21 to 4. The absence of the least semblance of basketball made it almost impossible to referee or call it such. Emmanuel scored their two baskets in the first two or three minutes and even before Forestry secured a point. Then Forestry netted their 21 points. Fouls were all too frequent.

In the first half Forestry scored four baskets and a foul shot. Then in the second half Forestry began to play more basketball, netting the remaining twelve points. Simpson was high scorer with eight points and Skolko also turned in a good game for Forestry. Ashton for Emmanuel deserved credit for the way he kept trying, although he failed to ripple the wine but once.

Emmanuel—Bencom, Shapley, Ashton, Morrow, Seale, Organ, Harris. Forestry—Skolko, Patterson, Leslie, Simpson, Townson, Bullock, Wiley, Christie.

There was no scoring in the second frame. Play was interesting and it did not drag. Four penalties were handed out for breaches of the body-checking rules, two to each team. Both of Varsity's came on top of each other to the defence men, but with this advantage, O.A.C. were unable to get near enough for a score.

The game livened considerably in the final session. Varsity rested nicely with a two goal lead. O.A.C. forced the play and five minutes after the period had started McLean shoved a loose puck through the defence, eluded a defence man and grabbed it again to notch the first goal for the Aggies. Spurred on by being only a goal behind, O.A.C. put every ounce into an offensive, but were unable to beat Kress in the Blue nets. Varsity's forward line swung into action again and Herbert made a nice play for his goal when he raced in on Clute's rebound to pull out Fitzgibbons and once again set the Bees two up. Scollie scored the final goal with but twenty seconds remaining when he shipped McLean's rebound past Kress.

Clute stood out on the Varsity team. His work at centre is cool and clever. He possesses a smart poke check that broke up rushes continually. Conn, at right wing, while handicapped with the heavy going, teams well with Clute. Williams and Robinson both turned in good games on the defence, while Kress displayed a fine performance in the nets. Herbert relieved on the wing, playing very good hockey.

Sid Henry, Stoneman and Scollie were best for O.A.C.

O.A.C.—Goal, Fitzgibbons; defence, S. Henry, McLean; centre, Scollie; wings, Thompson, Stoneman; subs, R. Henry, Robinson, Stoddart.

U. of T.—Goal, Kress; defence, Williams, Robinson; centre, Clute; wings, Charlebois, Conn; subs, Herbert, Mulvihill.

one and put the Blues back in the game. Shortly after this, May, who had been taking a great deal of punishment from the Marlboro defence, was hurt, and was replaced by Cunningham. For the remaining seven minutes of play the collegians kept storming the Marlboro net, but were out-lucked in their attempts to score.

On the face-off in the final period Varsity had another wonderful chance to score when May and Hendry were right through, but Stein made a great save. This was just one of the many opportunities the collegians had of tying the count, but Stein was equal to the occasion every time. Twenty minutes of clean, hard fought hockey followed with the Blues having the upper hand throughout. The period was free from penalties although many stiff bodychecks were handed out by the Dukes' defence and also by Bennett and Lynch. With two minutes to play the Blues were buzzing around the Marlboro citadel like hornets but without success, and the gong sounded with the score remaining 2-1.

For the winners, Gray, at centre ice, was the best of the forwards. He was a bear for word and his neat poke-check broke up many attacks. Gamble showed class in scoring his first goal and was a tower of strength on the defence. Stein played a steady game in the nets, the one goal scored on him being well earned, and his saves in the last period bordered on the sensational.

As a team the Blue outfit worked like a well oiled machine and no individual stood out. The defence was a little ragged at first but tightened up and handed out some punishment to the Duke forward line. May, at centre, showed himself an excellent play-maker and had lots of support from his wings. Cunningham fought all the way and deserved at least a goal. In the latter part of the game Shipp was unbeatable in the Blue goal and had little chance on the goals scored.

U. of T. (1)—Goal, Shipp; defence, Lynch and Bennett; centre, May; wings, Hendry and McPherson; subs, Cunningham, Boddington and Hodgson.

Marlboros (2)—Goal, Stein; defence, Gamble and Morrison; centre, Gray; wings, Shill and Hodges; subs, Good, Kitchen and Hamilton.

Referee—Norman Albert.

How To Cleanse a Dirty Eye Here Are Systems You May Try

By E. J. Delorme

How to remove foreign matter from the eye, a common campus ailment in these days of high winds and low morals:

First, blink the eye optimistically. When this fails, try pulling the upper lid over the lower, taking care to remove the thumb from between the lid and the eyeball.

If this fails, pull the lid upward, pin it to the forehead with a thumb-tack and search at your leisure for a piece of coal, hair pin, chewing gum, horse shoe or whatever is in the eye.

If this fails, concentrate your attentions on the other eye. The injured optic may think the game is over and release the button, nail file, shirt stud, fountain pen or whatever is troubling you.

Failing this, try rolling the eye around in circles as fast as possible, saying "Ah!". A passing co-ed will stock you in the eye. This may help.

If this fails, bang your head against a lamp post simultaneously kicking yourself in the pants till the tears come to your eyes. Friends will always be glad to help you at this.

If this fails, go home and apply a solution—one drop of concentrated carbolic acid in a glass of water—to the eye with a dropper. If none of these methods produce results, and if it's results you really want, try drinking the remainder of the carbolic acid.

Don't make a habit of eating ground glass between meals. It irritates the epithelial cells.

Don't read D. H. Lawrence in the Hart House library. You are apt to sprain your imagination. Try to get a game of squash in every week. The slap of the ball on the dorsum and vicinity constitutes a most stimulating and beneficial massage.

When running on the gym track, tuck your tongue inside your shirt so that those behind you will not trip on it, thus avoiding an embarrassing and possibly serious accident.

If you slip on the ice, try and throw yourself upon your head so that no bones will be broken. Hockey players please note.

Furthermore we cannot but view with alarm the many new forms in which the salubrious yeast is presented to the gullible public. Of course, taster differ. Some prefer to take theirs in egg-nogs, some in ice-cream sodas, some in chocolate bars, some between soda biscuits, some in plain warm water. Unshaken by the modern trend we'll continue taking ours in beer.

When that cough hangs on, mix this at home and nothing will be able to hang onto you. Its trade name is "Golden Bomb of Gilead", and it can easily be prepared in your own bath tubs. Space prevents us from printing the recipe in this issue but we will publish a letter of recommendation from a student at McGill where the liquor question is no question at all and water is something you bathe in.

"I had such a pain in my back," he writes, "that I wasn't able to eat a thing without the aid of a knife and fork. Since I have taken your marvellous mixture, I can eat with my bare hands."

UPTOWN THEATRE

The article in question was inserted inadvertently and without intent to cast reflections on the good name of the theatre.

MEN DUBIOUS ABOUT SNOBBERY

"Some Co-eds Snobs Before entering Frats," Say Students

SNOBBISHNESS NOT AIM

Fraternity women are not snobs in the general opinion prevailing in and out of the fraternity houses, "The Varsity" learned to-day on investigating the charge made in yesterday's "Varsity". The men were somewhat hesitant to express their opinion, believing discretion to be the better part of valour but the women defended themselves emphatically. They believe that, no matter what others think, they sincerely aim not to be snobbish.

Stephen Legatt, III Meds: "No, I don't think they are snobs at all; they are in a class by themselves."

Betty Lang, II U.C.: "I think it varies with the fraternity. I refuse to commit myself any further."

Enid Peacey, II U.C.: "It all depends on the woman. I don't think you'd find any more snobbish women in fraternities than anywhere else."

One U.C. co-ed who did not wish to give her name replied: "I do not think the fraternity has anything to do with it. Girls who are snobs are inclined to show it even before they come to college."

Bill Walker, III U.C.: "No, they are not more snobbish than any others."

The consensus of opinion is that the charge of snobbishness lies upon the individual whereby the reflection is cast upon the whole fraternity.

When Ohio State neophytes "assume the angle," 750 paddles will swing into play, according to reports of local lumber companies.

The matters concerning which inquiries are made, cover a wide range. One important and frequent difficulty is the selection of the best subjects with a view to attending the College of Education where there are but two courses, namely, Sciences and Languages.

HART HOUSE MAJORITY CONDEMNS BENNETT'S PREFERENTIAL POLICY

House Lines Up in Party Camps, with Liberals Holding Balance

RESOLUTION FAILS, 56-22

Attendance Meagre, as M'Innes Gives Most Decisive Address

ADDRESSES T.I.C.C.U.

Arthur I. Brown, M.D., C.M., F.R.C.S., Edin. Who is to speak at the Anatomy building to-day under the auspices of the T.I.C.C.U. as part of the Canadian Christian Crusade.

The University of Toronto is still safe for Liberalism. In a wordy symposium which rapidly resolved itself into a division along party lines, the debaters of Hart House denied last night by a vote of 56 to 22: "That this House approves of the part played by Canada in the recent Imperial Conference."

With the exception of a devious detour into the most problem of provincial rights in amendments to the Canadian constitution, the greater part of the evening was devoted to discussion of the pros and cons of preferential tariff systems in general, with particular reference to Premier Bennett's Empire Preference policy. Almost without exception, the speakers for the affirmative declared that in a system of preferential tariffs within the Empire lay Britain's only economic salvation, while their opponents claimed with equal unanimity and fervor that it would be suicidal for England to forsake Free Trade. Fifty-six Liberals sided with the negative and twenty-two Conservatives with the affirmative.

ARTHUR BROWN SPEAKS TO T.I.C.C.U. GATHERING

Noted Doctor and Scientist Will Feature Joint Meetings

Students of the University of Toronto will have an opportunity of hearing Arthur I. Brown, M.D., C.M., F.R.C.S., Edin., to-day, when he will speak in the lecture theatre of the Anatomy building under the auspices of the T.I.C.C.U. and the Canadian Christian Crusade.

Dr. Brown is a highly known surgeon of Vancouver who has taken an interest in the work of the Canadian Christian Crusades and has come to Toronto especially to address their meetings here this week.

Next Sunday he will speak in Massey Hall on the subject "Adam or Ape". Other lectures to be given by Dr. Brown include one to-night at Knox Church, when he will speak on the subject of "The Antiquity of Modernism". Friday evening in the Gospel Tabernacle he will discuss the subject "The Natural vs. the Supernatural", and next Sunday at three o'clock in the Gospel Tabernacle his topic will be "Infallible Proofs of an Infallible Book". Students are invited to all these meetings.

GIRLS TO OBTAIN VOICE ON MATTER OF SMOKING ROOM

Dean May Cast Deciding Vote on Nicotine in New Residences

CO-OPERATION THE IDEAL

Miss Kilpatrick Foresees More Contacts Between Residents and Day Girls

"My ideal is greater co-operation between dean and student and greater co-operation and closer friendship between resident and non-resident women," stated Miss Dorothy Kilpatrick, Dean of Women for University College, when interviewed by "The Varsity", regarding plans for the new women's residence.

The proximity of the new residence to the Women's Union ought to mean more united effort of resident and non-resident students for college welfare. I hope that the resident girls will share in the life at the Union and that they in their turn will welcome non-resident girls in the residence.

There are to be three units in the residence, she stated, and each unit will have its own dean. There will be three separate dining rooms, with a common kitchen, library and recreation rooms. Each unit will have its own reception room, common room, and stairway. It was decided that a single unit containing 165 girls would be too clumsy, and that this arrangement would tend to a closer union.

"We are trying to conserve the best of the present arrangement and to progress in the ideal of self-government and student expression," Miss Kilpatrick stated that there will be as few rules as possible. The present rules were made by the girls in residence and it is likely that they will want to change some of them. The new House Committees will remake the present house rules if necessary.

The question of smoking has not been settled. The House Committee and the Dean will thrash out the question and although their decision will probably not be final, Miss Kilpatrick thinks that their decision will be given consideration and the judgment given accordingly. It is possible that the Dean will have the casting vote.

It is possible that one room in each unit will be set aside as a smoking room. This plan, Miss Kilpatrick considers, would be much more probable, and satisfactory than to permit the girls to smoke in their own rooms.

$300,000 Bequest to Wycliffe In Will of Late Col. Leonard

Wealthy Alumnus Leaves Large Sums for Educational Purposes

$100,000 GOES TO U.C.

Implements Leonard Foundation to Equality with Rhodes

$300,000 for Wycliffe College and $100,000 for University College, is the actual immediate meaning of the will of Colonel Leonard, late of St. Catharines, Ontario, which is being probated this week.

Added to the $100,000 given by him just lately for the building of the newly completed library of Wycliffe and $40,000 granted at the same time to be used at the discretion of the Board of Governors of Wycliffe College, the will provides a fund of $100,000 as a beneficiary for retired Anglican ministers, and another $60,000 to go with the first $40,000 already at the disposal of the Board.

It is interesting to notice a stipulation to the effect that only Anglican ministers having a family are to be considered in granting benefits from the $100,000 fund.

Principal Wallace of U.C., has not been definitely informed on the subject beyond the announcement made in the city newspapers. The late Colonel Leonard was a great friend of University College, and the fact of being remembered is thoroughly appreciated as well as the munificence of the gift. (Continued on Page 4)

"A Canadian is welcomed to England with open arms," declared Miss Eve Powell to the Women's Press Club yesterday afternoon. "Where an American reporter cannot wheedle or provoke any reply to her advances, a Canadian will be invited to stay over night or even to live with the person she is interviewing. One reporter told me," continued Miss Powell, "that he had been cultivating a Canadian accent for three or four years to get somewhere on Fleet Street."

DENIES PROVINCES RIGHT TO HAMPER B.N.A. AMENDMENT

"Canada Would Be Putting on a Straight-Jacket," Says Dafoe

ADDRESSES IV YEAR CLASS

Dean of Canadian Journalists Pays Visit to U.C. Lecture-room

"The claim that the provinces have the right of consultation on questions regarding the amendment of the Canadian Constitution is all bluff," said John W. Dafoe, the Editor of the Manitoba Free Press in an informal address to Fourth Year History students at University College yesterday morning. "It has no legal, practical, constitutional or traditional foundation."

By a series of quotations, Mr. Dafoe sought to show that the "Fathers of Confederation" had certainly not considered such a thing in the Confederation debates in 1866-1867, and that later practice had certainly not created any precedent in the matter. The speaker pointed out the situation that would develop if these provincial rights of consultation were (Continued on Page 4)

CEREAL SUPPLANTS LAMB STEW STAPLE

Dr. F. Tisdale Tests Discovery on Children at St. George's School

DEMAND THIRD HELPING

Lamb stew, the favourite dinner dish of the children at St. George's School of Child Study, lost its place to Dr. Frederick Tisdale's new alfalfa cereal. Dr. Tisdale, who is in charge of this school, asked that the cereal be tried out to see if it was generally liked. The children were surprised to find cereal for dinner, but a number of them came back for a third helping.

Dr. Tisdale introduced this sunshine cereal a few months ago, in the United States. When asked by "The Varsity", if the cereal was to be put on the general Canadian market, he said that it is sold here only at drugstores and at doctors' prescriptions.

This alfalfa cereal which finds instant popularity is a sister discovery to Dr. Tisdale's well known "Sunshine Biscuits". The cereal and biscuits are made to contain much the same food value.

CAMPUS NOTABLES LIMNED IN ANNUAL

Torontonensis Editor Brings in Departures from Former System

FINE ETCHINGS TO APPEAR

"This year's Torontonensis will follow a somewhat different system from that of past years," stated W. F. Payton, Editor-in-Chief. In the past a certain section has been devoted to jumble pages which were left in the hands of the private colleges who paid for the privilege.

"This year, however, four to six pages will be devoted to intimate glimpses of well-known students. In order to do this we are appealing to the students to contribute snapshots which would be worthy of reproduction in the volume. But we cannot undertake to return or publish all prints submitted. These should be sent to the editor at Wycliffe College or in care of the S.A.C. office in Hart House before Feb. 15th.

"Another feature of this year which is being undertaken as a result of the reception given to the etchings in last year's volume, is the inclusion of some more fine etchings of university scenes. It is hoped that this year in addition copies of these etchings will be put on sale for those who wish to have them framed.

"Some organizations have been a little dilatory in respect to handing in photographs and write-ups and are urged to have them in as quickly as possible.

MEDICAL AT-HOME

The Medical at-home to be held tomorrow night at the Royal York will be the scene of many unusual features. There will be subdued lighting effects in the ballroom and varied novelties will accompany the 11:45 supper which will be served in the main dining hall. "Tiny" Long, chairman of the at-home committee, is in charge of the arrangements. Dancing from nine to three to Stan St. John's twelve-piece dance band.

Role of Dorothy Dix Is Thrust On Registrar,--To His Disgust

"How can I get hold of Mary Smith? No, I don't know what faculty or year, but she is dark and too sweet for words. Yes, she lives somewhere in the city, but I don't know where. Her father? Yes, he has a job in a bank, or maybe it's a drug store."

A Registrar's office is bombarded daily with such inquiries. To qualify for the position of Registrar, one must be a second Dorothy Dix and be equal to the task of advising and helping students (perhaps faculty), in every kind of pecuniary, scholastic and love difficulties.

Occasionally a broken-hearted lover bursts in with the query, "I've just had a tiff with my sweetheart. What shall I do next?" Other times, a would-be lover ventures the request, "Can you recommend some nice girl to take to a dance?" To which this important official or his assistant is required to give satisfactory response.

On Registration Day, several intriguing little dramas may be heard; here is one:

Jemima—I think English and History sounds nice.

Fond Mama—Oh no! Jemima always headed her class in maths, didn't you dear?

Jemima—Well, maybe classics would be interesting.

F.M.—Don't be silly, sweet, let the Registrar decide! To avoid meeting some undesirable person, the fashionable thing to do is to slip into the Registrar's sanctum till danger is past. For corn cures, bunion remedies, head-ache powders, ask the Registrar! If you don't know which fraternity to join, ask the Registrar! In fact, here is the latest: "Can you help a friend of mine into the university? She has only failed in four subjects, but the Board refuses to let her in. You ought to have some influence!"

THE GOAT

The popular indoor sport of making "The Varsity" the goat for every display of general bone-headedness and adolescent hysteria which occurs in the vicinity of the campus of this University proceeds apace. Within the past twenty-four hours we have been presented with two more laboratory specimens.

One hundred and twenty-six students of Mr. Perold's class in third year Pass Economics have decided that they were innocent of all guile in connection with the letter last week addressed to the professor, and signed by ninety members of the class, requesting that Mr. Perold—instead of dictating his notes—have them mimeographed and distributed at the commencement of each lecture. The students were pure and spotless, and "The Varsity" was up to its old tricks of making mountains out of mole hills and creating uncomfortable situations.

These pure and spotless third year pass economists "have been surprised"—according to their own hurried protestations to their professor—"by an absurd criticism of your work in 'The Varsity' of January 21, 1931. We herewith," breath the blushing 126, "totally dissociate ourselves from the allegations and declare them to be untrue and a malicious misrepresentation. We give you our assurance that we have found your lectures very helpful to us. We shall request 'The Varsity' to publish this, our indignant protest, as prominently as its unwarranted criticism."

Here is what we have to say to Mr. Perold and the indignant protestants. "The Varsity," neither on January 21, 1931, nor at any other time, made any criticism whatever of the work of the professor in question. Any person who says so is either unable to understand the plain meaning of the English language or is a deliberate and malicious liar.

On the date specified this paper ran on the second page, a short news account of the fact that ninety members of Mr. Perold's class in third year Pass Economics had drawn up a petition to Mr. Perold which had been "laid aside" by that professor on the previous afternoon. "The gist of the document," according to this news story, "was that the notes which the class spends forty-five minutes of class time, twice a week, copying, be mimeographed, so as to leave the hour for discussion." There follows a direct quotation from the mouth of one of the female members of the class.

"The Varsity" did not on that date, nor did it on any subsequent date, make any editorial comment on the incident. We feel that an apology is due this paper for the use against it of such phrases as "malicious misrepresentation" and "unwarranted criticism." The story which appeared on January 21 was straight news. This paper has responsibility only for the accuracy of the facts contained therein—but is in no way responsible for any opinions cited. Even, if it can be proved—as we believe it cannot—that the facts and quotations cited do not tally with the facts of the case, this does not give any individual or set of individuals the right to accuse the undergraduate newspaper of "absurd criticism" and "unwarranted criticism" which it did not make.

Our second specimen of an attempt to cast the long-suffering "Varsity" in the role of goat, occurs in the action of the male debaters assembled in Hart House last night in shifting responsibility for the small attendance from the shoulders of the Debates Committee to those of the undergraduate newspaper.

It is interesting to note in this connection that, as Hart House Debate succeeds Hart House Debate, this paper faithfully supplies a full quota of advance publicity to the event, with the triple purpose of supplying itself with copy, co-operating with the Debates Committee, and endeavouring to insure a large attendance at a valued institution. If we were awaiting any expressions of satisfaction from the assembled debaters in return for this free publicity, we would wait—alas!—in vain. We do not, however, await any such expressions. In view of this, we do not feel under any particular obligation to dissolve in tears when the august debaters—on the occasion of the one debate for which a full quota of advance publicity was not supplied—choose to pass a vote of censure upon the undergraduate daily. If the debaters choose to draw attention to their own fiddling ineffectuality, that is surely their business, and not ours.

Nevertheless, we wish to assure any who may find themselves concerned or interested in the matter, that we regard the present

Art, Music and Drama

The "Scientific and Nature" group has more variety than ever before, although W. L. Brown's animal and bird pictures are greatly massed. A. F. Coventry's Tree-Frog group is very interesting and probably represents at least as much patient stalking as his "Tern Alighting", the first award. D. A. MacLulich's prints of forests illustrate the application of photography to specific investigations.

The prints in the Architecture group show the interesting play of light and shadow over lots of buildings interesting in themselves. Did it occur to you before how many interesting pictures present themselves on the campus to one who is on the watch for them? For example, W. A. Connolly's glimpse through the door of the Great Hall.

"Portraiture", the smallest and most disappointing group of all, yet contains two or three very interesting pictures. A. P. Mason's two unusual prints could be made much more striking by different printing.

The largest division on the walls is "Landscape and Marine". Mr. Harrod considered it hard to judge because the entries divided themselves naturally into two distinct groups, those which presented a panoramic view, and those which utilized some smaller part of a landscape. Consequently, two first and second awards were made in each group. The outstanding prints in the two groups are the two first prize winners, Colley Foster's "Loch Lomond" in which his beautiful technique has obtained full value from the humid atmosphere of Scotland, and "Power", in which Hachnel has converted objects essentially ugly into a real picture. Clouds have received a lot of attention, either for themselves, or as features in landscape, in the stricter sense, as in Miller's "Loch Rannoch", or in "Fields and Woodlots", by MacLulich, whose photography is much improved.

It is hard to pick outstanding prints in this exhibition due to the extraordinary high standard of them all. The writer feels there are several he would like to own as "extra special" ones, however, a feeling he hasn't had at every show seen here. Surely there are many others who have visited the sketch room this week who are amazed to think it could all be the work of members of the house, and who, sure of their own might, are determined to at least submit some of their own next year.

popular pastime of "make-'The-Varsity'-the-goat" a particularly stupid and indefensible one. This paper makes errors in judgment, and sometimes errors in statement of fact. It is guilty, on occasion, of sins of omission, as well as sins of commission. In each case where it feels itself rightfully accused in any of these regards, it always endeavours to take immediate steps to atone for any injury that may have been done. We do not feel, however, that these sins are as frequent as some people would like to pretend. Nor do we feel that it gives any persons—whether it be members of Mr. Perold's class, Hart House debaters, or anyone else—the right to use this publication as a scapegoat to cleanse them of guilt in an uncomfortable situation, or as a doormat on which to wipe their own dirty feet.

The Little Playhouse, Academy of Dramatic Art, is making noteworthy efforts for producing Canadian plays and using Canadian talent, and their choice of productions for this opening puts them well on the way.

The first play, One Chance in a Million, by Florence Blaisdell, is the story of an episode during a German invasion of France, with the action in a village on the banks of the Marne. Frauentie, by Rita McLean Farquharson, is a Press Prize Play, a light comedy with a modernistic theme. The third play, by Lois Reynolds, who is a '30 graduate of Victoria College, won the I.O.D.E. prize of 1930, deals with unemployment and immigration in Canada. The play is called Open Doors, full of dramatic action and pathos.

Merle Nichols, winner of the Academy of Dramatic Art's first scholarship in 1928 and the 1929 Leon M. Lion Prize for poetic interpretation, is one of the leading players. Also there is Lloyd Somerville of Trinity College, Pat Cleland, Boyd Mount, and Peggy Rhodes, who made a name for herself at the playhouse in the Maker of Dreams and One Summer's Day.

The production of the plays is under the direction of Dickson-Kerwin. —J.P.M.

M.C. Players' Guild

The First Warning, by August Strindberg is labelled a comedy in one act; but in reality it is a farce with the typical characterless characters, arranged-to-suit-the-plot entrances, and perverted psychology of a cheap musical comedy.

More by accident than by design those who presented it yesterday before the Players' Guild, stressed certain obviously farcical elements; though they failed to accent most of the more humorous lines.

Arthur Maroon, as Axel Brunner, a man supposedly about forty-five, looked like a boy of twenty. This defect in make-up spoiled the effect of his lines, which were well read except for a certain slowness on cues and a tendency to mumble the final words of many speeches.

Olga Brunner, played by Helen Anderson, appeared to be the most interesting part in the play, probably because it was taken with the most vivacity, though Miss Anderson was also weak with her cues.

Jocelyn Moore, in a much improved performance over her last effort—was perhaps the most convincing in the cast, in spite of an unfortunate hesitancy of movement on entrances and exits.

Sylvia Cohen, as a young girl, caught the mood of her part, but showed lack of experience.

Mr. Sydney Hermant was responsible for the direction. —Nemo.

CAGE TEAMS DIVIDE DOUBLEHEADER; POLOISTS DEFEAT CENTRAL

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

Household Science took undisputed possession of first place in their group of the interfaculty hockey league when they nosed out Medettes, last year's champions, in a very close game by a count of 2 to 1. This game is the third straight for the Dietitians, and on their present form they should not have much difficulty winning their group title.

Senior Vic and Senior U.C. met for the first time last night, and with Senior U.C. at a disadvantage owing to the loss of several of their players through illness, the Scarlet and Gold had not much trouble chalking up a win. The Vic team is, however, a very strong outfit, and will make things interesting for St. Hilda's and St. Michael's, the other two teams in their group.

A regrettable feature of the Vic-U.C. game was the injury to Helen Buell, one of the U.C. players, who was knocked out in the last minutes of the game. Mary Thoms, Vic, was pressed into service for the Red and White, since U.C. had only six players available.

The U.C. badminton tournament, in which there were about thirty entries, has reached the second round, after some keenly contested struggles. Although nothing has apparently come of the attempt to organize an interfaculty badminton league, the U.C. club is going right ahead with its tournament, and the winner of the singles should be declared very soon.

Plans for the U.C. swimming meet are going ahead apace, and interest in it is very keen. The girls who will represent the Red and White in the interfaculty event are usually chosen from the winners of this tournament, and quite a few are training hard for the meet.

The Blue and White senior basketball outfit will face their first test to-morrow when they take on Margaret Eaton at the M.E.S. gym at 5 o'clock. Varsity have an especially strong squad, especially on the forward line, and the defence is fast rounding into form. M.E.S. are an unknown quantity so far this year, but they can be depended upon to give both Varsity teams a hard fight.

WRESTLERS

All men who have any serious intention of making the senior team are requested to notify Cliff Chilcott and come out regularly for training. Every one who went to Annapolis and will not compete in the intercollegiate assault please let the coaches know immediately.

U.C. JUNIOR HOCKEY

Will the following turn out at 5 o'clock this afternoon for the game

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By A. C. C.

Varsity seniors have a slim mathematical chance of getting into the O.H.A. playoffs. If the Marlboros and Hamilton drop a couple of games and the Blues win their remaining five fixtures, they will get a whack at the Ports again. But just because they are practically out of the running, "Red" Porter's puck-chasers are not throwing in the towel. This battle which is scheduled on Friday night at Mr. Workman's workshop between the locals and the Iron Dukes, should be the juicy morsel of the current hockey season. The lordly Dukes and Hamilton are fighting for a place next the league-leading Sailors. They need a win in the worst way. On the other hand Varsity is intent on breaking their losing streak.

"Red" Whitehead will likely return to the line-up and be moved up to the wing line. That is good news. His re-appearance will be welcome. Don't be too surprised if the students topple the Dukes. They have been nosed out of a win in their last two tilts. They are due for a change.

The Varsity water polo squad came from behind to beat Central "Y" 6-4 in the last scheduled game in the City League. A meeting will be held shortly to determine the dates of the playoff games between West End "Y" and the "T" septet. It should be a rousing two-game series.

VARSITY POLOISTS DEFEAT CENTRAL Y

Blue Mermen Rally in Second Half to Overtake 3-1 Lead

CULINER SCORES FOUR

Varsity senior waterpoloists overcame a two counter advantage to defeat Central Y.M.C.A. 6-4 in their own pool last night. The first half was slow, but the Blue and White cut loose in the second half and scored five goals.

Culiner opened the scoring after a few seconds of play and Munroe evened for Central on a high shot. Central showed a few flashes of combination play and Garton was forced to make some sensational saves. Oggie scored for Central on a nice effort.

Munroe scored from close in at the end of the first half to put Central on the long end of a 3-1 score.

Culiner tied the score on a neat pass from Armstrong and the latter scored again on a long shot. Central evened the score when Spence was out of the water on a technicality. Culiner counted twice on smart efforts to end the play.

Varsity had the ball much the greater part of the second half and deserved their victory. Culiner was outstanding with four goals to his credit and Munroe was best for Central. The game was marred by petty squabbles and poor refereeing.

Varsity — Goal, Garton; defence, Sinclair, Hayhoe; forwards, Glass, Culiner, Spence; centre, Armstrong; subs, Davey, Middleboro.

Central Y—Goal, Renediet; defence, Gruber, Oggie; forwards, Askey, Lansitie, Pitchford; centre, Munroe; subs, Newton, Ross.

With School: Daly, Malcolm, Calvert, Keith, Doner, Turner, Twaits, Cameron and Sprott.

ROOKE LEADING SCORER

Varsity juniors swamped Danforth Y juniors easily to the tune of 47-21 last night in Hart House. Continually outwitting the Y guards, the Blues started in at the first whistle and piled up a comfortable lead. Shugar of the regulars led several successful attacks on the Danforth citadel. The second string, coming on for the last eight minutes of the first half, fell down slightly and the Y forwards got in several baskets and foul shots with the score at half time ending 19-13 for Varsity.

In the second half Varsity opened up again and at the end of the first ten minutes of play they had doubled the Y's score 30-15. Huhn, going in fast for the Blues, ripped the twice several times on close shots, keeping Varsity well in the lead. The first string line coming back on for the last nine minutes, walked away with the tired Y quintette. Shugar again turned in a great performance and scored almost immediately on a fast try from the tip-off. Rooke then took a turn at scoring and tapped in five rebounds for double counters and later scored on an individual effort from outside. Black, at centre, also turned in a fine performance, netting seven points.

Varsity Rookel2, Shugar 6, Black 7, Himel 5, Carroll 6, Dennis 5, Huhn 6, Douglas, Jaimet, Magwood. Danforths—Robinson 4, Gibson 4, Worthy 7, Wallace, Harris 2, Coyle, Legg 2, Havelock, Oldfield, Pate 2.

Varsity T. & D. intermediates went down to a hard defeat last night at Hart House when they lost 28 to 26 against West End Y intermediates, playing two periods of overtime to break a 24-all tie. West End started off well and led 8-2 when Varsity took time out after the first eight minutes of play. Then Willis, going on at right guard for the Blues, stopped the Y attacks and started most of the Varsity plays which resulted in a 14-all tie at half time. Latimer worked hard all the time and got some well earned points. Grant, after starting the game poorly, pepped up suddenly and fooled the Y guards for three baskets.

Starting off well in the second half Varsity ran up five points in the first minute and a half of play. Baird, was put out with four personals, and was followed shortly by Paterson, also of the Y team. Failing to penetrate the Blue guards, the Y forwards reverted to long and often hope shots which frequently found their mark, so that when the final whistle blew the score was again tied at 24-all.

Varsity—Hutchison 2, Grant 6, Humphrey 4, Willis 3, MacIsaac, Loblaw, 2, Lotimer 9. West End—Shortt 5, Martin 2, Paterson, Cause 4, McPherson 2, Baird 4, Paterson 4, Aubrey 2, Miller 3, Bolton 2, Cunningham, Smith.

HOUSEHOLD SCIENCE TRIM MEDETTES, 2-1

Household Science scored their third straight win in the interfaculty hockey league yesterday, defeating Meds 2-1. The dietitians had little difficulty in carrying off the verdict despite the last period rally of the medicals. They had a decided edge throughout, most of the play taking place in the losers' end of the rink.

Eleanor Sanson was the star of the Household Science attack, turning in a fine effort on the front line.

conceded. It would mean that any one of the nine provinces could exercise a veto on any act of amendment. It would then be practically impossible to make any change in the B.N.A. Act. "Canada would be putting on a straight-jacket," Dafoe.

The assumption on which the proponents of provincial rights based their arguments, was that the British North America Act was a treaty and as such, sacrosanct, said Dafoe. It could not be changed except with the consent of all parties to the treaty, who in this case were the provinces of Canada. "In no case," said Da-

HART HOUSE MAJORITY CONDEMNS R. B. BENNETT

V. C. Webb of Medicine, proposing the motion, outlined Bennett's policy, dwelt on the benefits he believed would accrue from the protection of Empire industries, listed a number of eminent proponents of the scheme, and enlivened in closing, to the effect that this policy would make a united Empire which would be "not only the most peaceful, contented and prosperous, but also the greatest empire under the sun."

W. P. Walker, U.C., countered by quoting the words of the Speaker, E. B. Joffe, in a previous debate, that the failure of the Imperial Conference had been due to no one but Mr. Bennett. He pointed out that Bennett, to satisfy the big business interests which had elected him, raised his tariffs within the Empire so high that he had killed all competition in Canada from British manufacturers, and then went to London, not to save the Empire, but to uphold his war-cry of "Canada First", and blast a way to new markets for Canadian wheat.

N. D. H. Evans, Victoria, re-stated the arguments in favour of Empire preferences, painting a gloomy picture of Britain's recent economic decadence under Free Trade. His version of the Imperial Conference was that Premier Bennett acted in a frank and open manner, that he thought for the Empire, planned for the future and called for immediate action in dealing with the pressing problems confronting the Conference; the British representatives, on the other hand, were evasive and self-seeking, thinking only of their immediate good.

J. L. Stewart of Trinity, replied that Bennett was not present at the Conference to co-operate, but to bargain; that in an effort to keep the Western farmers Conservative, he went to England "self-righteously singing 'O, Canada!'" but with the iron gate of protection banged safe behind him.

Professor McInnis, illustrating his remarks allegorically, re-stated the negative position in the most interesting and decisive speech of the evening. Wilfred Heighington, A.P.P. for St. David's, told a few anecdotes about bawdy-houses and lunatic asylums, rambled around the motion at some length, and finally declared that the Empire will be the hope and salvation of Great Britain if only Mr. Bennett's policies are maintained.

Other undergraduate speakers dealt with the question, for the most part capably, including Messrs. Wolfson, Gelber, Clough, Fry, Dunn, Gibson, and Tarshis. The meeting was poorly attended but a high proportion of the members remained throughout the entire proceedings.

Although connected with many colleges and institutions, most notably Ridley and the Royal Military College, the Colonel was especially interested in Wyckiffe, where he was for some time chairman of the Council.

The Leonard Foundation, established by him some time ago, as a scholarship system among certain Anglican colleges, was lately increased, so that the principal is now $1,000,000 and the interest supplies scholarships to 22 universities all over Canada, regardless of church connection. Provisions made in the will when they come into effect will make this system of equal importance with the Rhodes scholarships, so far as Canadian students are concerned.

for, "did the men who were responsible for the act, Galt, Macdonald, Brown, Cartier, consider such a thing, nor did Dorion, the French-Canadian opponent of Confederation, propose provincial rights as a possible safeguard for the rights of the minorities in Canada," he continued, "it was an act of the Imperial Parliament in reply to an address to the Queen from the provincial representatives. The act had been changed many times in the past as in the case of the inclusion of additional provinces into the Union. The provinces were not consulted in any of these cases."

Although the question of provincial rights had been in the air ever since Confederation it had not really been considered seriously until very recently.

It purports to contain "vital literature of the new America," and draws its material chiefly from the ranks of the younger writers, most prominent of whom are Edwin Saver, Erskine Caldwell, Norman MacLeod, and Borghild Lee.

Israel is, by his own statement, a "migratory student" having previously left the City College of Detroit and the University of Cincinnati in disgust with their "sterile systems." Between his numerous college careers, he has wandered over a considerable portion of the Eastern States supporting himself in part by contributions to such magazines as Poetry, Transition, New Masses, Papany and others.

Nativity has evoked the comments of many critics. The New York Times in its book review section criticized the publication harshly while The Hound and Horn, a more radical magazine, termed the Nativity an honest and laudable attempt to quicken a new birth in American literature.

Israel, while a non-active spectator at a Communist demonstration in New York City last year, was attacked and beaten by police, he says. Several newspapers took up his case, as he, at that time, had no connections with the Communist movement.

Middle Ages not Enveloped in Darkness Claims Leader of Affirmative

The power of femininity prevailed at St. Michael's inter-college debate held at St. Joseph's College residence where the motion, "That a return to the civilization of the Middle Ages would be in the best interests of mankind," was lost.

W. Bennett, the first speaker for the affirmative, denied that the mediaeval period was one of darkness. "Then it was," he said, "that the equality of man and the unity of Christendom was exemplified. That was an age when life was religion and culture was international."

Miss Margaret Gilhooly, the negative leader, charged the absolute rule of the church as being the cause of the Reformation and modern misery. She concentrated on dispelling the notion that mediaevalism meant romance and chivalry, and that every man was a Galahad. She claimed that the condition of women in those days was deplorable, and men insured their wives' fidelity with ball and chain.

J. Dore, second speaker for the affirmative, scored the present economic situation and claimed that modern capitalism had lowered the condition of the proletariat. Morals were degenerated and culture and refinement were sacrificed to the lust for wealth.

Miss Nora Roussele, second negative speaker, admired mediaeval intellectual superiority but firmly attested that the total average of human ability had increased. "Education be-

COURTELAINE POPULAR

"The important literary monument that Courteleine left behind him classifies him among the most notable French writers of the preceding generation and he is one of our best comic authors," stated Mr. Debray in an address delivered in French on "Georges Courteleine" yesterday afternoon in West Hall.

"Courteleine is the pseudonym that Georges Moineau took at the beginning of his literary career. He was born in 1860 at Tours, but his work won him a large popularity in Paris. In his writings Courteleine gives proof of a rare comic gift; he excels in provoking laughter without losing the sense of measure."

"Courteleine, like Moliere," continued Mr. Debray, "was always master of himself; he made others laugh, but he himself never laughed. If he has recourse to farce or burlesque as a means of expression he always guards a strict contact with reality. The impression of life is maintained with such unity that it is often difficult to determine what is caricature and what is the faithful image of truth."

Mr. Debray sketched the life and works of Courteleine briefly and quoted some passages from the writer's more well known plays and novels.

8 Page Issue

This number of "The Varsity" is issued in eight pages. MADISON FRESHMAN GETS LONG TERM

Found Guilty on Charges of Shooting and Robbery

GIVEN 35 YEAR PENALTY

Madison, Wis., Jan. 15.—In one of the most dramatic trials ever occurring in a Madison court, Myron G. Stevenson, 34, was found guilty of armed assault with intent to rob by a jury of his peers in superior court last night.

The verdict carries with it a maximum penalty of thirty years on the charge of shooting Gerald Taborsky, Manager of Universal Cleaners, on November 26, and five years for carrying a mask.

As the foreman of the jury pronounced "Guilty," the tense silence of the court room was broken by the tumult of the spectators, above which there came clearly Stevenson's voice as he ran toward the judge's bench crying, "You framed this!" Stevenson was adjudged rational by doctors before he was put on trial. He had been treated in a hospital for a deranged mind.

The defence in the testimony offered no alibi for Stevenson. Apparently it relied upon that which officers testified that Stevenson had offered when he was arrested—that he had been out on University Avenue with a girl he had "picked up" and whose name and address he did not know.

CREEDS GIVE ANSWER TO QUESTIONING SOULS

Pervertive Influence of Myth
Lore Made Formulation of First Creed Necessary

"A religious creed is an answer to a questioning world. The history of creeds is the history of answers to questions," Miss Dorothy Kilpatrick told her group yesterday.

In the discussion which followed, their development was traced thus: Religions were handed down verbally. Finally to clear the air of mythology, a simple statement of belief was necessary, which resulted in a creed. The Nicene Creed arose out of a discussion of the equality or inequality of God and Jesus. It re-affirmed the deity of Jesus. The Athanasian was a re-affirmation of the Nicene Creed, but also included the question of the position of the Holy Spirit.

The Reformation was a new freedom of thought. Its creed rested on previous ones, but emphasized grace and forgiveness and swept away piety.

The group closed with a discussion of the Apostles' Creed which brought up some of the problems confronting missionaries, regarding the explanation of such doctrines.

The India Group of the S.C.M. was entertained at tea by Miss Kilpatrick at the Women's Union yesterday.

Dr. and Mrs. Waters, returned missionaries from Ruffian, India, were guests at the tea.

S.P.S. PROFESSORS SKEPTICAL ABOUT UNEMPLOYMENT

Engineering Training Develops Accurate Thinking Needed in Business

A critical and skeptical attitude was taken by several S.P.S. professors to the statements of Professor Nathanson, Psychologist of the University of Pennsylvania, who said that the problem of unemployment could be avoided if men were better suited to their jobs and fewer went to college because their fathers were rich. He also stated that a large number of engineers left their profession after graduation, 25 per cent after five years and 57 per cent after 25 years.

The possibility of advising men as to the work for which they were best fitted was considered rather small and even a few misfits that might result would discredit the system. The purpose of vocational guidance being largely to make men more efficient, the result would finally be to cause men to be displaced as the work could be done by fewer, in the same way as machinery has displaced hand labour because it is more efficient.

Investigation showed that many of the students came to S.P.S. because of their engineering bent as well as because of the future economic possibilities of such a course. Practically all those interviewed were paying their university expenses themselves, or at least a major part.

CELTIC LORE GIVES IRISH POETS STRANGE OUTLOOK

"It's hard to make a school of Irishmen," Professor DeLury assured the St. Joseph's College Literary Society in an address on the Irish Poets yesterday afternoon. They were not to be bound by rules, but preserved their individuality. They found in the ancient Celtic lore an invaluable source of inspiration which tends to give to them a "strange outlook on life." It is impossible not to feel in their poetry the atmosphere in which these men who "never wrote a poorer line than they might have a heavier purse" were nurtured. Professor DeLury concluded by reading selections from W. B. Yeates and George Russell.

BRILLIANT GOAL-KEEPING

Juniors Score Two Goals in Three Minutes to Win Game

By A. A. Brant

Varsity juniors nosed out Toronto Canoe Club in an exceedingly clean, wide-open game at the Arena Gardens last night, but only after twenty minutes of overtime play.

Toronto Canoe Club were without the services of Housley, star defence man, McNeil, regular wing, and Acheson, alternate centre, but nevertheless provided strong opposition. The young players replacing the above men for T.C.C. turned in fine performances, more than making up for their lack of fitness by sheer aggressiveness and dogged checking.

Varsity were clearly outplayed in the first period, their defence looking very weak on several plays, but the team as a whole organized toward the end of the second canto and from then on gave a smart display of shooting and rushing, thereby turning a somewhat listless exhibition into a really thrilling game.

Varsity started out strongly and went right to work, May slamming the disc into the net after receiving a swift pass-out from Lynch. Then Varsity relaxed and T.C.C. tallied three with little effort. Brown picked up London's rebound and netted five minutes after the start to tie things up. Then the young Canoe Club second line came on and injected lots of vim into proceedings. Higgins slipped Dunning's rebound over the Varsity goalie's prostrate body and McNeil walked through the defence thirty seconds later for a clean goal.

The second period opened with Varsity bringing the play to T. C. C. and the latter waiting for the breaks. But the Varsity attack became too dangerous and Higgins and Fischer took penalties on successive plays for using strenuous means to relieve the pressure. At this point the Varsity attack became organized and Bennett sent a long pass to Hendry, who came (Continued on Page 7)

SCARCITY OF U.C. MEN INTERESTED IN DEBATES

Second Year President Is Indifferent to Student Interest

Debaters are scarce in University College, according to the interviews given to "The Varsity" by the various year presidents. In an attempt to secure debaters for their year debates the presidents of second and fourth years have posted notices to that effect, but without result as yet.

Owing to this lack of speakers the preliminary debates, which were to be held yesterday, have been postponed till next Thursday announced Don Keith, Literary Director of the Lit.

Nat Shaw, sophomore president, states that he will do no more than post notices and will "jolly well" not try to persuade diffident speakers to represent their year. If no one will volunteer he will default. In that case the fourth year speakers will enter the finals.

Harry Appleton, president of the third year, was not found by the reporter, but he stated last Thursday that he had been unable to get representatives. Their opponents of first year were Sydney Hermant and Gordon Skilling.

The final debate will be held at a regular meeting of the Lit. early in March.

BROWN DECLARES EVOLUTION FALSE: NOAH'S ARK TRUE

BIBLE LOVED AND HATED

Christianity and Evolution
Cannot be Reasonably Reconciled

"There is not one solitary fact that can be given as proof of evolution," Dr. Arthur I. Brown told "The Varsity" in an interview yesterday. "The forms of animal life which are found fossilized are of two kinds; animals like the dinosaur which are extinct, and other animals which are exactly as they exist to-day. The extinct animals were killed by the flood, while those which exist to-day were saved in the ark."

Dr. Brown very decidedly expressed his belief in the absolute truth and authenticity of the King James edition of the Bible. He stated his belief that 999 words out of 1000 in that edition were a true and accurate translation of the original manuscripts. When the reporter inquired as to his opinions on the Moffat translation of the Bible he showed his disbelief, saying, "I do not believe any of the changed portions are true."

"Yes, that is correct," he said when questioned as to the reliability of the reports in the morning papers that he thought 50 per cent of the university students believed in evolution on graduation. He did not see how anyone could believe in evolution and still believe in Christianity. To him the two theories are in direct opposition.

"The Bible is at once the most loved book and the most hated book in the world," he said to the reporter. "A girl once said to me in California, 'I hate that book.' Sinners hate the Bible because it promises them a hell. (Continued on page 8)

M. & P. SPEAKERS INTEREST

"The use of the pulmotor in artificial respiration is a dangerous practice," Dr. C. H. Best of Insulin fame warned the Mathematics and Physics Society yesterday afternoon. Speaking further on the Physical Aspects of Respiratory Functions, Dr. Best described various safer ways of restoring breathing—methods utilizing air pressure and vacuum.

"The Indian in all the glory of his war paint was but a pale shadow beside the modern girl dressed for a dance, thanks to the synthetic chemist," declared T. J. Wright, 3T1, speaking on the development of aniline dyes and cosmetics. Giving several complicated examples Mr. Wright outlined the methods of developing formulae, emphasizing the increasing importance of synthetic chemistry.

Apparatus used in examining the impulses sent from the lungs to the brain during the process of breathing, was described by Mrs. C. P. Partridge.

In his discussion of the components of the atmosphere, Dr. Best quoted Professor Fiddler's theory, that the small and rare gases present in the atmosphere act on the body much as do the vitamins.

CODIFICATION

On pages three, four, and five of this issue we publish complete the report of the Joint Executive's Constitutional Committee and the articles of the new constitution as adopted last night by the Joint Executive of the S.A.C. During the coming week this report containing the proposed new constitution will be presented for the approval of the Men and Women Students' Administrative Councils. It is in order that the student body as a whole may have an opportunity of studying this document and to facilitate intelligent debate in the Councils that we publish it.

We print both the report and the articles of the new constitution just as we received them from the Joint Executive, without any comment or colouring on our part, under the conviction that only in this way can the best interests of student government be advanced.

It will be noted that an allusion has been made, in one section of the introductory report to the role of the editor of this paper in the student government dispute. We believe that for the sake of keeping the present issue a clear and straightforward one, whatever comment we may have on this point is better reserved to a later date.

The amount of work done on this document by the members of the committee is tremendous. They have, we firmly believe, set about their task in a spirit of honest endeavour to see to a conclusion the conflicting theories and plans for student government here. They appear to have tried to steer a course midway between the more radical proposals and the contentions of the reactionaries who oppose student government on the grounds of loss of efficiency and weakening of discipline. Whether or not these constitutionalizers have succeeded, we leave it in the lap of the gods and the student body through their elected representatives to decide.

We strongly urge that each student of this University make himself and herself thoroughly familiar with the proposed reformed constitution as a whole and in its component parts. An informed electorate is the only possible assurance that the idea of democracy will have any significance whatever.

AN APPEAL

At a Second-Year Party held in the University College Women's Union on the evening of January 15, three prized articles belonging to the Union were stolen. Subsequently a letter from the President of the Second Year of University College, urging the immediate return of these articles, was published in this paper. The articles have not yet been returned.

It is barely possible that the persons responsible for the removal of these pieces of property do not realize the nature of their action. In the first place, they are guilty of theft, and are consequently liable to arrest and prison sentence. In the second place they have placed each individual member of the second year of University College, and each additional guest who was present on the night in question, under direct suspicion. Further, they have placed the Union House Committee in the embarrassing position of taking steps either to dismantle the house before class parties or to refuse to permit any more social events of this nature to take place in the Union. Finally, they have deprived the Union of articles which cannot possibly have any great intrinsic value to the persons who have removed them, but are practically invaluable to the Union because of sentiment and associations.

Articles were removed from the Union on a similar occasion last year, and were returned following an appeal through the columns of this paper. We sincerely hope that, for the sake of the good name of all the students of this University, the items now missing are returned to the Union immediately. They may have been removed in a moment of youthful exuberance and through a feeling of fun. Their continued absence cannot, under any circumstances, be regarded as even faintly amusing.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Professor C. H. C. Wright, of the Department of Architecture now denies to the down-town press that he made any comment whatever about the "68". In fact, it appears, he said nothing about anything.

I thought I saw five Communists,
False social doctrines urging;
I looked again and saw it was
Some Anglicans liturging.

Five little Communists, feeling rather sore,
One tried to read the Globe, and then there were four.

I thought I saw four Communists,
Orating in four parks;
I looked again and saw it was
None but the Brothers Marx.

Four little Communists, trying to make speech free,
One had to pay the Price, and then there were three.

I thought I saw three Communists,
Preparing vile sedition;
I looked again and saw it was,
Three cops out of Commission.

Three little Communists, looking rather blue,
One took on a reddish tinge, and then there were two.

I thought I saw two Communists,
Seditious doctrines selling;
I looked again and saw they were
A hillside Sermon telling.

Two little Communists, out to have some fun,
One said something naughty and—left the other one.

I thought I saw one Communist,
One little Marxian only;
I looked again and saw him thrown
In prison, very lonely.

One little Communist, when the day was done,
Antique collectors caught him, and then there were none.

I thought I saw no Communists,
On all the city streets;
I looked again and only saw
Police-men on their beats.

And that's that.

We must apologize for the sudden

Don't ask us what our attentions are. We might be tempted to reply,
"Strictly horrible."

Great girl, Pansy. Her hair is as red as rubies; her lips as soft as silk; her teeth twinkle in and out like the coming out at night, but we're too high-minded to prostitute this chalm gleam like ivory.

She has a complexion like dandruff and a head like marble.

NEW STUDENT GOVERNMENT CONSTITUTION

Report of Constitutional Committee Accepted Last Night By Joint Executive S.A.C.— Goes to Men's and Women's Councils Next Week

THE CHAIRMAN, JOINT EXECUTIVE STUDENTS' ADMINISTRATIVE COUNCILS,
UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO.

SIR:
The Special Committee appointed by The Joint Executive at a meeting on Monday, December 10th, to draft a new constitution for Student Government in the University of Toronto begs leave to submit the following report:

1. This report is arranged in the following order:

1. Introduction.
2. Constitution of The Joint Executive.
3. Appendices
 - (a) Standing Committee on Men's Discipline
 - (b) Standing Committee on Women's Affairs
 - (c) Standing Committee on Finance
 - (d) Contracts
 - (e) Standing Committee on Publications
 - (f) Literary and Debates Committee
 - (g) Standing Committee on Sporting Activities.

2. Your Committee held ten meetings, discussed the major issues at stake in Student Government to-day and considered several drafts of a new constitution. It is fair to say that no important decisions were reached on the strength of opinions previously formed; and the recommendations embodied in this report are almost entirely the result of evidence which was advanced and deliberately weighed at the meetings of your Committee. This report is not therefore the production of any one person, any one group of opinion or any one school of thought but the work of a Committee which was forced to grapple with the more serious problems and the actual needs of Student Government.

3. In accordance with your instructions the General Secretary-Treasurer of the S. A. C., the Assistant Secretary-Treasurer and yourself as Chairman of The Joint Executive were invited to attend the meetings of the Committee as corresponding members. The Editor of The Varsity was also invited to attend but did not at any time avail himself of this privilege. This is the more regrettable in view of his attempt to forecast the recommendations of this Committee as set forth in the issue of November 13th. It may be suggested that had the Editor of The Varsity seen fit to attend one or more meetings, his editorial comment might possibly have indicated a clearer understanding of the subject.

4. Your Committee submits herewith a Constitution for a proposed governing body entitled, "Joint Executive Students' Administrative Councils." Attached to this Constitution are seven appendices including the constitutions of various Standing Committees essential to the work of The Joint Executive and contract forms for use by The Joint Executive with all the salaried members of The Varsity staff and with the Secretary-Treasurer and the Associate Secretary. In drafting the Constitution of The Joint Executive, your Committee found itself faced with three major issues,—first whether to continue the three councils which exist at present or establish in their place one Joint Executive; second, whether to grant the colleges, faculties and departments equal voting power or proportionate voting power on the proposed new Joint Executive; third, whether to provide for a graduate President or an undergraduate President. An infinite number of similar issues were involved in the Constitutions of The Joint Executive and its Standing Committees and most of these were found to settle themselves without difficulty when once the three paramount questions had been decided. Your Committee is therefore obliged to state briefly its reasons for the decision reached in each case.

5. It has long been obvious that Student Government by means of three separate councils is grossly inefficient, particularly when the exact relation of each to the other has never been clearly defined. The practical outcome of this situation has been a concentration of power in the hands of The Joint Executive with the Men Students' Administration Council and the Women Students' Administration Council holding occasional meetings at which attendance was consistently low and undergraduate interest completely lacking. It is therefore advisable that all the business of student government should be placed under the control of one Joint Executive and that this body should be made up of the heads of Student Government organizations in the various colleges, faculties and departments since the interest of this group in University activities must necessarily be second to none and since in the long run this group would be fairly representative of the students by whom they have already been elected. Your Committee has provided therefore that in place of three councils, one council, to be known as The Joint Executive, shall govern student activities in the University as a whole.

6. Your Committee recognized the need of keeping down this Joint Executive to a minimum in point of numbers by providing for one representative only from each college, faculty or department, except in the case of those colleges, faculties or departments where both men and women are sufficiently numerous to support separate societies. The inevitable conclusion to this step is that a college of 100 students would be as well represented as a college of 1,000 students. It was freely recognized that the students at small colleges have as much right to a voice on The Joint Executive as students in large colleges but it was also felt that in justice to the majorities their representatives should be given more voting power than the representatives of the minorities. Having once admitted this principle, it is only logical to concede each representative a voting power exactly proportionate to the number of students whom he or she represents. Your Committee believes it highly improbable that the representatives of large colleges or faculties would then vote to the particular disadvantage of their weaker colleagues since they would be as likely to divide against each other as against the small colleges or faculties. This conclusion was not reached without a searching investigation of conditions in a university where constituencies varied in size from 50 to 1,000. It is felt to be the only solution to a most difficult problem. Your Committee are therefore unanimous in recommending that each member of The Joint Executive shall have as many votes as there are students in the constituency which he or she represents.

7. A last main issue facing the Committee concerns the President of The Joint Executive. Notwithstanding considerable agitation on both sides of the question, your Committee made a special effort to re-examine the case from every angle and their unanimous conclusion was that the President of The Joint Executive must be a graduate of the University with experience if possible, on The Joint Executive. It was recognized that the number of students capable of discharging the duties of this office would be very limited; that the number willing to make an attempt would be still more limited and that those most eligible would consider themselves disqualified by reason of their work in the constituencies which they represent. The value of experience on The Joint Executive was regarded as highly important in view of the fact that the undergraduate membership of this body changes completely each year, thereby endangering continuity of policy. It was therefore recognized that a graduate would be more impartial in his capacity as Chairman of The Joint Executive than any undergraduate could ever be and would moreover be more free from charges of partiality. Your Committee took into consideration all the arguments advanced by that group which has championed the case for an undergraduate President, only to arrive at the conclusion that an undergraduate President may be theoretically desirable but practically speaking would almost amount to an impossibility. It may well be asked what undergraduate would be found capable or willing to act as President, this year or next year?

8. Most other features of the new Constitution are self-explanatory; should any prove otherwise, your Committee will be only too glad to state openly the reasons for their decision in each case. Your Committee are confident that all those interested in the new Constitution will understand that no decision was reached without careful consideration in the light of the past and in view of what may be expected in the future.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

2. Compensation shall be paid on the explicit understanding that the Editor-in-Chief shall regularly attend meetings of the Publications Committee and of The Joint Executive, of which he shall be an ex-officio member.

C—Conditions of Contract

1. This agreement is concluded on the explicit understanding that the Editor-in-Chief pledges himself to adhere to both the spirit and letter of the following policy which was unanimously approved by The Joint Executive Students' Administrative Councils, at its regular meeting on November 3rd, 1930:

The Editor and his staff should remember that as students of this University, they owe loyalty to its traditions, reputation and future development, and that their policy should evidence a desire to stimulate such loyalty.

That The Varsity should not be a follower of the down-town dailies in point of policy and presentation of news, but should realize that it has a different outlook and a different field in which to operate and that it must form its policy to suit its own unique circumstances.

That the news and other reading matter in The Varsity is read by a great many people outside the University. It is closely scrutinized by all of our city dailies and as a result of exchanges it reaches readers in practically all of the important Universities in the United States and Canada. Thus, both directly and indirectly, some at least of these articles are read by people all over this continent. The Editor should bear this in mind and, when preparing the head lines, news articles, and editorials, he should take into consideration their effect on the outside reader, so that the reputation of the University may not suffer.

That the only way to secure improvement and to bring about mutually beneficial changes in the interest of the Undergraduate body as a whole, is to campaign for these in a spirit of tolerance and co-operation, and The Varsity should, therefore, try and set an example in this kind of spirit and should not seek to criticize and make public some particular situation, merely for the sake of taking advantage of it as news value or of making things unpleasant without just cause or of securing personal notoriety for the Editor or any member of his staff.

That The Varsity is a student paper published in the interests of, and belonging to, the student body as a whole and, therefore, its pages should exclude all articles which might stir up one Faculty or College against another. In other words, The Varsity should stand for good feeling and friendliness and not for discord.

That the Editor should not bring personalities into the lines of his editorials.

That all vulgar, offensive or suggestive expressions should be carefully avoided.

That everyone connected with the staff of The Varsity should take particular pains to make certain that all statements of fact are accurate, and that all reports of interviews give an accurate account of every statement attributed to the speakers.

That the Editor is not a power in himself, but is elected by and employed by the students through The Joint Executive and should conduct himself in a manner to retain their confidence.

That this Committee feels certain that no one in any way connected with the University is desirous of interfering with the rights of free speech on the part of the Editor or his staff and that no one is unwilling to be criticized provided that freedom of speech and criticism take a proper form of expression. Criticism should be constructive and a tone of sarcasm, bitterness or vindictiveness should not be used.

That these paragraphs concerning the policy of The Varsity are not in any way designed to deprive the Editor of the use of his own good judgment and common sense, nor are they intended to prevent him from using his own initiative and acting according to his own ideas.

That, when appointed to the position of Editor-in-Chief of The Varsity by The Joint Executive, the Editor is given the confidence of the Student Body and in holding this important position, he is expected to use his ability in their best interests and to be mindful of the feelings of everyone connected with the University, whether they be students or Faculty or Management.

2. This agreement is concluded on the explicit understanding that the Editor-in-Chief shall be prepared to co-operate with the Publications Committee and The Joint Executive in all matters pertaining to his duties as Editor-in-Chief.

3. This agreement is concluded on the explicit understanding that The Joint Executive and its Publications Committee undertake to co-operate with the Editor-in-Chief and to assist him as far as possible in the carrying out of his duties.

It is further understood that the Editor-in-Chief shall at all times have the right to bring before The Joint Executive and discuss any matter pertaining to his duties as Editor of The Varsity.

4. This agreement is concluded on the explicit understanding that the Editor-in-Chief shall co-operate with The Joint Executive by publishing verbatim at their request any article or report deemed necessary.

5. This agreement may be terminated at any time by the Editor-in-Chief by giving notice of resignation at least two weeks in advance; or this agreement may be terminated by The Joint Executive at any time provided only that notice of such termination shall be given to the Editor-in-Chief at least 24 hours in advance.

Article 4—In the employment of the Women's Editor, the Managing Editor, the News Editor, the Women's News Editor, the Sporting Editor, and the Women's Sporting Editor of The Varsity, The Joint Executive shall use the contract form outlined above in Article 3 of this appendix, with such deletions and alterations as may be necessitated by the nature of their offices.

Article 5—In the employment of the Editor of Torontensis, The Joint Executive shall use the contract form outlined above in Article 3 of this appendix, with such deletions and alterations as may be necessitated by the nature of his office.

COMMUNITY CHEST UNION UNLIKELY

N.W.A. Secretary Scouts Rumour of Merger in Charity Organization

LINE APPROVES PRINCIPLE

"There is very little possibility of this union taking place," stated Mr. F. N. Stapleford, General Secretary of the Neighborhood Workers' Association, to "The Varsity" Wednesday when asked about the rumoured federation of the Catholic, the Protestant and the Community chest charities which was given prominence in one of the morning newspapers yesterday. "The present system of charity work is functioning very well," he said. "There is very little or no overlapping as each group ministers to, and appeals for funds to, its own people."

When questioned by "The Varsity" as to the desirability of such a scheme and the difficulties to be considered, Professor Line of the Psychology department, expressed the opinion that the principle involved was all right and that anything that would tend to break down the sectional barriers would be very welcome. There would be a reduction of overhead, he said, but there would be a great many snags and difficulties to arrange and overcome.

J. D. Ketchum of the Psychology department, thought the plan would be very desirable, but declined to comment further.

Professor G. S. Brett of the Philosophy department stated that he had not studied the question, but saw no reason why the idea should not be successful if the distribution of the funds among the charities was satisfactory to the subscribers.

INFLUENZA OUTBREAK AT U.C. UNDER CONTROL

Several Mild Cases Isolated in Women's Union as Safety Measure

Several cases of a mild type of influenza have broken out recently in the University College women's residences on St. George St.

"Dr. Gordon and the House Committees have been doing everything they can to prevent contagion among the other students," stated Miss Dorothy Kilpatrick, Dean of Women for University College, when interviewed on the subject. "A few of the girls have been isolated at the Women's Union, and a nurse was called in when necessary. There is only one girl who is sick now and we hope that there won't be any more cases."

WOMAN'S SCOPE WIDENED SAYS BUSINESS WOMAN

Sympathy and Personality Bring Success, Maintains Miss Stoakley

"Women in business do not seek to be the competitors of men. They are helpmates," stated Miss Stoakley in her noon-hour address at the Union Wednesday. Fifty years ago most of the women of Canada lived on farms. Their thoughts did not stray farther than market day or the annual harvest. But with Canada's emergence into a nation, her scope widened and she left the narrow community in her search for economic freedom. At first she was not popular, and there was no end of speculation on her ability to hold an important position. It used to be news when a woman was a success in business. To-day, every branch of commercial life has been invaded, as have politics, sport, aviation, literature and science.

"Women have introduced qualities into business which tend to purify it," continued Miss Stoakley. "The moral

Canadian Literature

Periodically we hear a great deal about Canadian Literature, and the desirability of the appreciation of native work by the Canadian Literary public. We have organizations such as the Canadian Authors' Association and the Canadian Literature Club that make definite propagandist efforts, and their lead is followed by several of the Canadian literary critics.

It seems questionable if these efforts to provide an artificial stimulus to native work can be productive of any good effect. To encourage the public to read inferior work merely because it is Canadian is unworthy of any reputable literary group. The whole field of English literature in its broadest sense is open to Canadians and not a few have made a name for themselves. But to attempt to nationalize literature is to rob it of its vigour. Would it not be infinitely better to let Canadian writers take whatever place they merit in this broader field than to attempt to restrict them to the narrow limits of a national literature?

An Adviser of Studies

In connection with the appointment of an Adviser of Studies which we advocated in last Friday's "Table Round" we would like to draw attention to the fact that such an officer has existed for many years in Cambridge University. The idea is that the prospective student should be given an opportunity of confiding his aspirations to the adviser, and receive some guidance as to which courses would be most likely to fulfil them.

As matters stand it is inevitable that every professor will outline the advantages of his own department when he is asked for advice. In the case of high school teachers, they are inclined to advocate those courses in which they have themselves been trained. The advice thus given is of no real value in the relation of a student to his course of training. University methods differ so much from the elementary methods of high school training that a student sometimes finds himself completely out of water in his new surroundings.

In History, for example, the high school courses, as covered by most teachers, are decidedly dull, and give no real conception of the historical method or of the philosophy of history, or of the actual relation of historical studies to an understanding of trends in politics and society. As a consequence there are many good historical students wasted in other courses and many poor students in history. This condition exists in practically every department of the University. Surely the appointment of an Adviser would help to correct the situation.

We feel sure that professors, as well as students would welcome an improvement in the choice of courses by prospective students.

Lauds Vic Music Club

Editor, "The Varsity".

Dear Sir:

I notice, with great satisfaction, that the Victoria College Music Club is going to entertain us this year with "The Gondoliers", one of Gilbert and Sullivan's most beautiful light operas. To lovers of good music this comes as glad tidings of an unmixed blessing, for there is about the work of these two masters an undefinable something which places their operas far above any other operatic work ever composed in an English-speaking country. All their works are filled with colour, tuneful melody and rich with a gentle satire which makes them

Victoria Men Get Sound Advice on Success in World of Business

A large turnout of 81 at the monthly meeting of the Burwash Hall Dinner Club Wednesday showed appreciation of the undergraduates to the Victoria College Alumni Association for their interest in aiding the choice of a college graduate's career.

Dr. George H. Locke, president of the Alumni Association, declared: "You must be well read and have an active mind that will adapt itself to your work and put the power into your work that brings success."

Mr. A. J. Felton, Canadian manager of the Alexander Hamilton Institute, dealt with the "Opportunities for the College Man in Business", and pointed out that "we must watch out lest we become a type and to cultivate our individuality". "Above everything, keep your poise, learn to think and make decisions quickly, preserve your originality, put interest into your work, and choose only the vocation you like."

altogether delightful entertainment. "The Gondoliers", which is perhaps my favourite, is typically Gilbert and Sullivan and loaded with all those fine qualities which make their operas so justly famous. We undergraduate music lovers are indebted to the Victoria College Music Club for their annual presentation of these light operas and I write this as an expression of appreciation which I am sure many of my fellow undergraduates also feel, and which can be publicly expressed through no better medium than the undergraduate newspaper. The past performances of this club have been faultless and I am sure we can expect another perfect presentation this year.

Thank you very much for this valuable space.

Yours sincerely,
MUSIC LOVER,
V. Meds.

BLUE SENIORS CLASH WITH MARLBOROS AT "T" ARENA TO-NIGHT

THE SPORTSWOMAN

By W. A. L.

Margaret Eaton displayed great form in their win over the Varsity senior squad yesterday afternoon, when the Blue team came out on the short end of a 35 to 25 count. The M.E.S. team shows surprising strength for so early in the season, and their fast passing and accurate shooting had the Varsity defence completely baffled, especially in the first period.

Varsity struck their stride in the second half, however, and scoring was even. The Blue defence tightened up considerably and the forward line displayed great speed. Of course, the definite line-up for the Varsity team has not yet been decided upon, and the game to-day gave Coach Marion Forward a real chance to pick out the flaws in the defensive work of the team.

The intermediates will meet the seniors next Wednesday in their first encounter this year, and although the intermediates are seldom as strong as the seniors, the games between them are always very keenly contested. The seniors will take on the Hamilton Normal School Grads next Friday in a game which will be played at U.T.S. at 8 o'clock. The Grads have a very strong outfit and it will be interesting to compare the showing of the seniors against them with that of the intermediates last Saturday in Hamilton.

The intercollegiate hockey team will meet Silverwoods in the first game of the city league on Saturday night at the Varsity Arena at 7 o'clock. This new team is more or less an unknown quantity, but the Varsity sextette is an exceptionally strong one this year, and should make an excellent showing against the city girls.

Most of the girls who starred on last year's outfit are with the team again, and all are displaying great form. The team should have no trouble retaining the intercollegiate championship which they won last year from Queen's.

Managers of interfaculty hockey and swimming teams are again reminded that eligibility slips for every member of their team must be in the hands of Miss Parkes before the girl takes part in any game. In view of the trouble which arose last year over the slips, it is to be hoped that managers will make sure that this matter is attended to immediately.

M. AND P. SOCIETY HOLD ANNUAL SKATING PARTY

The Mathematical and Physical Society held their annual skating party last night at the Varsity Stadium. Refreshments and dancing at the University College Women's Union completed the evening's entertainment.

Members of the faculty who were present included Dr. and Mrs. John Satterly, H. J. C. Ireton, Miss K. M. Crossley and Miss F. M. Quinlan.

MARLBORO STARS PROMISE FAST GAME

U. of T. Hopes of Victory Not Ill-founded; No Quarter Given or Asked

DEFEAT TO-NIGHT IS FATAL

A red hot hockey treat will be dished up for the fans to-night at the Bloor Street ice palace when Hughie Plaxton, former star on the Varsity Grads, leads his battling Marlboros onto the ice against the men of Red Porter, also late of the Grads. The Blue and White, with elimination from the O.H.A. race starting them in the face if they lose this game, will be fighting to the last ditch. The Dukes, who are having a struggle for second place with Hamilton and the Sea Fleas also need a victory to keep up in the standing and a real battle should result.

Marlboros will present one of the strongest line-ups in amateur hockey. The management of the Dukes have assembled a team of fast skating stars with a battering ram defence in front of a great goal keeper. Claude Harris, of Balmby Beach rugby fame, looks after the shots on the nets and has been starring consistently all season. The Blue sharpshooters will have plenty of trouble in beating him to-night. In front of Harris, Alex "The Great" Levinsky, one-time Varsity favourite, who has been knocking them all over without favour this season, will team up with the much sought after Fred Radke to form one of the strongest defences in the simon pure ranks.

On the forward line the Dukes have Bill Thoms and Bob Gracie of last year's West Toronto junior champions, Max Hackett, fiery little wingman of the 1929 Marlboro juniors, Davey, Mike Underwood, Teddy Oliver, ex-P.C.C. star, all ready to drop over the boards. Then Hugh Plaxton himself gets into the game occasionally and may perform to-night. At one time rated as the best centre man in amateur hockey and the recipient of innumerable pro offers, Plaxton has played in one or two of his team's games this season and has shown a few flashes of his old-time form.

The Blue and White will have their work cut out for them to come out in front against this line-up of stars, but the Porteries will be in there battling from the first going to the last. After holding the strong McGill team to a draw there is plenty of hope that the "T" squad will give a good account of themselves in the O.H.A. race and they will be out to prove their mettle to-night. The game should be one of the best of the current season from the standpoint of action and fast hockey.

JUNIOR S.P.S. TAKES GAME FROM U.C. IN LAST INNING

Five Runs by Schoolmen in Fourth Inning Drag Victory from Defeat; Score 10-9

Junior School defeated Junior U.C. last evening in interfaculty baseball by 10 to 9, winning out in the final inning. U.C. took the lead in the early part of the game, scoring five runs in the first inning to three for School. Both teams scored single runs in the second and in the third U.C. added three more, to one for the opposition. U.C. were blanked in their half of the fourth but held a commanding lead of four runs.

School rallied in the last half of the fourth, the final inning, scoring five runs on hits from Howe, Hewitt, Collins and Mason to nose out U.C.

Junior School--Chalmers, A. Howe, P. Howe, Hewitt, Carbone, Collins, Jones, Mason, Shapiro.

Junior U.C.--Smith, Haas, Gibson, Giroux, Gavin, Loblaw, Grant, Blackford, Rourke.

SPEAKING OF SPORT

By T. A. F.

Varsity juniors wound up their regular season last night with a 6 to 5 victory over Toronto Canoe Club, the group leaders. The game meant nothing to either side as far as the standing was concerned, but nevertheless went twenty minutes overtime. Frank Sullivan's team finished up in third place with three victories, a tie and five defeats to their credit. In some ways the team has been a disappointment. At the first of the season the critics were picking them to finish on top and they looked strong enough to qualify for the playoffs at least. However, their defense was not as strong as it might have been and in addition the team ran into some hard luck in the way of adverse decisions in two games which proved costly.

So far this season none of the teams Varsity seniors have come up against have been able to do more than nose out the Blues in close games. The league-leading Port Colborne Sailors have two decisions over us by small margins and the collection of stars in the Sea Flea uniform had plenty of trouble in downing us 2 to 1. At the same time the men of Porter have a victory over Kitchener to their credit. So it would seem that either the Blues are much underrated or else the rest of the teams are not as strong on the ice as they are on paper. Personally, we think it is a little of both. Varsity will never break out into any scoring rampages this season, but they are a strong defensive squad and will make all and sundry earn every one of their goals in the remaining six games.

To-night's struggle with the mighty Marlboros has all the earmarks of a battle. The Dukes are still foaming over the pasting (in more ways than one) which the Hamilton man-eaters handed them up in the Ambitious City this week and they are out to keep in the running for a playoff berth with a win over the Blues. The Dukes, like the Fleas, have their eyes on the Allan Cup and the Olympics, and are finding the path to success a mighty rocky one. However, they have one of the best teams in amateur ranks and the Porteries will have a hard job to pull out a win to-night. Our old friend Alex Levinsky is holding down a defense berth on the Dukes and is going better than ever. The rest of the stars are too numerous to mention.

An added attraction for to-night's game will be the contest in "master-minding" between two former team-mates. Red Porter at the helm of the Varsity squad, and Hughie Plaxton, coach of the Dukes, both formerly performed for the famous Varsity Grads, Olympic champions of 1928. This is Plaxton's first big attempt at coaching and he is making good right from the start. Besides guiding the destinies of the Dukes he often drops over the boards and takes a hand in the game as a player. Three years ago Hugh was rated the best centre-ice man in the simon-pure ranks and just about every pro club in the country was after him. He may not be quite as good now after a long lay-off, but he still knows what to do when he gets near the opposing nets.

M'GILL TO OPPOSE BLUES TO-MORROW

Keen Competition Expected in Local Basketball Game

VARSIITY IS IMPROVED

The senior basketball team faces the acid test Saturday night when they open the home season with McGill as the opposition. The Redmen are strong favourites to capture the title this year and have one of the most powerful squads ever turned out by the Montreal Institute of Learning. The Blues are still smarting under the defeat administered by Western at London last week and are out to fight to the last ditch to-morrow.

McGill has six of last year's veterans back, including Small, who scored sixteen points against the locals in Montreal last year. Small is captaining the Redmen this season and Captain Sakler of the Blues will probably get the assignment of holding him in check in Saturday night's struggle. Don Young of football fame, will hold down the pivot position for the McGill men and George O'Leary of the "T" squad should have his hands full looking after him.

The Blues have been hard at work all week under the eye of Coach McCutcheon and have shown considerable improvement. Collins is rounding into

GUELPH PUCKSTERS FALL BEFORE VIC ONSLAUGHT

Team Work Proves Superior to Brilliant, but Highly Individual Play

Victoria College defeated O.A.C. at Guelph last night by 6 goals to 4 in an interfaculty hockey game.

The Guelph team put up a stiff argument and only the stellar playing of the whole Victoria team offset the sparkling individual plays of the Aggies.

O.A.C. took the lead in the first three minutes but were unable to hold it for long. Two minutes later a beautiful combination play from Farrel to Inch resulted in the latter scoring the equalizer. his old-time form, while Sakler, Cock and McCallum have been going well on the defence. The starting forward line will be chosen from Hynes, Sulderman and Riggs. Earl Davey has definitely decided not to play this season and his absence will be felt.

Everything points to a real struggle with the Blue and White out to stop the march of the McGill men. The game will be preceded by an intermediate fixture between Varsity and McMaster. The latter are also favorites to capture their group, but the locals can be counted on to make a real battle of it.

Intercollegiate Team Loses in Hard Fought Battle

FINAL SCORE 35-25

Margaret Eaton School defeated the women's intercollegiate squad by the score of 35-25 in the opening fixture of the city basketball league in the M.E.S. gym last night. The game was exceptionally fast and was featured by close body-checking which resulted in many penalties being dealt out. Varsity accounted for 9 goals from foul shots. The shooting was accurate and some beautiful field shots were scored.

The M.E.S. team took the offensive from the opening whistle and dominated the play during the first half of the game. The clever work of the M.E.S. defence prevented the Varsity forward line from becoming a scoring threat. At half time Varsity was on the short end of a 20-10 score.

In the second half the play was more even with Varsity fighting hard till the last minute. The Varsity defence were on their toes and broke up the M.E.S. attack consistently. During the latter half of the period the Varsity forwards were sinking in shots one after another. Varsity had excellent team play and displayed some pretty passing particularly in the last period.

For the winners V. Harvey was outstanding, with 18 points to her credit. Eleanor Sedgewick was chief scorer for Varsity, accounting for 15 points. Eleanor Wallace at centre turned in a stellar performance and Bea Longley on the defence, played an excellent game.

Margaret Eaton School--V. Harvey (18), R. Tingley (8), forwards; jumping centre, R. Hamilton; I. Moyer (9), side centre; M. Ryan, D. Treble, defence; subs, M. Withers, T. Elmsley, N. Fletcher.

Varsity--W. Hazlitt (4), L. Crouch (10), forwards; Eleanor Wallace, jumping centre; E. Sedgewick (15), side centre; B. Thomas, J. Allen, defence; subs, B. Longley, D. Palmer, L. McGarry, S. Ballard.

on to pick the short side for the only score of the period. Only sensational goalkeeping by House held the fort for the paddlers when they were shorthanded.

After nine minutes of play in the final session the fire works started. Huggins drew a penalty for roughing Lynch and the T.C.C. became suddenly demoralized. Boddington picked the corner after recovering a nice pass from Bennett, while Cunningham tallied a half minute later from a face off.

Then T.C.C. hemmed the Varsity team in but to no avail. It looked like a Blue victory but with only a few minutes to go Davidson circled the Blue goal and Huggins potted his pass-out.

In the first overtime session London broke through for what appeared to be a sure score, only to be out-

The second overtime session opened in a business-like manner and Huggins scored for the Red Ringers on a long shot. Immediately after Brown was penalized and Varsity was quick to take advantage and scored twice in three minutes to put the game in the bag.

Cunningham played a fine game in the last period and the overtime, but was only ordinary in the first sessions. Hendry, Lynch, May, Bennett and McPherson all made some nice plays at one time or another.

Davidson, with his rushing; Huggins, with his stickhandling, and London with a bullet-like shot, were outstanding for the Canoe Club.
